A Simple Twist of Fate

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie A Simple Twist of Fate, Touchstone Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Cliff Eidelman; Music Editor: Scott Stambler; Orchestra conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 A Simple Twist Of Fate (suite)(5:06); 2 Matilda's Fantasy (2:27); 3 The Bracelet (1:24); 4 Prelude To Tanny's Fate (3:03); 5 Floating On Air (1:57); 6 Red Is The Rose (1:38); 7 Okay You're Free (1:50); 8 Into The Light (3:07); 9 A New Life (3:05); 10 Red Is The Rose (reprise)(3:41); 11 Transcending (2:23); 12 Michael's Theme (2:06).

Review: Cliff Eidelman succeeds once again in creating another delightfully gentle, romantic musical fantasy. This time, it's about the bond between a man, who has shut the world out of his life, and the small child who comes into his care, changing everything he knows and believes in. Eidelman personifies this fusion of their souls though the use of a small female choir within the orchestra. The mood is occasionally broken by darker passages, such as the Bernard Herrmann-esque "Prelude to Tanny's Fate," and several variations on "Red Is The Rose." Eidelman performs the piano solo on "Michael's Theme."

Sirens

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Sirens, Miramax Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Album Producer: Ian P. Hierons; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 March Past Of The Kitchen Utensils (R. Vaughn Williams)(3:07) The Queensland Symphony Orchestra, Patrick Thomas; 2 The Yearning/Sirens Suite (3:27); 3 Sam Sawnoff's Pipe (:35); 4 Allure (4:16); 5 Sam Sawnoff's Horn (:46); 6 Sirens (2:50); 7 Calliope House (D. Richardson/R. Heenan/A. Marr)(3:49) Boys Of The Lough; 8 Hylas And The Nymphs/Waves (5:25); 9 Beckoning/Promise And Regret (2:13); 10 The Sprightly Don (2:15); 11 Mysterioso (2:26); 12 Candide (2:20); 13 Terra Australis (2:54); 14 Grey Funnel Line (C. Tawney)(3:02) Silly Sisters: Maddy Prior & June Tabor; 15 Ophelia (1:07).

Review: The Sirens album opens with Ralph Vaughan Williams's jaunty "March Past of the Kitchen Utensils," and the Rachel Portman score that follows blends the English precision of that piece with the lyricism of Georges Delerue and the quirky rhythms of Elmer Bernstein. Of course this is a crude approximation. Portman, a recent Oscar winner for Emma, has a distinct style that has grown out of these worthy influences. Sirens is a period piece about Hugh Grant, sensuality and naked supermodels, and the score is charming and buoyant, with dreamy, transparent orchestrations. The handful of different themes are self-contained and memorable—you will especially remember them over the course of the album, as each one is repeated almost verbatim several times.

Review: For this amiable Whoopi Goldberg comedy, Marc Shaiman transforms a quartet of gospel hymns into Motown-styled rockers. The majority of the CD is taken up by these, and six straightforward rock tunes. Shaiman is given four cues (about 13 minutes) to present his underscore – mostly rhythm section action music. Adopting the film's initial Las Vegas setting, Shaiman's brassy music captures an appropriate Vegas lounge feel. In one cue, he orchestrally addresses several of the Motown tunes heard from the choir earlier, contrasting them with the Vegas jazzy chase-music as the villains, nuns, and Whoopi all meet up and settle their differences in a Vegas casino. This score may not be for everyone, and in fact it's got little actual film music, However, Shaiman's Motown-hymns are so catchy and his action cues nicely done enough to make the disc quite likable.

Sisters

1985, Southern Cross Records; from the movie Sisters, American International, 1973.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Hermann; Orchestra conducted by Bernard Hermann; Album Producer: John Lasher; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:20); 2 The Dressing Room (1:13); 3 The Ferry/The Apartment/Breton (3:32); 4 The Scar/The Pills/Duo (2:49); 5 The Cake/The Car/The Candles (2:19); 6 Phillip's Murder/Window View (2:55); 7 Clean-Up/Split-Screen/The Search (2:49); 8 Plastic Bag/The Dress/Cake Box (2:15); 9 Apartment House/The Windows (2:30); 10 The Couch (1:05); 11 Siamese Twins (2:31); 12 The Solution/The Clinic/Hypnotic Trance (3:47); 13 The Dream/The Syringe (5:07); 14 Separation Nightmare/ Breton's Murder/Dirge (4:56); 15 Aftermath/Finale (2:02).

Review: After years of toiling on juvenile fantasy films in the '60s, Bernard Herrmann saw his reputation completely overhauled in the '70s as a new generation of film directors sought him out; chief among them was Brian DePalma, who mirrored the Hitchcock/ Herrmann collaboration by hiring the composer for a series of unusual suspense films. Sisters, a bizarre shocker about separated Siamese twins, is the weirdest of the bunch, and Herrmann's score is probably his most frightening and unsettling effort since his classic Psycho score. The opening is a terrifying fall through layers of descending string, celeste and xylophone textures and a hair-raising synthesized howl (played over microscopic fetal photography in the film's title sequence). This aggressive horror approach alternates with a delicate, lullabye-like chime melody throughout the score. It's not exactly easy listening, but it's a great example of how Herrmann was still able to push the boundaries of the medium even in the final years of his career.

Six Days Six Nights

1994, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Six Days Six Nights, Fine Line Features, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Nyman; The Michael Nyman Band, conducted by Michael Nyman; Album Producer: Michael Nyman; Engineer: Michael J. Dutton.

Selections: 1 Solitude (1:36); 2 Broken Glass (4:58); 3 Sisters (1:42); 4 The Intruder (2:40); 5 Waltzing The Bird (3:16); 6 A New Beginning (1:22); 7 Stolen Memories (1:09); 8 A la folie... (5:48); 9 The Streets Of Paris (2:39); 10 Love Forever (1:19); 11 Love Theme (2:35); 12 Point Of No Return (2:55); 13 Escape (3:37); 14 Broken Dreams (4:19); 15 Dark Fantasy (2:25); 16 Six Days Six Nights (5:51).

Review: Depending on the type of film he is scoring, Michael Nyman can be painfully austere or brightly illuminating. Six Days Six Nights, an intimate, powerful and intense tale of sexual intrigue and all-consuming passion, directed by Diane Kurys, must have inspired him particularly. While still evidencing strains of minimalist writing, one of the composer's characteristic elements of style, his score is exquisitely composed, with cues that exude a florid melodic aura, and themes that, for once, are pleasantly attractive. The Michael Nyman Band, a conglomeration of talented "regulars," involving a string section, a brass ensemble, and a basic rhythm group, plays the selections with evident empathy and delight, something which comes across in specific cues like "Sisters," "Waltzing the Bird," "A la folie...," "Love Forever," and the title track, among the best moments in this recording.

Six Degrees of Separation

1994, Elektra Records; from the movie Six Degrees of Separation, M-G-M, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The Victorian Philharmonic Orchestra of Melbourne, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Featured Performers: Stockard Channing (Ouisa), Will Smith (Paul), Donald Sutherland (Flan), Mary Beth Hurt (Kitty), Bruce Davison (Larkin), Jeffrey Abrams (Doug); Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Robin Gray.

Selections: 1 Ouisa And Flan (1:53); 2 Six Degrees Of Separation (1:22) Stockard Channing; 3 Just One Of Those Things (C. Porter)(1:06); 4 Sidney Poitier (1:26) Will Smith; 5 Give Six (P. Grabowsky)(2:32); 6 Painters (:30) Donald Sutherland; 7 There Is A God (1:30); 8 Cats (:51) Stockard Channing; 9 The Teacher (1:36); 10 Dream About Painters (1:09) Donald Sutherland; 11 The Blade (:43); 12 Imagination (1:55) Will Smith; 13 The Kiss (:55); 14 Dream Sequence (:44) Will Smith; 15 Safe Trip (:45); 16 Both Sides (:25); 17 Do We Have A Story To Tell You (1:28) Stockard Channing, Donald Sutherland, Mary Beth Hurt, Bruce Davison; 18 No Heart (1:05); 19 You're An Idiot (:44) Jeffrey Abrams; 20 Not Family (:33); 21 The Truth (:29) Stockard Channing; 22 Quartet in G Minor, Op. 10 (C. Debussy)(1:18); 23 Listen To Me (2:04) Will Smith; 24 I Read Today (2:21) Stockard Channing; 25 No Heart (5:05).

Review: This score for Fred Schiepsi's film adaptation of the Broadway play is one of Jerry Goldsmith's most intelligent and beautifully crafted scores of the '90s... unfortunately it's also one of the few Goldsmith scores that fails to stand on its own very well when listened to apart from the film. Most of the music is based around a tango Goldsmith wrote for the title theme, but it's an extremely brief, low-key effort and the producers of this album have judiciously padded out the CD's running length with generous doses of out-of-context dialogue from the film. This is an approach that has long been rendered obsolete by the availability of the videocassette, and programming out the verbiage to get to the score is probably more effort than most people will want to go through. Goldsmith's music interacts with the onscreen images and ideas brilliantly, but the album is a hard sell.

What is one to make of this "soundtrack" album which, with one single exception (the last track), only offers brief snippets of Jerry Goldsmith's score, laced with excerpts from the film's dialogue. As an audio experience, the first time around it holds one's interest, but repeated listening soon becomes tiresome, and while Goldsmith's music might have proved compelling had it been presented without interruptions, here it becomes simply annoying and an intrusion. Don't blame the composer, however, unless he was the one responsible for putting the album together in this manner.

The 6th Man

1997, Hollywood Records; from the movie The 6th Man, Touchstone Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Marcus Miller; Song Producers: Emosia, Doug E. Fresh, Vassal Benford, Big Band Theory, Savory, Chad "Dr. Ceuss" Elliott, Guru, Joleen Belle, Trevor Horn, Troy Taylor, Charles Farrar, Johnny Gill, Laytham Armor, Christopher Troy, Zac Harmon, Dominica, Tim Laws.

Selections: 1 Like This And Like That (Emosia/M. Lorello) (4:04) LaKiesha Berri; 2 Superstition (S. Wonder/D.E. Fresh) (4:57) Doug E. Fresh; 3 Keep On Risin' (V. Benford) (4:47) JADE, Lil' Rachett, VAZ; 4 Tasty (R. Robinson/E. Wilcox/T. Hardson) (5:15) Pharcyde; 5 Deeper Than Blood (T. Lacy) (4:19) Savory; 6 Make Me Say It Again Gil (O. Isley/R. Isley/R. Isley/E. Isley/M. Isley/C. Jasper) (6:36) Stokley Of Mint Condition; 7 Illest Man (K. Elam/J. Sims) (3:37) Guru; 8 Down And Dirty (J. Belle/K. Jackson) (3:37) J' Son; 9 Invisible (C. Sturken/E. Rogers/Public Demand) (4:15) Public Demand; 10 All He's Supposed To Be (J. Gill/T. Taylor/C. Farrar/C. Thomas) (4:31) Johnny Gill; 11 Bumpin' Coasties (M. Bell/L. Armor) (4:19) Marquis; 12 Get Up (Z. Harmon/C. Troy/R. Herrera) (4:28) Dominica; 13 Trouble (T. Laws/P. Curran) (4:35) Ortis; 14 Anything Can Happen (Theme From The 6th Man) (5:22).

Review: R&B and rap of the new school variety, whether it's New Jack crooning from Johnny Gill ("All He's Supposed to Be") or slamming hip-hop by Doug E. Fresh ("Superstition) and Pharcyde ("Tasty"). There's not a lot of A-matter here, however, making this more of a commercial than a creative exercise.

Sleepers

1996, Philips Records; from the movie Sleepers, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Featured Solo- ists: James Thatcher (French horn), Janet Ferguson (flute); Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineer: Sue McLean.

Selections: 1 Sleepers At Wilkinson (3:41); 2 Hell's Kitchen (5:23); 3 The Football Game (4:09); 4 Saying The Rosary (6:53); 5 The Trip To Wilkinson (2:35); 6 Time In Solitary (4:23); 7 Revenge (2:46); 8 Michael's Witness (4:09); 9 Learning The Hard Way (5:21); 10 Last Night At Wilkinson (3:51); 11 Father Bobby's Decision (3:56); 12 Reliving The Past (3:40); 13 Reunion and Finale (5:30).

Review: Outstanding is the best word to characterize this masterful, Oscar-nominated score from John Williams, a full-blooded dramatic outing that stands as the composer's finest "serious" score of the 1990s (i.e. music written for a supposedly award-worthy picture). Quite a contrast from the excellent though rather one-dimensional attributes of his scores for Oliver Stone's JFK and Nixon, Williams here ventures into a challenging musical landscape filled with often dissonant, eclectic combinations of electric guitar, synthesizer and full orchestra, dominated by a central motive that fails to find a resolution until the very end. Along the way, the composer treats us to a veritable "tour de force'" of musical cues that are by turns both poignant and disturbing, seductive yet unsettling, marked by tracks that simply explode with musical energy ("The Football Game"). Williams builds his score perfectly from the start, culminating in a truly lyrical finale that puts an ideal cap on a score that's easily the best of 1996, and further proof that great music can come from films that fail to live up to their potential.

Sleeping with the Enemy

1991, Columbia Records; from the movie Sleeping with the Enemy, 20th Century-Fox, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; Assistant Engineer: Sue McLean.

Selections: 1 Morning On The Beach (2:34); 2 The Funeral (3:24); 3 Brown-Eyed Girl (V. Morrison)(3:07) Van Morrison; 4 Thanks Mom (4:26); 5 Spring Cleaning (2:31); 6 The Ring (2:09); 7 A Brave Girl (3:50); 8 Fears (2:57); 9 What Did He Do (2:28); 10 The Storm (3:13); 11 The Carnival (2:55); 12 Remember This (7:57).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith has provided one of his loveliest romantic scores for this drama of spousal abuse and liberation, with two contrasting motifs – a very pretty love theme for Julia Roberts and a percussion-and-synth ambiance for her abusive husband. Roberts' theme is arranged for woodwinds over weaving strings which recall the swaying motion of the ocean into which her character fakes her death. The husband's ambient theme, with its synth rustles, sharp drum pounds and rhythmic bell gongs, is associated with the terror Roberts lived under and which she faces when her husband discovers her whereabouts and confronts her again. While "The Funeral" contrasts both motifs sequentially, in "The Ring," Goldsmith meshes them into a single variation – the powerful, frightening ambiance for the husband facing up to Roberts' lovely melody at the moment he discovers he has been deceived. The score ends on a victorious note, with the theme for Roberts' character soaring freely, unshackled at last from the oppressive presence of her husband's violent domination.

Sleepless in Seattle

1993, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Sleepless in Seattle, TriStar Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Featured Performers: Jimmy Durante, Louis Armstrong, Nat King Cole, Dr. John, Carly Simon, Gene Autry, Joe Cocker, Harry Connick, Jr., Tammy Wynette, Celine Dion & Clive Griffin.

Selections: 1 As Time Goes By (H. Hupfeld)(2:29) Jimmy Durante; 2 A Kiss To Build A Dream On (B. Kalmar/H. Ruby/O. Hammerstein II)(3:02) Louis Armstrong; 3 Stardust (H. Carmichael/M. Hilliard)(3:16) Carly Simon; 6 Back In The Saddle Again (G. Autry/R. Whitley)(2:35) Gene Autry; 7 Bye Bye Blacklbird (R. Henderson/M. Dixon)(3:30) Joe Cocker; 8 A Wink And A Smile (M. Shaiman/R. McLean)(2:48) Harry Connick Jr.; 9 Stand By Your Man (B. Sherrill/T. Wynette)(2:41) Tammy Wynette; 10 An Affair To Remember (H. Warren/H. Adamson/L. McCarey)(2:31); 11 Make Someone Happy (J. Styne/B. Comden/A. Green)(1:52) Jimmy Durante; 12 When I Fall In Love (E. Hayman/V. Young)(4:21) Celine Dion, Clive Griffin.

Review: Without a doubt, this compilation (for it is truly a compilation, as opposed to a recording featuring music originally composed for the film) is one of the finest collections of its nature, which seem to be de rigueur for many of Hollywood's most popular films of late. While the centerpiece of the recording is the incredibly successful chart hit "When I Fall In Love" (performed by Celine Dion and Clive Griffin), there are time honored standards that should warm the hearts of every music lover: Jimmy Durante's "As Time Goes By," Nat Cole's "Stardust" and "A Kiss to Build a Dream On" (with Louis Armstrong's distinct imprint) emerging as highlights. As well, a number of contemporary artists offer their unique take on the "classics," with excellent performances of "Bye Bye Blackbird" by Joe Cocker, and "Makin' Whoopee" by Dr. John and Ricki Lee Jones. It's refreshing to see Hollywood's directors utilizing one of our most important cultural treasures, American popular music, to enhance the mood and texture of their films, introducing these essential songs and interpretations to a new, younger generation of filmgoers. If nothing else, this recording serves that purpose—in a romantically delightful manner!

Engelen)(4:45) Lords Of Acid; 6 Oh Carolina (3:05) Shaggy; 7 Move With Me (N. Cherry/C. McVey)(5:19) Neneh Cherry; 8 Slave To The Vibe (J. Smith/P. Lord/G. Routte)(5:44) Aftershock; 9 Penthouse And Pavement (I. Marsh/M. Ware/G. Gregory)(3:56) Heaven 17; 10 Skinflowers (R. Mosimann/Franz)(5:06) The Young Gods; 11 Star Sail (S. Jones/P. Salisbury/N. McCabe/R. Ashcroft)(3:57) Verve; 12 Wild At Heart (M. Nikolai/Z. Campisi)(4:13) Bigod 20; 13 Carly's Loneliness (M. Cretu)(3:11) Enigma.

Review: A very modern-sounding collection of disassociated bands and songs. UB40 had a hit with its reggaefied rendition of Elvis Presley's "Can't Help Falling in Love." Dig deep, and you'll find a goodly number of cutting edge artists—Enigma, Neneh Cherry, Shaggy, Lords of Acid, Massive Attack—though these are not necessarily their shining moments. Not one you'd be ashamed to own, but not something you'll play a lot, either.

Smilla's Sense of Snow

1997, Teldec Records; from the movie Smilla's Sense of Snow, Constantin Films, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Herry Gregson-Williams, Hans Zimmer; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler; Music Editor: Adam Smalley; Orchestra conducted by Harry Gregson-Williams; Album Producer: Slamm Andrews; Engineer: Geoff Foster.

Selections: 1 Greenland: Anno 1859 (4:14); 2 Isaiah's Theme (2:06); 3 Smilla Learns More (4:22); 4 Threatened With Jail (4:47); 5 Who Is The Mechanic? (4:26); 6 Secrets Of The Ship (7:11); 7 Chase At Sea (8:07); 8 Greenland Revisited (10:28); 9 The Truth Revealed (6:41); 10 End Titles (2:23).

Review: A brilliant thriller, based on a novel by Peter Hoeg, Smilla's Sense of Snow stars Julia Ormond as a half-Inuit scientist who reveals intuitive powers of investigation when she attempts to solve the murder of a young neighbor. Reflecting the increasing tension in the story, as well as its more metaphysical aspects, Hans Zimmer and Harry Gregson-Williams have devised a score with its share of suspense. In addition to providing specific themes for the murdered boy ("Isaiah's Theme"), and a mysterious man only known as The Mechanic, who helps Smilla uncover the truth though his real motives for doing so are as enigmatic as his personality ("Who Is The Mechanic?"), the two composers have deftly bookended the score with two cues ("Greenland: Anno 1859" and "Greenland Revisited"), in which the recurring motifs evoke another mysterious event 140 years earlier that has a direct bearing on the current action. Though occasionally predictable, and often punctuated by riffs that give it an artificial sense of urgency, the score is nonetheless quite effective in establishing the aura of mystery that pervades the whole film until its satisfying conclusion.

Smoke

1995, Miramax Records; from the movie Smoke, Miramax Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Album Producer: Jeffrey Kimball.

Selections: 1 Brooklyn Boogie (L. Prima/E. Bostic) (3:02) Louis Prima; 2 Cigarettes And Coffee (J. Butler/E. Thomas/J. Walker) (5:37) The Jerry Garcia Band; 3 Downtown Train (T. Waits) (3:51) Tom Waits; 4 Augie's Photos (2:28); 5 Baby Wants Kisses (Annabouboula) (4:20) Annabouboula; 6 Supa Star (C. Martin/J. Felder/J. Heath) (4:16) Group Home; 7 Sexy Dumb Dumb (S. George) (4:00) Sophia George; 8 Hong Kong (J. Hawkins/I. Nahan) (2:21) Screamin' Jay Hawkins; 9 Prelude And Fugue For Piano No. 1 in C Major, op. 87 (D. Shotakovich) (5:33) Tatiana Nikolaeva; 10 Snow Story (2:23); 11 Innovent

When You Dream (Barroom) (T. Waits) (4:16) Tom Waits; 12 Smoke Gets In Your Eyes (J. Kern/O. Harbach) (4:25) The Jerry Garcia Band.

Review: A weird little outing, with two songs each from the Jerry Garcia Band ("Cigarettes and Coffee" and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes") and Tom Waits ("Downtown Train" and "Innocent When You Dream"). Cheers for including Louis Prima's "Brooklyn Boogie" and Screaming Jay Hawkins' "Hong Kong," but with a skimpy nine songs, there's not a great deal of heft to this one.

Sneakers

1992, Columbia Records; from the movie Sneakers, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Frank Bennett; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Featured Musicians: Branford Marsalis, Mike Fisher, Ralph Grierson, James Horner, Joel C. Peskin, Ian Underwood; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:59); 2 "Too Many Screts" (6:17); 3 The Sneakers Theme (3:35); 4 Cosmo... Old Friend (7:09); 5 The Hand-Off (3:08); 6 Planning The Sneak (3:22); 7 Playtronics Break-In (10:39); 8 The Escape/ Whistler's Rescue (3:24); 9 Goodbye (3:25); 10 "...And The Blind Shall See" (4:29).

Review: Former "Tonight Show" bandleader Branford Marsalis found great success performing and improvising on Jerry Goldsmith's lovely score for The Russia House in 1990, and filmmaker Phil Alden Robinson thought it would be a good idea to unite Marsalis' saxophone with composer James Horner when scoring Sneakers, Robinson's 1992 follow-up to Field of Dreams. While not as memorable as his Russia House stint, Marsalis' collaboration with Horner on the Sneakers score is still one of the least forgettable elements in Robinson's cliche-ridden thriller—the music is fast-paced and energetic enough, with a sprightly main theme working hard to offset some of the recycled material in the rest of Horner's work. Thus, when Marsalis is spotlighted, the score is pleasantly diverting, but listeners might want to skip past the tired "suspense" music in Horner's dramatic underscore.

Review: Alan Silvestri scored this riotous screwball comedy spoof of daytime TV dramas utilizing variations on the West Indian dance styles of mambo, tango and rumba. As the cast of self important actors plot to ruin each other's career, Silvestri amplifies their machinations into epic proportions of absurdity. He even has a theme for Sally Field's "America's Sweetheart" that's so sugary sweet, listening to it will rot out your teeth. The soundtrack is so bright, bouncy, and entertaining that it's more than likely to be the only underscore you can dance to.

Jesus And Mary Chain; 7 The Shyest Time (P.M. Walsh)(3:31) The Apartments; 8 Miss Amanda Jones (M. Jagger/K. Richards)(3:12) The March Violets; 9 Can't Help Falling In Love (L. Creatore/H. Peretti/G. Weiss)(3:07) Lick The Tins; 10 Turn To The Sky (L. Elliott/T. Ashton/C. Murray)(3:58) The March Violets.

Review: A lively contemporary love triangle, starring Eric Stoltz, Mary Stuart Masterson, Craig Sheffer and Lea Thompson, Some Kind of Wonderful is a predictably romantic comedy, which elicited a hard-driving rock soundtrack. While all the songs here may not always evidence the same level of quality, some, like "Brilliant Mind," "Cry Like This," "The Shyest Time" and "Turn to the Sky" are better than average. Also interesting in this collection is Lick The Tins' rendition of the classic "Can't Help Falling in Love," with lead vocalist Allison Marr displaying an engaging sense of urgency in her breathy delivery.

Some Mother's Son

1996, Atlantic Records; from the movie Some Mother's Son, Columbia Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Whelan; Orchestrations: Bill Whelan; Music Editor: Tom Drescher; The Irish Film Orchestra, conducted by Bill Whelan; Featured Performers: Declan Masterson (Uilleann pipes, bouzouki, whistles), Nikola Parov (gadulka, kavals), Kenneth Edge (soprano sax), Eileen Ivers (fiddle), Mairtin O'Connor (accordion), Neil O'Callanain (bouzouki), Desi Reynolds, Noel Eccles (percussion), Jimmy Higgins (bodhran, percussion); Album Producer: Bill Whelan; Engineers: Andrew Boland, Philip Begley.

Selections: 1 Some Mother's Son (Opening Titles)(2:35); 2 Bridge Attack (2:42); 3 The Seabird (4:55) Eleanor McEvoy; 4 Watching Annie's House (:58); 5 Escape And Capture (2:28); 6 At The Police Station (2:17); 7 Meeting Bobby Sands (1:18); 8 No Slop Out (1:54); 9 The Kiss (1:48); 10 Alice's Theme (1:57); 11 Prison Mass (:40); 12 Bobby Calls The Strike (:53); 13 Kathleen Joins Up (1:40); 14 Roisin Dubh (trad.) Eleanor McEvoy; 15 The Strikers Stand Firm (2:40); 16 The Seabird (instrumental)(2:35); 17 Kathleen's Decision (2:19); 18 I Had To Do It (1:47); 19 The Seabird (reprise)(1:47) Eleanor McEvoy; 20 Some Mother's Son (Oganaigh Oig)(4:24) Eleanor McEvoy.

Review: Possibly because this score was written by the composer of Riverdance, as soon as you hear the first explosive strains of "Bridge Attack," you might be tempted to look around to see if Michael Flatley, the self-anointed "Lord of the Dance," or any other tap-dancing misfit from these big dance extravaganzas, accompanied by a line-up likely to send the Rockettes at Radio City Music Hall into fits of envy, is not prancing around your living room. Actually, this "celtic" score is not really that bad; with effective cues conveying the sense of suspense and urgency in the screen narrative, yet another story about the struggle of Northern Irish to free themselves from British domination. Seen from the perspective of the mothers of the IRA freedom fighters, the film presents the usual share of violence, anguish, armed rebellion, jail terms, and everything that has fueled other films like this one for decades. Nothing in the rest of the score matches the excitement in "Bridge Attack," though one cue, "The Seabird," is striking in its poetic evocation, and several vocals (including some in Gaelic) enhance the musical proceedings.

Something to Talk About

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Something to Talk About, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer, Graham Preskett; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Ladd McIntosh, Suzette Moriarty, Elizabeth Finch; Music Editor: Laura Perlman; Featured Musicians: Mike Lang (piano), Jimmy Johnson, Nathan East (bass), John Van Tongeren (Hammond B-3), Carlos Vega, Russ Kunkel (drums), Greg Leisz (dobro), Pete Haycock, Tim Pierce, Bob Duspit, Tim May (guitars), Graham Preskett (violin, harmonica), Bill Knopf, Tim May (banjo), Mike Fisher, Bob Zimmitti (percussion); Album Producer: Hans Zimmer, Jay Rifkin; Engineers: Jay Rifkin, Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 Dysfunctionally Yours (9:36); 2 Kings Of Carolina (1:21); 3 Dinner For Two (10:02); 4 The Witches (2:10); 5 Grace (5:39); 6 Southern Comfort (3:10); 7 Tall Horses (4:50).

Review: A comedy about marital infidelities, with fresh new spins to enliven a tale as old as humanity itself, Something to Talk About found composers Hans Zimmer and Graham Preskett in eloquent verve for a score often tartly ingratiating and buoyantly effervescent. Echoing some of the caustic accents in this story of a Southern young woman (Julia Roberts) and her apparently unfaithful husband (Dennis Quaid), the score details the salient moments in the narrative, particularly in two longer cues, "Dysfunctionally Yours," and "Dinner for Two," echoing in the latter some of the emotional depth in a half-baked attempt at reconciliation between the two main characters. Driven by a large number of acoustic instruments (guitars, dobro, violin, harmonica and banjo, all of which evoke the kind of music one might hear in a small Southern community), the album is quite enjoyable on its own terms.

Something Wild

1986, MCA Records; from the movie Something Wild, Orion Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Song Producers: David Byrne; Jerry Harrison & Fine Young Cannibals; UB-40; Danny Elfman, Steve Bartek; Bob Rose; Sonny Okossun; New Order; Percy Chin, Jah Life, Arthur Baker.

Selections: 1 Loco de amor (Crazy For Love) (3:45) David y Celia; 2 Ever Fallen In Love (3:48) Fine Young Cannibals; 3 Zero, Zero Seven Charlie (3:48) UB-40; 4 Not My Slave (4:23) Oingo Boingo; 5 You Don't Have To Cry (3:57) Jimmy Cliff; 6 With You Or Without You (4:46) Steve Jones; 7 Highlife (3:40) Sonny Okossun; 8 Man With A Gun (4:32) Jerry Harrison; 9 Temptation (3:28) New Order; 10 Wild Thing (4:05) Sister Carol.

Review: An unusually clever thriller, starring Jeff Daniels and Melanie Griffith, Something Wild adroitly derived some of its strength from the combined musical contributions of performers like Fine Young Cannibals, Oingo Boingo, UB-40, New Order, and Jimmy Cliff, admittedly an odd assortment, whose songs delineated the contemporary feel of the action and helped propel it. "Wild Thing" (not the Jimi Hendrix tune) seems a fitting ending to the story and to the album.

Somewhere in Time

1985, MCA Records; from the movie Somewhere in Time, Universal Pictures, 1980.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestrations: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Somewhere In Time (2:58); 2 The Old Woman (2:49); 3 The Journey Back In Time (4:22); 4 A Day Together (6:02); 5 Rhapsody On A Theme Of Paganini (S. Rachmaninoff) (2:57) Chet Switkowski; 6 Is He The One (3:10); 7 The Man Of My Dreams (1:35); 8 Return To The Present (4:04); 9 Theme From "Somewhere In Time" (3:20) Roger Williams.

Review: There are "classics" and then there are classics. John Barry's score for Somewhere in Time is one of those instances where film music completely transcends the movie it originates from, and takes on a life of its own outside of its original context. Not that the movie itself—a 1980 time-travel fantasy with Christopher Reeve and Jane Seymour—hasn't become something of a classic in the years since its initial release, but Barry's music is one of the composer's most beloved scores. The elegant main theme for piano and orchestra (performed by Roger Williams in a beautiful arrangement here) is only part of the listening pleasure to be derived from the soundtrack, which also includes the gorgeous "Rhapsody on a Theme of Paganini," by Rachmaninoff. It truly is one of the loveliest scores in Barry's long, established career of composing many lyrical, soothing scores, and its continued status as a successful soundtrack album stands as a testament to the music's enduring popularity with listeners.

Sommersby

1993, Eletra Records; from the movie Sommersby, Warner Bros., 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Thomas Pasatieri, Jack Hayes, Philip Giffin; Music Editors: Ellen Segal, Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by Jonathan Sheffer, Thomas Pasatieri; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Ellen Segal, Richard Kraft; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: David Marquette, Andy Bass, Jay Silvester, Sharon Rice.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:41); 2 The Homecoming (1:58); 3 Welcoming (1:34); 4 First Love (3:54); 5 At Work (2:01); 6 Alone (4:23); 7 Return Montage (5:20); 8 Mortal Sin (4:39); 9 Homer (1:07); 10 Going To Nashville (1:42); 11 Baby (2:14); 12 Tea Cups (1:44); 13 Townsend's Tale (6:09); 14 Death (2:12); 15 Finale (4:05); 16 End Credits (3:16).

Review: He's scored movies with super heroes, stop-motion figures, ghastly monsters and Pee-Wee Herman, but some of Danny Elfman's finest work for the movies comes from a decidedly human angle. His score for Sommersby, the 1993 Americanization of The Return of Martin Guerre, remains one of the composer's most impressive efforts. With a tone that is alternately unsettled and brooding, a la Bernard Herrmann, or unabashedly romantic, Elfman and orchestrator Steve Bartek have put together a thematically strong score that fulfills all the dramatic requirements of Jon Amiel's film. In addition, the ensemble accompaniment representing the rural Virginia backdrop adds yet another layer to the score, which is quite different from the traditional Elfman sound, but is just as satisfying—if not more so—than anything else the composer has written for the movies yet.

Son of the Morning Star

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Son of the Morning Star, Republic Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Craig Safan; Featured Soloists: Ed Gornik (trumpet); Holly Gornik (oboe); Tom Mauchahty-Ware (Native American flute); Album Producer: Craig Safan; Engineers: Dennis Sands (orchestra), Gregg Karukas (Native American music).

Selections: 1 Elegy (2:05); 2 Night Ride (2:42); 3 Soldiers And Messages (2:42); 4 Premonitions (1:37); 5 Crazy Horse Dreams (1:54); 6 Westward Expansion (4:07); 7 Washita Massacre (3:17); 8 Libby Worries (4:01); 9 Fields Of The Dead (4:50); 10 Call To Arms (1:50); 11 Last Goodbyes (3:51); 12 Night Mysteries (2:04); 13 Soldiers Prepare (1:23); 14 Gathering Of Tribes (2:35); 15 Moving Armies (3:09); 16 Little Big Horn (17:29).

Review: The under-appreciated Craig Safan is known primarily for writing the theme music to the "Cheers" television show, but he's a talented dramatic composer who wrote one of the most exciting space opera scores of the '80s (The Last Starfighter) as well as this sophisticated take on the story of legendary General George Custer and the events that led to his downfall at Little Big Horn. Safan's score builds dramatic weight through the repetition of a dense, rich and bittersweet string melody that views the historical events depicted here as American tragedy rather than adventure. There's a beautiful love theme and an epic sweep to this album that make it a rarity in made-for-television scores, an effort that holds up against some of the better theatrical film scores of the period.

Son of the Pink Panther

1993, Milan/RCA Records; from the movie Son of the Pink Panther, United Artists, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestrations: Henry Mancini, Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Steve Hope; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Henry Mancini; Featured Musician: Phil Todd (tenor sax); Album Producer: Henry Mancini; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 The Pink Panther Theme (3:10) Bobby McFerrin; 2 Son Of The Pink Panther (1:33); 3 The Snatch (2:22); 4 God Bless Clouseau (H. Mancini/L. Bricusse)(2:01); 5 Samba de Jacques (2:24); 6 The Gambrelli Theme (2:23); 7 The Bike Chase (1:52); 8 The Dreamy Princess (3:58); 9 Riot At Omar's (2:40); 10 Mama And Dreyfus (1:43); 11 Rendez-Vous With Cato (1:53); 12 The King's Palace (1:47); 13 The Showdown (3:31); 14 The Pink Panther Theme (4:18).

Review: Unable to leave well enough alone following the death of Peter Sellers, Blake Edwards devised this tired number in his successful Pink Panther series, starring Italian actor Roberto Benigni as Inspector Clouseau's equally inept illegitimate son. Back to confer the ounce of legitimacy needed to make things fly are Herbert Lom as Commissioner Dreyfus and Burt Kwouk as Clouseau's faithful manservant Cato, as well as Henry Mancini, who provided the score as he had done in all previous Pink Panther films. Somehow, despite his natural verve and penchant for this type of comedy, the composer didn't seem much inspired by the antics of yet another Clouseau, and though his thoroughly professional score has its share of enjoyable moments ("Samba de Jacques," "Riot at Omar's"), some of the joy and effervescence that marked his previous efforts seem to be sadly missing here. In fact, the most original note in this album is Bobby McFerrin's impish rendition of "The Pink Panther Theme."

Sophie's Choice

1984, Southern Cross Records; from the movie Sophie's Choice, Universal Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Marvin Hamlisch; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; Orchestra conducted by Marvin Hamlisch; Album Producer: John Lasher; Engineers: Frank Jones, Colin Derek, Terri Fiyalko, Danny Hirsch.

Selections: 1 Love Theme (1:53); 2 Train Ride To Brooklyn (2:44); 3 Returning The Tray (2:32); 4 Coney Island Fun (1:00); 5 Songs Without Words, Op. 30, No. 1 (F. Mendelssohn)(1:43) Ralph Grierson; 6 Emily Dickinson (1:58); 7 Aren't All Women Like You? (1:53); 8 Rite On The Brooklyn Bridge (2:45); 9 Stingo/Polish Lullaby (1:42); 10 Nathan Returns (1:23); 11 Southern Plantation (1:54); 12 I'll Never Leave You (1:23); 13 Stingo And Sophie Together (3:03); 14 Ample Make This Bed (2:09); 15 End Credits (3:04).

Review: Marvin Hamlisch wrote one of his few straight dramatic scores for this Alan Pakula adaptation of the William Styron novel. The elegiac, deeply regretful title music is one of Hamlisch's most beautiful and haunting melodies, but the score itself tends to meander aimlessly until gathering up its forces to restate the theme broadly in some of the movie's hokier sequences. The score is better off when subtly underscoring the drama with an effective chamber orchestra approach. Hamlisch's deliberate, consonant string passages and piano phrases make for pleasant, bittersweet listening, but the darker territory of the story and its characters is rarely explored convincingly.

Sorcerer

1977, MCA Records; from the movie Sorcerer, Universal-Paramount, 1977.

Album Notes: Songs: Tangerine Dream (Edgar Froese, Peter Baumann, Christoph Franke).

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:29); 2 Search (2:54); 3 The Call (1:58); 4 Creation (5:00); 5 Vengeance (5:34); 6 The Journey (2:00); 7 Grind (2:49); 8 Rain Forest (2:36); 9 Abyss (7:10); 10 The Mountain Road (1:54); 11 Impressions Of Sorcerer (2:53); 12 Betrayal (Sorcerer Theme)(3:41).

Review: A remake of Henri-Georges Clouzot's frighteningly real Le salaire de la peur (Wages Of Fear), this film by William Friedkin elicited a convincingly powerful score by Tangerine Dream, even though the music the group created consisted of impressions they gathered from reading the script, and not from viewing the film as is common practice. While the "Main Title" really fails to attract with its electronic effects devoid of any musical meaning, the other selections make a different impression, with some ("Search," "Impressions of Sorcerer") surprisingly evocative of the screen drama itself. The album may seem strictly for fans of electronic music, but it also offers some rewarding moments for listeners less accustomed to this type of music.

The Sound and the Fury

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Sound and the Fury, 20th Century-Fox, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra, conducted by Lionel Newman.

Selections: 1 Main Title: The Sound And The Fury (4:25); 2 Quentin's Theme (1:52); 3 Sex Rears (3:33); 4 Caddie (2:17); 5 What's His Name (3:43); 6 Ben Spies On Lovers (1:58); 7 Southern Breeze (2:45); 8 Hot (2:39); 9 Jason And Quentin (2:59); 10 Sweet Baby (3:51); 11 Do You Love Me, Charlie? (3:53); 12 Ben Departs (2:16); 13 Too Much Woman/End Title (4:31).

Review: Released in 1959, The Sound and the Fury is a provocative big screen adaptation of William Faulkner's searing novel about the decline and fall of a once wealthy family in a small Mississippi community. Starring Joanne Woodward, as a young woman who craves the kind of affection she never got at home, and Yul Brynner, as the adopted stepson of the family estate who exerts control over everything and everyone, the film paints the drab portrait of a desperate family, fraying at the seams and on the verge of financial collapse. Underlining the moods in the story, as well as adding a comment of its own, Alex North's score derives much of its impact from the use of progressive (one hesitates to use the word avant-garde) jazz that occasionally prevailed in film soundtracks at the time, often in imitation of the trend pioneered by Elmer Bernstein. Without losing sight of the emotional context in some of the scenes ("What's His Name," "Southern Breeze," "Sweet Baby"), some of the cues devised by the composer rely on more contemporary accents to give the music an identity that takes it away from standard instrumental fares. This is particularly evident in the "Main Title" which realizes a symbiosis of the various styles North used in the score, and in the explosive "Sex Rears," in which the syncopated jazz accents effectively convey the steam and the tension in the film.

> "First his film scores convey fantastic levels of humor and emotion that help tell the story. Think about his scores for The Natural and Avalon and Awakenings."

South Seas Adventure

1993, Label X Records; from the movie South Seas Adventure, Cinerama, 1958.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; The Cinerama Symphony Orchestra and The Norman Luboff Choir, conducted by Alex North.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:37); 2 Journey To Hawaii (4:41); 3 Song Of The Islands (C.E. King)(:51); 4 Ted And Kay (1:25); 5 Surf Riding (1:26); 6 Fire Dance (trad.)(1:15); 7 Hawaiian War Chant (J. Noble)(1:33); 8 Start Of Te Vega's Voyage (2:58); 9 King Neptune (:43); 10 Trip To Tonga (3:09); 11 Ma Ulu Ulu (trad.)(2:07); 12 Behold The Lamb Of God (G.F. Handle)(1:45); 13 Onward Christian Soldiers (A. Sullivan)(1:15); 14 Fiji Chanting (trad.)(:44); 15 Head Diver Sequence (1:35); 16 Entr'acte (2:59); 17 Driving Through New Zealand (3:35); 18 Poi Chant (trad.)(1:09); 19 Welcome (1:41); 20 Sheep Shearing (Click Go The Shears)(trad.)(2:04); 21 Kangaroo Roundup (1:48); 22 Finale (1:28); 23 Credits (1:36); 24 Exit (Click Go The Shears)(2:05).

Review: Before it turned to more commercial fare, Cinerama first made its mark with sensational travelogues that used its three-screen diorama to best effect. Accompanying those were scores which, for the most part, were serviceable but not tremendously exciting or imaginative. One happy exception was this effort by composer Alex North, who took the South Pacific locations as a cue to write broad, colorful music, inspired by and based on traditional themes. While the sonics in this CD sometime leave a lot to be desired (the stereo is rather crude and not very flattering to the ear), there is no denying the charm and solid flair of the music itself.

Review: Michael Jordan meets Bugs Bunny—with Tweety Bird thrown in? Alert the kiddies. Actually, there's not much to dislike about this family-friendly collection of tunes. Seal does a lovely take on Steve Miller's "Fly Like an Eagle," R. Kelly's "I Believe I Can Fly" is easy on the ears and "Hit 'em High (The Monstars' Anthem")) is a big-fun collaboration between top-shelf rappers B Real, Busta Rhymes, Coolio, LL Cool J and Method Man. And Bugs' own "Buggin'" is a cheery way to close the album.

Spaceballs

1987, Atlantic Records; from the movie Spaceballs, M-G-M, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: John Morris; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes, Angela Morley; Orchestra conducted by John Morris; Album Executive Producers: Jerry Greenberg, Bob Greenberg.

Selections: 1 Spaceballs Main Title Theme (2:30); 2 My Heart Has A Mind Of Its Own (G. Sklerov/L. Macaluso) (3:56) Kim Carnes, Jeffrey Osborne; 3 Heartstrings (J. Crawford/T. Nunn/R. Brill/M. Reid) (4:10) Berlin; 4 Spaceballs Love Theme Instrumental (2:22); 5 The Winnebago Crashes/The Spaceballs Build Mega-Maid (2:25); 6 Spaceballs (J. Pescetto/C. Lieberman/M. Brooks) (3:43) The Spinners; 7 Hot Together (S. Robinson) (4:11) The Pointer Sisters; 8 Good Enough (E. Van Halen/S. Hagar/M. Anthony/A. Van Halen) (4:02) Van Halen; 9 Wanna Be Loved By You (D. Bauerle) (3:34) Ladyfire.

Review: Having already sent up westerns, musicals, horror films, and historical epics, Mel Brooks could have done much worse than turn his attention to the outerspace sagas, and which better one to spoof than the granddaddy of them all, Star Wars. There's little one can say about the story of Lone Starr, a second-rate Han Solo, and Princess Vespa, the Jewish American babe he saves from the grips of a would-be Darth Vader (Rick Moranis, coiffed with a helmet ten times too big for his head), except that the satire is often, if not always, right on target. Also right on the button is John Morris' frequently hilarious score, a subtle take-off on John Williams' grandiloquent music for Star Wars. Sadly, the instrumental tracks are sacrificed here to meaningless pop songs, which are heard faintly in the background in the film, but which get spotlighted though their importance to the action in the film is close to nil. As a result, Morris' contribution is reduced to three selections, the "Main Title," "Love Theme," and "The Winnebago Crashes/The Spaceballs Build Mega-Maid." Better watch the film, it is more fun. And may the farce be with you!

Spartacus

1991, MCA Records; from the movie Spartacus, Universal Pictures, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; Orchestra conducted by Alex North.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:16); 2 Spartacus Love Theme (2:48); 3 Gladiators Fight To The Death (2:17); 4 Blue Shadows And Purple

Hills (3:11); 5 Homeward Bound: (a) On To The Sea, (b) Beside The Pool (6:27); 6 Hopeful Preparations, Vesuvius Camp (1:57); 7 Prelude To Battle: (a) Quiet Interlude, (b) The Final Conflict (5:10); 8 On To Vesuvius: (a) Forward Gladiators, (b) Forest Metting (4:51); 9 Oysters And Snails/Festival (3:22); 10 Headed For Freedom (2:18); 11 Goodbye My Life, My Love/End Title (6:16).

Review: A powerful big screen retelling of the revolt of the slaves against the Romans in the century before Christ, Spartacus is a handsome ancient history spectacle, bold and audacious, a film with a single focus, magnificently directed by Stanley Kubrick, then only 32 years of age, and written by Dalton Trumbo, who had been blacklisted since 1947 because of his political beliefs. Playing Spartacus is Kirk Douglas, who also produced, in one of his most memorable screen portrayals as the Thracian slave who led his men, all former slaves like him, against the Roman legions, until he was defeated and killed in 70 b.c. Sharing the spotlight with him are Jean Simmons, Tony Curtis, Laurence Olivier, and many others in this all-star package.

Matching the heroic spirit that pervaded the story, Alex North wrote a sensational score in which the epic accents occasionally gave way to romantic interludes, built around the gorgeously evocative "Spartacus Love Theme." Unfortunately, while the film was only recently completely restored and given the proper care it deserved for its theatrical and video rerelease, this CD, mastered from the original two-track soundtrack album tapes, was not. Forget the fact that it doesn't contain any extra music, as an important reissue of this type would warrant, but it evidences a lot of hiss, a frequently horrendously shrill sound, and occasional analog dropouts, all of which could and should have been corrected. If you still want to try and enjoy this CD, defeat the treble completely, boost the bass, and even then the results will be less than satisfactory, though not as aggravating. The rating is for the music, not for this CD, which gets a very low rating.

Review: Fans have been disappointed that John Barry, the man who defined the James Bond sound back in the 1960s, hasn't scored a 007 outing since 1987s The Living Daylights, but anyone wanting to hear the equivalent of new Barry Bond soundtrack—minus the famous title theme, of course—should definitely check out the score album from The Specialist. Unlike most action movies filled with explosions in full Dolby Stereo, Barry got a favorable sound mix from producer Jerry Weintraub, and was able to write a steamy, dense atmospheric score with sexy lyrical passages and suspenseful action cues in the classic John Barry mold, but this time with a definite accent on jazz. The score is easily the best of Barry's recent works; rest assured that agent 007 would approve.

The Specialist

1994, Epic Soundtrax/Sony Music; from the movie, The Specialist Warner Bros., 1994.

Selections: 1 Turn The Beat Around (P. Jackson/G. Jackson) (3:52) Gloria Estefan; 2 Jambala (E. Estefan/J.Casas/C. Ostwald) (3:21) MSM (Miami Sound Machine); 3 Real (J. Secada/D. Warren) (3:38) Donna Allen; 4 All Because Of You (H. Garrido) (2:54) MSM (Miami Sound Machine); 5 Shower Me With Love (J. Secada/L. Dermer) (4:29) Lagaylia; 6 El baile de la vela (J. Marquez) (4:04) Cheito; 7 Slip Away (L. Dermer) (5:12) Lagaylia; 8 El duro soy yo (D. Tatis) (4:34) Tony Tatis y su merengue Sound; 9 Mental Picture (J. Secada/M. Morejon) (4:19) Jon Secada; 10 Que manera de quererte (L. Rios) (4:29) Albita; 11 Love Is The Thing (L. Dermer) (3:38) Donna Allen; 12 El amor (F. Salgado/K. Santander) (4:52) Azucar Moreno; 13 Did You Call Me (5:24); 14 The Specialist (5:39).

Review: This showcases the Miami sound, focusing, not surprisingly, on commercial heavyweights such as Gloria Estefan & Miami Sound Machine and Jon Secada. But it also includes acts such as Azucar Moreno, Cheito, Albita and Lagaylia, whose music hasn't been whitewashed quite as much into the pop mainstream. We're not so sure how John Barry and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra fit into this, though.

Speed

1994, Fox Records; from the movie Speed, 20th Century-Fox, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Mancina; Orchestrations: Bruce Fowler, Ladd McIntosh, Y.S. Moriarty, Don Harper, Mark Mancina; Orchestra conducted by Don Harper; Featured Musicians: Mike Fisher (percussion), Allan Holdsworth (guitar); Engineers: Jay Rifkin, Alan Meyerson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:37); 2 The Rescue (4:01); 3 Entering Airport (1:00); 4 Rush Hour (6:04); 5 Helen Dies (2:19); 6 The Gap (2:49); 7 Choppers (1:00); 8 Pershing Square (3:18); 9 Elevator Peril (:28); 10 Fight On Train (1:19); 11 Dangling Feet (:34); 12 City Streets (1:41); 13 Wildcat (1:04); 14 The Dolly (1:28); 15 Move (2:05); 16 Pop Quiz (2:23); 17 Freight Elevator (2:29); 18 Elevator Stall (:50); 19 End Title (1:49).

Review: With this, his first major feature score, Mark Mancina proved a most capable composer. Speed is a wildly energetic score, finding its base in its fast-paced rhythm and its main theme, an eight-note motif nicely evocative of danger as well as heroism. With synths accompanied by orchestra, Mancina's main theme stands solidly above the driving acceleration of throbbing synths and percussion that support it. The furiously scurrying synths occasionally part, allowing the main theme to sound assuredly from violins, punctuated by stridently arrhythmic drum beats. Strokes of strings pedal the chords faster and faster, while an eerie synth wail suggests unseen danger. There are some static moments but for the most part the score speeds along effectively, benefited by Mancina's superior orchestrations and a winning heroic/romantic theme.

Spellbound

1988, Stanyan Records; from the movie Spellbound, RKO Radio Pictures, 1945.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, conducted by Ray Heindorf.

Selections: 1 Main Theme (4:43); 2 The Dressing Gown (4:17); 3 Scherzo (3:15); 4 Love Theme (3:10); 5 The Burned Hand (4:40); 6 Spellbound (3:10); 7 The Razor (4:17); 8 Constance (2:47); 9 The Dream (3:00); 10 Ski Run (2:49); 11 Finale (3:27);

JOANNA (R. MCKUEN): 12 Peter's Theme (I'll Catch The Sun)(3:21); 13 I'm Only Me (Two Girls Bathing)(2:25); 14 Joanna In Paris (Run To Me, Fly To Me)(1:59);

THE BORROWERS (R. MCKUEN): 15 Off On The Great Adventure (2:46);

AROUND THE WORLD IN EIGHTY DAYS (V. YOUNG): 16 Roadshow Overture To Around The World In Eighty Days (4:58).

Review: The innovative use of the theremin (an early synthesizer) singles out this soundtrack as a precursor in a field that has become very crowded in recent years. The instrument also conferred to the music composed by Miklos Rozsa its specificity in creating an atmosphere of mystery for this film directed by Alfred Hitchcock. Starring Gregory Peck, as an amnesiac trying to recall some events surrounding a murder he is afraid he might have committed, and Ingrid Bergman, as the psychiatrist who attempts to help him, Spellbound is a terrific, suspenseful drama, in which the action is as much psychological as it is physical. Contrasting the uncertain moods evoked by the film's "Main Theme," outlined by the theremin, Rozsa also developed other cues that create a false sense of mirth and security ("Scherzo," "Love Theme"), for what has become one of the most remarkable scores in his career, an achievement that was duly recognized by an Academy Award in 1945.

This recording, made in the late 1950s with Ray Heindorf conducting the Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, is totally faithful to the spirit of the original, and quietly sensational in its expression. The CD also features selections from Rod McKuen's Joanna and The Borrowers, and the roadshow overture to Victor Young's Around the World in 80 Days, which have been probably added to increase the total playing time, but have no business being here, stylistically.

Selections: 1 The Ace Tomato Company (5:06); 2 Off To Spy (1:52); 3 Russians In The Desert (2:21); 4 Pass In The Tent (2:58); 5 Escape (3:25); 6 To The Bus (3:14); 7 The Road To Russia (3:39); 8 Rally 'Round (2:39); 9 W.A.M.P. (2:48); 10

Martian Act (3:08); 11 Arrest (2:21); 12 Recall (2:38); 13 Winners (1:16).

Review: Typical Elmer Bernstein comedy score is nonetheless entertaining. As much of the film plays like an old Bob Hope/ Bing Croby Road picture (Hope even makes an appearance), Bernstein approaches things with the same broad comic feel, playing out obvious and familiar sounding desert motifs that just slap the audience's face and scream, "We're in the desert, stupid! See there's sand!" This, of course, does work to get us over some of the film's dull spots (especially when the uneducated fail to grasp the gag of having famous directors and effects people in bit parts). Particularly funny to music fans is Bernstein's satirization of his own score from The Magnificent Seven ("Off to Spy").

The Spirit of St. Louis

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Spirit of St. Louis, Warner Bros., 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Franz Waxman; Orchestrations: Lenoid Raab; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, conducted by Franz Waxman; Album Producers: John W. Waxman, Tom Null, Richard Kraft; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Prelude (Main Title)(1:24); 2 Building The Spirit (4:06); 3 First Test Flight (1:19); 4 Flight To St. Louis (1:13); 5 St. Christopher (:41); 6 New York To Cape Cod (7:04); 7 Nova Scotia (3:03); 8 St. John's (6:52); 9 Barnstorming (2:37); 10 Fishing Boats (2:57); 11 The Old Jenny (1:27); 12 The Spirit Of St. Louis (1:16); 13 Rolling Out (5:24); 14 Asleep (4:07); 15 Ireland (4:08); 16 Plymouth (3:28); 17 Le Bourget/End Title (6:47).

Review: Directed by Billy Wilder, The Spirit of St. Louis stars James Stewart in a faithful recreation of Charles Lindbergh's historic solo flight from New York to Paris, in May, 1927. The film cried out for a score that would fulfill a double task: underline the momentous scenes in the script, based on Lindbergh's own autobiography, and provide an extra dramatic impetus to the long stretches of screen time that involved the aviator, alone inside the cockpit of his plane, during his transatlantic flight. In writing it, Franz Waxman acquitted himself superbly of the demands imposed on him. His cues, superbly shaded and sober in their expression, detail the frustrations initially encountered by Lindbergh, when he began building the plane that would eventually take him to his ambitious destination, the problems posed by the first test flights, and finally the long, seemingly endless journey across the unknown, before the final strains in the music signal the success of his undertaking. Like Tiomkin's music for The Old Man and the Sea, Waxman's score for The Spirit of St. Louis became an essential component of the film's dramatic structure. Heard in this recording in its entirety, with many previously unavailable tracks further detailing Lindbergh's pioneering effort, it emerges as a powerful musical statement, with a vibrancy that immediately compels the listener's attention and immerses him into the unfolding story.

Selections: 1 An Uncertain Future/Main Title (3:38); 2 Shelby And Percy (5:55); 3 Hannah's Fall (1:58); 4 The Mystery Of The Night (1:21); 5 Open For Business (2:25); 6 Remembering Eli (1:54); 7 The Trees (1:39); 8 A Gift From The Forest (4:43); 9 Reading The Letters (2:02); 10 A Healing Balm (5:59); 11 A New Life For Gilead (1:25); 12 Wrongful Blame (2:15); 13 A Desperate Decision (5:07); 14 ...Care Of The Spitfire Grill (9:53).

Review: When Castle Rock snapped up the rights to this audience winner at the Sundance Film Festival, they spruced up a number of the film's aural elements, including the addition of a new music score by James Horner. Fortunately, this jaunty, often country-flavored score doesn't go overboard in Hollywood saccharine, as Horner keeps things on a tuneful, lyric level that's easily accessible for listeners without being overtly simplistic. The main theme of the film is quite nice, and the variations that the composer uses in his score keep it fresh and not nearly as derivative as some of his other works. It's a pleasant album, inoffensive and relaxing.

Selections: 1 Nobody Does It Better (M. Hamlisch/C. Bayer Sager)(3:33) Carly Simon; 2 Bond 77 (James Bond Theme)(4:23); 3 Ride To Atlantis (3:30); 4 Mojave Club (2:16); 5 Nobody Does It Better (4:48); 6 Anya (3:23); 7 The Tanker (4:27); 8 The Pyramids (1:37); 9 Eastern Lights (3:27); 10 Conclusion (1:35); 11 End Titles: Nobody Does It Better (M. Hamlisch/C. Bayer Sager) (3:26) Carly Simon.

Review: One of the first James Bond films not scored by John Barry, The Spy Who Loved Me offers what is probably the best and the worst in the soundtracks for the series. The best is Carly Simon's superb rendition of the title song, written by Carole Bayer Sager, which bookends this CD. One of the best theme songs in the series, it is as much memorable today as it was when it was first created. The worst is Marvin Hamlisch's ho-hum score, a series of cues with long cascading lines, percolating rhythms, guitar riffs and wah-wah effects that attempt to find an original tone but fail miserably. It really didn't matter much behind the action on the screen, as the cues fulfilled a function that was essentially secondary. But thrown in the spotlight, they reveal the absence of genuine feel for the series and what it is all about, with themes that are routine at best, and altogether not very interesting.

Stand and Deliver

1988, Varese Sarabande; from the movie Stand and Deliver, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Craig Safan; Album Producer: Craig Safan.

Selections: 1 Main Title/East L.A. (2:28); 2 Kimo's Theme (2:50); 3 Fight (1:13); 4 Summer Hot School (1:23); 5 Picking On Claudia (1:01); 6 The First Test/Release (1:56); 7 Heart Attack (1:10); 8 Stand And Deliver Suite (7:00); 9 Night Fright (:43); 10 Pancho And Lupe (1:05); 11 Retaking The Test (4:17); 12 The Big News (:58); 13 Success (4:05).

Review: The specific atmosphere of the barrio in East Los Angeles is given credible musical life in the score Craig Safan wrote for this film, about a gang of Latinos who discover the importance of mathematics, thanks to a dedicated high school teacher. Relying on expressive synth melodies and effects, Safan created a score that evidences remarkable flair, even as it evokes some of the events and characters involved in the screen action. Moving with ease from Spanish-accented themes ("Pancho and Lupe"), to a soft Japanese tune ("Kimo's Theme"), to delicately phrased cues built around harp-like arpeggios ("Picking on Claudia," "The First Test/Release"), the music is multi-layered and attractively laid out. The seven-minute "Stand and Deliver Suite" recaps the overall moods into one long evocation that has moments of fun and depth in it.

Stanley & Iris

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Stanley & Iris, M-G-M, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Kenn Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Stanley And Iris (3:24); 2 Reading Lessons (2:26); 3 The Bicycle (3:07); 4 Factory Work (1:23); 5 Finding A Family (1:41); 6 Stanley At Work (1:31); 7 Looking After Papa (3:10); 8 Stanley's Invention (1:17); 9 Night Visit (1:58); 10 Letters (3:25); 11 Putting It All Together (1:46); 12 End Credits (3:03).

Review: It might run under half an hour, but this score by John Williams is more developed thematically than many other, far lengthier soundtracks. Williams' score here is relatively simple and reflective in nature, adeptly setting the scene for this 1990 Martin Ritt drama with Jane Fonda and Robert De Niro. But it is the Autumnal warmth flowing out of this score that makes it so memorable. the themes are succinct and lovely, the orchestrations subtle and appropriate for a character drama, and the nature of the music makes repeated listenings not only easily endurable but a genuine pleasure. This is the kind of character-driven score Williams excels at whenever he is given the opportunity at scoring one, and is also one of the most underrated works in the composer's filmography.

Review: Years ago when he scored The Thing, Ennio Morricone remarked on how that score was about "nothing happening." The suspenseful, anticipatory ambiance he sustained in that score hinted at something happening, but "nothing happens." Morricone's score for The Star Maker would have been as appropriate a score for The Thing because it's one of the most static, nothing-happening scores the maestro has composed recently. The music is plain boring. Peeling back layers of violins, Morricone exposed multiple strains of the same basic chords and notes, with the occasional flute wandering in and out. There's virtually no melody and no rhythm. The ponderous "thematic" material and the few period pop tunes, not to mention the recording's overall low volume, make this score recommended primarily for insomniacs. It's an unfortunate commentary on a score by the composer who really woke me up to film music for the first time, but there's nothing terribly interesting or inventive about this sleepy score.

Star Trek: The Motion Picture

1997, Legacy Records/Sony Music; from the movie Star Trek: The Motion Picture, Paramount Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Chris Herles.

Selections: 1 Ilia's Theme (2:59); 2 Main Title/Klingon Battle (6:49); 3 Total Logic (3:46); 4 The Enterprise (5:56); 5 Leaving Drydock (3:27); 6 Spock's Arrival (1:57); 7 The Cloud (4:55); 8 Vejur Flyover (4:54); 9 The Force Field (5:00); 10 Games/Spock Space Walk (7:58); 11 Inner Workings (3:06); 12 Vejur Speaks/ The Meld/A Good Start (9:29); 13 End Title (3:15).

Review: Composers often produce outstanding scores under the worst possible conditions. On the hastily-constructed, overbudget sci-fi feature Star Trek: The Motion Picture, Jerry Goldsmith had just a handful of days to write a film score that would be evocative, epic, majestic, and mystical, benefiting the massive special effects of this production while refusing to be an exact clone of Star Wars. Even under this time crunch, Goldsmith came through with flying colors, with a magnificent, Oscar-nominated soundtrack containing perhaps his most well-known theme (later utilized for both TV's "Star Trek: The Next Generation" and the Goldsmith-scored theatrical sequels), a wealth of fascinating musical cues for the alien being "Vejur," and, in contrast, an aggressively percussive motif for the Klingons (a la The Wind and the Lion). The music works perfectly in the movie and on its own, and stands as one of the crowning achievements in Goldsmith's career.

Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan

1990, GNP Crescendo Records; from the movie Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan, Paramount Pictures, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Dan Wallin; Assistant Engineer: Tom Steel.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:03); 2 Surprise Attack (5:06); 3 Spock (1:10); 4 Kirk's Explosive Reply (4:02); 5 Khan's Pets (4:18); 6 Enterprise Clears Moorings (3:32); 7 Battle In The Mutara Nebula (8:08); 8 Genesis Countdown (6:36) 9 Epilogue/End Title (8:40).

Review: Nicholas Meyer's take on the Star Trek myths revitalized the film franchise after the moribund Star Trek: The Motion Picture. It also launched the career of composer James Horner, who brought a wonderful, windswept nautical quality to his title music, which spins up from a whirling horn figure into sweeping, romantic rapture. If it sometimes seems more appropriate for Sherwood Forest than an outer space epic, it's only appropriate given director Meyer's Prisoner-of-Zenda take on the material. Horner's space attack cues are uproarious, contrasting the pagan fury of a chaotic brass motif for Ricardo Montalban's villainous Khan against the naval heroism of William Shatner's Kirk and a surprisingly lyrical, bittersweet melody for the self-sacrificing Spock. "Battle in the Mutara Nebula" and "Genesis Countdown" are still two of the most exciting and sustained musical cues Horner has ever written, and his setting of Alexander Courage's mysterioso TV show opening as the finale of the film (under Leonard Nimoy's recitation of the famous Trek "to boldly go" manifesto will make the hairs on the back of your neck stand at attention. A highlight of both the Trek film series and Horner's career.

Star Trek III: The Search for Spock

1990, GNP Crescendo Records; from the movie Star Trek III: The Search for Spock, Paramount Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Bob Badami; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Dan Wallin, Bill Benton.

Selections: 1 Prologue and Main Title (6:27); 2 Klingons (5:55); 3 Stealing The Enterprise (8:33); 4 The Mind Meld (2:30); 5 Bird Of Prey Decloaks (3:37); 6 Returning To Vulcan (4:49); 7 The Katra Ritual (4:29); 8 End Title (6:12); 9 The Search For Spock (3:43).

Review: James Horner's second Star Trek score comes off as a pallid retread of much of his stupendous Wrath of Khan effort, but it still has its moments, including the sparkling accompaniment to the Enterprise's return to its space dock moorings early in the film and the throbbing suspense licks of "Stealing the Enterprise," which climaxes in one of the more bombastic treatments of Alexander Courage's TV show fanfare ever heard in the film series. Horner's attempt to co-opt the appeal of Jerry Goldsmith's Prokofiev-like Klingon motifs from the original film, as well as his rehash of his own Brainstorm finale for the film's climactic mind-meld sequence, is less appealing. If you can't get enough of the composer's Wrath of Khan score, here's less of the same.

Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home

1986, MCA Records; from the movie Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home, Paramount Pictures, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Leonard Rosenman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: Else Blangsted; Album Producer: Leonard Rosenman; Engineer: Dan Wallin.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:39); 2 The Whaler (2:00); 3 Market Street (4:39) The Yellowjackets; 4 Crash-Whale Fugue (8:15); 5 Ballad Of The Whale (5:03) The Yellowjackets; 6 Gillian Seeks Kirk (2:42); 7 Chekov's Run (1:19); 8 Time Travel (1:29); 9 Hospital Chase (1:13); 10 The Probe (1:17); 11 Home Again: End Credits (5:40).

Review: After the increasingly soap opera-ish plotlines for Star Trek II and III, the producers wisely decided to take an entirely different approach for Star Trek IV: The Voyage Home, and the results were the most successful Trek film of all—a refreshingly comic, thoroughly entertaining time-travel yarn that remains the most satisfying big screen adventure of Captain Kirk and friends. To fit the change in tone, Nimoy turned to veteran composer Leonard Rosenman to write the score, and the results were an energetic, Oscar-nominated effort that refuses to take itself too seriously; Rosenman's main theme is a lot of fun, written in the same vein as some of his other genre works (i.e. Lord of the Rings), but his music for the film's aquatic protagonists, the Humpback whales, is more serious and noble in nature. The music by itself is highly enjoyable, with the album including a pair of tracks by the jazz group The Yellowjackets, who worked with Rosenman on the picture's "modern day" music that Kirk, Spock and the rest of the Enterprise crew encounter when they travel back to 1986 San Fransisco.

Star Trek V: The Final Frontier

1989, Epic Records; from the movie Star Trek V: The Final Frontier, Paramount Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's second voyage with the crew of the Starship Enterprise yields a variety of musical quality, no doubt due to the film's own slapdash continuity. Certainly "The Mountain" is far and away one of the composer's more inspired cues, a marvelous companion to the images of Kirk scaling the sheer mountain El Capitain in Yosemite National Park. The bold re-orchestration of his original theme from Star Trek: The Motion Picture is a joy, going a long way in making the film more exciting, but working against it all is his lighthearted variation on the Klingon theme. It only goes to further belittle these characters, who suffer massive indignation from their comedic on-screen antics. Overall, Goldsmith's score actually plays better outside of the film where his wondrously reverent motifs for the "god" entity aren't sabotaged by the limp visual effects. The closing song, "The Moon's A Window To Heaven," performed here by the jazz fusion group Hiroshima, did not appear in the film. However, Nichelle Nichols (Uhura) sung a portion of it during her ludicrous fan dance sequence.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, William Kidd; Music Editor: Bunny Andrews; Orchestra conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:57); 2 An Incident (:53); 3 Clear All Moorings (1:39); 4 Assassination (4:45); 5 Surrender For Peace (2:46); 6 Death Of Gorkon (1:10); 7 Rura Penthe (4:22); 8 Revealed (2:38); 9 Escape From Rura Penthe (5:34); 10 Dining On Ashes (1:00); 11 The Battle For Peace (8:03); 12 Sign Off (3:13); 13 Star Trek VI Suite (6:18).

Review: Originally, director Nicholas Meyer wanted composer Cliff Eidelman to write a score based on Gustav Holst's The Planets for his film. When Paramount Pictures failed to come to terms with the copyright owners, Eidelman was asked to create a work in a similar vein. As a result, his score is vastly different from any previous in the Star Trek series. Dark, bleak, desperate... the Federation is now on the brink of an all out war with their mortal enemies, the Klingons, and events are being controlled by traitors within. Eidelman even uses a chorus to symbolize the menacing Klingon horde. A unique approach was also used in assembling the album: Eidelman perceived the entire score as a grand symphony, and, with occasionally cross-fading the cues together in strict film order, he created a running concerto that starts deliberately and builds in force until the spectacular eight-minute "Battle for Peace" finale.

Star Trek: First Contact

1996, GNP Crescendo; from the movie Star Trek: First Contact, Paramount Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton, Alexander Courage, Jeff Atmajian; Music Editor: Ken Hall, Clifford Kaliweck; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Locutus (4:17); 2 Red Alert (2:13); 3 Temporal Wake (2:07); 4 Welcome Aboard (2:40); 5 Fully Functional (3:18); 6 Retreat (3:59); 7 Evacuate (2:19); 8 39.1 Degrees Celsius (4:44); 9 The Dish (7:05); 10 First Contact (5:52); 11 End Credits (5:24); 12 Magic Carpet Ride (J. Kay/R. Moreve)(4:25) Steppenwolf; 13 Ooby Dooby (W. Moore/D. Penner)(2:22) Roy Orbison.

> "For a non-musician, music is a very intimidating prospect. However, I find that non-musicians—in the capacity of a director—are very successful at telling me in their own way and with their own words, what they like and dislike, what they want it to sound like and what they don't want it to sound like."

Review: Jerry Goldsmith has crafted this score with an understated eloquence. His music is embroidered with a sense of grand legendry, his theme seasoned and elegant rather than bombastic and vigorous. The heroism of the First Contact score is a quiet, reflective one, and stresses in positive terms the proud camaraderie between Captain and crew, and all they have gone through. The new theme, an affecting recapitulation of all the adventures that have come before in the TREK universe, is also a tribute to the harmonic future envisioned in First Contact and the entire Star Trek milieu. Goldsmith's original theme from Star Trek: The Motion Picture and the "Next Generations" series brackets this new score during its opening and closing credits, which remain unabashedly heroic and triumphant. And, of course, strains from Alexander Courage's original Trek fanfare provide the link with the original series and its various spin-offs. The CD, one of several "enhanced CD soundtracks" released lately, includes a data program, with interviews with Goldsmith and other First Contact participants.

Star Trek: Generations

1995, GNP Crescendo; from the movie Star Trek: Generations, Paramount Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Dennis McCarthy; Orchestrations: William Ross, Mark McKenzie, Brad Warnaar; Orchestra conducted by Dennis McCarthy; Album Producer: Dennis McCarthy; Engineers: Robert Fernandez, Paul Wertheimer, Bob Fisher.

Selections: 1 Star Trek: Generations Overture (4:13); 2 Main Title (A. Courage)(2:52); 3 The Enterprise B/Kirk Saves The Day (3:13); 4 Deck 15 (1:39); 5 Time Is Running Out (1:12); 6 Prisoner Exchange (2:57); 7 Outgunned (3:20); 8 Out Of Control/The Crash (2:05); 9 Coming To Rest (:57); 10 The Nexus/A Christmas Hug (7:07); 11 Jumping The Ravine (1:37); 12 Two Captains (1:32); 13 The Final Fight (6:15); 14 Kirk's Death (2:45); 15 To Live Forever (2:40); Star Trek: Generations Sound Effects: 16 Enterprise B Bridge (3:13); 17 Enterprise B Doors Open (:13); 18 Distress Call Alert (:10); 19 Enterprise B Helm Controls (:18); 20 Neus Energy Ribbon (1:38); 21 Enterprise B Deflector Beam (:08); 22 Enterprise B Warp Pass-By (:14); 23 Enterprise B Transporter (:12); 24 Tricorder (:30); 25 Hypo Injector (:03); 26 Communicator Chirp (:06); 27 Door Chime (:07); 28 Enterprise D Warp Out #1 (:22); 29 Bird Of Prey Bridge/Explosion (2:51); 30 Klingon Sensor Alert (:08); 31 Bird Of Prey Cloaks (:04); 32 Bird Of Prey De-Cloaks (:10); 33 Klingon Transporter (:12); 34 Soran's Gun (:11); 35 Soran's Rocket De-Cloaks (:05); 36 Shuttlecraft Pass-By (:21); 37 Enterprise D Bridge/Crash Sequence (3:21); 38 Enterprise D Warp-Out #2 (:09).

Review: Television composer Dennis McCarthy got the nod to score the first theatrical adventure of the "Next Generation" crew, and even though his score is not quite as interesting as the Goldsmith and Horner outings from the preceding Trek films, this is still an enjoyable effort. McCarthy's main theme for the film is rather basic but nevertheless perfectly suited for the picture, with a triumphant, heroic sound defining the valiant intentions of Captains Picard and Kirk, united in a "Nexus" at the far edge of the galaxy. For the otherworldly "Nexus," McCarthy wrote new age-style music that sounds suspiciously close to John Williams' "Fortress of Solitude" material from Superman, though without the melodic invention of that earlier work. Nevertheless, on its own terms, Generations is still a satisfying soundtrack that should not disappoint die-hard fans of the series.

CD 2: 1 Princess Leia's Theme (4:27); 2 The Millenium Falcon/Imperial Cruiser Pursuit (3:51); 3 Destruction Of Alderaan (1:32); 4 The Death Star/The Stormtroopers (3:35); 5 Wookie Prisoner/Detention Block Ambush (4:01); 6 Shootout In The Cell Bay/Dianoga (3:48); 7 The Trash Compactor (3:07); 8 The Tractor Beam/Chasm Crossfire (5:18); 9 Ben Kenobi's Death/The Fighter Attack (3:51); 10 The Battle Of Yavin: Launch From The Fourth Moon/X-Wings Draw Fire/ Use The Force (9:07); 11 The Throne Room/End Title (5:38).

Review: More than twenty years after its initial release, what hasn't been written or said about Star Wars that needs to be stated? John Williams' grand, outstanding operatic score—incorporating Korngold-esque swells of emotion as well as Wagnerian motives for the film's various characters—redefined film music, and continues to this day to influence the way movies sound. Just as importantly, it made legions of audiences into film music fans, resurrected interest in classical music, and created a whole new market for movie soundtracks to flourish in. Aside from all of the cultural significance, Williams' score remains a classic all the way, from the opening blast of his fanfare through the "galactic jazz" of the Cantina Band, culminating in the thrilling Death Star climax and triumphant "Throne Room" finale. After a handful of previous releases, RCA Victor's 1997 re-issue (accompanying the film's "Special Edition" release) is now rightfully considered the definitive issue of Williams' work, with expanded tracks and superb, digitally remastered sound creating the ultimate listening experience for one of the movies' all-time great scores.

Williams' original Star Wars score marked the beginning of his fruitful "epic" period that lasted from 1977 to 1983's Return of the Jedi, and it's still the standard by which epic science fiction adventure scores are measured. It's been argued that this score set the medium back by decades with its retro approach to the material, taking its cue from Korngold and Holst to produce a wholesome, swashbuckling sound that's been copied in countless bad ways since. But Williams found the perfect music for George Lucas' essentially innocent space opera, and Star Wars is a vibrant, unforgettable work from its spectacular opening titles (with a blasting, martial fanfare straight out of a Roman epic) and hammering, Holst-inspired underscoring of an attack by a gigantic Imperial star destroyer to its evocative Tatooine desert scoring and brilliant, Benny Goodman-styled cantina music. The outrageously loud and mechanistic "The Fighter Attack" is unlike anything ever heard in a movie up to that time, its shimmering spectral opening, repeated brass hits and declamatory Rebel fanfare melding with Lucas' dizzyingly edited space battle sequence to produce a kind of psychotic, exhilarating filmic video game. Even better is the lengthy and supremely exciting Death Star battle music, presented here in its entirety for the first time, from the suspenseful, pulsating "Launch from the Fourth Moon" to the exhilarating martial fanfares of "X-Wings Draw Fire"—there has rarely been a more thrilling accompaniment to a cinematic combat sequence. The quiet moments are just as engaging, from the haunting "The Princess Appears" to the deeply lyrical, moving statement of Ben Kenobi's theme as Luke Skywalker stares longingly into the "Binary Sunset." Extras include Williams' first take on that sequence, more of an epic, tragic rendition that speaks to young Luke's desolation as he contemplates another year on Tatooine, and a hidden collection of alternate takes of the title music. Beautifully produced and assembled by Nick Redman and Michael Mattesino, this two-CD set belongs in anyone's collection.

Stargate

1994, Milan Records; from the movie Stargate, M-G-M, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: David Arnold; Orchestrations: Nicholas Dodd; Music Editor: Laurie Higgins; The Sinfonia of London and The Chameleon Arts Chorus, conducted by Nicholas Dodd; Synthesizer Programming: Mike Barnes; Album Producer: David Arnold; Engineer: Geoff Foster.

Selections: 1 Stargate Overture (3:01); 2 Giza, 1928 (2:10) Natacha Atlas; 3 Unstable (2:07); 4 The Coverstones (:58); 5 Orion (1:29); 6 The Stargate Opens (3:58); 7 You're On The Team (1:55); 8 Entering The Stargate (2:57); 9 The Other Side (1:44); 10 Mastadge Drag (:56); 11 The Mining Pit (1:34); 12 King Of The Slaves (1:15); 13 Caravan To Nagada (2:16) Natacha Atlas; 14 Daniel And Shauri (1:53); 15 Symbol Discovery (1:15); 16 Sarcophagus Opens (:55); 17 Daniel's Mastadge (:49); 18 Leaving Nagada (4:09); 19 Ra—The Sun God (3:22); 20 The Destruction Of Nagada (2:08); 21 Myth, Faith, Belief (2:18); 22 Procession (1:43); 23 Slave Rebellion (1:00); 24 The Seventh Symbol (:57); 25 Quartz Shipment (1:27); 26 Battle At The Pyramid (5:02); 27 We Don't Want To Die (1:57); 28 The Surrender (1:44); 29 Kasuf Returns (3:06); 30 Going Home (3:09).

Review: British composer David Arnold's orchestral background serves him well for this massive, sweeping score which effectively captures the textural nuances of the alien civilization as well as the heroic scope of the story. While incorporating synthesizers and modern instrumentation and recording techniques, Arnold's compositional style is rooted in Hollywood classicism. With his main theme's compelling melody, strikingly orchestrated throughout its many guises, and the rhythmical flurries and furiously energetic figures of the action cues, accentuated by evocative female choir vocalisms, Arnold's Stargate is a standout score. The 30 cues on the CD are varied, and Arnold weaves his music carefully, with as many bold strokes as there are quiet interludes.

Starman

1984, Varese Sarabande; from the movie Starman, Columbia Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Jack Nitzsche; Album Producers: Tom Null, Chris Kuchler; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 Jenny Shot (1:30); 2 Here Come The Helicopters (5:04); 3 Honeymoon (:55); 4 Road Block (1:38); 5 Do You Have Somebody? (1:18); 6 Pickup Truck (3:01); 7 What's It Like Up There? (1:46); 8 All I Have To Do Is Dream (B. Bryant)(3:29) Jeff Bridges, Karen Allen; 9 Lifting Ship (1:22); 10 I Gave You A Baby (2:11); 11 Morning Military (1:04); 12 Define Love (1:33); 13 Balls (1:10); 14 Starman Leaves/End Title (7:04).

Review: Jack Nitzsche was one of several composers director John Carpenter used during the period when he worked for the major studios and couldn't score his own pictures. That's a real shame here because this score is a major disappointment. Repetitive and dull, its only major melodic piece is the very limited main theme. Nitzsche constantly plugs it in when something personal is needed. Most of the action cues on the CD have that "made up as they went along" feel, with repetitive layers being added and subtracted in an attempt to vary the tone. The Jeff Bridges/Karen Allen duet of "All I Have to Do is Dream" stands out just because it's so damn thematic compared to the rest of the album.

The Stars Fell on Henrietta

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Stars Fell on Henrietta, Warner Bros., 1995.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:16); 2 A New Start (2:11); 3 The Hunt Begins (1:59); 4 Divining Matilda (1:32); 5 Festivities Begin (1:58); 6 June 19th (1:37); 7 Off To California (:37); 8 X Marks The Spot (1:52); 9 I'm So Sorry (:34); 10 The Plan Sputters (:44); 11 The Big Boom (3:21); 12 Goodbye Mr. Cox (2:02); 13 End Credits (4:34); 14 Theme And Variation (3:58).

Review: Delightful and hauntingly touching score by David Benoit that captures the very soul of Depression-era Texas. Gentle guitar solos and soft piano phrases conjure up a simpler time when people only sought to survive the day, struggled and persevered through those the hardest of times. The main theme is an intoxicating motif, filled with hope, and dignity. An emotionally moving score that can be appreciated without ever having experienced the film.

State of Grace

1990, MCA Records; from the movie State of Grace, Orion Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Sergio Marcotullu.

Selections: 1 Hell's Kitchen (3:02); 2 Park Ave. (2:03); 3 The Shootout (5:53); 4 Hundred Yard Dash (1:21); 5 State Of Grace (2:37); 6 New Jersey (:44); 7 Mott Street (5:02); 8 The Confrontation (3:39); 9 Finn (1:27); 10 Terry Noonan (2:27); 11 St. Patrick's Day (4:01); 12 The Backroom (1:35); 13 Jackie's Death (3:23); 14 Terry And Kate (3:21); 15 The Kitchen (6:40); 16 Bronx Drug Deal (1:37); 17 Murder In Matty's Bar (2:23); 18 The First Date (1:14).

Review: For this tale of Irish gangsters in Hell's Kitchen, Ennio Morricone provides a somber, moody score emphasizing a mournful low flute melody over brass and woodwind chords that hangs over the proceedings like a pall when it's not pulsing with extended suspense cues of bubbling strings and a staccato spinet line. Morricone maintains a consistently dreary tone throughout, although there is one startling burst of brightness and romanticism that ironically underscores the setting of an arson fire ("Hundred Yard Dash"). Like most of this composer's work, State of Grace is rich with haunting melodies and textures, and it's a good bet for devotees.

Stealing Home

1988, Atlantic Records; from the movie Stealing Home, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Music: David Foster; Orchestrations: David Foster; String Arrangements: Jeremy Lubbock, David Foster; Music Editor: Dan Carlin, Jr.; Featured Musicians: David Foster (keyboards), Rhett Lawrence (Fairlight drums), Rick Bowan, Michael Boddicker, David Foster (synthesizers), Dean Parks (acoustic guitars), Michael Landau (electric guitars), Dave "Rev" Boruff (saxophone); Album Producer: David Foster; Engineer: Jeffrey "Woody" Woodruff.

Selections: 1 Stealing Home (3:35); 2 Sherry (B. Gaudio)(2:30) The Four Seasons; 3 And When She Danced (Love Theme)(D. Foster/L. Thompson-Jenner) (3:50) Marilyn Martin, David Foster; 4 Poison Ivy (J. Leiber/M. Stoller) (3:21) The Nylons; 5 All I Have To Do Is Dream (B. Bryant)(2:20) The Everly Brothers; 6 Home Movie (2:10); 7 Great Balls Of Fire (J. Hammer/O. Blackwell)(1:50) Jerry Lee Lewis; 8 Baby, It's You (B. Bacharach/M. David/B. Williams)(2:38) The Shirelles; 9 Stealing Home (reprise)(5:08); 10 Bo Diddley (E. McDaniel)(2:19) Bo Diddley; 11 Katie's Theme (2:26).

Review: Five of the 11 numbers are performed by uber-slick producer David Foster, guaranteeing a languid affair. The rest are decently chosen oldies, plus vocal group The Nylons' inventive version of "Poison Ivy." But what it lacks is a truly fresh, new composition to really get things off the ground.

Steel Magnolias

1989, Polydor Records; from the movie Steel Magnolias, Tri-Star Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: 1 Main Title Introduction (4:41); 2 Tree Fireworks (1:17); 3 Good News, Bad News (3:59); 4 The Drive To Aunt

Fern's (5:15); 5 Easter Picnic/Departure (4:18); 6 End Title (3:34); 7 I Got Mine (R. Cooder)(4:25) Ry Cooder; 8 Two-Step Mamou (W. Toups/J. Miller/J. Arceneaux)(3:22) Wayne Toups, Zydecajun; 9 Jambalaya (On The Bayou)(H. Williams)(2:51) Hank Williams; 10 Main Title (reprise)(4:41).

Review: This average tear-jerker about women in a small southern town is elevated to the level of an effective drama by Georges Delerue's sublime music. Unsurprisingly, his music retains its appeal on disc as well. Delerue's score is often light, but never fluffy. His lush string sound is put to good use, the music appealingly evocative of small town life, investing the otherwise ordinary lives of the characters with a kind of poetry. Highlights include the main title, with its folky harmonica, the mournful viola which opens "Drive to Aunt Fern's", and the celeste waltz in "Good News, Bad News." In fact, the only thing which spoils this soundtrack is the inclusion of three tacky country western songs (one of which was not even in the film), which are totally out-of-place among Delerue's music. (Fortunately they are sequenced back to back, and easily skipped.) The original Polydor soundtrack is long out-of-print and hard to find. However, some of the score was rerecorded by the composer on Georges Delerue: The London Sessions Volume II (on Varese Sarabande), in a suite which Delerue arranged and conducted with listening more specifically in mind.

The Sting

1987, MCA Records; from the movie The Sting, Universal Pictures, 1973.

Album Notes: Music: Marvin Hamlisch, Scott Joplin; Orchestra conducted by Marvin Hamlisch; Featured Soloist: Marvin Hamlisch (piano); Album Producer: Marvin Hamlisch; Engineer: Ami Hadami.

Selections: 1 Solace (orchestra)(3:35); 2 The Entertainer (orchestra) (3:03); 3 Easy Winners (2:44); 4 Hooker's Hooker (2:48); 5 Luther (3:08); 6 (a) Pine Apple Rag, (b) Gladiolus Rag (2:32); 7 The Entertainer (piano) (2:22); 8 The Glove (1:46); 9 Little Girl (2:00); 10 Pine Apple Rag (2:35); 11 Merry-Go-Round Music: (a) Listen To The Mocking Bird, (b) Darling Nellie Gray, (c) Turkey In The Straw (2:44); 12 Solace (piano)(3:35); 13 (a) The Entertainer, (b) Rag Time Dancer (3:45).

Review: What could be more appropriate as the background to a story about two con men, set in 1920s Chicago, than the jazz tinged compositions of Scott Joplin? In fact, notwithstanding Robert Redford's association with the film, the most remarkable thing about The Sting is the music, for after all is said and done, the film endures as the perfect vehicle for a renewed interest in Joplin's music, and the art of the rag: a jaunty musical style formerly acceptable only in the seedier establishments of life, gin joints, gambling halls and brothels among them! While the early '70s recording (issued early on in the CD era) could benefit from a '90s sonic "makeover," the toe-tapping ragtime music is infectious, and Joplin's ballads ("Solace" and "Luther") have a haunting, compelling quality to them. A fine introduction, this disc will no doubt leave you with a desire to explore more of Joplin's wonderful work.

Stonewall

1996, Columbia Records; from the movie Stonewall, Strand/BBC Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Randall Poster; Engineer: David Mitson.

Selections: 1 Give Him A Great Big Kiss (G. Morton) (2:15) The Shangri-Las; 2 Gee Baby Gee (J. Barry/E. Greenwich) (2:38) The Butterflies; 3 Sophisticated Boom (G. Morton) (2:12) The Shangri-Las; 4 Ooh Poo Pah Doo (J. Hill) (2:19) The Shirelles; 5 Remember (Walkin' In The Sand) (G. Morton) (2:21) The Shangri-Las; 6 Boy From New York City (J. Taylor/G. Banks) (2:43) Bessie Banks; 10 Over The Rainbow (H. Arlen/ E.Y. Harburg) (2:50) Judy Garland; 11 What A Good Boy (S. Page/E. Robertson) (3:53) Barenaked Ladies; 12 Give Him A Great Big Kiss (G. Morton/J. Taylor/ G. Davis) (7:41) The Shangri-Las.

Review: An intriguing mix that bridges the generations as it brings together songs performed by Judy Garland, Patti LaBelle and The Bluebelles, The Shangri-Las, The Shirelles, Barenaked Ladies, and other contemporary groups. It is difficult to assess who might actually be interested by this compilation, though in all fairness it actually sounds and plays much better than one might have anticipated.

Straight No Chaser

1989, Columbia Records; from the movie Straight, No Chaser, Warner Bros., 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Thelonious Monk; Featured Musicians: Thelonious Monk (piano), John Coltrane, Charlie Rouse, Johnny Griffin (tenor sax), Wilbur Ware, Larry Gales (bass), Shadow Wilson, Ben Riley (drums), Ray Copeland (trumpet), Jimmy Cleveland (trombone), Phil Woods (alto sax); Album Producer: Orrin Keepnews; Engineer: Danny Kopelson.

Selections: 1 Straight No Chaser (and Opening Narration) (1:51) Samuel E. Wright; 2 Pannonica (5:11); 3 Trinkle, Trinkle (6:38); 4 Ugly Beauty (rehearsal) (2:31); 5 Ugly Beauty (7:18); 6 Epistrophy (T. Monk/K.S. Clarke) (5:38); 7 Evidence (9:01); 8 I Mean You (Stickball) (rehearsal and performance) (T. Monk/C. Hawkins) (4:19); 9 Lulu's Back In Town (H. Warren/A. Dubin) (4:14); 10 Don't Blame Me (J. McHugh/D. Fields) (2:54); 11 Sweetheart Of All My Dreams (A. Fitch/K. Fitch/B. Lowe) (1:43); 12 'Round Midnight (T. Monk/ C. Williams/B. Hanighen) (2:14).

Review: The soundtrack to a documentary portraying the famous jazz pianist and composer, Straight No Chaser will primarily appeal to fans of Thelonious Monk and his music, with plenty of selections to satisfy even the most difficult. Some of the tracks feature dialogue, studio talk, and other elements that somewhat distract from the essential, though they are kept to brief moments. The bulk of the recording, of course, consists of Monk's performances, alone or with some of his musicians, including John Coltrane, in tunes that capitalized his career ("Epistrophy," "Ugly Beauty," "'Round Midnight," etc.).

Street Fighter

Selections: 1 Showdown In Shadaloo (4:44); 2 Habanera (Vega & Ryu) (G. Bizet) (3:16); 3 Chun-Li Enters The Morgue (2:16); 4 Colonel Guile Addresses The Troops (2:47); 5 The Circus Tent (2:13); 6 General M. Bison (1:20); 7 Honda Is Tortured (:44); 8 Bison Troopers Marching Song (Zangief) (G. Revell/S. De Souza) (:58); 9 Chun-Li's Story (2:07); 10 Dhalsim Reprograms Blanka (1:36); 11 The Stealth Boat Attack (3:07); 12 "Game Over" (1:42); 13 Chun-Li And Bison (2:57); 14 Guile Discovers Blanka (2:10); 15 "Raise The Chamber" (Guile Attacks) (2:26); 16 Clash Of The Titans (Honda And Zangief) (1:51); 17 Guile Faces Bison (2:57); 18 Vega And Sagat vs. Ken And Ryu (3:07); 19 Bison Dies (2:02); 20 The Aftermath (3:17); 21 Attitude Adjuster (G. Acogny/A. Brown/D. De Lory) (4:29) World Beaters.

Review: Energetic action score by Graeme Revell, who seems to be excelling in this genre as the new master of the testosterone-powered movie. This film, where warriors from all over the world are assembled to fight an evil warlord, offers Revell the opportunity to exploit a vast array of musical styles with a variety of ethnic motifs—Chinese ("Chun-Li Enters the Morgue"), Middle Eastern ("The Circus Tent") and a good old fashioned steamy "American" sex theme ("Chun-Li & Bison")—which helps to keep the score fresh. Scriptwriter Steven de Souza contributed the esperanto lyrics to the "Bison Troopers Marching Song."

1992, Capitol Records/Cloud Nine Records; from the movies A Streetcar Named Desire, Warner Bros., 1951; Since You Went Away, Vanguard Films, 1944; Now, Voyager, Warner Bros., 1942; and The Informer, RKO Radio Pictures, 1935.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North, Max Steiner; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, conducted by Ray Heindorf; Orchestras conducted by Max Steiner.

Selections: A STREETCAR NAMED DESIRE (A. NORTH): 1 Streetcar (2:51); 2 Four Deuces (3:09); 3 Belle Reeve (3:07); 4 Blanche (2:39); 5 Della Robia Blue (2:58); 6 Flores para los muertos (Flowers For The Dead) (4:50); 7 Mania (1:56); 8 Lust (3:18); 9 Soliloquy (2:51); 10 Redemption (1:53);

SINCE YOU WENT AWAY (M. STEINER): 11 Suite (9:44);

NOW, VOYAGER (M. STEINER): 12 Suite (8:55);

THE INFORMER (M. STEINER): 13 Suite (7:34).

Review: Long considered one of Hollywood's groundbreaking film scores, Alex North's compositions for A Streetcar Named Desire endure as some of the most exciting, provocative tunes ever written for a dramatic film: in this case, the hot, steamy stage-to-screen adaptation of Tennessee Williams' Pulitzer Prize winning masterpiece. With Streetcar, North created a new language for the fine art of film composition, juxtaposing modern jazz, blues and classical elements in a fashion that searingly communicates the lust, greed, passion and deception that accentuate the story's powerful, disturbing emotion.

Two CD issues offer the exact same repertoire, from the exact same masters. The first is on Capitol Records' and must be avoided at all costs: the sound is shrill and distorted, due to poor transfers from the original acetate discs. Far preferable is the Cloud Nine CD (from masters leased from Capitol), which has been carefully remastered, and sports clear, undistorted sonics. Both the Capitol and Cloud Nine CDs also offer three of Max Steiner's Academy Award winning compositions: Since You Went Away, Now, Voyager and The Informer—all conducted by the composer.

A Streetcar Named Desire

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie A Streetcar Named Desire, 1951.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Featured Musicians: Sidney Sax (violin), Tony Coe (clarinet), Ronnie Price (piano), Allen Walley (bass), Harold Fisher (drums), John Barclay (trumpet); Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Robert Townson; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:23); 2 New Orleans Street (1:29); 3 Belle Reve Reflections (2:15); 4 Stan Meets Blanche (3:03); 5 Blanche And Mitch (3:43); 6 Stan And Stella (3:01); 7 Blanche (2:43); 8 Belle Reve (2:50); 9 Birthday Party (3:09); 10 Revelation (5:12); 11 Mania (2:00); 12 Soliloquy (3:50); 13 Seduction (4:31); 14 Della Robia Blue (2:52); 15 The Doctor/Affirmation (4:16).

Review: This rerecording, splendidly recorded by the National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith, is yet another great example of a classic film score receiving the care and attention it merits. With dynamics and tempos that match and often surpass North's own readings (see above), and the splendor of the all-digital sound combining with several new cues to make this the most complete version in the best possible sound available, this recording of Streetcar belongs in any collection that aims to be comprehensive.

Streets of Fire

1984, MCA Records; from the movie Streets of Fire, Universal Pictures, 1984.

Selections: 1 Nowhere Fast (J. Steinman)(6:02) Fire Inc.; 2 Sorcerer (S. Nicks)(5:06) Marilyn Martin; 3 Deeper And Deeper (C. Curbin/J. West/Oram) (3:45) The Fixx; 4 Countdown To Love (K. Vance/M. Kupersmith)(3:00) Greg Phillinganes; 5 One Bad Stud (J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(2:28) The Blasters; 6 Tonight Is What It Means To Be Young (J. Steinman)(6:58) Fire Inc.; 7 Never Be You (T. Petty/B. Tench)(4:06) Maria McKee; 8 I Can Dream About You (D. Hartman)(4:07) Dan Hartman; 9 Hold That Snake (R. Cooder/J.L. Dickinson) (2:36) Ry Cooder; 10 Blue Shadows (D. Alvin)(3:17) The Blasters.

Review: A better-than-average rock soundtrack compilation, with superior performances by The Blasters, Ry Cooder, Dan Hartman, and The Fixx, among others. The film, about a famous rock star who is held for ransom and the detective who investigates the case, is arguably only a pretext to introduce a percussive rock score that punctuates the action. The tracks included here are all part of that score, and on their own make a great impression.

Striptease

1996, EMI Records; from the movie Striptease, Columbia Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Featured Artists: Spencer Davis Group, Billy Ocean, Blondie, Soul Survivors, Booker T & The MG's, Laldin, Chynna Phillips, Smokey Robinson & The Miracles, Billy Idol, Prince, Joan Jett & The Blackhearts, Eurythmics, Dean Martin; Album Producer: Pete Ganbarg; Engineer: Michael Sarsfield.

Selections: 1 Gimme Some Lovin' (S. Davis/M. Winwood/S. Winwood) (2:58) Spencer Davis Group; 2 Get Outta My Dreams, Get Into My Car (R.J. Lange/B. Ocean) (5:34) Billy Ocean; 3 The Tide Is High (J. Holt/T. Evans/H. Barrett) (4:43) Blondie; 4 Expressway To Your Heart (K. Gamble/L. Huff) (2:16) Soul Survivors; 5 Green Onions (B.T. Jones/S. Cropper/A. Jackson Jr./L. Steinberg) (2:52) Booker T & The MG's; 6 Love Child (Halaila) (P. Sawyer/F. Wilson/D. Richards/D. Taylor) (3:19) Laladin; 7 I Live For You (C. Phillips/D. Child) (3:46) Chynna Phillips; 8 You've Really Got A Hold On Me (W. Robinson Jr.) (3:00) Smokey Robinson & The Miracles; 9 Mony Mony (T. James/R. Cordell/ R. Bloom/B. Gentry) (5:03) Billy Idol; 10 If I Was Your Girlfriend (Prince) (3:46) Prince; 11 I Hate Myself For Loving You (J. Jett/D. Child) (4:13) Joan Jett & The Blackhearts; 12 Sweet Dreams (Are Made Of This) (A. Lennox/D.A. Stewart) (3:36) Eurythmics; 13 Return To Me (C. Lombardo/D. DiMinno) (2:24) Dean Martin.

Review: One of those soundtracks that you listen to and go...Huh? Imagine Joan Jett next to Dean Martin, the Spencer Davis Group alongside Billy Ocean, Prince not far from Chynna Phillips (as in Wilson Phillips). Someone just went on a song-licensing shopping spree here, scooping up individual songs without giving much thought to how they'd work together.

Stuart Saves His Family

1995, Milan Records; from the movie Stuart Saves His Family, Paramount Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Marc Shaiman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Frank Bennett, Larry Blank, Jimmy Vivino; Music Editor: Charles Martin Inouye; Orchestra conducted by Artie

Kane; Album Producer: Marc Shaiman; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Daily Affirmation Theme (C. Hardwick)(:49) Cheryl Hardwick; 2 Stuart Makes "An Amends" To Roz (1:54); 3 Stuart Starts His Journal (1:21); 4 Dad Was Our Hero (1:48); 5 Aunt Paula's Two Funerals (1:53); 6 Everything's Coming Up Roses (J. Styne/S. Sondheim)(3:13) Ethel Merman, The London Festival Orchestra; 7 Julia's Family (2:33); 8 Stuart "Borrows" The Videotape (1:27); 9 Stuart Uses The "V" Word (1:23); 10 Stuart Takes The Stand (1:28); 11 Dad Shoots Donnie (:53); 12 Stuart And Donnie Talk (1:41); 13 The Hollywood Incident (2:43); 14 Stuart's Dream (1:06); 15 Bus Station Goodbyes (2:46); 16 Silver Bells (J. Livingston/R. Evans)(3:10) Rachel Sweet; 17 Donnie Shows Up (:32); 18 On The Sunny Side Of The Street (D. Fields/J. McHugh)(2:08) Jack Sheldon; 19 What Makes A Family (1:33) Warren Wiebe; 20 One Final Word (:06) Phil Hartman.

Review: This standard comedic effort by Marc Shaiman is likable enough, but offers little new beyond what he's done in the past. Shaiman obviously likes to score comedies much like an animated film with unmistakable standard themes ("A Closer Walk With Thee" is used for a portion of "Aunt Paula's Two Funerals"), hitting the mark and changing tempos as often as possible. The album is by no means of poor quality, and there are some fine moments ("Julia's Family"), but once you've heard a Shaiman comedy score, you've heard them all.

The Subterraneans

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the movie The Subterraneans, M-G-M, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Andre Previn; Featured Musicians: Andre Previn (piano), Carmen McRae (vocals), Red Mitchell (bass), Dave Bailey (drums), Russ Freeman (piano), Bob Enevoldsen (trombone), Gerry Mulligan (baritone sax), Shelly Manne (drums), Art Farmer (trumpet), Buddy Clark (bass), Art Pepper (alto sax), Bill Perkins (sax), Jack Sheldon (trumpet); CD Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Why Are We Afraid (1:57); 2 Guido's Blackhawk (3:05); 3 Two By Two (4:00); 4 Bread And Wine (4:12); 5 Coffee Time (2:43) Carmen McRae; 6 A Rose And The End (3:24); 7 Should I (2:28); 8 Look Ma, No Clothes (1:32); 9 Things Are Looking Down (5:39); 10 Analyst (4:19); 11 Like Blue (1:58); 12 Raising Caen (3:02).

Review: In the days when he was still known as a film and jazz composer, Andre Previn occasionally combined both in scores that were amazingly alive and powerful in their expression. One such occasion is The Subterraneans, starring Leslie Caron and Georges Peppard, based on the Jack Kerouac "beat generation" novel, and set amid San Francisco's New Bohemians. While the film itself failed to find grace with critics and audiences, its score, bringing together the talents of West Coast instrumentalists Gerry Mulligan, Shelly Manne, Art Farmer, Art Pepper, Jack Sheldon, and Red Mitchell, and vocalist Carmen McRae, has long been regarded as one of the best examples of the use of jazz in films. Particularly striking is the fact that Previn wrote the cues for his eminent soloists, often performing against an orchestral background in a carefully dosed and effective blend of jazz riffs and symphonic sounds. There are many highlights in this excellent CD, which should attract those interested in solid instrumental soundtrack albums with a modern approach to its music.

Suburbia Woof

1997, Geffen Records; from the movie Suburbia, Sony Pictures Classics, 1997.

Album Notes: Album Executive Producers: Mark Kates, Richard Linklater, Randall Poster; Engineer: Stephen Marcussen.

Selections: 1 Unheard Music (E. Cervenka/J. Doe)(2:51) Elastica, Stephen Malkmus; 2 Bee-Bee's Song (Sonic Youth)(4:43) Sonic Youth; 3 Bullet Proof Cupid (Girls Against Boys)(4:53) Girls Against Boys; 4 Feather In Your Cap (B. Hansen)(3:45) Beck; 5 Berry Meditation (J. Lavelle/M. Kudo/T. Goldsworthy/M. Nishita)(7:34) U.N.K.L.E.; 6 I'm Not Like Everybody Else (R.D. Davies)(3:31) Boss Hog; 7 Cult (D.R. Goettel/E. Key/N. Ogre)(3:04) Skinny Puppy; 8 Does Your Hometown Care? (Superchunk)(4:17) Superchunk; 9 Sunday (Sonic Youth)(7:56) Sonic Youth; 10 Human Canninball (Butthole Surfers)(3:49) Butthole Surfers; 11 Tabla In Suburbia (Sonic Youth)(2:17) Sonic Youth; 12 Hot Day (The Flaming Lips)(1:39) The Flaming Lips; 13 Psychic Hearts (T. Moore)(3:58) Thurston Moore; 14 Town Without Pity (D. Tiomkin/N. Washington)(2:55) Gene Pitney.

Review: It's amazing what passes as a soundtrack these days. If at least the songs were interesting, lyrically and melodically, or elicited interesting performances, perhaps one might overlook the obvious lack of talent that permeates most of them. But this sad rock compilation, which has nothing going for it, not even a singer able to hold a tune, is a sad reminder that songs that once constituted the soundtrack to our lives have now been replaced by uninspired noise. For that we don't even have to go to Suburbia. We find it in abundance in the streets of our big cities. Bring back the jackhammers: at least they don't have artistic pretensions!

Sudden Death

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Sudden Death, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: John Debney; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Frank Bennett, Don Nemitz; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by John Debney; Album Producer: John Debney; Engineers: John Richards, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Kitchen Fight (5:31); 2 Finding The Bombs (2:29); 3 Seeing Tyler (:59); 4 Locker Room Chase (2:28); 5 Choppers/Scaling The Dome (4:01); 6 Race Against The Clock/The Abduction (6:36); 7 Countdown (:44); 8 Rooftop Battle (5:26); 9 Chooper Explodes/Resolution (2:02).

Review: Take a pounding percussion section, a massive symphony orchestra, and musical selections all too obviously modeled after John Williams' JFK "Conspirators" cue and action scores too numerous to mention (though The Fugitive and Die Hard seem to pop up here and there), then combine them all and you get the recipe for a rather hackneyed movie soundtrack. Composer John Debney has done some terrific work in the movies, but his two scores for director Peter Hyams (Sudden Death was followed by the unreleased The Relic) are clearly not his best efforts. Most likely forced to compose along the strict, thankless guidelines of the action genre, Debney's music is bombastic to an extreme, with few melodic ideas taking charge out of the mayhem. It's hard to imagine anyone other than die-hard Van Damme fans wanting to hear this music outside of the cinematic context it was composed for.

A Summer Story

1988, Virgin Records; from the movie A Summer Story, Atlantic Entertainment Group, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Georges Delerue; Orchestrations: Georges Delerue; Orchestra conducted by Georges Delerue.

Selections: 1 Love In The Loft (1:49); 2 Summer Poem (1:37); 3 We Meet Megan (:59); 4 Sheep Shearing (1:19); 5 Ashton Arrives (3:20); 6 Waiting For Megan (1:56); 7 Falling In Love (1:29); 8 Coming To Town (:32); 9 Abandoned (4:54); 10 Flashback And Rescue (2:09); 11 The Gentle Maiden (1:47); 12 Return To The Hill (3:26); 13 At The Beach (:34); 14 Megan Leaves Forever (1:44); 15 Missed The Train (1:18); 16 Megan At Work (:49); 17 Night Meeting (1:27); 18 Megan In The Field (1:16); 19 Thinking Of Ashton (:33); 20 Ashton's Son (Theme From A Summer Story)(3:23).

Review: Georges Delerue had probably the greatest gift for lyricism and sentiment of any film composer ever. Thus he was perfectly suited to this bittersweet love story about a wealthy young Englishman's romance with a farm girl in 1916. The score evokes a feeling of pastoral England not unlike that in the works of Frederick Delius or Ralph Vaughan Williams, but A Summer Story is finally and consummately in the style of Georges Delerue. Throughout, Delerue's inimitable string sound is prominent. His music gushes with honest sentiment and romance, yet never once does it become sappy or cloying. For all its warmth however, there hangs a sense of tragedy over A Summer Story, and the score ultimately evokes an intense feeling of nostalgia and loss. Romantic scores of this calibre rarely come along, and since Delerue's passing have been conspicuously more rare, making this CD something of a treasure.

Sun Valley Serenade/ Orchestra Wives

1986, Mercury Records; from the movies Sun Valley Serenade, 20th Century-Fox, 1941, and Orchestra Wives, 20th Century-Fox, 1942.

Album Notes: The Glenn Miller Orchestra, featuring Johnny Best, Billy May, Ray Anthony, Wade McMickle, Bobby Hackett (trumpet), Glenn Miller, Paul Tanner, Jimmy Priddy, Fran D'Annolfo (trombone), Tex Beneke, Al Klink, Ernie Caceres, Willie Schwartz, Hal McIntyre (saxophone), Chummy McGregor (piano), Jack Lathrop (guitar), Trigger Alpert (bass), Maurice Purtill (drums), Tex Beneke, Ray Eberle, Marion Hutton, Six Hits and A Miss, The Modernaires (vocals); Album Producer: Donald Elfman; Engineers: Dennis Drake, Gert Van Houyen.

Selections: SUN VALLEY SERENADE: 1 In The Mood (J. Garland/A. Razaf)(3:18); 2 I Know Why (And So Do You)(H. Warren/M. Gordon)(3:45) The Modernaires, John Payne, Lorraine Elliot; 3 Sun Valley Jump (J. Gray)(2:30); 4 The Spirit Is Willing (J. Gray)(3:25); 5 It Happened In Sun Valley (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (2:15) The Modernaires, Six Hits and A Miss; 6 Chattanooga Choo-Choo (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(4:40) Tex Beneke, The Modernaires; 7 Measure For Measure (A. May)(2:38);

ORCHESTRA WIVES: 8 Serenade In Blue (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (5:44) Pat Friday, Ray Eberle, The Modernaires; 9 Bugle Call Rag (J. Pettis/ B. Myers/E. Schoebel)(2:47); 10 Moonlight Serenade (G. Miller/M. Parish) (1:04); 11 American Patrol (J. Gray)(3:34); 12 At Last (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (4:17) Pat Friday, Ray Eberle; 13 Boom Shot (G, Miller/A. May)(2:31); 14 That's Sabotage (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(2:39) Marion Hutton; 15 I've Got A Gal In Kalamazoo (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(5:24)

Tex Beneke, Marion Hutton, The Modernaires; 16 Moonlight Sonata (L. Van Beethoven)(4:45); 17 People Like You And Me (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(3:43) Marion Hutton, Ray Eberle, Tex Beneke, The Modernaires; 18 You Say The Sweetest Things Baby (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (2:23).

Review: Both films were more or less tailored to feature the Glenn Miller Orchestra in the early days of World War II, when the country had not yet joined the conflict, but public sentiment was already being frayed and people needed some kind of entertainment to forget the dark clouds that amassed across the Atlantic and elsewhere. These light, enjoyable musical films have plots that are not too terribly obtrusive and musical numbers that often are terrific, and they exude the kind of mindless vibrancy most filmgoers hope to find when they go to the movies. The amazing thing about this CD, however, is the fact that the performances by the Glenn Miller Orchestra are in stereo, painstakingly reconstructed from the sound strips that were recorded at the time, long before stereophonic sound existed in the movies, let alone in the recording industry. The sound quality leaves a bit to be desired, to be sure, and the stereo is a trifle primitive, but where else would you hear "In the Mood," "It Happened in Sun Valley," "Chattanooga Choo-Choo," "Moonlight Serenade," "I've Got a Gal in Kalamazoo," and all the other hits made popular by the band in glorious two-channel definition? Besides, the music here is totally exhilarating, and explains why the big band era has left such a wonderful glow in the lives of those who experienced it.

Sundown

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Sundown, Vestron Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Stone; Orchestrations: Richard Stone, Mark Watters, Philip Griffen, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Allan K. Rosen; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Allan Wilson; Album Producers: Ford A. Thaxton, Richard Stone; Engineers: Allan Snelling, Jim Scheffler.

Selections: 1 Overture and Shane's Ride (3:56); 2 The Gathering (3:06); 3 Van Helsing Drops In (2:56); 4 Night Flight (2:01); 5 Seduction (2:25); 6 Count Mardulak (2:39); 7 Shane In Pursuit (2:41); 8 Come To Bed (1:23); 9 Mort's Duel In The Sun (1:59); 10 Attack And Retreat (4:16); 11 The Siege (1:52); 12 Mort's Drive Through Purgatory (:43); 13 Sandy Handcuffed (4:58); 14 Anna Und Otto (1:30); 15 Mardulak's Speech (2:03); 16 Hell In Purgatory (3:30); 17 Showdown (2:36); 18 Redemption Of The Damned (Finale)(5:43).

Review: At first, the whole premise seems totally ludicrous—a vampire western film, set in the aptly named Purgatory, a small town lost in the Arizona desert. But drawing from both genres, composer Richard Stone has come up with a score that amusingly spoofs westerns and horror films, while retaining its creative edge. The end result is a soundtrack album one might easily have overlooked, filled with cues that are appealing and original. Well worth hunting for!

Supergirl

1993, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Supergirl, Warner Bros., 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Overture (6:07); 2 Main Title and Argo City (3:15); 3 Argo City Mall (:56); 4 The Butterfly (1:36); 5 The Journey Begins (1:12); 6 Arrival On Earth/Flying Ballet (5:36); 7 Chicago Lights/Steel Attack (2:23); 8 The Superman Poster (:52); 9 A New School (2:13); 10 The Map (1:10); 11 Ethan Spellbound (2:13); 12 The Monster Tractor (7:34); 13 Flying Ballet (alternate version)(2:13); 14 The Map (alternate version) (1:13); 15 The Bracelet (1:44); 16 First Kiss/The Monster Storm (4:35); 17 "Where Is She?"/The Monster Bumper Cars (2:57); 18 The Flying Bumper Car (1:28); 19 "Where's Linda?" (1:21); 20 Black Magic (4:08); 21 The Phantom Zone (3:42); 22 The Vortex/The End Of Zaltar (5:49); 23 The Final Showdown & Victory/End Title (short version) (12:10).

Review: While Jerry Goldsmith has often contributed outstanding film music, too many times he has stood in the shadow of John Williams, scoring movies that were either imitative of or were ripoffs of successful pictures scored by Williams (i.e. where Williams scored Raiders of the Lost Ark, Jurassic Park and Home Alone, Goldsmith wrote King Solomon's Mines, Congo and Dennis the Menace). Yet another case is Supergirl, the failed but entertainingly campy 1984 spin-off of the Superman series from producer Alexander Salkind, featuring a great score from Goldsmith that went overlooked due to the film's dismal critical and box-office performance. The composer did a yeoman's job here, writing a romantic, soaring score that compares favorably to its predecessor, featuring thrilling action cues backed by outstanding performances from the National Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus. The initial CD release from Varese was superceded by an extended re-issue from Silva Screen in 1993, boasting unreleased and alternate cues, as well as the dumbest credit line in soundtrack album history ["The Superman Poster," "track 8, composed by Jerry Goldsmith (75%) and John Williams (25%)."]

Superman The Movie

1991, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Superman The Movie, Warner Bros., 1978.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Theme From Superman (Main Title)(4:24); 2 The Planet Krypton (4:45); 3 Destruction Of Krypton (5:58); 4 The Trip To Earth (2:23); 5 Love Theme From Superman (5:00); 6 Leaving Home (4:48); 7 The Fortress Of Solitude (8:29); 8 The Flying Sequence and Can You Read My Mind (J. Williams/L. Bricusse)(8:08); 9 Super Rescues (3:24); 10 Superfeats (5:00); 11 The March Of The Villains (3:33); 12 Chasing Rockets (7:33); 13 Turning Back The World (2:01); 14 End Title (6:24).

Review: This sadly mistreated soundtrack, one of John Williams' most memorable contributions to the screen, certainly would deserve better than the CD released, after many years of simply ignoring it altogether, by Warner Bros. Records, in a shortened version that eliminates a couple of cues ("Growing Up" and "Lex Luthor's Lair") "to facilitate a single, specially-priced compact disc." In an era where most important scores are being reissued not once but often several times, and always with extra tracks, Superman The Movie stands alone as a case in point where a label simply doesn't seem to give a damn about the riches in its vaults.

This said, the score created by John Williams teems with tunes that are outright exciting and wonderfully evocative of the action on the screen. Typically, Williams created a rousingly heroic theme for the superhero, with stirring brassy accents that spell out his invincibility, and a delicately wrought "Love Theme" that brings a delightful softer note to the score. The villains are dealt with in a sardonic anthem that displays glee and glum all at once ("The March of the Villains"), while Superman's deeds are detailed in cues in which the main theme is often used as an anchor to other, evolutive motifs.

Played with the right amount of fire and excitement by the London Symphony Orchestra (that unmistakable brass section is sensational!), the long score follows the screen narrative with expressive details that imaginatively convey its scope and its importance. Margot Kidder's reading of "Can You Read My Mind" is the only apparent weak point in this thrilling score, an otherwise spectacular display of Williams' creativity and beguiling musical invention.

Surrender

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Surrender, Warner Bros., 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Colombier.

Selections: 1 A Moment Of Doubt (1:00); 2 Space Museum (3:43); 3 She's Different (:53); 4 Sean And Daisy (1:12); 5 Got A Date With An Angel (1:23); 6 Surrender (4:01); 7 200,000 Copies (:34); 8 Hi, Jay (:24); 9 Goodbye, Seanstein (1:30); 10 Paid By The Hour (1:37); 11 Bad Dream (1:16); 12 Deep Into The Night (2:31); 13 The Wolf (:32); 14 The Revenge (1:54); 15 Just An Old Fashion Blues (1:24); 16 I'm Not A Woman (:30); 17 Surrender (reprise) (4:13).

Review: Aah, the 1980s! Movie soundtracks often featured power-rock songs produced by David Foster, and wacky scores sometimes performed entirely on synthesizers. Don't you wish you could go back to those carefree times? Well, perhaps not, but if you ever did, Michel Colombier's synthetic and bland score for this 1987 Cannon Group comedy will fit the bill. The movie stars Michael Caine (who seemingly appeared in more movies in 1987 than were made in 1997), Sally Field and Steve Guttenberg, and if that cast wasn't '80s enough, take a listen to Colombier's score, which feels like it's constantly treading water in trying to create a musical backdrop for the film's laughless shenanigans. The album is long out-of-print, but you still may be able to find it in one of those cut-out bins featuring albums by Debbie Gibson, Tiffany, and all those other artists whose spotlight time expired before the clock turned past 1989.

Surviving Picasso

1996, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Surviving Picasso, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Robbins; Orchestrations: Geoffrey Alexander; Orchestra conducted by Harry Rabinowitz; Album Producer: Richard Robbins; Engineer: Glen Neibaur.

Selections: 1 Grands Augustins (Main Title)(2:47); 2 Francoise (5:02); 3 Menerbes (4:24); 4 "You'd Be My Woman" (1:14); 5 Marie-Therese (2:31); 6 Cubist Flashback (1:16); 7 Olga (2:07); 8 Grandmother (2:49); 9 Jacqueline (2:34); 10 Circus (1:47); 11 Dora (3:32); 12 La Galloise (3:34); 13 Vallauris Corrida (End Credits)(7:57).

Review: Richard Robbins creates the bleakest of symphonic suites for this film about painter Pablo Picasso and the young girl who seeks his tutelage. Very often monothematic, Robbins colors his score in shades of gray. There is a repetitive motif throughout to represent the myopic ambitions of each of the characters, who remain forever wanting because they can never satisfy themselves enough to realize they can reach their goals. Certainly not the happiest score you'll ever hear.

1993, Hollywood Records; from the movie Swing Kids, Hollywood Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Joel Rosenbaum; Music Editors: Joe E. Rand, Eric Reasoner; New Swing Recording Arranger: Chris Boardman; Featured Musicians: Jerry Hey, Gary Grant, Larry Hall, Chuck Findley (trumpet), Bill Reichenbach, Lloyd Ulgate, John Johnson (trombone), Abe Most, Dan Higgins, Robert Tricarico, Gene Cipriano, Curt McGettrick (saxophones, woodwinds), Michael Lang (piano), Dennis Budimir, Dean Parks (guitar), Ben Wild, Chuck Domonico (bass), Ralph Humphrey (drums), Sid Page (violin); Album Producers: James Horner, Robert Kraft; Engineers: Shawn Murphy, Allen Sides.

Selections: 1 Sing, Sing, Sing (With A Swing)(L. Prima)(4:57); 2 Nothing To Report (1:36); 3 Shout And Feel It (W. Basie)(2:27); 4 It Don't Mean A Thing (If It Ain't Got That Swing)(E.K. Ellington/I. Mills)(2:48); 5 The Letter (4:09); 6 Flat Foot Floogee (S. Gaillard/B. Green/S. Stewart)(3:17); 7 Arvid Beaten (2:10); 8 Swingtime In The Rockies (B. Goodman/J. Mundy)(3:08); 9 Daphne (D. Reinhardt)(1:50); 10 Training For Utopia (3:43); 11 Life Goes To A Party/Jumpin' At The Woodside (B. Goodman/H. James)/(W. Basie)(2:17); 12 Goodnight, My Love (M. Gordon/H. Revel)(3:06); 13 Ashes (4:20); 14 Bei Mir Bist Du Schon (S. Secunda/J. Jacobs/S. Cahn/S. Chaplin) (4:09); 15 The Bismarck (3:04); 16 Swing Heil (5:26).

Review: There may have been something ludicrous about the plot of the film (young Germans defying Hitler's Nazi henchmen with their love for swing music and the American big bands), but there is nothing ludicrous about this soundtrack album, in which great recreations of some well-known standards, and new tracks composed by James Horner, combine to create a vivid musical picture that transcends the medium for which it was initially meant.

Swingers

1996, Miramax Records; from the movie Swingers, Miramax Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Album Producers: Julianne Kelley, Jeffrey Kimball, Beth Rosenblatt.

Selections: 1 You're Nobody 'Til Somebody Loves You (J. Cavanaugh/R. Morgan/L. Stock)(2:12) Dean Martin; 2 Paid For Loving (S. Johnson/B. Daughtrey/J. Palmer)(3:23) Love Jones; 3 With Plenty Of Money And You (H. Warren/A. Dubin)(1:33) Tony Bennett, Count Basie and His Orchestra; 4 You & Me & The Bottle Makes 3 Tonight (Baby)(S. Morris)(3:32) Big Bad Voodoo Daddy; 5 Knock Me A Kiss (M. Jackson/A. Razaf)(2:46) Louis Jordan; 6 Wake Up (J. Reinhardt)(:52) The Jazz Jury; 7 Groove Me (K. Floyd)(2:59) King Floyd; 8 I Wan'na Be Like You (R.M. Sherman/R.B. Sherman)(3:25) Big Bad Voodoo Daddy; 9 Mucci's Jag M.K. II (J. Altruda)(5:33) Joey Altruda; 10 King Of The Road (R. Miller)(2:27) Roger Miller; 11 Pictures (J. Reinhardt) (1:04) The Jazz Jury; 12 She Thinks I Still Care (D.L. Lipscomb) (2:33) George Jones; 13 Car Train (J. Reinhardt) (1:23) The Jazz Jury; 14 Pick Up The Pieces (R. Ball/M. Duncan/O. McIntyre/A. Gorrie/H. Stuart/R. McIntosh) (3:59) Average White Band; 15 Go Daddy-O (S. Morris)(3:11) Big Bad Voodoo Daddy; 16 I'm Beginning To See The Light (J. Hodges/E.K. Ellington/D. George/ H. James)(2:17) Bobby Darin.

Review: Inexplicably, the hip nightlife of the late mid-'90s includes martinis, cigars and swinging jazz music. With a few liberties, the soundtrack to this engaging chronicle of the trend nails the bachelor pad savoir faire of the music of choice. Dean Martin, Louis Jordan, King Floyd and an enjoyable workout on "With Plenty of Money and You" by Count Basie and Tony Bennett capture swing years past. Selections by Love Jones and Big Bad Voodoo Daddy give a present-day twist to the music. And familiar hits by Roger Miller ("King of the Road") and the Average White Band ("Pick Up the Pieces") sound surprisingly in sync with the rest of this collection.

Switch

1991, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Switch, Warner Bros., 1991.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Theme From Switch)(2:10); 2 Something For Pizzi (4:00); 3 Amanda And The Devil (2:25); 4

Seduction (3:17); 5 Dukes (3:00); 6 It's All There (3:22); 7 They Marry (3:34); 8 Fashion Show (1:42); 9 End Title (Theme From Switch)(4:30).

Review: The long collaboration between Henry Mancini and filmmaker Blake Edwards produced countless undisputed masterpieces in the annals of movie history—from "Moon River" to The Pink Panther, Mancini scored Edwards' pictures with classy, distinguished film scores that continue to influence popular music to this day. Towards the end of his career, Mancini still had that old time panache, as evidenced by his terrific work on Edwards' terrible 1988 comic-western Sunset and the successful Victor/Victoria musical adaptation. While Sunset sadly went unreleased, an original score album was issued for Mancini' music from Switch, Edwards' 1991 gender-switching, would-be comedy with Ellen Barkin. In a surprising turn of events, Mancini's original music was largely removed from the finished film, but upon listening to this painful soundtrack, it's all too obvious why—his score is, for lack of a better term, a disaster. The music is heavy on electronics and light on melody, almost straining to be "different" from the composer's usual sound. Different it is, but also grating and thoroughly unappealing. Kudos to anyone who manages to get through the entire length of this thankfully brief album without skipping ahead.

Tai-Pan

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Tai-Pan, De Laurentis Entertainment, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Studioorchester of Munich, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Peter Kramper.

Selections: 1 Suite From Tai-Pan, Part 1: Main Title/Macao/Culum/Brock/May-may (18:16); 2 Suite From Tai-Pan, Part 2: Chinese Fog/Jinqua/Love And Typhoon/It Was A Boy/A New Tai-Pan (18:37).

Review: If you're the guy who wrote the music for Lawrence of Arabia, you get a lot of calls. Maurice Jarre would be that guy, and Tai-Pan, a silly 19th-century Chinese adventure based on the James Clavell novel, must have been one of those calls. Jarre has scored two Asian epics, this and the 1980 mini-series Shogun, but Tai-Pan is by far the more western and traditional of the two. It's a sweeping, soaring, somewhat clinky symphonic score with Jarre's unmistakable imprint all over it. Jarre almost always sounds like himself, especially in this genre, and he has a way of taking his melodies in unexpected, excitingly sing-songy directions. The CD features two 18-minute tracks (side A and B on the original vinyl) and is fairly coherent.

Tales from the Darkside: The Movie Woof

1990, GNP Crescendo; from the movie Tales from the Dark Side: The Movie, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: John Harrison, Chaz Jankel, Jim Manzie, Pat Regan, Donald A. Rubinstein; Album Producer: John Harrison.

Selections: 1 Tales From The Darkside: The Movie: Prologue/Theme/Main Title (D.A. Rubinstein)(2:56); 2 "Lot 249" Suite (J. Manzie/P. Regan)(12:49); 3 "The Way Of All Flesh" (from "Lot 249") (J. Manzie)(3:23); 4 "Cat From Hell" Suite (C. Jankel)(11:27); 5 Lover's Vow" Suite (J. Harrison)(12:22); 6 Desperate Pain (from "Lover's Vow")(J. Harrison)(3:33) Ron ''Byrd'' Foster; 7 Bye, Bye, Betty (D.A. Rubinstein)(1:29); 8 Tales From The Darkside: The Movie (reprise) (D.A. Rubinstein)(:30).

Review: Despite input from five composers, this score for this anthology, based on the TV series, is simply a mediocre collection of synthesized music. One would expect stories written by the likes of Stephen King and George Romero to inspire something more creative, but that never happens. Each suite representing the four stories is virtually interchangeable in style and the whole package becomes depressingly dull.

Talk Radio/Wall Street

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movies Talk Radio, Cineplex Odeon Films, 1988; and Wall Street, 20th Century-Fox, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Stewart Copeland; Performer: Stewart Copeland; Album Producer: Jeff Seitz; Engineer: Jeff Seitz.

Selections: TALK RADIO: 1 Kent: Unpredictable (2:17); 2 Dietz: Just Come Right In Here, Denise (3:06); 3 TLKa: We Know Where You Live (3:51); 4 Tick: We Feel Too Much (2:47); 5 Trend: He Has Heart (3:11);

WALL STREET: 6 Bud's Scam (2:52); 7 Are You With Me? (1:15); 8 Trading Begins (2:25); 9 The Tall Weeds (3:05); 10 Break-Up (Darian)(2:03); 11 Anacott Steal (2:55); 12 End Title Theme (1:10).

Review: Both films were directed by Oliver Stone, yet two films couldn't have been more different in scope and in approach.

Inspired by the 1984 murder of radio personality Alan Berg in the hands of radicals, Talk Radio, set at a station in Dallas, surveyed the personal life and professional career of a late-night talkshow host (portrayed by Eric Bogosian), whose vitriolic, offensive on-the-air comments spare nothing and no one, and attract a sordid, squalid audience. As its title suggests, Wall Street took place in the world of high finance, with Charlie Sheen portraying a young, ruthless tyro, manipulated by the man he wants to emulate, a big time financial shark played by Michael Douglas. Giving each film a style of their own, Stewart Copeland's scores are abrasively energetic and descriptive, relying on synth effects, in themes that detail the specific action in each. Of the two, Talk Radio seems more fully realized and interesting, but that may also be because of the fact that some of the cues are set off by short excerpts from the dialogue which gives them a greater dramatic focus. However, in Wall Street some frighteningly realistic sounds (including dogs barking, perhaps in a more picturesque description of some of the characters that inhabit the financial districts) provide a physical aura to the score that's also quite striking.

Taxi Driver

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Taxi Driver, Columbia Pictures, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Arrangements: Dave Blume; Orchestra conducted by Dave Blume, Bernard Herrmann; Album Producer: Neely Plumb; Engineers: Kevin Cleary, Mickey Crofford, Don Henderson.

Selections: 1 Theme From Taxi Driver (4:13) Tom Scott; 2 I Work The Whole City (2:25); 3 Betsy In A White Dress (2:14); 4 The Days Do Not End (4:05); 5 Reprise: Theme From Taxi Driver (2:24); 6 Diary Of A Taxi Driver (4:31) Robert De Niro; 7 Theme From Taxi Driver (3:38); 8 The .44 Magnum Is A Monster (3:21); 9 Sport And Iris (2:17); 10 God's Lonely Man (End Title)(1:51).

Review: Legendary composer Bernard Herrmann ended his remarkable career with this brooding score for Martin Scorsese's brilliant look at the underside of New York City night life. Contrasting a low-key jazz theme against his characteristically heavy, brutal low brass and string chord progressions, Herrmann even ended the score with his famous "Hitchcock chord" from Psycho, paralleling the madness of Robert De Niro's bizarre antihero Travis Bickle with that of classic screen psychotic Norman Bates. It was an audacious effort that proved Herrmann capable of working at the forefront of his craft right up to the end of his life (he died shortly after recording the score in 1975). Unfortunately, this soundtrack album (originally released by Arista) compromises Herrmann's dark vision by padding out his score with some terrible pop-influenced readings of the composer's jazz theme.

The Ten Commandments

1989, MCA Records; from the movie The Ten Commandments, Paramount Pictures, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; The Paramount Studio Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein.

Selections: 1 Prelude (5:07); 2 In The Bulrushes (4:01); 3 The Bitter Life (2:05); 4 Love And Ambition (4:03); 5 The Hard Bondage (2:03); 6 Egyptian Dance (2:52); 7 The Crucible Of God (3:07); 8 And Moses Watered Jethro's Flock (2:15); 9 Bedouin Dance (1:56); 10 I Am That I Am (3:13); 11 Overture (2:06); 12 Thus Says The Lord (3:39); 13 The Plagues (2:51); 14 The Exodus (6:00); 15 The Pillar Of Fire (2:45); 16 The Red Sea (2:30); 17 The Ten Commandments (5:40); 18 Go, Proclaim Liberty! (3:16).

Review: Oh, Moses, Moses! Veteran composer Elmer Bernstein got his first major credit on Cecil B. DeMille's classic Biblical epic, providing a rousing, vibrant score full of unforgettable leitmotifs, from the portentous six note "God" theme to a proud fanfare for Charlton Heston's Moses and a languid melody for Egyptian queen Nefritiri that's just as smoothly campy as Ann Baxter's outrageous performance in the role. Few composers have been handed assignments with this kind of scope so early in their careers, but Bernstein approached apocryphal moments like Moses' encounter with the Burning Bush, the Hebrews' exodus from Egypt and the parting of the Red Sea with moving piety, infectious energy and an uncanny sense of drama and awe. Originally presented as a two LP set, this 70-minute CD presents the lion's share of Bernstein's score, from the sweeping overture and exotic evocation of the river Nile to Bernstein's incredibly moving finale with its gorgeous recapitulation of the composer's gentle melody for Moses' wife, Sephora. Despite the length here, there's not a dull moment, and this broad, exciting album belongs in anyone's collection.

Tequila Sunrise

1988, Capitol Records; from the movie Tequila Sunrise, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Featured Musicians: Dave Sanborn (saxophone), Lee Ritenour (guitar); Featured Artists: Ann Wilson & Robin Zander, Duran Duran, Crowded House, Ziggy Marley & The Melody Makers, The Everly Brothers & The Beach Boys, Andy Taylor, The Church, Bobby Darin; Producers: Richie Zito, Jonathan Elias, Daniel Abraham, Mitchell Froom, Rita Marley, Phil and Don Everly, Andy Taylor, Ahmet Ertegun, Dave Grusin; Album Producers: Danny Bramson, Tim Devine.

Selections: 1 Surrender To Me (R. Vanelli/R. Marx) (4:09) Ann Wilson, Robin Zander; 2 Do You Believe In Shame? (J. Taylor/N. Rhodes/S. Lebon) (4:25) Duran Duran; 3 Recurring Dream (N. Finn) (3:25) Crowded House; 4 Give A Little Love (D. Warren/A. Hammond) (4:03) Ziggy Marley & The Melody Makers; 5 Don't Worry Baby (B. Wilson/R. Christian) (3:18) The Everly Brothers, The Beach Boys; 6 Dead On The Money (S. Diamond/T. Cerney) (4:06) Andy Taylor; 7 Unsubstantiated (S. Kilbey/M. Willson-Piper/R. Ploog/P. Koppes) (3:32) The Church; 8 Beyond The Sea (C. Trenet/J. Lawrence) (2:55) Bobby Darin; 9 Tequila Dreams (D. Grusin) (4:17); 10 Jo Ann's Song (D. Grusin) (4:11).

Review: There are reasons to be very, very scared of this soundtrack. Jazz lite master Dave Grusin teaming with David Sanborn on one number and Lee Ritenour on another. Cheap Trick's Robin Zander teaming with Heart's Ann Wilson. The Everly Brothers and the Beach Boys combining on "Don't Worry Baby"—which would have been exciting in 1969, maybe. And don't forget Duran Duran and a solo track by its former guitarist, Andy Taylor. Kinda makes you want to slap on Mel Gibson's solo spot from "Pocahontas."

Terminal Velocity

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Terminal Velocity, Interscope Communications, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Joel McNeely; Orchestrations: David Slonaker, Chris Boardman, Art Kempel; Music Editor: Thomas Milano; Orchestra conducted by Joel McNeely; Album Producer: Joel McNeely; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Desert Landing (2:16); 2 Aerial Ballet (2:45); 3 Airborne (1:02); 4 Ditch's Dive (1:42); 5 Easier Ways To Die (1:42); 6 The Second Plane (3:45); 7 Christa Is Caught (4:14); 8 Desert Nocturne (1:09); 9 Cadillac Freefall (5:43); 10 Russian Gold (3:25); 11 End Credits (4:11).

Review: Writing in a solidly muscular style, with lots of orchestral flourishes over a simple synth rhythm line, Joel McNeely created a surprisingly effective score for this aerial cold war spy thriller involving a loot in gold bullion, a gorgeous sky diving agent, and other mid-air happenstances that propel the action and keep it... well, flying! Occasionally (and abruptly) interrupted by scorching rock accents ("Ditch's Dive"), the score keeps the moods midway between suspense and contemplation, with throbbing chords and evolutive orchestral lines mingling in unexpected, sudden changes for what amounts to a very lively and effective series of cues. While the music works very well behind the screen action, it is also quite descriptive without it.

Terminator

Terminator

1984, Cinemaster/DCC Compact Classics; from the movie Terminator, Orion Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Brad Fiedel; Featured Musician: Ross Levinson (electric violin); Song Producers: Kevin Elson, Jay Ferguson, Michael Verdick, John French, Trevor Courtney; Album Engineer: Steve Hoffman.

Selections: 1 The Terminator Theme (4:30); 2 Terminator Arrival (3:00); 3 Tunnel Chase (2:50); 4 Love Scene (1:15); 5 Future Remembered (2:40); 6 Factory Chase (3:50); 7 You Can't Do That (3:25) Tahnee Cain &Tryanglz; 8 Burnin's In The Third Degree (3:38) Tahnee Cain &Tryanglz; 9 Pictures Of You (3:58) Jay Ferguson, 16 mm; 10 Photoplay (3:30) Tahnee Cain &Tryanglz; 11 Intimacy (3:40) Linn Van Hek.

Review: More mood music than listening music, Brad Fiedel's score for the Arnold Schwarzenegger-starrer proved more effective on the screen, behind the action, than it does when brought upfront. With low rumbling chords, synth percussion, and various other effects creating ominous, somber moods, the only track that actually attracts is "Love Scene," a short, relatively quiet expression that might have gained at being a little longer. Adding a strident, rock-oriented note to the album, five songs may prove more attractive to the average listener, if only because they at least are built on stronger melodic hooks than the score itself, even if they all end up sounding the same.

Terminator 2: Judgment Day

1991, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Terminator 2: Judgment Day, Tri-Star Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Brad Fiedel; Album Producer: Brad Fiedel; Engineers: Brad Fiedel, Ross Levinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Terminator Theme) (1:56); 2 Sarah On The Run (2:31); 3 Escape From The Hospital (And T1000) (4:34); 4 Desert Suite (3:25); 5 Sarah's Dream (Nuclear Nightmare)(1:49); 6 Attack On Dyson (Sarah's Solution) (4:07); 7 Our Gang Goes To Cyberdyne (3:11); 8 Trust Me (1:38); 9 John And Dyson Into Vault (:41); 10 SWAT Team Attacks (3:22); 11 I'll Be Back (3:58); 12 Helicopter Chase (2:27); 13 Tanker Chase (1:42); 14 Hasta la vista, Baby (T1000 Freezes)(3:02); 15 Into The Steel Mill (1:25); 16 Cameron's Inferno (2:37); 17 Terminator Impaled (2:05); 18 Terminator Revives (2:14); 19 T1000 Terminated (1:41); 20 It's Over (Goodbye)(4:36).

Review: This non-thematic score by Brad Fiedel is more sound design than underscore. It works brilliantly in the film, and it does have a certain hypnotic charm at times, with some tracks, like "Desert Suite," having a very ambient feel to them. But it is sure a tough listen on its own if you're not prepared for it. The original Terminator main theme, the only melodic piece in the score, is played here with a slower, more deliberate pace.

The Terminator: The Definite Edition

1996, Cinerama/edel Records; from the movie, The Terminator, Orion Pictures, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Brad Fiedel; Music Editor: Emile Robertson; Featured Musician: Ross Levison (electric violin); Album Producer: Brad Fiedel; CD Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Bill Wolford.

Selections: 1 Theme from The Terminator (4:13); 2 The Terminator Main Title (2:14); 3 The Terminator's Arrival (4:53); 4 Reese Chased (3:47); 5 Sarah On Her Motorbike (:35); 6 Gun Shop/Reese In Alley (1:27); 7 Sarah In The Bar (1:49); 8 Tech Noir/Alley Chase (6:49); 9 Garage Chase (6:49); 10 Arm & Eye Surgery (3:23); 11 Police Station/Escape From Police Station (4:47); 12 Future Flashback/Terminator Infiltration (4:18); 13 Conversation By The Window/Love Scene (3:45); 14 Tunnel Chase (3:54); 15 Death By Fire/Terminator Gets Up (3:11); 16 Factory Chase (3:54); 17 Reese's Death/Terminator Sits Up/ "You're Terminated!" (3:26); 18 Sarah's Destiny/The Coming Storm (3:06); 19 Theme from The Terminator (August 29th, 1997, Judgment Day remix).

Review: This "The Definite Edition" (the "iv" between Definite's last two letters has evidently been terminated) provides for the first time Fiedel's complete score, remastered in stereo (the film's audio track had been mono). The Terminator is an effectively mechanical score, suitably punctuating the presence and relentless determination of the cyborg assassin through a pulsing, darkly ambient electronic tonality. Featuring a bold, alternatingly heroic/malevolent synth melody (which retains a slightly disconsolate tone, representing the struggles of the future from which the cyborg comes) over a staccato percussion riff, suggesting the tumbling building blocks of our destructive future, Fiedel captures the ideal musical emotion for the film. Outside of a brief piano and oboe love theme and a lot of percussive and atonal suspense music, The Terminator is a monothematic score. The machinelike cyborg is the focus of the music, and Fiedel effectively maintains the character's menace through this approach.

Thank God It's Friday

1997, Casablanca Records; from the movie Thank God It's Friday, Motown-Casablanca FilmWorks, 1978.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Alec R. Costandinos, Simon Soussan, Giorgio Moroder & Pete Bellotte, Bob Esty & Paul Jabara, Larry Blackmon, James Carmichael & The Commodores, Arthur G. Wright, Dick St. Nicklaus, Hal Davis; Music Coordinator: Marc Paul Simon; Engineer: Gary N. Mayo.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Thank God It's Friday (A. Costandinos) (4:14) Love And Kisses; 2 After Dark (S. Soussan/S. Soussan) (7:51) Pattie Brooks; 3 With Your Love (D. Summer/G. Moroder/P. Bellotte) (3:59) Donna Summer; 4 Last Dance (P. Jabara) (8:08) Donna Summer; 5 Disco Queen (P. Jabara) (3:46) Paul Jabara; 6 Find My Way (J. Melfi) (4:56) Cameo; 7 Too Hot Ta Trot (T. McClary/ M. Williams/W. Orange/L. Richie/R. LaPread/W. King) (3:24) The Commodores; 8 Leatherman's Theme (A. Wright) (3:23) Wright Bros. Flying Machine; 9 I Wanna Dance (P. Bellotte/T. Baldursson) (5:55) Marathon.

CD 2: 1 Take It To The Zoo (D. Summer/B. Sudano/J. Esposito) (7:58) Sunshine; 2 Sevilla Nights (N. Skorsky) (6:06) Santa Esmeralda; 3 You're The Most Precious Thing In My Life (A. Costandinos) (7:57) Love And Kisses; 4 Do You Want The Real Thing (D.C. LaRue/B. Esty) (4:40) D.C. LaRue; 5 Trapped In A Stairway (P. Jabara/B. Esty) (3:23) Paul Jabara; 6 Floyd's Theme (D. St. Nicklaus) (2:57) Natural Juices; 7 Lovin', Livin' And Givin' (K. Stover/P. Davis) (4:39) Diana Ross; 8 Love Masterpiece (H. Davis/J. Powell/A. Posey) (4:01) Thelma Houston; 9 Last Dance (reprise) (P. Jabara) (3:17) Donna Summer; 10 Je t'aime (moi non plus) (S. Gainsbourg) (15:47) Donna Summer.

Review: A brilliant marketing concept, Thank God It's Friday is essentially a long-form video showcasing the talents of the most important disco performers under contract to Casablanca and Motown in 1978. And what a roster: Donna Summer, of course, the reigning queen of disco at the time; Paul Jabara, who copped an Academy Award for "Last Dance"; Thelma Houston, Diana Ross, Pattie Brooks, The Commodores, Cameo, D.C. LaRue, some as ephemeral as disco itself, others with longer resiliency. One may berate disco for its simpleminded attitudes, and complain that the songs are all beat and no substance. One thing, however, they are fun, and that's all that was needed. In the years since, the music industry has changed course many times, but the songs in Thank God It's Friday have remained as fresh and exciting as they were when they were first created. This album is a vivid reminder of an era that probably came and went too fast.

That Old Feeling

1997, MCA Records; from the movie That Old Feeling, Universal Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Tim Sexton; Engineer: Larry Walsh.

Selections: 1 Love (B. Kaempfert/M. Gabler)(2:36) Nat King Cole; 2 Somewhere Along The Way (S. Gallop/K. Adams)(2:19) Bette Midler, Tommy Flanagan; 3 Love Is Here To Stay (G. & I. Gershwin)(3:55) Ella Fitzgerald; 4 Call Me Irresponsible (S. Cahn/J. Van Heusen)(2:20) Dinah Washington; 5 Anything Goes (C. Porter)(2:21) Tony Bennett, Count Basie; 6 Baila conmigo (P. Williams)(4:54) Patrick Williams; 7 There Will Never Be Another You (H. Warren/M. Gordon)(2:25) Keely Smith; 8 One Shining Moment (B. Walsh)(4:55) Marc Anthony; 9 You Took Advantage Of Me (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(3:13) Billie Holiday; 10 At Last (H. Warren/M. Gordon) (3:40) Lou Rawls, Diana Reeves; 11 That Old Feeling (S. Fain/L. Brown)(2:42) Louis Armstrong, Oscar Peterson.

Review: Wow! What an album! Call it a guilty pleasure, call it old fashioned stuff, it doesn't matter. Next to the drivel we are so often subjected to these days, next to songs without music and with words that are not even intelligent or intelligible, this is the real thing. These songs were crafted with the utmost care by people who knew the value of an interesting lyric combined with a melodic hook, and they are performed by people who know how to sing them and extract every juicy ounce from them – in other words the best of both worlds. So, just put the CD in your player, press the "play" button, sit back, and enjoy! You deserve it!

That Thing You Do

1996, Play Tone Records/Epic Soundtrax; from the movie That Thing You Do, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Album Producers: Tom Hanks, Gary Goetzman; Engineers: Dave Jahnsen, Rick Pekkonen, Michael C. Ross, Doug Ryder, Mark Wolfson.

Selections: 1 Lovin' You Lots And Lots (T. Hanks) (1:54) The Norm Wooster Singers; 2 That Thing You Do! (S. Schlesinger) (2:47) The Wonders; 3 Little Wild One (D. Gibbs/S. Hurley/P. Hurley/F. Review: Winning Oscars wasn't enough for Tom Hanks: he had to write songs, too. Hanks shares composing credits on four of the songs here, and the whole collection perfectly apes the innocence and occasional sophomorism of early and mid-'60s American pop. The jangley title track is catchy, however, as are most of the other songs "performed" by The Wonders, the fictional group that's the subject of the movie. That Thing You Do! also touches on surf instrumentals ("Voyage Around the Moon"), teen torch songs ("My World is Over"), girl groups ("Hold My Hand, Hold My Heart") and bombastic movie-style themes ("Mr. Downtown"). One you'll come back to repeatedly.

The Thief of Bagdad/ The Jungle Book

1988, Varese-Sarabande; from the movies The Thief of Bagdad, Universal-International, 1940; and The Jungle Book, United Artists, 1942.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Nurnberg Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Miklos Rozsa, Klauspeter Seibel; Album Producer: Armin Luther; CD Producer: Tom Null; Engineer: Danny Hersch.

Selections: THE THIEF OF BAGDAD: 1 The King's Fanfare (:31); 2 The Harbor Of Bagdad (2:36); 3 Procession (2:41); 4 Eternal Love (4:44); 5 Gallop Of The Flying Horse (1:41); 6 Dance Of The Silvermaid (3:15); 7 The Marketplace Of Basra (2:59);

THE JUNGLE BOOK (ORCHESTRAL SUITE): 8 The Jungle/The Animals Of The Jungle/ Mowgli/Life In The Jungle/Indian Night/Pursuit/Lullaby/Mowgli's Mother/ Among Men/Song Of The Jungle/Panic Of The Animals/Hunt For Shere Khan/The Python Kaa/Combat/Mowgli's Triumph/Finale (29:31).

Review: Miklos Rozsa's first two popular scores, and the ones that really established him as a major Hollywood composer, brilliantly performed by the Nurnberg Symphony Orchestra in sparkling stereo rerecordings that give these scores new life and greater vibrancy. Drawing as much from the colorful music of his Hungarian background as he did from his own idea of what Arabian and Indian accents should sound like, Rozsa created two scores that are exquisitely evocative of the locales and the actions, and that are indissolubly representative of the films for which they were composed.

The often extravagant accents in The Thief of Bagdad detail this thousand-and-one-night Arabian fantasy in broad, vibrant musical tones that compare favorably with Rimsky-Korsakov's tone poem, Sheherazade, which they often evoke. The epic tale about the poor beggar (actually the heir to the throne, despoiled by a villainous sorcerer) who falls in love with a princess, and, with the aid of a mischievious street urchin, overcomes all odds, the film was a delightful story that happily mixed epic action with fairy tale accounts in a well-rounded, entertaining oriental saga. Rozsa's music was the perfect complement to the story with wonderfully animated cues that melded with the action and gave it an extra bounce.

Based on Rudyard Kipling's oft-told saga of the baby boy, lost in the luxuriant Indian jungle and raised by a pack of wolves, The Jungle Book was another storybook brought to the screen in vivid images that captured the wonders of the tale and made it brilliantly palpable. In terms that at times evoked Saint-Saens' Carnival of the Animals, Rozsa created a score that gives all the animals in the jungle a distinct personality, emphasized by the use of specific instruments (trombones and tubas for the elephants, horn glissandi for the wolves, sharp contra-bassoon calls for Baloo the bear, long string lines for Bagheera the panther, woodwinds for the Bandarlogs, alto sax for the hyena, etc.). Tremendously stimulating and beautifully descriptive of the action on-screen, the score, presented here as a long, uninterrupted orchestral suite, spins a magic of its own, making this recording a rare treat for the listener.

The Thin Blue Line

1989, Elektra/Nonesuch Records; from the movie The Thin Blue Line, Euphorbia, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Philip Glass; Orchestra conducted by Michael Riesman; Featured Musicians: Wilmer Wise, Steve Burns (trumpet), Sharoe Moe, Tony Miranda, Ron Sell (French horn), Michael Parloff, Judith Mendenhall (flute), Sergiu Schwartz, Tim Baker (violin), Karl Bargen (viola), Chris Funckel (cello), Barbara Wilson (double bass), Michael Riesman (keyboards), Gordon Gottlieb (percussion), Brian Koonin (guitar); Album Producer: Kurt Munkacsi; Engineer: Miles Green.

Selections: 1 Opening Credits (1:31); 2 Prologue (4:43); 3 Interrogation, Part One (2:09); 4 Interrogation, Part Two (:37); 5 Turko, Part One (2:38); 6 Turko, Part Two (2:04); 7 Vidor (1:50); 8 Harris' Story (1:32); 9 Adams' Story (1:48); 10 Comets And Vegas (1:36); 11 The Defense Attorneys, Part One (2:08); 12 Harris' Crimes, Part One (1:42); 13 The Judge (:43); 14 The Trial, Part One (2:38); 15 The Trial, Part Two (3:25); 16 The Mystery Eyewitness, Part One (3:01); 17 The Mystery Eyewitness, Part Two (4:25); 18 Elba Carr (:45); 19 The Mystery Eyewitness, Part Three (2:46); 20 The Thin Blue Line (1:04); 21 Dr. Death (4:42); 22 The Electric Chair (2:54); 23 The Defense Attorneys, Part Two (:59); 24 Harris' Testimony (2:04); 25 The Mystery Eyewitness, Part Four (1:51); 26 The Mystery Eyewitness, Part Five (1:07); 27 Harris' Crimes, Part Two (1:34); 28 Hell On Earth (1:44); 29 Harris' Childhood (2:37); 30 The Confession (2:51); 31 End Credits (3:58).

Review: Errol Morris' chilling documentary about a man framed for murder gets a suitably brooding, ominous Philip Glass score, but this soundtrack CD is less interested in letting you hear the music than in telling Randall Adams' Hitchcockian story. For most of the disc's 69 minutes, the tale unfolds through bits of dialogue from the film, with Glass' underscoring, making for a sort of "Books on Tape" experience. Only the opening and closing themes are presented dialogue-free. (Thanks to Morris' film, Adams ultimately did win his freedom, but you'll hear no jubilation here.)

The Thing

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Thing, Universal Picture, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Micky Crofford; Assistant Engineer: Neil Jack.

Selections: 1 Humanity (Part 1)(6:50); 2 Shape (3:16); 3 Contamination (1:02); 4 Bestiality (2:56); 5 Solitude (5:58); 6 Eternity (5:35); 7 Wait (6:22); 8 Humanity (part 2)(7:15); 9 Sterilization (5:12); 10 Despair (4:58).

Review: The Thing is one of the few instances where John Carpenter turned the scoring duties over to another composer (Carpenter most often prefers to score his own films). While better known for his lyrical scores for The Mission and Sergio Leone's westerns, The Thing displays Ennio Morricone in a much more contemporary, experimental mode (and is in fact more reflective of the kind of music the composer prefers to write). Some of Carpenter's electronic style shows its influence, but Morricone provides music of much greater imagination than that of which Carpenter is capable. This album also features a great deal of music not used in the film, which consists of some compelling 20th century compositional techniques. Moody, atmospheric music, reminiscent of Bartok features in the first track "Humanity" while spine-chilling aleatoric string pizzicati make-up "Contamination." "Bestiality" is a surging Herrmann-like cue, while Morricone dabbles in minimalism in "Eternity", which features a dizzying downward spiral of electronics and cathedral organ. The acoustical and recording quality is clean and crisp (the work of engineer Mickey Crawford) and suits the score perfectly. Anyone who insists nothing inventive or imaginative is ever written for films will be convinced otherwise by a listen to this soundtrack.

This Is My Life

1992, Qwest Records; from the movie This Is My Life, 20th Century-Fox Records, 1992.

Album Notes: Songs: Carly Simon; Orchestra arranged and conducted by Teese Gohl; Featured Musicians: Carly Simon (vocals/acoustic guitar/Keyboards/whistle), Jimmy Ryan, Ben Taylor (guitars), Teese Gohl, Andy Goldmark (synthesizers/piano), Will Lee, Paul Samwell-Smith (bass), Andy Newmark, Richie Morales, Russ Kunkel (drums), Jamey Haddad (percussion), Toots Thielemans (harmonica), Randy Brecker (trumpet), Jim Pugh (trombone), Charles McCracken (cello); Album Producers: Frank Filipetti, Carly Simon; Engineers: Frank Filipetti, Tom Lord-Alge, James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 Love Of My Life (3:35) Carly Simon; 2 Back The Way (Dottie's Point Of View)(4:51) Carly Simon; 3 Moving Day (1:23); 4 Easy On The Eyes (C. Simon/A. Goldberg)(4:44) Carly Simon; 5 Walking And Kissing (1:08); 6 The Show Must Go On (3:46) Carly Simon; 7 Love Of My Life (2:18) Toots Thielemans; 8 Back The Way (Girls' Point Of View)(2:58) Carly Simon; 9 Little Troupers (:37); 10 The Night Before Christmas (3:41) Carly Simon; 11 This Is My Life Suite: Pleasure And Pain/Coming Home/Uncle Peter (4:44); 12 Love Of My Life (Drive To The City)(3:45).

Review: Literally a showcase for singer-composer Carly Simon, this album is ingratiating because of the performer's frequently glowing personality and attractive way with a melody and a lyric. A comedy-drama about the "tricky business of raising children and maintaining a solid career, without the benefit of a live-in father," in Simon's own description of the plot, the film evidently inspired the songwriter who wrote the several tunes heard in this soundtrack album, as well as the evocative instrumental cues that complement them. Some songs might attract more than others ("Back the Way," a jaunty, winning little tune, and "The Show Must Go On," an exhilarating anthem, are just wonderful), but the overall effect is ingratiating and strongly reinforced with the instrumental sections in which Toots Thielemans' harmonica creates a poetic spin of its own. A very attractive effort.

3 Days of the Condor

1988, EMI-Manhattan Records; from the movie 3 Days of the Condor, Paramount Pictures, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Dave Grusin; Album Producer: Neely Plumb; Engineers: John Neal, Jay Ranellucci.

Selections: 1 Condor! (Theme From 3 Days Of The Condor) (3:33); 2 Yellow Panic (2:14); 3 Flight Of The Condor (2:28); 4 We'll Bring You Home (2:22); 5 Out To Lunch (2:00); 6 Goodbye For Kathy (Love Theme From 3 Days Of The Condor)(2:15); 7 I've Got You Where I Want You (3:10) Jim Gilstrap; 8 Flashback To Terror (2:22); 9 Sing Along With The C.I.A. (1:31); 10 Spies Of A Feather, Flocking Together (Love Theme From 3 Days Of The Condor)(1:54); 11 Silver Bells (J. Livingston/R. Evans)(2:36) Marti McCall; 12 Medley: Condor! (Theme)/I've Got You Where I Want You (1:56) Jim Gilstrap.

Review: A typically inventive score by Dave Grusin, 3 Days of the Condor combines the fusion jazz accents that made his reputation, and strongly flavorful themes that detail this spy thriller about a CIA operative (Robert Redford, in a taut portrayal as a man on the run) whose associates have all been killed, and who eventually discovers that the massacre was ordered by a turncoat inside the agency. The cues devised by Grusin do not specifically attempt to underline the screen action, but provide a strong musical base that works well in and out of it. Two throwaway vocals and a routine version of "Silver Bells" are the only apparent weak spots in the otherwise solid series of cues.

Three Fugitives

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Three Fugitives, Touchstone Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: David McHugh; Album Producer: David McHugh; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Fugitives (5:06); 2 Meg (1:21); 3 Let's Get Dad (3:01); 4 Hi Copper/Hotel (1:27); 5 S.W.A.T. (1:11); 6 To The Warehouse (1:09); 7 Meg Runs Away/Get In (1:40); 8 My Little Girl (1:07); 9 Don't Go (1:29); 10 Meg (reprise)(1:29); 11 Dr. Horvacks (1:57); 12 Children's Home And Lucas (1:39); 13 Meg's Pick-Up (1:01); 14 Fishnets And Sighs (:58); 15 Meg's Visit (:53); 16 Dad (3:00); 17 (Meg's Rescue/On The Road (2:16); 18 Toward Canada (2:57); 19 End Title (4:11).

Review: David McHugh's score for Three Fugitives is full of toe-tapping energy and tender innocence. It's a synthesizer-dominated score based on a single theme which is alternately given pop, rock or jazz renditions. McHugh's synthesizer is clear, taking on orchestral qualities while backed by acoustic instruments like trumpet and piano. This is a score that's fun to listen to. It captures the sense of spirited fun and fellowship embodied in the movie, and carries that over into a soundtrack that is extremely pleasant. It's not as harsh or furious as a lot of rock-oriented soundtracks, nor as saccharine as many pop scores. It's light musical entertainment, and McHugh's score is certain to grow on you with repeated listenings. Three Fugitives is often exhilarating, happy, highly suitable for the film and extremely listenable on disk.

Three Men and a Little Lady

1990, Hollywood Pictures; from the movie Three Men and a Little Lady, Touchstone Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 Always Thinking Of You (T. Snow/D. Pitchford)(4:04) Donna DeLory; 2 Dance (D. Baerwald/L. Klein)(4:14) David Baerwald; 3 Waiting For A Star To Fall (G. Merrill/S. Pleasure)(5:50) Najee; 6 Goodnight Swetheart Goodnight (J. Hudson/C. Carter)(1:03) Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg, Ted Danson; 7 The Big Goodbye (3:00); 8 The Wharf (:48); 9 Where Will You Live (1:10); 10 To England (:53); 11 Peter And Sylvia In Dressing Room (2:26); 12 Pileforth (:44); 13 Peter's Proposal (1:12); 14 Motorcycle Montage (1:29); 15 He Doesn't Like Me (1:25); 16 The Wedding Tent (:36); 17 Rainmaker (1:21); 18 Sylvia To Theatre (1:07); 19 Peter's Plan (3:36); 20 What About Your Needs? (1:21).

Review: This sequel to the amusing Three Men and a Baby, itself a remake of the French comedy Trois hommes et un couffin, has overstayed its welcome and lacked the subtle essence that made the first film work so well, even though it is nothing more than the mere wisp of a slight comedy. In some ways, the score by James Newton Howard tries to evoke the winsome atmosphere that should have presided over this story about three bachelor hunks (Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg and Ted Danson), all three sharing the same apartment and with their own agenda, suddenly saddled with caring for a little five-year old, the daughter of a friend with a pressing engagement. The cues are, for the most part, engaging and charmingly provocative, making this soundtrack album more interesting than the film that inspired it. The insipid pop selections, all too strident and aggressively obvious, are more annoying than awe-inspiring.

The Three Musketeers

The Three Musketeers

1990, Bay Cities; from the movie The Three Musketeers, 1974.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Legrand; Orchestra conducted by Michel Legrand; Album Producer: Michel Legrand; CD Producer: Nick Redman.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (2:34); 2 Sword For Your Supper (2:06); 3 To Love A Queen (2:28); 4 Four Abreast (If You'll Pardon The Expression) (2:21); 5 He Ain't Heavy, He's The Cardinal (1:07); 6 All's Fair In Love And Feet (2:06); 7 Foiled Again (5:26); 8 Dirty Business Amongst The Dirty Laundry (3:05); 9 Don't Put Milady On The Stage (1:12); 10 Hawks vs. Doves (2:04); 11 Bursting Buckingham (1:37); 12 A Round And Around (3:09); 13 Three's Company, But Four Will Cost You Extra (3:47); 14 End Titles (1:37).

Review: Michel Legrand has typically been more at home writing songs and pop/jazz scores like The Umbrellas of Cher- bourg than serious film music, but this score for Richard Lester's sly, revisionist take on the famous Daniel Dumas adventure is an exception. Legrand's throbbing, suspenseful scoring of the film's slow motion sword fight title sequence is striking, his adventuresome theme for the Musketeers a perfect fit, and he approaches the film's numerous, elaborately choreographed battles with great energy and zeal. His approach to the film's comic sequences involves some adept recreations of a kind of baroque/Renaissance style, and there's a glittering, harsh fanfare for Charlton Heston's Cardinal Richelieu. Legrand's Broadway sensibilities sometimes get the better of him. The otherwise thrilling fight cue "Dirty Business Among the Dirty Laundry" climbs to such a giddy, showbiz-style conclusion you expect the combatants to burst into song, and he has an unfortunate tendency to interrupt the flow of action cues like "Bustling Buckingham" and the climactic battle to introduce some awful comedy effects. But if you can ignore those gaffes this is a genuine romp.

Review: A rousing and exciting, old-fashioned symphonic score from Michael Kamen, who successfully pays tribute to Korngold and the Errol Flynn adventures in a more consistent, satisfying fashion than he did with his fun but uneven score for Robin Hood: Prince of Thieves. With full support from The Greater Los Angeles All-Star Orchestra, Kamen's music provides plenty of gusto to the action, with thrilling passages for orchestra and chorus punctuated by lyrical themes that translate well outside of the theatrical context for which they're composed. As usual for Kamen, there's also a stab at a pop song, the vacuous "All for Love," written once again with Bryan Adams and R.J. "Mutt" Lange, and performed by the once-in-a-lifetime trio of Adams, Sting and Rod Stewart, who were presumably all compensated quite well for their vocal performance here.

Review: Somehow, one doesn't think of Tangerine Dream and comedies in the same vein, yet this mild, innovative story about a meek high school journalist and the bully he wants to interview, prompted the German trio to write a series of cues that are appealling in tone, with typical synth flourishes and melodic lines expanding on the light screen action. It's a flavorful effort, enhanced with additional cues provided by Sylvester Levay, and two solid rock tracks that make a similar favorable impression.

Selections: 1 The Magic Begins (3:08); 2 Tom Remembers (1:43); 3 The Magic Comes Closer (1:38); 4 The Highway (1:12); 5 Betty Jane Appears (1:23); 6 Hide And Seek (1:27); 7 Jack (1:44); 8 Left Out (1:11); 9 Journal (1:09); 10 Jack's Life (2:27); 11 Phil (1:02); 12 Explorers (2:33); 13 In The Yard (:35); 14 Monster (1:39); 15 Catch (1:22); 16 Gunny (2:48); 17 Father's Day (2:03); 18 Bad News (1:57); 19 Home Run (1:10); 20 Love (3:28); 21 Light Creature (:53); 22 Jack's Cast Comes Off (1:13); 23 Coach (1:32); 24 Gunny's Wish (1:32); 25 Jack's Wish (1:21); 26 Jack And Jeanne (2:30); 27 Gunny Flies (1:59); 28 Homecoming (1:59); 29 Tom Gets His Wish (2:39); 30 End Credits.

Review: Cynthia Millar has long been known as the virtuoso performer who plays the Ondes Martenot, an odd electronic instrument few have mastered, on many of Elmer Bernstein's scores over the last several years. So it's no wonder that portions of this score reflect Bernstein's influence with obviously similar motifs that can be clearly heard in the later part of "The Highway" and "Betty Jane Appears." Naturally, Millar uses the Ondes Martenot for "magical" effects instead of more contemporary electronic instruments. The score is agreeable, but the sequencing of the CD, which does nothing to hide the fact that it is just a collection of very short cues, yields a dull presentation that doesn't allow the music to create any tangible mood on its own.

Thunderball

1988, EMI-Manhattan Records; from the movie Thunderball, United Artists, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Don Black; Orchestra conducted by John Barry.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Thunderball (2:59) Tom Jones; 2 Chateau Flight (2:26); 3 The Spa (2:40); 4 Switching The Body (2:45); 5 The Bomb (5:42); 6 Cafe Martinique (3:42); 7 Thunderball (4:16); 8 Death Of Fiona (2:39); 9 Bond Below Disco Volante (4:12); 10 Search For Vulcan (2:32); 11 007 (2:30); 12 Mr. Kiss Kiss Bang Bang (2:48).

Review: By most accounts, one of John Barry's most successful scores for the James Bond films, this is a total gas! The cues are sprightly tongue-in-cheek, even as they suggestively underscore the screen action, plainly justifying Barry's dismissive comment about this type of "Mickey Mouse music," but obviously fulfilling a need that no other composer has been able to match. A cheerful, bang-up job and a greatly entertaining album. The CD, incidentally, omits quite a few cues, allegedly composed by Barry after the album was released, ahead of the film. Some of the missing music can be found in the "30th Anniversary" collection (q.v.), and includes the thrilling finale, worth alone the price of admission.

Thunderheart

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Thunderheart, Tri-Star Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:10); 2 The Oglala Sioux (2:35); 3 Jimmy's Escape (3:33); 4 Proud Nation (1:56); 5 Evidence (1:39); 6 First Visions (1:13); 7 Ghost Dance (3:13); 8 The Goons (2:33); 9 Medicine Man (1:00); 10 My People: Wounded Knee (4:28); 11 Thunder Heart (5:25); 12 Run For The Stronghold (5:20); 13 This Land Is Not For Sale/End Titles (8:14).

Review: This fact-based film tells of a half-Native American FBI agent's search for a killer on an Ogala Sioux reservation. The film, notable for its attention to faithful tribal details, required composer James Horner to interpolate authentic vocals into his electronic score. However, the overall ambient nature of the music has produced an album that, while a curiosity since it's the most original thing Horner has done, is also a plodding collection of tones. Effective as a film score, perhaps, but terribly unsettling to listen to as a form of entertainment.

1996, Intrada Records; from the movies Ticks, Republic Pictures, 1996, and Fist of the North Star, First Look Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Stone; Orchestra conducted by Christopher Stone; Album Producer: Christopher Stone; Engineer: Rick Ruggerie.

Selections: FIST OF THE NORTH STAR: 1 Desert Planet (7:59); 2 Blind Girl/Warrior's Entrance (2:55); 3 Acid Rain/First Fight (4:17); 4 Follow Your Destiny (3:58); 5 Warriors Destroy City (4:05); 6 Lost In The Rain (3:40); 7 The Big Fight (5:06); 8 Reunited (6:41);

TICKS: 9 Main Title (4:50); 10 Bad Guys (2:05); 11 Nest Behind The Wall (:58); 12 Chased By Ticks (1:23); 13 Dead Dog (3:03); 14 Ticked Off (3:50); 15 Ticks Everywhere (12:41); 16 Mother Of All Ticks (10:53).

Review: Two diverse scores by Christopher Stone share this album. The first is Fist of the North Star, a stimulating orchestral work for a live action adaption of a popular Japanese animated series. Filled with occasional heavy doses of percussion, the main title, "Desert Planet," sets the bombastic pace, while also conjuring up the deep emotions of the hero and his princess, who both share an ultimate destiny to save the Earth. On the "flip side," metaphorically speaking, is the creepy horror score to Ticks. Since the film's setting is an isolated mountain cabin, and the villains are a couple of hillbilly rednecks, Stone drops in a few blue grass guitar motifs here and there. There's still lots of room for percussion as the title buggers scurry on by to chomp a bunch of teenagers.

Time After Time

1987, Southern Cross Records; from the movie Time After Time, Orion Pictures, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Music Copyist: Tony Bremner; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; Featured Soloist: Eric Parkin, piano; Album Producers: John Lasher, Nicholas Meyer; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Warner Bros. Fanfare (M. Steiner) and Prelude (2:07); 2 Search For The Ripper; 3 Decision (2:04); 4 Vaporising Equalizer/The Time Machine (2:10); 5 Time Travel (1:31); 6 Bank Montage (1:10); 7 Utopia (2:03); 8 The Ripper, Pursuit (3:26); 9 Time Machine Waltz (3:58); 10 Man Before His Time (1:55); 11 Redwoods (2:30); 12 Frightened (1:43); 13 Murder (1:43); 14 The Fifth Victim (1:34); 15 The Last Victim (1:34); 16 Nocturnal Visitor (1:38); 17 Dangerous Drive (3:06); 18 Journey's End and Finale (3:58).

Review: "Score this movie exactly as you would have in 1944" is most likely what director Nicholas Meyer said to Miklós Rózsa about his 1978 time travel adventure, Time After Time—or even if he didn't, that's exactly what Rózsa did. It was a novel approach. The old-fashioned symphonic score applied to a contemporary film and served the picture well. H.G. Wells (Malcolm McDowell) follows Jack the Ripper (David Warner) in a time machine to present-day San Francisco and protects a very modern woman (Mary Steenburgen). Rózsa's music cast a darkly romantic sheen over the whole film, an out-of-place, dignified European score for an out-of-place, dignified hero. Of all the Golden Age greats, not only was Rózsa one of the few still alive and working at the time, but he had one of the most distinct styles, one changed very little over the years. Time After Time, a fine but peculiar film due to its mixture of genres, was sold by his unmistakable melodies and conviction.

A Time of Destiny

1988, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie A Time of Destiny, Columbia Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone.

Selections: 1 Forgiveness (3:23); 2 The Daughter (2:11); 3 Heroes (1:24); 4 The Storm (2:37); 5 Jorge (3:32); 6 The Letter (1:36); 7 For Josie (3:00); 8 The Night Patrol (2:23); 9 RIFAC/The Storm II (2:05); 10 Lunga/ The Home And The Land (2:10); 11 Brotherhood (1:20); 12 Jack, A Soldier Prayer (3:44); 13 Dies Irae/The Bell Tower (3:28); 14 Martin (1:02); 15 Love And Dreams (2:25); 16 In Life And Death (2:01); 17 Destiny (3:01); 18 Awake (2:04).

Review: Much of Ennio Morricone's output in the late '80s (Rampage, The Untouchables) was of a strident, unmelodic strain. A Time of Destiny signaled a return to the more romantic sound which brought him popularity in the '60s and '70s. A love story set during World War II, the score features Morricone's fondness for vocal writing and romantic orchestration. It is a gentle and subdued score for the most part, but there are a few violent moments, such as the slashingly atonal "The Storm" and the intense and raging choral writing in "Dies Irae-The Bell Tower", which effectively offset the gentler passages. Morricone's love theme is especially attractive, even rapturous, and displays the composer in his finest romantic mode. In all, this is a soundtrack album which holds together very well. While certainly not in league with Morricone's masterpiece, The Mission, A Time of Destiny remains a very good album with its share of enjoyable moments.

A Time to Kill

1996, Atlantic Records; from the movie A Time to Kill, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Elliot Goldenthal; Orchestrations: Robert Elhai, Elliot Goldenthal, Deniz Hughes; Music Editors: Michael Connell, Denise Murray; Orchestra conducted by Jonathan Sheffer; Featured Musicians: Howard Levy (harmonica/penny whistle), Billy Drewes (saxophone), Bill Moersch (hammer dulcimer); Electronic Music: Richard Martinez; Album Producer: Matthias Gohl; Engineer: Joel Iwataki.

Selections: 1 Defile And Lament (2:34); 2 Consolation (2:24); 3 Justice Wheel (:47); 4 Pavane For Solace (2:30); 5 Abduction (2:59); 6 An Asurrendering (1:36); 7 Pavane For Loss (1:09); 8 Take My Hand Precious Lord (T. Dorsey)/Retribution (6:50) The Jones Girls; 9 Torch And Hood (2:03); 10 Pressing Judgement (1:30); 11 White Sheet (2:38); 12 Pavane For Solace (piano solo)(2:08); 13 Verdict Fanfare (For Aaron)(4:04); 14 Take My Hand Precious Lord (T. Dorsey)(4:04) Cissy Houston, The Christ Memorial Church Choir, The Andrae Crouch Singers.

Review: Elliot Goldenthal has really created an evil southern motif ("Defile and Lament") for this film that really cries out to tell us that we're venturing into the darkest side of life, a world ready to explode like a nuclear bomb from racial tension. Even "Consolation," which starts out with such a heartfelt melody, degenerates into a grim oppressiveness. Goldenthal's harmonicas poignantly wail in utter sadness, his fiddles screech in alarm, and the souls of the dead frequently undulate to a pavane (slow dance) of misery. Two gospel pieces are included on the album to represent the lack of justice suffered by the southern black community. One such piece, "Take My Hand Precious Lord" is interpolated with Goldenthal's "Retribution" cue, yielding a powerfully grim effect. This one's gonna bring you down for sure.

Timecop

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Timecop, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Orchestrations: Ken Kugler, Ardell Hake; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Ken Kugler; Featured Musician: Steve Tavaglione (saxophone solos); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause; Assistnt Engineer: Paul Wertheimer.

Selections: 1 Time Cop (2:20); 2 Melissa (2:41); 3 Blow Up (2:12); 4 Lasers And Tasers (4:23); 5 Polaroid (6:10); 6 Rooftop (6:16); 7 C4 (2:37); 8 Rescue and Return (3:22).

Review: Musician-composer Mark Isham has dabbled in numerous genres over the course of his eclectic filmography, some more successfully than others. Timecop finds Isham attempting a throbbing action film score, and despite a pleasantly lush love theme for saxophone (seemingly right up the composer's alley), the results are just sort of ho-hum. While the music, conducted and co-orchestrated by frequent Isham collaborator Ken Kugler, isn't as blatantly cobbled together as some pastiche action scores are, it also doesn't offer the kind of fresh twist on the material and ability to surprise that it could have, particularly considering Isham's credentials. The end result is an inoffensive but unremarkable soundtrack that is neither as cliched nor as distinguished as some of its genre counterparts.

Tin Cup

1996, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie Tin Cup, Warner Bros., 1996.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Jim Dickinson, Jimmie Vaughan, John Porter, Bruce Hornsby, John Jennings & Mary Chapin Carpenter, Erik Jacobsen, Marc Tanner & Don Was, Shawn Colvin, Emory Gordy, Jr., James House, Joe Ely, William Ross; Engineers: Don Smith, John Hampton, Wayne Pooley, Bob Dawson, Mark Needham, Bill Drescher, Fred Remmert, Russ Martin, Mark Capps, Charles Ray, Dennis Sands; Soundtrack Executive Producers: Ron Shelton, Glen Brunman, Kellie Davis, Gary Foster; Engineer: Chris Bellman.

Selections: 1 Little Bit Is Better Than Nada (D. Sahm)(3:31) Texas Tornados; 2 Cool Lookin' Woman (J. Vaughan/P. Ray)(4:37) Jimmie Vaughan; 3 Crapped Out Again (K. Moore/J.L. Parker)(2:31) Keb' Mo'; 4 Big Stick (B. Hornsby)(3:14) Bruce Hornsby; 5 Nobody There But Me (B. Hornsby/C. Haden/J. Hornsby)(3:49) Bruce Hornsby; 6 Let Me Into Your Heart (M. Chapin Carpenter) (2:52) Mary-Chapin Carpenter; 7 I Wonder (C. Isaak)(2:56) Chris Isaak; 8 This Could Take All Night (S. Dorff/L. Thompson)(3:08) Amanda Marshall; 9 Back To Salome

(S. Colvin)(3:07) Shawn Colvin; 10 Just One More (G. Jones) (3:03) George Jones; 11 Where Are You Boy (R. Fagan/G. Kennedy)(3:27) Patty Loveless; 12 Every Minute, Every Hour, Every Day (J. Leap)(4:14) James House; 13 Character Flaw (J. Ely/P. Flannery)(2:59) Joe Ely; 14 Double Bogey Blues (D. Gillon)(3:31) Mickey Jones.

Review: Introduced by the ingratiating strains of Texas Tornados' volatile rendition of "Little Bit Is Better Than Nada," this soundtrack album is particularly enjoyable. One of the most endearing aspects of this minor film about a driving-range pro and golf hustler from West Texas whose legendary ball-striking skills are matched only by his self-destructive nature and lowlife charm (Kevin Costner in a solid tour-de-force performance), the diversified soundtrack offers top pop performances by such artists as Mary Chapin Carpenter, Chris Isaak and George Jones. The album, a Grammy nominee, features these performances in their entirety, focusing on the talents involved, minus the sometimes intrusive screen sound effects and dialogues. A good, solid program of entertaining contemporary songs, with an attractive down-home country flavor.

To Die For

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie To Die For, Columbia Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek; Music Editor: Ellen Segal; Orchestra conducted by Richard Stone; Featured Musicians: John Avila (bass), Warren Fitzgerald (guitar), Brooks Wackerman (drums); Album Producer: Danny Elfman; Engineers: Bobby Fernandez, Bill Jackson.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:09); 2 Suzie's Theme (1:41) Little Gus & The Suzettes; 3 Busted (2:00); 4 Weepy Donuts (1:50); 5 Creepy Creepy (:50); 6 Murder! (3:51); 7 Angry Suzie 9:36); 8 Finale (3:47); 9 Wasting Away (M. Cavalera/A. Newport) (3:03) Nailbomb; 10 Nothing From Nothing (B. Preston/B. Fisher) (2:34) Billy Preston; 11 All By Myself (E. Carmen/S. Rachmaninoff) (4:54) Eric Carmen; 12 Sweet Home Alabama (E. King/G. Rossington/R. Van Zant) (3:37) Lynyrd Skynyrd; 13 Wings Of Desire (M. Tierney/P. Casserly/F. McDonald) (4:48) Strawpeople; 14 Season Of The Witch (D. Leitch) (4:54) Donovan.

Review: Though only 19 minutes of Danny Elfman's score appears on this album, it's a solid presentation of the loony fantasy style he's become noted for on his various scores for director Tim Burton. The highlight is a manic vocal on "Suzy's Theme." In general, vocal effects play an important part in this score to create a bizarre ambience for Nicole Kidman's homicidal character. The CD is surprisingly top heavy with pop tunes for a Varese Sarabande release and features six songs by artists such as Billy Preston ("Nothing From Nothing"), Eric Carmen ("All By Myself"), and Donovan ("Season of the Witch").

To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday

1996, Epic Soundtrax; from the movie To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday, Triumph Films, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: James Horner; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 A Far Away Time/Main Title (3:52); 2 The Boating Accident (2:15); 3 Gillian (3:58); 4 The Lighthouse (2:18); 5 Fond Hopes... Distant Memories (2:07); 6 Rachel's Dream/Gillian's Visit (6:18); 7 The Decision To Leave Home (3:11); 8 Saying Goodbye/End Title (12:40).

Review: One of the great pleasures in collecting film scores is coming across a superb soundtrack for a movie that didn't make much noise in theaters, yet works as an album better than many scores for far more popular movies. The movie To Gillian on Her 37th Birthday, an adaptation of an off-Broadway play by star Michelle Pfeiffer's husband, David E.Kelley, is not a great movie by any means, but it does offer a superb cast, pleasant Nantucket locations, attractive cinematography, and a poignant James Horner music score, dialed down several notches from the typically overwrought musical work that usually accompanies a movie like this. Horner's score is romantic and genteel, flowing calmly as underscore for the character-driven drama, and yet it still becomes highly emotional at times, with lush strings happily working with the action instead of saccharinely pounding you over the head with sappiness. It's a lovely score that's one of the most restrained and elegant works in Horner's career, along with one of the more underrated.

To Kill a Mockingbird

1991, Mainstream Records; from the movie To Kill a Mockingbird, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producers: Jackie Mills, Tommy Wolf; Engineer: Bill Putnam.

Selections: 1 Main Title: To Kill A Mockingbird (2:49); 2 Roll The Tire (2:03); 3 The Search For Boo (2:44); 4 Jem's Discovery (3:20); 5 To Kill A Mockingbird (2:01); 6 Tree Treasure (3:50); 7

Lynch Mob (2:42); 8 Footsteps In The Dark (1:58); 9 Children Attacked (2:01); 10 Summer's End (2:49); CD bonus tracks: 11 Follow Me (Love Theme from Mutiny On The Bounty)(B. Kaper/ P.F. Webster)(2:50); 12 A Second Chance (from Two For The Seesaw)(A. Previn)(2:45); 13 A Few Tender Words (M. David/L. Murray)(2:59); 14 Indian Summer (A. Dubin/ V. Herbert)(5:56); 15 New Orleans (A. DeLange/M. Alter) (3:08); 16 So Pretty (H. Pan)(3:00).

Review: Dispensing with the negatives first: sometimes, in their misguided desire to beef up CDs that would have a limited playing time (simply because the original albums didn't have much music to begin with), would-be producers indiscriminately added tracks that had no relation with the rest of the album. Case in point, this reissue CD of one of Elmer Bernstein's most evocative scores, augmented with six selections that are totally alien to the soundtrack itself or to one another. In this case, it is all the more distressing that Bernstein also recorded for Mainstream an album of individual selections from his film scores, some of which could have been effectively added here, without even raising the slightest objection.

Other negative points: the sound quality in this recording leaves a great deal to be desired, with some noticeable hiss on many of the tracks, image shifting, uneven levels, flutter, distortion on some of the tracks, and some analog dropouts. If you're going to spend your money for a product, at least know what it is that you're getting. In this case, a rather shabby product.

This said, Bernstein's score is a marvel of understatement, a series of delicately phrased cues that follow this imaginative tale of two youngsters coming of age, and facing their responsibilities in an adult world, set against the backdrop of a criminal court trial in Alabama against a Black man accused of rape. Pretty much describing the fantasy world of the two kids, "To Kill a Mockingbird" skillfully blends a lovely waltz, accented by a lyricless chorus, while the darker "Lynch Mob" evokes the reality of the trial itself. To Kill a Mockingbird won an Academy Award for Best Score in 1963. It deserves better than this shoddy CD.

To the Ends of the Earth

1988, Prometheus Records (Belgium); from the movie To the Ends of the Earth, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; Orchestra conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Richard Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Prologue (2:37); 2 Main Titles (:48); 3 Past Pioneers (1:27); 4 Arctic Training (1:02); 5 Start Of The Expedition (:51); 6 Shackleton (2:44); 7 South Seas (1:41); 8 Reaching Antarctica (2:57); 9 On To The South Pole (4:13); 10 The Scott Tragedy (3:41); 11 To Alaska (2:02); 12 Land Of The Musk Ox (2:46); 13 Journey To Ellsmere Island (2:47); 14 Midnight Sun (4:43); 15 Nightride From Alert (4:05); 16 Ice Cracks (2:17); 17 The North Pole (:53); 18 Reunion With The Benji B. (2:43); 19 Epilogue (1:09); 20 End Credits (:53).

Review: This documentary film tells the story of The Transglobe Expedition—a team which circumnavigated the globe along its polar axis. As such, To the Ends of the Earth clearly called for music of epic proportions, which depicted the adventurous spirit of exploration. After years as Jacques Cousteau's composer of choice, John Scott was well-versed in the kind of score needed for this production. His music, a surging, full orchestral score, is epic and soaring, evoking both the grandeur and terror inherent in the journey. Although working with a modest-sized orchestra, Scott nevertheless manages a large sound. Throughout, the music conjures the daunting scale of the expedition, and culminates in a finale of grand triumph. The sound of the recording is particularly fine (recorded at CTS Studios by engineer Dick Lewzey). Handsome packaging and informative notes (including a track-by-track description written by Scott himself) round-out this impressive release, which is typical of Prometheus' high standards.

To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything, Julie Newmar

1995, MCA Records; from the movie To Wong Foo, Thanks for Everything, Julie Newmar, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Song Producers: Cheryl James, Bernadette Cooper; Steve "Silk" Hurley; 3 Shep Pettibone; Crystal Waters, The Basement Boys; Junior Vasquez; James Carmichael, The Commodores; Heavy D; Cyndi Lauper, Jimmy Bralower; Nathaniel "Crockett" Wilkie; Rachel Portman; Album Producers: Happy Walters, Pilar McCurry, Kathy Nelson.

Selections: 1 I Am The Body Beautiful (B. Cooper/C. James)(4:52) Salt-N-Pepa; 2 Free Yourself (S. McKinney/D. Rich/W. McRae)(4:13) Chaka Khan; 3 Turn It Out (S. Pettibone/ S. LaPread/W. Orange/M. Williams/T. McClary/W. King)(3:34) The Commodores; 7 Nobody's Body (Heavy D)(5:21) Monifah; 8 Do What You Wanna Do (S. Hurley/T.

Hurley)(4:33) Charisse Arrington; 9 Hey Now (Girls Just Want To Have Fun)(R. Hazard/L. Vegas)(3:41) Cyndi Lauper; 10 Over The Rainbow (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg)(5:38) Patti LaBelle; 11 To Wong Foo Suite (R. Portman): a) When I Get To Hollywood (:46), b) A Day With The Girls (:48), c) Moms Mabley (:50), d) Stand Up (:51).

Review: This soundtrack is anything but a drag, though the individual songs work better when accompanying the visuals of Patrick Swayze, Wesley Snipes and John Leguzamo sashaying around in their finery. Crystal Waters' "Who Taught You How" and Salt-N-Pepa's "I am the Body Beautiful" hold their own, however, and hearing Tom Jones sings "She's a Lady" makes you smile even if you haven't seen the movie.

Tom And Huck

1995, Walt Disney Records; from the movie Tom And Huck, Buena Vista Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Endelman; Orchestrations: Sonny Kompanek; Orchestra conducted by Stephen Endelman; Featured Musicians: Andy Stein (fiddle), Richard Sortomme (synthesizer); Album Producer: Stephen Endelman; Engineer: James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 Off To Be Steamboat Men (2:05); 2 Huck's Camp (1:53); 3 Main Title (2:13); 4 Tom And Becky In School (1:38); 5 Fence Painting (1:07); 6 The Raft (1:30); 7 Doc's Murder (3:14); 8 Let's Lynch Muff (1:32); 9 The Oath (1:29); 10 Joe's On The Move (1:29); 11 The Hunt For Murrel's Map (2:52); 12 Tom Proposes To Becky (2:14); 13 Huck's Torment (1:16); 14 Tom's Funeral (1:37); 15 Tom Visits Muff In Jail (1:28); 16 Tom's Nightmare (1:52); 17 Huck Leaves (1:45); 18 Tom Rescues Becky (1:31); 19 The Treasure (2:49); 20 Why'd You Come Back, Huck? (4:06).

Review: Mark Twain's favorite imps rode once again in this new Disney screen adaptation, with Stephen Endelman providing the musical background framing and illustrating their various adventures. Evidently inspired by his subject, the composer delivered a score that blends traditional orchestral textures with bluegrass/folk instruments, the whole thing subtly underlined by synthesizer effects. The cues, many of them unfortunately too short with a playing time under two minutes, outline the most salient incidents in the narrative, and display as required some romantic lyricism, some playfulness, some suspense, some epic feel, and generally speaking a sense of fun. Overly effusive and sketched in broad swaths of musical colors, the score is enormously lively and enjoyable.

Tom and Jerry: The Movie

1992, MCA Records; from the animated feature Tom And Jerry: The Movie, Turner Entertainment, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Lyrics: Leslie Bricusse; Orchestrations: Henry Mancini, Jack Hayes; Music Editor: Stephen A. Hope; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Featured Vocalists: Richard Kind (Tom), Dana Hill (Jerry), Charlotte Rae (Aunt Figg), Tony Jay (Mr. Lickboot), Henry Gibson (Dr. Applecheek), Anndi McAfee (Robyn Starling), Rip Taylor (Captain Kiddie), Howard Morris (Squawk), Edmund Gilbert (Pugsy), David L. Lander (Frankie Da Flea), Raymond McLeod, Mitchel D. Moore, Scott Wojahn (The Alley Cats); Album Producer: Henry Mancini; Engineer: Allan Snelling.

Selections: 1 All In How Much We Give (3:31) Stephanie Mills; 2 Friends To The End (3:59); 3 What Do We Care (The Alley Cats' Song)(2:55); 4 God's Little Creatures (2:51); 5 (Money Is Such) A Beautiful World (2:52); 6 I Miss You (Robyn's Song)(2:18); 7 I've Done It All (2:23); 8 Tom And Jerry Theme (Main Title)(4:10); 9 Homeless (3:13); 10 We Meet Robyn (3:24); 11 Food Fight Polka (2:08); 12 Meet Dr. Applecheek (4:09); 13 Chase (5:22); 14 Escape From The Fire (3:32); 15 Finale—Friends To The End (1:47); 16 Tom And Jerry Theme (pop version)(3:23).

Review: Once you have dealt with Stephanie Mills' inflected vocalizations on "All In How Much We Give," settle for a joy ride with Henry Mancini's mischieviously delightful songs and score for this big screen version involving the feuding animated duo created by Bill Hannah and Joe Barbera. Set off by bits of dialogue, lifted from the soundtrack, the album follows the adventures of Tom, the cat, and Jerry, the mouse, as they momentarily abandon their constant chases and pranks on each other and do the impossible, trying to get along, to save the life of a young girl. Augmenting the many songs (with lyrics by Leslie Bricusse) are several nifty instrumentals ("I've Done It All," "Food Fight Polka," "Chase") which Mancini fans may recognize as clones from previous scores he wrote, but demonstrate that his creative verve (or is it nerve?) always was at its peak, no matter what the situation.

Tom & Viv

1994, Sony Classical; from the movie Tom & Viv, Miramax Films, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Debbie Wiseman; Orchestra conducted by Debbie Wiseman; Featured Artist: Andrew Bottrill (piano); Album Producer: Grace Row; Engineers: Dick Lewzey, Bob Wolff.

Selections: 1 End Credits (3:02); 2 Maurice's Farewell (2:03); 3 Hospital Scene (1:52); 4 Tom And Viv's Dance (3:12) Palm Court Theatre Orchestra; 5 The Honeymoon (2:59); 6 Tom And Bertie (3:09); 7 Bertie And Viv's Pianola Rag (2:43); 8 The Road To Garsington (:39); 9 Viv And Maurice (4:59) Debbie Wiseman; 10 Viv Becomes Ill (3:02); 11 Tom Wants Nothing (1:21); 12 Love Theme (2:09); 13 "Fac, ut ardeat cor meum" (from Stabat Mater)(G. Pergolesi)(2:27) Czech Philharmonic Chorus, Prague Chamber Orchestra, Massimo Bruni; 14 The Harvard Letter (3:49) Debbie Wiseman; 15 Church Scene (1:07); 16 Viv And Louise (1:27); 17 The Poetry Reading (1:36); 18 The Wibbly Wobbly Walk (J.P. Long/P. Pelham)(4:04); 19 The Print Room (5:28) Debbie Wiseman; 20 Opening Titles (3:00); 21 "Beim Schlfengehen" (from Four Last Songs)(R. Strauss)(5:26) Kiri Te Kanawa, The London Symphony Orchestra, Andrew Davis; 22 Viv Is Excluded (1:16); 23 Viv Explains (1:19); 24 Viv Is Committed (4:48) Debbie Wiseman.

Review: Alternately romantic and poignant, Debbie Wiseman musically chronicles the tragic life of socialite Vivienne Haigh-Wood and her marriage to poet Tom (T.S.) Eliot. The underscore is structured like a lush orchestral symphony, broken on occasion by period-styled pieces composed by Wiseman, and three source cues. Wiseman performs the piano solos on four tracks.

Tombstone

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Tombstone, Hollywood Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Music Editor: Patricia Carlin; The Sinfonia of London, conducted by David Snell; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 The Cowboys (3:50); 2 A Family (2:04); 3 Arrival In Tombstone (2:15); 4 Josephine (1:30); 5 Thespian Overture (:45); 6 Gotta Go To Work (1:10); 7 Fortuitous Encounter (5:17); 8 Street Standoff (7:08); 9 The O.K. Corral (7:34); 10 Aftermath (1:30); 11 Cowboy's Funeral (4:29); 12 Morgan's Death (2:12); 13 Wyatt's Revenge (3:52); 14 The Former Fabian (1:34); 15 Brief Encounters (5:37); 16 Finishing It (3:56); 17 Doc And Wyatt (2:47); 18 Looking At Heaven (8:43).

Review: Bruce Broughton met the challenge of improving on his popular Silverado score with this powerful, richly melodic western score that opens with a blasting, percussive action cue that will knock you out of your seat. The primary theme for Kurt Russell's Wyatt Earp isn't introduced until well into the score, but it's worth the wait. Broughton's Earp melody is a classic western theme, elaborate and instantly memorable, which functions perfectly both as a noble heroic characterization, as Earp makes his way into the town of Tombstone, and as a bristling statement of vigilante rage during the virtuoso, standout explosion of percussion and brass that underscores the film's take on the "Gunfight at the O.K. Corral." Broughton achieves something out of Samuel Barber as he contrasts a romantic melody with a moving Americana theme as an elegy for the death of Earp's brother, while later sections of the score hammer home the brutal violence of Earp's and Doc Holiday's pursuit of justice. This lengthy album is marred by a couple of interminable suspense cues, but overall this is an important, beautifully-crafted effort that deserves its place next to Silverado as one of the best western scores ever written.

Torn Curtain

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Torn Curtain, Universal Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: John Addison; Orchestra conducted by John Addison; Album Producer: Charles "Bud" Dant; CD Producers: Tom Null, Robert Townson.

Selections: 1 Main Title From Torn Curtain (2:15); 2 Love Theme From Torn Curtain (3:02); 3 Behind The Curtain (2:16); 4 Introduction To B (2:17); 5 Premonitions Of Trouble (3:20); 6 Variations On The Love Theme Of Torn Curtain (1:16); 7 B Bus Theme Variations (1:18); 8 Sarah Alone (1:30); 9 The Murder Of Gromek (2:40); 10 Michael And Sarah—Alone On The Hill (1:21); 11 Escape On The B Bus (4:03); 12 Green Years (End Title)(J. Addison/J. Livingston/R. Evans)(3:57) Johnny Mann Singers.

Review: A cold war thriller set in East Germany, Torn Curtain, directed by Alfred Hitchcock, involves an American nuclear scientist (Paul Newman), who pretends he is a defector to obtain a secret anti-missile formula. When he is accused of murdering a Soviet agent, he and his assistant and fiancee (Julie Andrews) try to return to the West, succeeding only after many close encounters with disaster. Initially, Hitchcock had asked Bernard Herrmann to write the score for this film, something which probably would have led to a tight cliff-hanger along the lines of North By Northwest. Instead, the producers rejected Herrmann's score, and, deciding they needed something more commercial, hired John Addison, one of the most respected British composers. While Addison delivered a score that's competent and professional, its style is completely out of synch with the subject of the film. This is noticably evident in the "Love Theme," in which the lyrical beauty of the beginning stanzas fades into a mock comedic coda that doesn't belong in either a love theme or the score for a thriller. At times too lush, at other times too strident, and occasionally too cute and too cheerful, this is clearly a case of the wrong score ending in a film, strictly for commercial considerations. The film itself was not the success Hitchcock had envisioned. Clumsy and drawn out, the screenplay concocted by Brian Moore obviously didn't inspire him, and he did a routine job in which his usual sense of observation and his sardonic humor were noticeably absent. The score didn't help either.

Total Eclipse

1995, Sony Classical; from the movie Total Eclipse, Fine Line Features, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Jan A.P. Kaczmarek; Orchestrations: Krzesimir Debski, Jan A.P. Kaczmarek; The Warsaw Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Krzesimir Debski, Tadeusz Karolak; Featured Performers: The Wilanow String Quartet, Marta Boberska (soprano), Orchestra of the Eighth Day, Bogdan Liszka (oboe); Music Executive Producer: Krystyna Wydzga; Engineer: Rafal Paczkowski.

Selections: 1 The Opening (1:27); 2 Trip To Paris (2:21); 3 The Sea Quartet (1:43); 4 Arrival (1:12); 5 Cafe Andre (1:08); 6 Hashish Kiss (2:06); 7 Looking For Rimbaud (1:23); 8 Naked On The Roof (:52); 9 Cafe Bobino (1:19); 10 Hashish 2 (3:38); 11 Le dormeur du val (1:57); 12 Coming Home (1:01); 13 Triangle (1:05); 14 Knife (2:02); 15 The Sun (3:05); 16 Mathilde And Verlaine (2:11); 17 Two Trains (2:58); 18 Verlaine Escapes (1:43); 19 Rimbaud Wounded (1:54); 20 Memory (2:11); 21 The Sentence (1:12); 22 Tear (1:51); 23 Cafe Bobino 2 (1:44); 24 The Drunken Boat (1:29); 25 Abyssinian Plateau (3:27); 26 The Death (2:24); 27 Eternity (Finale)(2:54); 28 End Credits (2:36).

Review: Trust Agnieszka Holland to make a film away from standard commercial considerations, and one dealing with the relationship between two of late 19th-century France best known versificators, Arthur Rimbaud and Paul Verlaine, one the self-assured and arrogant young lion of poetry, the other an older married man with doubts about his masculinity as well as his talent. Reflecting the many ambiguities and deep emotional conflicts between the two men, and their eventual falling off after Verlaine shot Rimbaud and spent two years in jail as a result, the score by Jan A.P. Kaczmarek is quite lyrical in spurts ("Naked On The Roof," "The Sun"), offset by disturbing moments after ("Knife," "Rimbaud Wounded"). One of Rimbaud's best known poem, "Le dormeur du val" (Sleeper In The Glen) gets a lovely setting, as does "Le bateau ivre" (The Drunken Boat), by Verlaine. Two different sets of cues that recur ("Hashish" and "Cafe Bobino") specifically detail scenes in the film during which both men smoke and drink themselves into a stupor at one of their favorite Parisian hangouts. An intelligent score, filled with attractive melodies, which demands closer than usual attention from the listener, but proves quite rewarding as a result.

Total Recall

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Total Recall, Carolco Pictures, 1990

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 The Dream (3:33); 2 The Holograms (5:36); 3 The Big Jump (4:33); 4 The Mutant (3:16); 5 Clever Girl (4:31); 6 First Meeting (1:10); 7 The Treatment (5:30); 8 Where Am I? (3:56); 9 End Of A Dream (5:45); 10 A New Life (2:23).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith reached the pinnacle of his supercharged action style for Paul Verhoven's ingenious science fiction vehicle for Arnold Schwarzenneger. The film's pulsating title music seems like a cross between Basil Pouledaris' Conan the Barbarian with its broad horn fanfare and a simplified version of Goldsmith's own Capricorn One, but Goldsmith uses the title music as a springboard for a score of amazing complexity and intensity, ranging from hammering, wildly propulsive action cues like "The Big Jump" and "Clever Girl" to dreamy, expansive sections of electronics and orchestra like "The Mutant." Everything climaxes in the lengthy (and largely unused) "The End of a Dream" cue, a relentless, crushing, snare-drum-heavy orchestral charge that bears comparison to Goldsmith's brilliant retreat music from his classic The Blue Max score. The only criticism you can level at this album is that at around 40 minutes in length, it's too short – the film is full of even more amazing musical highlights that deserve preservation in album form.

A Touch of Class

1973, DRG Records; from the movie A Touch of Class, Avco Embassy, 1973.

Album Notes: Music: John Cameron; Songs: Sammy Cahn, George Barrie.

Selections: 1 Overture: All That Love Went To Waste (S. Cahn/G. Barrie)/ Steve's Theme/Vickie's Theme/Love Theme (2:06); 2 A Touch Of Class (1:38); 3 All That Love Went To Waste (instrumental)(S. Cahn/G. Barrie)(4:42); 4 Amor Mio (S. Cahn/

G. Barrie)(2:50); 5 Mrs. Alessio's Rock And Roll Band/Vickie's Theme (2:37); 6 I Always Knew (Love Theme)(J. Cameron/S. Cahn)(2:28); 7 Overture: Bullfight Theme/Golf Theme/Steve's Theme (2:21); 8 Antonio's Restaurant (2:24); 9 She Told Me So Last Night (M. Frank/M. Frank)(2:05); 10 Nudge Me Every Morning (S. Cahn/G. Barrie)/Steve's Theme (2:56); 11 All That Love Went To Waste (S. Cahn/G. Barrie)(2:31) Madeline Bell; 12 Finale: All That Love Went To Waste (S. Cahn/G. Barrie)/A Touch Of Class/I Always Knew (:28).

Review: This deliciously bubbly comedy, nearly forgotten today, belongs to a genre that existed in the 1960s, when the film was made, that was altogether fun and pleasantly enjoyable. A charming love story between two people, George Segal and Glenda Jackson, who accidentally meet in London, have a fling, take their romance to Spain and back to America, all the while trying to avoid his friends, in-laws, and wife, it yielded this Academy Award-nominated score by John Cameron, as heady and sparkling as the film itself, with light, delirious little musical comments that often prove convincingly irresistible. Like the scores for What's New Pussycat? and Promise Her Anything, which it sometimes evokes, the music for A Touch of Class is easy on the ear and on the mind, and is winningly delightful.

Touch of Evil

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the film Touch of Evil, Universal Pictures, 1958.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; CD Producer: Robert Townson, Tom Null.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:28); 2 Borderline Montuna (2:00); 3 Strollin' Blues (2:38); 4 Orson Around (2:44); 5 Reflection (2:59); 6 Tana's Theme (2:23); 7 Flashing Nuisance (1:35); 8 The Boss (1:05); 9 Pidgeon Caged (:55); 10 Rock Me To Sleep (2:39); 11 The Big Drag (2:19); 12 Ku Ku (2:41); 13 Susan (2:19); 14 Son Of Raunchy (3:01); 15 Lease Breaker (2:45); 16 Background To Murder (7:20); 17 Bar Room Rock (1:14); 18 Blue Pianola (3:13); 19 Something For Susan (1:38); 20 The Chase (1:00).

Review: Throughout most of his career, Henry Mancini was so clearly identified with light comedies, that one may tend to forget he also dwelled in other genres, notably contemporary crime dramas where he also developed a recognizable signature style of strongly jazz accented themes and tight rhythms. A brilliant, absorbing filmization of Whit Masterson's novel, "Badge of Evil," directed by and starring Orson Welles, Touch of Evil gave Mancini the occasion to produce an outstanding score replete with explosive themes and catchy melodies, all of them detailing this sordid south-of-the-border story about a narcotics investigator (a mustachioed Charlton Heston), on his honeymoon in a small Mexican frontier town with his wife (Janet Leigh), and the washed-out local captain of police, played by Orson Welles, who team to nab a band of criminals suspected to be involved in a narcotics racket. If the brooding, at times rambling plot that followed left some viewers somewhat baffled, there was no mistaking the masterful visual appeal of the film itself, with its fluid and impressive photography, subtly enhanced by Mancini's provocative score. Using a wide variety of genres (jazz, rock'n'roll, honky-tonk) rather than a singly driven approach, Mancini devised cues that conferred a unique musical color to the film, in turns evoking the stifling atmosphere of the Mexican little town, the moods in some of the places where the action took place, and some of the characters in the story. The mono recording at times sounds dense and opaque, but the vibrancy and drama in the music still comes through eloquently and convincingly.

Toy Soldiers

1991, Intrada Records; from the movie Toy Soldiers, Tri-Star Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Orchestrations: Randy Miller, Peter Tomashek; The Dublin Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Robert Folk; Album Producer: Robert Folk; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 Regis School (1:51); 2 Escape From Barranquilla (3:43); 3 Closing In (2:28); 4 All's Well (2:00); 5 Billy Escape (1:46); 6 Joey's Death (3:43); 7 Regis Captured (3:51); 8 Reflections (2:19); 9 Demands (3:14); 10 Removing The Chips (3:59); 11 The Cellar (1:34); 12 Jack Gets It (1:38); 13 Uneasy Quiet (2:11); 14 Back To Regis (2:29); 15 Border Killing (4:03); 16 Narrow Escape (2:58); 17 Snap Out Of It (4:06); 18 Mouthwash Incident (1:51); 19 Interrogation (1:45); 20 Regis Surrounded (1:32); 21 The Plan (2:11); 22 The Wrath Of Jeoy's Father (1:14); 23 The End Of Cali (4:08); 24 Toy Soldiers (4:57).

Review: Even if you haven't seen the movie, this is one of those film scores you've probably heard before a number of times. A coming attraction's staple for its use in countless movie trailers, Robert Folk's pleasing, rousing music from this surprisingly good teen action flick is infectious and highly melodic—something usually lacking in most action genre scores. With a sweeping main theme, Folk establishes a peaceful, tranquil musical background for the forthcoming bursts of sporadic action to surprise us in, yet even through the "busy" suspense cues, the composer maintains his tonal intentions and the result is a score that has become a favorite among soundtrack aficionados. One wishes that more genre scores would take the same symphonic route, though alas, that is usually not the case.

Toy Story

1995, Walt Disney Records; from the movie Toy Story, Walt Disney, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Newman; Orchestrations: Don Davis, Randy Newman; Orchestra conducted by Randy Newman; Album Producers: Frank Wolf, Don Davis, Jim Flamberg, Randy Newman.

Selections: 1 You've Got A Friend In Me (2:04) Randy Newman; 2 Strange Things (3:17) Randy Newman; 3 I Will Go Sailing No More (2:57) Randy Newman; 4 Andy's Birthday (5:57); 5 Soldier's Mission (1:29); 6 Presents (1:09); 7 Buzz (1:40); 8 Sid (1:20); 9 Woody And Buzz (4:30); 10 Mutants (6:05); 11 Woody's Gone (2:13); 12 The Big One (2:51); 13 Hang Together (6:02); 14 On The Move (6:18); 15 Infinity And Beyond (3:10); 16 You've Got A Friend (2:41) Randy Newman, Lyle Lovett.

Review: A bright and enthusiastic score by Randy Newman captures all the magic in this animated movie about a make-believe world where toys have a life of their own. Terrific songs are marred by the question, "Why do producers always let Randy Newman sing?" And partnered with Lyle Lovett (no less!) the two seem a mismatched couple. There's no doubt Newman's a talented composer, but there are certainly better singers who can do his work justice.

Toys

1992, Geffen Records; from the movie Toys, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Orchestra conducted by Shirley Walker; Orchestrations: Shirley Walker, Bruce Fowler; Song Producers: Trevor Horn, Nicky Ryan, Hans Zimmer, Pat Metheny; Album Producer: Trevor Horn; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Winter Reveries (P.I. Tchaikovsky) (2:04); 2 The Closing Of The Year (T. Horn/H. Zimmer) (3:28) Wendy & Lisa; 3 Ebudae (Enya/R. Ryan) (1:49) Enya; 4 The Happy Worker (T. Horn/B. Woolley) (4:20) Tori Amos; 5 Alsatia's Lullaby (H. Zimmer) (4:17) Julia Migenes, Hans Zimmer; 6 Workers (T. Horn/B. Woolley) (1:12) The Musical Cast Of Toys; 7 Let Joy And Innocence Prevail (H. Zimmer/T. Horn) (5:00) Pat Metheny; 8 The General (H. Zimmer) (2:21) Michael Gambon, Hans Zimmer; 9 The Mirror Song (T. Horn/B. Woolley) (4:36) Thomas Dolby, Robin Williams, Joan Cusack; 10 Battle Introduction (H. Zimmer) (2:45) Robin Williams; 11 Welcome To The Pleasuredome (Gill/Johnson/Nash/O'Toole) (5:00) Frankie Goes To Hollywood; 12 Let Joy And Innocence Prevail (H. Zimmer/T. Jones) (5:02) Grace Jones; 13 The Closing Of The Year/Happy Workers (reprise) (5:29) ''Happy Workers.''

Review: A mostly instrumental soundtrack with a New Age bent, hammered in by Enya's "Ebudae" and Tori Amos' "Happy Worker." Robin Williams and Joan Cusack join Thomas Dolby for the pleasantly wacky "Mirror Song," while Frankie Goes to Hollywood's "Welcome to the Pleasuredome" is a decent fit. And Robin Williams' "Battle Introduction" certainly gives the album a jolt of slightly bent comic juice.

Trail of the Pink Panther

1988, EMI-Manhattan; from the movie Trail of the Pink Panther, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Album Producer: Joe Reisman; Engineers: Jim Malloy, John Norman, John Richards, Dick Bogert.

Selections: 1 The Trail Of The Pink Panther (5:05); 2 The Greatest Gift (H. Mancini/H. David) (3:23); 3 Hong Kong Fireworks (3:23); 4 A Shot In The Dark (2:35); 5 Simone (4:35); 6 It Had Better Be Tonight (H. Mancini/J. Mercer/F. Migliacci) (2:01); 7 The Easy Life In Paris (2:55); 8 Come To Me (2:59); 9 Bier Fest Polka (2:47); 10 After The Shower (3:43); 11 The Inspector Clouseau Theme (3:13); 12 The Return Of The Pink Panther (5:10).

Review: The film, a lame attempt at perpetuating the myth of Inspector Clouseau following the death of actor Peter Sellers, was merely a compilation of scenes from the previous "Pink Panther" movies. As a result, the soundtrack is also a compendium of selections from the various scores Mancini composed for the previous movies, with only the title tune, "A Shot in the Dark" and the raucously joyous "Bier Fest Polka" making their first appearance on compact disc.

The Trap

1993, Label X Records; from the movie The Trap, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Ron Goodwin; Orchestra conducted by Ron Goodwin.

Selections: 1 Main Theme (2:21); 2 Eve's Theme (2:23); 3 Printemps (4:30); 4 Abduction (2:43); 5 The Dark Forest (2:15); 6 The Search (2:21); 7 Wolf Pack (1:24); 8 Snow Trek (4:35); 9 Inspiration (2:15); 10 Raging Torrent (2:30); 11 Variations on Eve's Theme and Main Theme (3:52).

> "If the composers were involved (earlier), the studios would be much better off having the composer do the temp score, with some smaller means.... And if it isn't working, be able to fix it before you get to the final score."
>
> Elmer Bernstein
> on the pitfalls of temp scores
> (The Hollywood Reporter, 1-16-96)

Review: Broadly epic and elegiac, Ron Goodwin's score for The Trap seems at odds with this tale of a rugged fur trapper in 19th-century British Columbia, and the naive, mute girl he takes for his companion against her will, eventually winning her despite his rude manners and violent temper. Displaying strains of a neo-Romantic English folk idiom, Goodwin created cues that describe the majestic beauty of the unspoiled landscapes; the crude, earthy character of the trapper, and the girl's winsome, frightened charm; and their constant struggle to survive in the wild, untamed environment. The composer's florid style at first surprises, as one would probably expect a score with a much starker approach befitting the offbeat story and its harsh setting. But the elegiac, almost pastoral tone of some of the cues evokes the grandeur of the theme as well as the imposing setting against which the story unfolds. Eventually, Goodwin's view proves totally correct and right on target, in a score that provides many attractive melodic moments.

Trapped in Paradise

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Trapped in Paradise, 20th Century-Fox, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Folk; Orchestrations: Robert Folk, Peter Tomashek, Jon Kull; Music Editor: J.J. George; Orchestra conducted by Robert Folk; Album Producer: Robert Folk; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:00); 2 All In A Dash (2:07); 3 Firpo Brothers Blues (3:18); 4 The Getaway (2:18); 5 The River (2:16); 6 Back To The Bank (1:12); 7 The Sled Chase (3:50); 8 Sara At Church (1:39); 9 Heroic Merlin (2:35); 10 Conversations (2:26); 11 Feds And Moms (2:41); 12 Finale (2:54); 13 Do You Hear What I Hear? (G. Shayne/N. Regney)(2:43) Bing Crosby; 14 You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You (J. Cavanaugh/L. Stock/R. Morgan) (2:12) Dean Martin.

Review: Nicolas Cage, Dana Carvey and Jon Lovitz star in this 1994 Christmas comedy, a box-office dud despite good intentions all around. Robert Folk wrote one of his typically appealing scores for the picture, a warmhearted, Holiday-themed orchestral effort that sounds cobbled together from various sources—including, but not limited to, Danny Elfman's The Nightmare Before Christmas and even John Williams' JFK, which sounds like it had some kind of influence on Folk's similar-sounding main theme. Nevertheless, there are some good moments here and there, with lush strings and a few big crescendos commenting on the action in the best old-time Hollywood movie music tradition. The album also includes Bing Crosby's classic interpretation of "Do You Hear What I Hear?" and Dean Martin's crooning of "You're Nobody Till Somebody Loves You."

Trespass

1993, Sire Records; from the movie Trespass, Universal Pictures, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Ry Cooder; Featured Musicians: Ry Cooder (guitars, floor slide, array imbira, keyboards); Jim Keltner (drums, percussion); Jon Hassell (trumpet); Nathan East (bass); David Lindley (fiddle); Van Dyke Parks (piano); Larry Taylor (upright bass); Music Editor: Bunny Andrews; Album Producer: Ry Cooder; Engineer: Allen Sides.

Selections: 1 Video Drive-By (1:54); 2 Trespass (Main Title)(1:36); 3 East St. Louis (2:00); 4 Orgill Bros. (1:40); 5 Goose And Lucky (3:32); 6 You Think It's On Now (1:37); 7 Solid Gold (:54); 8 Heroin (4:08); 9 Totally Boxed In (6:45); 10 Give 'Em Cops (2:03); 11 Lucy In The Trunk (1:23); 12 We're Rich (2:21); 13 King Of The Street (R. Cooder/J. Keltner)(3:58); 14 Party Lights (Jr. Brown)(2:58) Jr. Brown.

Review: Unlike many of his scores, which are deeply rooted in Americana or exude an appealling Southern flavor, Ry Cooder created an unsettling series of cues for this urban contemporary drama set in the ghetto of East St. Louis. The unrelenting dark visions it evokes (with distant guitar riffs darting in and out of brooding synth lines) may have been what this story about a hidden treasure and gang warfare called for. But taken on its own musical terms, the score fails to make much of an impression when it no longer serves as a complement to the explosive action, and its sonic effects, devoid of melodic content, soon prove tiring and aimless. The only track that actually makes a difference is "Party Lights," written and performed by Jr. Brown, a solidly flavored country number. Unfortunately, not enough to recommend this album.

The Trip

1996, Curb Records; from the movie The Trip, American-International Pictures, 1967.

Album Notes: Songs: Mike Bloomfield; Song Performers: The Electric Flag featuring Mike Bloomfield, Buddy Miles, Harvey Brooks, Barry Goldberg, Nick Gravenites, Mark Doubleday, Peter Strazza, Paul Beaver, Bob Notkoff.

Selections: 1 Peter's Trip (2:35); 2 Psyche Soap (:52); 3 M-23 (1:11); 4 Synesthesia (1:43); 5 Hobbit (1:43); 6 Fewghh (:59); 7 Green And Gold (2:47); 8 Flash, Bam, Pow (1:28); 9 Hotel Room (:50); 10 Practice Music (1:24); 11 Fine Jung Thing (7:22); 12 Senior Citizen (2:57).

Review: In the late 1960s, at the height of psychedelia, The Trip, released by American-International, was on every acid-head's must-see list, because it dealt with the taboos of LSD, and featured a sensational soundtrack, with songs by Mike Bloomfield and the Electric Flag, an American Music Band. Today, the film, plagued with erratic lensing trying to visually render the images hallucinogenic drugs create in the mind of those who use them, and a murky script written by Jack Nicholson (no less!), looks more like a relic from another age. It may still be of minor interest if only because it stars Susan Strasberg, Bruce Dern, Dennis Hopper, and Peter Fonda as the man who spaces out. But its music, despite changes in trends, has lost none of its vibrancy, even if it brings out echoes of another era.

Triumph of the Spirit

1989, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Triumph of the Spirit, Nova International Films, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Kenneth Hall; Unione Musicisti di Roma Orchestra and Choir, conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:23); 2 Love In Wedlock (:50); 3 Dark Tunnel To Auschwitz (1:51); 4 There Was A Time (1:46); 5 Answer Us (3:51); 6 Mi Dyo Mi (:49); 7 Avram Refuses To Work (2:20); 8 Longing For Home (1:48); 9 A Hard Felt Rest (1:26); 10 Hell Realization (:33); 11 Elena's False Dreams (1:59); 12 There Was A Memory (4:24); 13 Begging For Bread (1:05); 14 The Mourning (2:13); 15 The Slaughter (2:14); 16 It Was A Month Before We Left (1:30); 17 Hunger (1:18); 18 Mercy On To Us (1:28); 19 Salamo desperately Finds Allegra (3:24); 20 Allegra's Punishment (1:36); 21 A New Assignment; 22 Death March (5:35); 23 Epilogue/End Credits (6:53).

Review: For this moving story of survival in a Nazi Death camp, Cliff Eidelman has composed a sensitive score for orchestra and choir, drawing from both Hebrew and Catholic musical sources to build a powerful and emotive backdrop for this affecting motion picture. Comprised of mostly short pieces (0:33 at shortest to 6:53 at longest), the short cues work together to form an extended suite. The music movingly dramatizes the sorrow and the dignity of its struggling protagonist; while it underlines chaos and injustice, it remains full of hope and mirrors the character's will to survive. The score's mix of broad orchestral passages, delicate solo voice, and full choir (both operating and church music) captures a lot of the various feelings suggested or depicted in the film. On disc, it makes for a compelling and moving musical experience.

Trouble in Mind

1986, Antilles Records; from the movie Trouble in Mind, Alive Films, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Featured Musicians: The Raincity Industrial Art Ensemble featuring Mark Isham (trumpet, saxophone, electronics), Pee Wee Ellis (saxophone), Peter Maunu (guitar), Kurt Wortman (percussion); Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineers: Steven Miller, Mark Isham, Gary Clayton.

Selections: 1 Trouble In Mind (The Return)(R.M. Jones)(4:20) Marianne Faithfull; 2 Pleasure In Old Sufferings (1:18); 3 To Forget For A Moment (1:54); 4 Members Only (4:30); 5 Conflict... Beyond Understanding (2:39); 6 The Invitation (3:28); 7 Interests Pursued (2:29); 8 A Matter Of Conflict (1:42); 9 Trouble In Mind (reprise)(R.M. Jones)(1:08); 10 Halves Of A Dream (1:42); 11 Confidence From An Old Friend (:55); 12 Postponement Of Virtue (2:15); 13 Intimacy (1:32); 14 The Arrival (:50); 15 By Way Of Preparation Down The Hill (2:50); 16 A Touch Of Iago (2:18); 17 The Hawk (El Gavilan)(K. Kristofferson)(8:20) Marianne Faithfull.

Review: Mixing electronics and acoustic brass instruments, this early score by Mark Isham is a classic of the genre, a thoroughly atmospheric set of cues, often dominated and punctuated by the sounds of a muted trumpet, which evoke the dark passions and oppressive moods in this out-of-time stylish tale of a cop caught between the mob and a love triangle, starring Kris Kristofferson, Keith Carradine and Lori Singer, set in Raincity, a futuristic world with strange contemporary overtones. The hypnotic, sustaining moods in the film are splendidly caught in Isham's quietly understated music, with bluesy melodic themes creating an eerily nostalgic feel that's particularly gripping. Marianne Faithfull's vocals add extra flair to this sensational score.

True Grit

1992, Capitol Records; from the movie True Grit, Paramount Pictures, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Artie Butler; Lyrics: Don Black; Vocals Produced, Arranged and conducted by Al de Lory; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Neely Plumb; Engineers: Jack Hunt, Don Henderson.

Selections: 1 True Grit (2:32) Glen Campbell; 2 Rooster (2:04); 3 Mattie And Little Blackie (2:20); 4 A Dastardly Deed (3:00); 5 Papa's Things (2:58); 6 True Grit (2:58); 7 Chen Lee And The General (2:55); 8 Big Trail (3:15); 9 Cogburn Country (2:02); 10 True Grit (2:00) Glen Campbell.

Review: It's almost jarring to associate the truly forgettable music from True Grit with the brilliant film composer Elmer Bernstein, but it was 1968, and both the Charles Portis novel and the resulting film, starring John Wayne and Kim Darby, about a wily U.S. Marshall who aids a young girl tracking down her father's killer, were hugely successful. Enlisting the hot, young country star Glen Campbell to sing the title song, and make his acting debut in the film, certainly guaranteed the success of the Capitol album of music from the film. Today, however, the soundtrack is a curiosity. While Bernstein's other works survive as precious examples of the lost art of film music composition, this particular score is easily dismissable as an interesting foray into the contemporary scene—to this ear, better left to those less gifted than the immeasurably talented Mr. Bernstein. The reissued CD is purely budget. A single slipsheet insert, with barely readable liner notes reproduced on the back of the jewel case.

Review: Director James Cameron seems to have an outsized vision of every aspect of filmmaking except for the music his movies require. Brad Fiedel's electronic score for Cameron's The Terminator was necessitated by budgetary restraints and fit in well with the movie's mechanistic theme, but Fiedel's work on the epic-scaled Terminator 2 seemed hapless, and the application of yet another synthesized effort for this gigantic James Bond-type spoof is really hurtful to the power of the film. Fiedel's bright title music almost seems to suggest something Jerry Goldsmith might have done for Joe Dante's Gremlins/Explorers period, and while the opening chase sequence and an even more elaborate pursuit on horseback in New York City receive an exciting, pulsating staccato treatment, more than a little of the effect is derived from Shirley Walker's excellent acoustic orchestrations. Much of the rest of the score fades away into synth pad oblivion. Maybe a takeoff of John Barry was too much to ask for here, but Fiedel's approach just doesn't satisfy.

Selections: 1 You're So Cool (H. Zimmer)(3:40); 2 Graceland (C. Sexton/ Tonio K.)(3:26) Charlie Sexton; 3 In Dreams (J. Waite/M. Spiro)(3:45) John Waite; 4 Wounded Bird (E. Chacon/

C. Pettigrew/J. Deutsch)(5:11) Charles & Eddie; 5 I Want Your Body (J. Ewbank/M. Vander Kuy)(4:18) Nymphomania; 6 Stars At Dawn (H. Zimmer)(2:04); 7 I Need A Heart To Come Home To (R. Smith/J. Jarvis)(4:21) Shelby Lynne; 8 Viens Mallika sous le dome (L. Delibes)(3:56); 9 (Love Is) The Tender Trap (S. Cahn/J. Van Heusen)(2:37) Robert Palmer; 10 Outshined (C. Cornell)(5:12) Soundgarden; 11 Amid The Chaos Of The Day (H. Zimmer)(4:55); 12 Two Hearts (C. Isaak)(3:33) Chris Isaak

Review: Hans Zimmer's flavorful score (sampled through two very short tracks) is given less than its fair share in this album in which several undistinguished pop songs aim to evoke the fast-paced action in the film, about a couple on the run from the mob after they steal some drug money. Further confusing the listener, the celebrated duo from Leo Delibes' Lakme ("Viens Mallika sous le dome"), and a tired, expressionless rendition of "(Love Is) The Tender Trap," by Robert Palmer, suddenly pop up for no apparent (musical) reason. On the front inlay card, the album advertises its content as being "very cool music." Indeed!

Tucker

1988, A&M Records; from the movie Tucker: The Man and His Dream, Paramount Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Joe Jackson; Arrangements: Joe Jackson; Featured Musicians: Paul Spong (trumpet), Raul D'Oliviera (trumpet), Pete Thomas (saxophones), Dave Bitelli (saxophone, clarinet). Bill Charleson (saxophone, flute), Tony Coe (clarinet), Rick Taylor (trombone), Vinnie Zummo (guitar), Dave Green (bass), Gary Burke (drums), Frank Ricotti (percussion), Ed Roynesdal (synthesizers, violin), Arlette Fibon (Ondes Martenot), Joe Jackson (piano, synthesizers, percussion); Album Producer: Joe Jackson.

Selections: 1 Captain Of Industry (Overture) (2:33); 2 The Car Of Tomorrow—Today! (1:34); 3 No Chance Blues (2:31); 4 (He's A) Shape In A Drape (2:59); 5 Factory (1:06); 6 Vera (2:29); 7 It Pays To Advertise (:41); 8 Tiger Rag (H. DaCosta/E. Edwards/D. LaRocca/A. Sbarbaro)(2:09); 9 Showtime In Chicago (2:44); 10 Lone Bank Loan Blues (1:12); 11 Speedway (2:40); 12 Marilee (3:01); 13 Hangin' In Howard Hughes' Hangar (2:37); 14 Toast Of The Town (1:23); 15 Abe's Blues (2:39); 16 The Trial (6:45); 17 Freedom Swing/Tucker Jingle (1:38); 18 Rhythm Delivery (3:24).

Review: Joe Jackson composed an invigorating, jazz-filled uptempo score for this acclaimed but little-seen George Lucas-Francis Ford Coppola production. Jackson dabbles in swing, jazz and pop forms throughout the score, making the album full of fresh twists on familiar material—from standards like "Tiger Rag" to the jumpin' finale, "Rhythm Delivery," which finds Jackson performing vocals in an infectious, energetic big-band original song. The music was initially released on A&M but has been out-of-print for years, though its occasional re-issue as an import seems to confirm its continued popularity with die-hard listeners. A tremendously entertaining album, the soundtrack also features incidental jingle music composed by Carmine Coppola and boasts a wealth of standout ensemble performers.

Twelfth Night

1996, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Twelfth Night, Fine Line Features, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Shaun Davey; Orchestrations: Fiachra Trench, Shaun Davey, Fergus O'Carroll; The Irish National Film Orchestra, conducted by Fiachra Trench; Featured Musicians: Shaun Davey (organ), Linda Byrne (piano), Martin O'Connor (accordion), Des Moore (guitar), Noel Eccles (percussion); Album Producer: Shaun Davey; Engineer: Brian Masterton; Assistant Engineers: Ciarac Cahill, Connell Markey.

Selections: 1 I'll Tell Thee A Tale (:56) Ben Kingsley; 2 Shipwreck/ Illyria (3:53); 3 Orsino's Horsemen/The Disguise (4:14); 4 The Rose Window/The Food Of Love (2:17); 5 Cesario's First Walk/Malvolio's Inspection (1:29); 6 Sir Andrew Dances/O Mistress Mine (Cabaret)(1:10) Rita Connolly, Valerie Armstrong, Peter Beamish; 7 Take Away The Fool (2:42); 8 Farewell Fair Cruelty/Cesario's Charm (3:32); 9 O Mistress Mine (2:45) Ben Kingsley, Imelda Staunton; 10 The Lonely Night/Malvolio's Fantasy/The Sponge (3:26); 11 Cesario's Second Journey (1:32); 12 Come Away Death/Prelude To Act Three (4:05) Ben Kingsley; 13 Antonio's Chase (1:34); 14 Malvolio Rampant (2:24); 15 The Reluctant Duellists (5:22); 16 A Witchcraft (1:41); 17 I Am A Gone Sir (:53) Ben Kingsley; 18 The Twin Reunion (4:56); 19 The Wind And The Rain (5:36) Ben Kingsley.

Review: This well-crafted orchestral score for Trevor Nunn's 1996 treatment of Shakespeare's play opens portentiously with pulsing low string chords that underscore the film's opening shipwreck and an aggressive motif for "Orsino's Horsemen" before giving way to the lighter, energetic motives and textures of court intrigue, love, and mistaken identity that marks this as a high-spirited comedy. Like Patrick Doyle, Davey's background includes experience scoring for Shakespearean stage productions in Great Britain, and he brings some of the same melodic invention and emotional directness to his approach as Doyle. Some of the songs warbled by cast members (including Ben Kingsley, not in very good voice as a troubadour) break up the flow of the orchestral pieces, but there's plenty of invention to make up for those lapses. The score is at its best in its shimmering, through-composed cues, and at its weakest during some comic mickey-mousing for the film's romantic intrigues.

Rose)(2:19) Fats Domino; 13 What A Wonderful World (B. Thiele/G.D. Weiss)(2:18) Louis Armstrong; 14 Cole's Fourth Dream (:25); 15 Comanche (M. Grant/L. Wray)(2:03) Link Wray & The Wraymen; 16 Earth Died Screaming (T. Waits)(3:35) Tom Waits; 17 Introduccion (Quest For 12 Monkeys)(A. Piazzolla)(4:32); 18 Fateful Bullet/A Boot From The Trunk/Cole's Longing (3:04); 19 Photo Search/Mission Brief (1:27); 20 Back In '96 (2:05); 21 Fugitives/Fateful Love/Home Dentistry (3:22); 22 Introduccion (12 Monkeys Theme reprise)(A. Piazzolla)/Giraffes And Flamingos (1:03); 23 This Is My Dream/Cole's Call/Louis And Jose (3:13); 24 Peters Does His Worst (3:51); 25 Dreamers Awake (3:33).

Review: The focal point of this score is an adaption of Astor Piazzolla's quirky little accordion track, "Introduccion," from the Suite Punta Del Este. It became known as the "12 Monkeys Theme," possibly because it brings to mind the image of an organ grinder and his monkey standing on some European back street. This theme appears about six times, cut into Paul Buckmaster's vague and often spotty underscore. Most of the cues have the feel of transitional pieces, too short to develop into anything substantial and, just when you think you've grasped what he's getting at, in comes "Introduccion." Several songs, including Fats Domino's "Blueberry Hill" and "What a Wonderful World" by Louis Armstrong are intercut throughout the album. It's a Terry Gilliam film, so go figure what they're getting at.

Twilight's Last Gleaming

1992, Silva Screen Records; from the movie Twilight's Last Gleaming, Lorimar Pictures, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: John C. Hammell; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Joel Goldsmith; Associate Producer: Ford A. Thaxton.

Selections: 1 Silo 3/The Takeover Begins (3:34); 2 General Mackenzie Arrives (1:11); 3 He Has Launch Control/Special Forces Arrive (3:41); 4 The Bubble (2:57); 5 Nuclear Nightmare (3:15); 6 A Reflective Interlude (1:26); 7 After You, Mr. President/Heading For Home/The President Falls (2:34); 8 The Taking Of Silo 3 (3:27); 9 Operation Gold Begins/Watching And Waiting (3:17); 10 The Tanks (3:40); 11 Down The Elevator Shaft/The Gold Bomb (2:14); 12 Gold Team Enters Silo 3 (4:56); 13 The Final Betrayal (1:56).

Review: This suspenseful tale of political paranoia receives a quintessential '70s action score from Jerry Goldsmith, bristling with sharp-edged, harsh string textures, and militaristic effects for brass and percussion as U.S. armed forces attempt to deal with the takeover of a nuclear missile silo. With its gritty acoustic textures, hollow martial brass fanfares and heavy, jagged action rhythms, Twilight's Last Gleaming lies somewhere between the European, quasi-chamber sound of The Cassandra Crossing and the driving brass lines of Capricorn One. The superb sound mix highlights every bizarre effect Goldsmith coaxes out of the orchestra, and the score's few humanistic moments, played out sensitively by low flutes and strings, make for a sharp contrast to the brutal, violent militaristic material.

Twin Peaks: Fire Walk with Me

1992, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Twin Peaks: Fire Walk with Me, New Line Cinema, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo Badalamenti, David Lynch; Lyrics: David Lynch; Orchestrations: Angelo Badalamenti, David Lynch, David Slusser; Featured Musicians: Angelo Badalamenti, Kinny Landrum (keyboards, synthesizers), Bill Mays, David Slusser, Andy Armer (keyboards), Ken-Ichi Shimazu (piano), Vinnie Bell, David Jaurequi, Myles Boisen, Bob Rose (guitars), Buster Williams, Ron Carter, Rufus Reid (acoustic bass), Don Falzone, William Fairbanks (bass), Grady Tate, Brian Kirk, Steven Hodges, Donald Bailey (drums), Jim Hynes (trumpet), Al Regni, Alvin Flythe, Jr. (sax), Jay Hoggard, David Cooper (vibes), David Lynch (percussion); Album Producer: David Lynch, Angelo Badalamenti; Engineers: David Bianco, Michael Semanick.

Selections: 1 Theme from Twin Peaks: Fire Walk With Me (6:40); 2 The Pine Float (3:58); 3 Sycamore Trees (3:52) Jimmy Scott; 4 Don't Do Anything (I Wouldn't Do)(7:17); 5 A Real Indication (Thought Gang)(5:31) Angelo Badalamenti; 6 Questions In A World Of Blue (4:50) Julee Cruise; 7 The Pink Room (4:02); 8 The Black Dog Runs At Night (Thought Gang)(1:45) Angelo Badalamenti; 9 Best Friends (2:12); 10 Moving Through Time (6:48); 11 Montage from Twin Peaks: Girl Talk/Birds In Hell/Laura Palmer's Theme/Falling (5:27); 12 The Voice Of Love (3:55).

Review: Without drawing on any of the principal themes he created for the original television series (except "Laura Palmer's Theme" and "Falling"), Angelo Badalamenti concocted another brew of wailing blues and jazz solos, mixed with cutting edge techno-rock rhythms. The difference between the film and TV series is that sexual tension more than an army of quirky suspects in a murder mystery provides the core motivation. The main theme is a somber and lazy trumpet solo, a gust of smoky heat to reintroduce us to Laura Palmer, the "good" girl with a rotting core whose untimely demise will launch the plot of the popular cult series. The album features four songs with really bizarre lyrics by director David Lynch, who also composed "The Pink Room" and "Best Friends" (the latter with David Slusser). Badalamenti performs (not be be confused with singing) the songs, "A Real Indication" and "Black Dog Runs at Night" (they call these lyrics?); and "Questions in a World of Blue" was taken from an album by Julee Cruise, "The Road House" chanteuse in the TV pilot film. Perfectly captures all the oddness of Lynch's film.

WILLIAM TELL: 17 William Tell Overture (G. Rossini)/Oklahoma Medley (1:06) Todd Field, Wendle Josepher; 18 End Title/Respect The Wind (E. Van Halen/A. Van Halen)(9:18) Edward & Alex Van Halen.

Review: Mark Mancina scored Speed for director Jan DeBont, and with a resume that also includes writing the music for the action films Con-Air and Bad Boys, it doesn't take a genius to figure out that Mancina is skilled in composing vibrant genre music that rarely ever holds back with emotion. The score for Twister, his second for DeBont, bursts forth with no-holds barred intensity, thanks to an aggressive main title theme that's one of the few hummable pieces of film music written in the last few years. Unlike his previous work on Speed, however, Twister is more reliant on the orchestra than it is on synthesizers, with full chorus added to some of the album's most powerful cues. It all makes for a solid and enjoyable soundtrack, though some listeners will want to skip past the horrible cast duet "William Tell Overture/Oklahoma Medley,' which doesn't segue out of Mancina's score nearly as well as Eddie & Alex Van Halen's guitarfest "Respect the Wind," heard here as a lengthy extension to the composer's end credits music.

Van Halen) (5:49) Edward & Alex Van Halen.

Review: Another one of those soundtracks that shoots wide in an effort to bring in the broadest audience. For hard rockers there's two songs from Van Halen, country fans have Shania Twain and Alison Krauss, classic rock fans will find Dire Straits' Mark Knopfler and modern rockers will be swept up by an A-list that includes Soul Asylum, Tori Amos, the Red Hot Chili Peppers, Rusted Root, the Goo Goo Dolls and Belly. Quietly in the midst of all this is a reunion of former Fleetwood Mac partners Stevie Nicks and Lindsey Buckingham on "Twisted."

Two Moon Junction

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Two Moon Junction, Lorimar Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Jonathan Elias; Featured Musicians: Jonathan Elias, Sherman Foote (keyboards, programming), Mark Egan (fretless bass), Ray Foote (guitar); Album Producer: Jonathan Elias; Engineer: Sherman Foote.

Selections: 1 Water Dreams (2:20); 2 1,000-Mile Stare (1:58); 3 Hideaway (4:49); 4 Meet Me At The Two Moon (2:35); 5 Folk Durge (3:30); 6 The Hiding (1:16); 7 One Step Closer (2:54); 8 Appearance At The Carnival (1:34); 9 Seduction (2:13); 10 Water Dreams (reprise)(1:42); 11 Before Morning (2:08); 12 Follow Me Home (1:15); 13 Return To Two Moon (4:59); 14 The Runaway (3:51).

Review: A moody and evocative ambient score that mists along, like slowly-rising steam or heavy, sluggish storm clouds, laying a rhythmic backdrop of ambient tonalities and building, interpolating chords that are both relaxing and sometimes invigorating. A recurring synthesized pan-flute motif provides a pleasing texture in the midst of Elias' singing guitars, delicate keyboard notes and electronic tones emerging and merging and evaporating. It's somewhat in the vogue of those "new age" synth/acoustic albums, and like some of them, Elias' music runs the risk of becoming monotonous or redundant through under-development, but Elias develops his rhythms and textures and chord-progressions effectively, they don't submerge into a sluggish mire or uncertain orchestration, but they ride an orchestral sea with purpose, slicing through and around and under and over the tonal waves of richly-swelling electronic formations.

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie 2001: A Space Odyssey, M-G-M, 1968.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producers: Jerry Goldsmith, Robert Townson; Engineer: Mike Sheedy.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:37); 2 The Foraging (3:44); 3 Eat Meat And The Kill (3:27); 4 The Bluff (3:01); 5 Night Terrors (2:02); 6 The Dawn Of Man (3:14); 7 Space Station Docking (2:22); 8 Trip To The Moon (3:21); 9 Moon Rocket Bus (5:01); 10 Space Talk (3:30); 11 Interior Orion (1:26); 12 Main Theme (2:31).

Review: Alex North's rejected score for Stanley Kubrick's 1968 space epic has long been one of the great mysteries of film music, a work heard by only a select few until composer Jerry Goldsmith and Varese Sarabande's Robert Townson assembled this remarkable recording, with Goldsmith conducting the National Philharmonic Orchestra and resurrecting North's music from the ashes. It's a powerful work, brimming with mysticism, brutal primitiveness and delicate, ethereal beauty. North wrote his own take on Strauss's "Also Sprach Zarathustra," an expansive orchestral fanfare for Kubrick's opening conjunction of planets. Much of the score is taken up with the grinding, violent dissonance of the "Dawn of Man" sequence, with brass and woodwinds growling in tribalistic fury as primitive apes battle over food and water. The famous "Blue Danube" space station sequence is scored with a brilliant, sprightly scherzando after Mendelssohn, while two other space sequences receive delicate, haunting arrangements for strings, harp and vocal soprano. North's work only went as far as a strident Ent'racte for the film's intermission before he was relieved of his duties, but given the power of the music the composer produced for the first half of this unforgettable film, you have to shiver a little at the thought of what North might have come up with for later scenes on the Discovery spacecraft or for the film's completely abstract Stargate sequence. Clearly Kubrick's vision for the film was less conventional than North's modernistic music, but his original score for 2001 still stands on its own as a masterpiece of film composition.

Review: The ultimate music trip, if not necessarily the ultimate soundtrack. While the choice of crisp, disembodied classical selections (albeit from the Romantic and Modern eras) might have seemed odd at first, it perfectly suited the extraordinary space epic and no doubt attracted a lot of moviegoers (and potheads) to the values of serious instrumental music. However, as a pure audio experience, it sounds relatively arid.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:02); 2 Fanfare (:57); 3 The Takeover (1:30); 4 Casey Gets In Touch (2:56); 5 Casey Saves Jordan (1:29); 6 Reveal Sub (:46); 7 Sub Splits (2:02); 8 They Sink The Sub (3:51); 9 Casey Rescues The Laundry (1:48); 10 Sitting Ducks (2:08); 11 The Broadway Shootout (1:44); 12 Casey Meets Strannix (:45); 13 Casey Saves Hawaii (2:46); 14 Epilogue (2:28).

Review: An action film score for orchestra, synthesizers and percussion, Gary Chang's Under Siege is so unexciting that it amounts to little else but window dressing. Many of the cues are dark, ominous efforts that try to evoke an atmosphere of tension, with lots of percussion over vague synthesizer effects that may have been useful in the film, but are not too terribly engaging on the CD. The orchestra occasionally kicks in, but even its contribution is so subdued and low-key that it adds little to the overall texture. Not a very interesting score.

Selections: 1 Main Titles: Dark Territory (2:37); 2 Casey's Family (2:03); 3 Compound Assault (1:47); 4 Access Codes (1:57); 5 Intruder Discovered (4:38); 6 Dead, Not Dead (1:46); 7 The Gates Of Hell/Penn's Wish (8:53); 8 Casey's Farewell/After The Train Has Gone (S. Seagal/T. Smallwood)(3:53) Todd Smallwood, Abraham McDonald, Jean McCalin, Steve Seagal.

Review: A likeable enough Basil Poledouris entry which has its moments ("Intruder Discovered"), but suffers from a lack of strong thematic content. It is also surprisingly derivative at times of his other work. You can clearly hear portions of RoboCop in the main title, for example. Poledouris seems to have found it awfully hard to get a handle on this film, but when was a Steven Seagal movie ever deep? Either he thought he was fighting a losing battle against the noise levels of gunfire and explosions, or hearing Seagal's vocal on "After the Train Has Gone" just demoralized him into a catatonic state.

The Underneath

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The Underneath, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Martinez; Album Producer: Cliff Martinez.

Selections: 1 The Green Head (Main Title)(2:55); 2 The Kiss (1:45); 3 He Saw Us (2:12); 4 I Didn't Get You Anything (1:01); 5 You'll Like It (1:16); 6 Every Monday (1:18); 7 An Ad For Fine Wine (2:07); 8 The White Van (2:18); 9 Wake Up Dead (1:17); 10 Gas (:44); 11 Captive Audience (1:04); 12 Michael, Right? (2:43); 13 Why Ya Wanna Do Me (F. LeBlanc)(2:14) Cowboy Mouth; 14 Angel With A Broken Wing (J.T. Griffith)(3:24) Cowboy Mouth; 15 Fall From Mine (A. Cox/A. Glascock/S. Judge)(4:48) Wheel; 16 Skoliosis Skank (L. Myers/J. Pollet/S. May)(2:52) Gal's Panic; 17 Gals Panic (L. Myers/J. Pollet/S. May)(4:01) Gal's Panic; 18 The Happy Herman Polka (H. Dietrich) (1:46) Herman The German & Das Cowboy.

Review: A hybrid tale about a robbery with deep psychological and philosophical undertones, The Underneath, a remake of the 1949 film noir Criss Cross, sported a disturbingly hypnotic score, signed by Cliff Martinez, which superbly sustained the moods in Steven Soderbergh's suspense melodrama. The various cues, dense and deliberately taken at a slow pace, manage to evoke the same cerebral moods, austere and uncompromising, yet wonderfully atmospheric, though amateurs of melodic material will have to look elsewhere. Unfortunately, some shrieking rock numbers that are not too terribly enjoyable throw the album in overdrive, though "The Happy Herman Polka," a fast instrumental guitar tune, proves quite ingratiating.

Unforgiven

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Unforgiven, Warner Bros., 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Lennie Niehaus; Orchestrations: Lennie Niehaus; Music Editor: Donald Harris; Orchestra conducted by Lennie Niehaus; Featured Musician: Laurindo Almeida (guitar); Album Producer: Lennie Niehaus; Engineer: Robert Fernandez.

Selections: 1 Claudia's Theme (C. Eastwood)(1:00); 2 Will Looks Off (:32); 3 Davey Leading Horses (:49); 4 Pony For The Lady (1:30); 5 Bucket Of Water (:41); 6 Claudia's Theme (C. Eastwood)(1:01); 19 Villainous Friends (1:01); 20 He Oughta Get Shot (2:17); 21 Claudia's Theme (C. Eastwood)(1:07); 22 Ned's Body/ Shotgun Appears (3:41); 23 Burn His House Down (2:09); 24 Claudia's Theme (C. Eastwood)(5:41).

Review: Lennie Niehaus performed double-duty for Clint Eastwood for many years, having orchestrated many of Jerry Fielding's Eastwood scores and ghostwritten (often extensively) cues for the composer during the 1970s. When Niehaus was given the chance to contribute music for Eastwood's pictures himself, the results were low-key scores that often contained themes based on material composed by Eastwood himself. Unforgiven is one of those cases, with the poignant "Claudia's Theme" (written by the actor-director) contributing the heart of the music here. Performed on solo guitar before being gently developed into a fully orchestral arrangement, the theme represents a reflective look back at the Old West—like the movie, the music is more meditative and subtle than your typical western score, but is certainly no less effective or enjoyable because of that.

Unlawful Entry

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie Unlawful Entry, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:14); 2 Intruder (2:08); 3 Being Watched (5:42); 4 Leon's Death (3:01); 5 Drug Bust (3:06); 6 Bail Denied (2:26); 7 Pete's Passion (11:15); 8 End Credits (4:22).

Review: An uneven James Horner score which starts out with an appealing theme and then quickly descends into harsh and atonal synthesizer dissonance. A sensual saxophone theme is worked into a romantic melody for synthesizer over piano. The music becomes a pleasant theme for the couple while retaining a slight edge of foreboding and discomfort, suggesting the terrors they will encounter. The theme is, by turns, happy and pretty and then frightening, and the cue ends ominously with the heartbeat-like faint percussion beats. The bulk of the CD is comprised of horror music: harsh cacophonies of low end piano and strings, horrifying tonal music and dissonant atonal passages. Machine music, appropriately heartless, yet difficult to listen to apart from its visual counterparts. There are some interesting moments but on the whole the CD is too uneven and too imbedded with atonal electronics and disturbing cacophonies to make for a satisfying listen.

Unstrung Heroes

1995, Hollywood Records; from the movie Unstrung Heroes, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas Newman; Orchestrations: Thomas Pasatieri; Music Editor: Bill Bernstein; Featured Musicians: Michael Fisher (vibraphone, jaw harp, vibratone), Rock Cox (zither, hurdy gurdy, bowed bass dulcimer), Thomas Newman (picnic, piano, psaltery), George Doering (guitars, strums), Bill Bernstein (zither, Indian banjo, door), Steve Kujala (flutes, recorders), Chas Smith (pedal steel guitars), Randy Kerber (sustains); Album Producers: Thomas Newman, Bill Bernstein; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Outside 2B (1:03); 2 Inside 2B (1:30); 3 Nowhere Near 2B (1:06); 4 Is Unstrung (3:12); 5 Star Machine (1:28); 6 South Pole (:49); 7 Ballsound (:39); 8 Trace Harm (1:46); 9 Main Title (A Load Of Lidz)(2:42); 10 Means What It Means (:38); 11 Influenza (:51); 12 The Beast Is Coming (1:08); 13 Lipstick (1:15); 14 Possible Ideas/Available Materials (2:11); 15 Half Amelia (1:27); 16 A Blind Man Could See It (1:06); 17 79 RPMs (:34); 18 Home Movies (2:53); 19 There Is No Conspiracy (3:35).

Review: A delicate, offbeat tale of a 12-year-old coming of age in 1962 Los Angeles, Unstrung Heroes, directed by Diane Keaton, elicited an odd, somewhat out-of-synch score by Thomas Newman, with pseudo-Oriental effects that seemed to clash with the film and its unusual premise. Focusing, as it did, on a kid who leaves his dysfunctional middle-class home to live with two eccentric uncles in a rundown hotel, the story needed a score that matched the conflicting moods in the development, while giving an expression to the kid's frail emotions. Only occasionally does Newman fill the demands imposed on him ("Trace Harm"), relying most often on selections that are admittedly attractive and quite enjoyable on their own musical terms, but that seem to have been written for another, totally different film.

Untamed Heart

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Untamed Heart, M-G-M, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Cliff Eidelman; Orchestrations: Jeff Atmajian, Cliff Eidelman; Music Editor: Ken Karman; Orchestra conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Cliff Eidelman; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Untamed Heart (3:26); 2 I'll Give You My Heart (3:48); 3 Rainfall (1:34); 4 Stabbed (2:38); 5 You Are My Peace (2:54); 6 Opening (1:45); 7 Hockey Game (2:50); 8 Lost (4:12); 9 End Credits (2:59).

Review: Romantic symphonic love poem for two unlikely suitors, a waitress (Marissa Tomei) who can't seem to pick the right man, and a quiet, mysterious busboy (Christian Slater) with a heart ailment. Cliff Eidelman gives this poignant story everything he can muster. The bulk of the album is framed by gentle horns and a soft piano melody, but two pieces, the bouncy "Hockey Game" and the nightmarish "Stabbed," offer some variety. The album includes "End Credits" and another cue that were not used in the final film.

Until September/Star Crash

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the movies Until September, M-G-M/Pathe, 1984; and Star Crash, Columbia Pictures/AIP, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestras conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: John Richards.

Selections: UNTIL SEPTEMBER: 1 Main Title (1:17); 2 It's Love (:56); 3 Not Again (1:32); 4 Second Spat (1:50); 5 He Catches Her (5:45); 6 Candle Light (2:27); 7 Seine (1:43); 8 Foreplay (2:48); 9 One More Time (2:41); 10 Waiting (1:27); 11 Memories (3:25); 12 The Morning After (2:09); 13 End Title (2:32);

STAR CRASH: 14 Main Title (2:37); 15 Escape Into Hyperspace (1:49); 16 Captured (2:10); 17 Launch Adrift (1:42); 18 Beach Landing (2:10); 19 The Ice Planet/Heading For Zarkon (3:04); 20 The Emperor's Speech (3:18); 21 Strange Planet/The Trogs Attack (2:37); 22 Akton Battles The Robots (2:16); 23 Red Ball Attack (1:00); 24 Space War (4:38); 25 Goodbye Akton (3:32); 26 End Title (2:53).

Review: This was the first of two odd pairings of John Barry scores on Silva Screen (the other was the Bruce Lee action film

> "The movie was about a movement, it was about a broad sweep of pop culture in America and it was a very, very effective tool in terms of telling the story and marketing. I think it is a text book case in how to use a soundtrack to market a film...."

Game of Death and Roger Vadim's sex romp Night Games), kind of a yin and yang experience. Until September presents Barry at some of his romantic best. Lush string arrangements abound and, most surprisingly, he doesn't sink the score through his overuse of the main theme (that is by Barry standards). Star Crash, however, proves that even Barry can make poor creative choices. Space Opera has never provided him with his best source of inspiration. The score itself is passable enough (considering the god-awful film it was written for), but the decision to use a synthesized drum machine on the main theme was equally bad in 1979 when the music was recorded. By today's standards, it's positively laughable, bordering on self-parody. Luckily, the rest of the score doesn't have this or similar effects, and it boasts some pretty good themes ("Launch Adrift," and the eerie "The Ice Planet" for example).

The Untouchables

1987, A&M Records; from the movie The Untouchables, Paramount Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Music Editor: Thomas Drescher; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Mike Farrow.

Selections: 1 The Untouchables (End Title)(3:10); 2 Al Capone (2:55); 3 Waiting At The Border (3:46); 4 Death Theme (2:41); 5 On The Rooftops (2:33); 6 Victorious (2:09); 7 The Man With The Matches (2:46); 8 The Strength Of The Righteous (Main Title)(2:26); 9 Ness And His Family (2:45); 10 False Alarm (1:12); 11 The Untouchables (3:04); 12 Four Friends (2:51); 13 Machine Gun Lullaby (7:02).

Review: A beautifully lyrical score, nominated for an Oscar, The Untouchables found Ennio Morricone at the peak of his creative powers, in a set of cues that evoke the feel of this crime drama about Eliot Ness and his band of "untouchables," and the mobsters they relentlessly pursue at the height of the Prohibition era. Brilliantly directed by Brian De Palma, and starring Kevin Costner as Ness, Robert De Niro as Al Capone, and Sean Connery, in one of his finest screen performances as a cop, whose knowledge of the street proves invaluable to Ness, The Untouchables ranks among the top crime dramas ever filmed, and inspired Morricone to write a top-notch, very appealling score, rife with epic accents and lyrical themes that mix and mingle in a gorgeous musical canvas that's often explicit and descriptive of the multi-layered action. Laid out in terms that are frequently strikingly melodic, the score reveals many attractive themes ("Ness and His Family," "Four Friends," "Machine Gun Lullaby," the latter a wonderful tinkerbell melody overpowered by strident, ominous off-key overtones) that strengthen its appeal. In fact, the only drawback here is the fact that the cues are oddly presented out of sequence (with the recording kicking off with the "End Title," and the "Main Title" lost somewhere in the middle), necessitating some reprogramming if you wish to listen to the score as it was initially conceived and heard on the screen.

Up Close and Personal

1996, Hollywood Records; from the movie Up Close and Personal, Touchstone Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas Newman; Orchestrations: Thomas Pasatieri; Music Editor: Bill Bernstein; Album Producers: Thomas Newman, Bill Bernstein; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Miss Sierra Logger (2:56); 2 A Week Eight Days (2:33); 3 Uprise (1:30); 4 Vulgar Innuendo (:58); 5 Hong Kong Mambo (T. Puente)(3:47) Tito Puente; 6 Up Close (2:45); 7 Moral High Ground (1:41); 8 So Much Cherry Piecrust (2:31); 9 Cafe (R. Gueits/F. Lopez)(6:37) Eddie Palmieri; 10 Sun And Moon (1:11); 11 Lo$ Locos (2:11); 12 Upwind (2:46); 13 Cellblock C (2:38); 14 Philly Rebound (1:21); 15 No Justice (2:03); 16 Bonefish (1:50); 17 She Knows Now (2:23).

Review: Though at times a surprisingly melodic effort for Thomas Newman, it's unfortunately also rather unremarkable. There are a few gentle romantic themes like "A Week Eight Days" for the flowering romance between rising news reporter

Michelle Pfeiffer and her producer Robert Redford. The tense drama of the news stories though still affords Newman with the opportunity to create some of his typical wild arrangements for cues such as "Uprise." But the general mood of the album is so low key with its abundance of minor emotional cues, that it all passes by before you've realized it. The CD, incidentally, does not feature Celine Dion's hit song for the film, "Because You Loved Me," which is a pity because it really could have used the infusion of some energy.

Review: The soundtrack that sealed country's portal for nearly a decade, mostly because of its anything goes view of the genre. There are, in fact, some very good tracks by rock artists such as Bob Seger ("Nine Tonight"), Joe Walsh ("All Night Long") and Bonnie Raitt ("Darlin'"). But it also offers a fairly narrow view of country, pushing the Charlie Daniels Band and Mickey Gilley when the film could have taken a much broader survey of the form. After all, you can ride a mechanical bronco to just about anything, can't you?

Used People

1992, Giant Records; from the movie Used People, 20th Century-Fox, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Music Editor: Bill Abbott; Orchestra conducted by David Snell; Album Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:37); 2 Walk And Talk/First Kiss (4:03); 3 The Third Rail (1:52); 4 Man On The Moon (1:31); 5 The Dinner (1:58); 6 Lucy Horseshoe/Pearl Says Yes (5:43); 7 Bibby Leaves (1:28); 8 Out And About (1:28); 9 The Sky Fell Down (L. Alter/E. Heyman)(3:11) Frank Sinatra, Tommy Dorsey and His Orchestra; 10 Three On A Bench/Swee' Pea On The Roof (4:50); 11 The Shiva (1:57); 12 Let Me Cook Your Dinner/Deepdale (3:39); 13 The Grave (2:51); 14 It Happened To Me Too (1:51); 15 Kiss The Bride (1:23); 16 End Titles (2:34).

Review: A tearjerker with a '50s sensibility, Used People found in Rachel Portman the apt composer to deliver a score overflowing with broadly effusive romantic motifs, that match this tale, set in New York in 1969, about a widow, romanced by an admirer of 23 years on the day of her husband's funeral, who finds herself responding with renewed eagerness to this suitor she had rejected because of their different ethnic backgrounds. At times jocularly humorous, most frequently touchingly lyrical, Portman's music gives greater weight to the film's moods, with beautifully stated themes that are consistently appealling and enjoyable. The somewhat unnecessary inclusion of "The Sky Fell Down," performed by Frank Sinatra, with Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra, interrupts the unity of the score, and seems like a throwaway track.

Utu

1993, Label X Records; from the movie Utu, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: John Charles; The New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William Southgate; Album Producers: John Charles, John Steven Lasher; Engineers: Garry Clark, Robert Hagen.

Selections: 1 Theme From Utu (2:08); 2 Drummers (:44); 3 Patrol (1:52); 4 Destroyed Village (1:08) Rangi Dewes; 5 Te Wheke Stalks Emily (2:42); 6 Moko (2:17) Joe Malcolm; 7 The Raid/After The Raid (2:12); 8 Williamson Retaliates (2:05); 9 Quadruple Barrelled Shotgun/The Army Approaches Te Puna (S.C. Foster)(3:56); 10 Waiata Tangi/Kura And Henare (3:50) Jane and Paul Makura; 11 Night Sentry (:49); 12 Fishing/After The Battle (2:16); 13 Williamson Reflects (:40); 14 Te Wheke's Trek (1:12); 15 Williamson Prepares For Utu (1:05); 16 Death Of Te Wheke (Lament) and Finale (2:34) Rangi Dewes.

Review: A striking adventure film, about the struggle opposing the European settlers and native Maoris in late 19-century New Zealand, Utu was an exceptional entry at the Cannes Film Festival with audiences warming to this tale of passion and revenge ("utu" in Maori), in many ways reminiscent of an old-fashioned American western. When British soldiers protecting newly-arrived colonialists plunder and ravage his native village, rebel leader Te Wheke, once sympathetic to the white cause, turns guerrilla and, in a spiraling web of violence, retaliates in kind until he is captured and shot. John Charles' informed score gives the action extra impetus, with powerful orchestral accents that define the British presence in alien territory ("Williamson Retaliates"), while the addition of traditional Maori chants provides the proper ethnic coloring.

The Vagrant

1992, Intrada Records; from the movie The Vagrant, M-G-M/Pathe, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Young; Orchestrations: Christopher Young; Orchestra conducted by Christopher Young; Album Producer: Christopher Young; Engineer: Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 The Vagrant (3:39); 2 Lady Fingers (3:38); 3 Trash Dreams (1:31); 4 Rag Skin Blues (3:01); 5 Dipiddy Doo (2:31); 6 Dela Rue (1:53); 7 Mine's Mine Mind (1:29); 8 A Giblet Too Tastey (2:200); 9 Squish-O-Rama (2:46); 10 Change The Meter (1:03); 11 Jumbo Children Splat Fat (1:59); 12 Heebie Jeebies (2:51); 13 Cards On The Table (3:31); 14 Vagrant Rhythms (9:45).

Review: Christopher Young's penchant for musique concrete really goes to town in this bizarre and uncategorical psychological horror score. The music is wacky and strange, quirky yet impossible, kind of a hybrid Honey, I Blew Up The Kid meets Hellraiser. Young mixes a minor-melodied music box theme with vocal tonalities, jazzy acoustic bass, plenty of percussion and a large array of foreign ethnic instruments. The result is nothing you've ever heard before. Both immediately likeable and inconceivably strange, the music is refreshing in its creativity. Once again, Young experiments with new and strange musical combinations and matches that bizarre sensibility with an unorthodox collection of musical colors. He effectively captures the unique personality of the film—which turns out to be not far distant from his own musical personality. The Vagrant may not appeal to all tastes, but it's intriguing, effective and unique enough to warrant a listen.

Case) (3:23) The Plimsouls; 14 School Is In (Anderson/Barge) (2:34) Josie Cotton; 15 I Melt With You (Modern English) (3:49) Modern English.

Review: Rhino did the world a service by reissuing this original 1983 soundtrack and adding more songs from the movie. This is as good an '80s pop collection as you'll find, filled with songs you'll wish you'd paid more attention to the first time around. Among the highlights: the Plimsouls' wonderful "Million Miles Away" and "Everywhere at Once," Modern English's seminal (if overplayed) "I Melt With You," Josie Cotton's flirty "Johnny, Are You Queer?," Men at Work's "Who Can it Be Now?," Psychedelic Furs' "Love My Way," and Sparks' "Angst in My Pants." Pure retro fun.

Review: Alfred Hitchcock, a methodical film director, and Bernard Herrmann, a harmonically inclined film composer, were made for each other. For, however divergent their individual temperaments, each understood and appreciated the other's perspective, and thrived creatively on their symbiotic relationship, which resulted in some of the most poignant, critical work ever created in the history of music, and the cinema.

Most critics agree that Hitchcock's Vertigo endures as one of his most complex, intensely powerful films. Certainly, half the credit for the success of the film as an acknowledged masterpiece must be attributed to Herrmann's strikingly beautiful score (his fourth of seven collaborations with the director), for it is Herrmann's music that ties all the complex subtleties of the film together.

The newly restored edition of the original soundtrack recordings provides a crucial piece of the Hitchcock/Herrmann puzzle. It is this release that offers the most complete collection of music from the film, including four cues that have never been available in any form.

As with many vintage soundtrack restorations, the disc is not without inherent problems. Because recording was done in two different cities (London and Vienna), the disc, which has been programmed in the correct running order, alternates at times between mono and stereo. Also, the ravages of time have taken their toll on the original tapes from the sessions, and while painstaking efforts were evidently made to restore as much music as possible, some minor disturbances can be heard on the disc. Also due to extensive damage, one important cue, "The Graveyard," could not be included.

The recording of the score with Joel McNeely and the Royal Scottish National Orchestra features over an hour of the music from Vertigo, including the aforementioned cue, "The Graveyard." The re-recording is expertly performed, and sumptuously recorded.

The Vikings/Solomon and Sheba

1996, DRG Records; from the movies The Vikings, United Artists, 1959, and Solomon and Sheba, United Artists, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Mario Nascimbene; Orchestras conducted by Franco Ferrara, Mario Nascimbene; Album Producers: Mario Nascimbene, Claudio Fuiano; Engineer: Gianni Mazzarini.

Selections: THE VIKINGS: 1 Violence and Rapes Of The Vikings (1:34); 2 Viking's Horn/Regnar Returns (2:57); 3 Drunk's Song/Eric Is Rescued By Odin's Daughters (9:04); 4 Dancing The Oars (1:13); 5 Eric And Morgana Escape/Love Scene (3:54); 6 Aella Cuts Off Eric's Hand (2:59); 7 Voyage and Landing In Britain (6:54); 8 The Vikings Attack The Castle/Battle And Death Of Aella (10:10); 9 Duel/Eric Kills Einar (1:45); 10 Funeral/End Titles (3:42);

SOLOMON AND SHEBA: 11 Main Titles (2:00); 12 Death Of David (2:39); 13 Solomon In The Temple (1:52); 14 Orgiastic Dance (4:50); 15 Death Of Abishag (1:42); 16 Battle (2:38); 17 Solomon Lifts Sheba (1:22); 18 Purification and Finale (1:53).

Review: Italian composer Mario Nascimbene, who had already developed quite a following after he scored The Barefoot Contessa in 1954, made a strong impression when he composed the startling music for The Vikings, in 1959, a sprawling saga of revenge and historic mayhem, starring Kirk Douglas and Tony Curtis as half-brothers feuding over the love of Janet Leigh and control of the Viking empire. Frequently rousing and brightly colorful in its depiction of the savage action, Nascimbene's score emphasized the action on the screen and gave it strong emotive support; a year later, Nascimbene encored when he wrote another sensational score, for the Biblical epic Solomon and Sheba, a fanciful big screen retelling of the love affair between the 10th century b.c. king of Israel, and the desert queen who ravished his heart. In both cases, writing in a style that owed little to the style that prevailed in Hollywood at the time, but finding a new expression that enhanced the screen visuals, Nascimbene created scores that were memorably effective and sharply detailed. While both are presented here in a production supervised by the composer, it must be noted that the overall quality of this CD leaves a lot to be desired, with a cramped mono sound, image shifting, some distortion, occasional analog dropouts, bad splicings, and harsh sonics that render listening a less than pleasant experience. The only exception is the previously unreleased "Viking's Horn," which denotes the spaciousness and spread these scores should have received. The rating reflects the importance of the score, not the quality of the recording.

Village of the Damned

1995, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Village of the Damned, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: John Carpenter, Dave Davies; Featured Musicians: John Carpenter (synthesizer, bass guitar), Dave Davies (guitars), Bruce Robb (Hammond B-3); Album Producers: The Robb Brothers; Engineers: The Robb Brothers.

Selections: 1 March Of The Children (8:03) Mark Hamill; 2 Children's Carol (1:40); 3 Angel Of Death (1:37); 4 Daybreak (1:12); 5 The Fair (1:32); 6 The Children's Theme (1:15); 7 Ben's Death (3:17); 8 The Funeral (1:54); 9 Midwich Shuffle (2:05); 10 Baptism (1:04); 11 Burning Desire (4:58); 12 Welcome Home, Ben (1:06); 13 The Brick Wall (3:22).

Review: This is indeed a rarity—a John Carpenter score with an orchestra! Although electronics still represent the principal instrumentation, Carpenter, along with Dave Davies of the pop group The Kinks, uses their modest resources to the fullest advantage. The theme for "The March of the Children" is perhaps Carpenter's strongest composition since his original main theme for Halloween. There's a steady advance of evil building in the music for this seemingly invincible army of super children bent on world domination. The sparse use of acoustics works well to remind us that the film has a larger scope, the tiny coastal town is but a microcosm simulation of a threat happening across the entire world. With it, Carpenter has really created one of his most elaborate and satisfying scores in years, featuring some of the most delightfully melodic passages ("The Fair," "The Children's Theme") he has ever written.

Volcano

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Volcano, 20th Century-Fox, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: William Ross, Mark McKenzie, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Kenneth Karmen; Orchestra conducted by Alan Silvestri; Synclavier Programming: Simon Franglen; Auricle Programming: David Bifano; Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:44); 2 Miracle Mile (3:59); 3 Tarnation (5:54); 4 Team Work (2:41); 5 Build A Wall (5:01); 6 March Of The Lava (3:42); 7 Roark's Missing (2:46); 8 Cleansing Rain (2:30).

Review: Somehow, the idea of using electronic music to score a film about a volcanic eruption works better than in most cases. Alan Silvestri effectively demonstrates how to do it, and how to do it well, in his score for this big box-office disaster. Early on, his cues, eerily ominous, yet melodically attractive, contrast life-as-usual and the impending threat of the eruption about to happen: the sense of danger is suggested by sharp, thrill electronic effects, over a building low-string motif that signals to anyone not yet aware of it that something's afoot. Once nature lashes its fury, the full forces of the orchestra join in, bringing the score to a smashing crescendo. Notably effective in this context is "March of the Lava," which shows the unstoppable progression of the river of fire as it submerges everything. By contrast, the almost peaceful "Cleansing Rain" brings the volatile score to an elegiac conclusion. At under 30 minutes of total playing time, the CD seems a little skimpy, but there is so much tense, expressive music contained that it seems just right.

Voyage of the Damned

1993, Label X; from the movie Voyage of the Damned, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: Lalo Schifrin; The London Studio Orchestra, conducted by Lalo Schifrin; Featured Musicians: Dorothy Remsen (harp), Ken Watson (percussion); Album Producer: John Steven Lasher; Engineers: Peter Granet, Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Continuum For Solo Harp (4:27); 2 Journeys For Percussion (22:24); VOYAGE OF THE DAMNED: 3 What's Past Is Past/Affirmation Of Love (2:51); 4 Lament (2:31); 5 The Arrival/Theme Of Hope (3:21); 6 The Captain/Goodbye Aunt Jenny/We Need Help (3:11); 7 So Many Things I Wanted To Say (2:08); 8 To Be A Woman (2:07); 9 Tragedy/Time Pulse (4:00); 10 Our Prayers Have Been Answered (2:17).

Review: Based on an eponymous novel by Gordon Thomas and Max Morgan-Witts, Voyage of the Damned recounts in stark details the true-life journey of Jewish refugees from the ravages of war-torn Europe, on board a ship that was denied landing authorization by the governments of several countries. The film elicited a chamber-like score from Schifrin who assigned various instruments to portray the central characters in the story, in a dark, reflective series of cues, built around a haunting central theme, that are powerfully evocative of the screen action. Two other compositions, "Continuum for Solo Harp," and the stretched-out "Journeys for Percussion," prove much too arid for listening enjoyment.

Wagons East!

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Wagons East!, Tri-Star Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Small; Orchestrations: Christopher Dedrick; Music Editor: Bunny Andrews; The Irish Film Orchestra, conducted by Michael Small; Album Producer: Michael Small; Engineer: Andrew Boland.

Selections: 1 The Trail Heads East (2:25); 2 The Wagonmaster (1:26); 3 The Name's Harlow (1:22); 4 Desert Journey (2:07); 5 Jeremiah's Canteen (1:29); 6 A Town Called Prosperity (1:58); 7 Harlow Leaves (:54); 8 River Crossing (1:54); 9 Memories (1:22); 10 Rock Ambush (1:27); 11 Julian's Gunfight (2:51); 12 Desperado Montage (:53); 13 In Indian Country (1:34); 14 Harlow Returns (:51); 15 Three Ring Fist Fight (3:11); 16 The Wagons Keep Rolling (1:06); 17 Land Rush Stampede (1:01); 18 Harlow's Romance (:48); 19 Finale (2:34); 20 Wagons East (1:32).

Review: This film, the remarkably unfunny tale of a wagon master who leads a bunch of fed-up settlers out of the old West and back to "civilization," got more press than it deserved simply because it was actor John Candy's last film before he died. For it, Michael Small created an agreeable enough western-flavored comedy score that relies too much on established cliches of the genre. Nice, but nothing remarkable or special to be recommended.

Waiting to Exhale

1996, Arista Records; from the movie Waiting to Exhale, 20th Century-Fox, 1996.

Album Notes: Songs: Babyface; String Arrangements: Jeremy Lubbock, Bill Ross; Featured Musicians: Babyface (synthesizers/ keyboards/guitars), Greg Philinganes, Alex Alessandroni (piano), Reggie Griffin, Michael Thompson (guitar), Nathan East (bass), Luis Conte, Paulinho da Costa, Larry Bunker (percussion), Brandon Fields, Reggie Griffin (saxophone), Bruce Dukov, Clayton Haslop (violin), Bob Becker (viola), Larry Corbell (cello); Album Producer: Babyface; Engineers: Brad Gilderman, Jon Gass.

Selections: 1 Exhale (Shoop Shoop)(3:24) Whitney Houston; 2 Why Does It Hurt So Bad (4:37) Whitney Houston; 3 Let It Flow (4:27) Toni Braxton; 4 It Hurts Like Hell (4:19) Aretha Franklin; 5 Sittin' Up In My Room (4:52) Brandy; 6 This Is How It Works (Babyface/L. Marie)(4:48) Sonja Marie; 10 All Night Long (4:31) SWV; 11 Wey U (4:32) Chante Moore; 12 My Love, Sweet Love (4:21) Patti LaBelle; 13 Kissing You (3:23) Faith Evans; 14 Love Will Be Waiting At Home (5:59) For Real; 15 How Could You Call Her Baby (5:09) Shanna; 16 Count On Me (Babyface/W. Houston/M. Houston)(4:26) Whitney Houston, Cece Winans.

Review: Whitney Houston brightens up the screen in this inspirational story about four women who are friends, and share the difficulties they encounter in their lives. Punctuating the action, and giving it a spin that is refreshingly enjoyable, the soundtrack features several songs, written by the ubiquitous Babyface, performed by some of today's best female performers, including Houston who demonstrates again in this album why she is one of the most interesting vocalists in pop music. A bright, easy listening collection that should enjoy a broad audience.

Walk, Don't Run

1991, Mainstream Records; from the movie Walk, Don't Run, Columbia Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Quincy Jones; Orchestrations: Leo Shuken, Jack Hayes; Vocal Orchestrations: Dick Hazard; The Columbia Studio Orchestra, conducted by Quincy Jones; Featured Musicians: Toots Thielemans (harmonica), Harry "Sweets" Edison (trumpet); Album Producer: Jackie Mills; Engineer: Jackie Mills.

Selections: WALK, DON'T RUN: 1 Happy Feet (2:09); 2 Stay With Me (2:53); 3 Copy Cat (Wack A Doo)(2:55); 4 Happy Feet (Q. Jones/P. Lee)(1:43) Don Elliot Voices; 5 Papa San (1:45); 6 Abso-Bleedin'-Lutely (2:45); 7 Stay With Me (Q. Jones/P. Lee)(2:18) Tony Clementi; 8 One More Time (2:46); 9 20th Century Drawers (3:06); 10 Locked Out (2:10); 11 Happy Feet (reprise)(1:38); 12 Rabelaisian Rutland (1:55); 13 One More Time (reprise)(:41);

THE ASPHALT JUNGLE: 14 Theme (E.K. Ellington)(2:56);

THE SHIRLEY TEMPLE TV SHOW: 15 Enchanted Melody (4:34); 16 Bus Stop (E. Morton)(3:00); 17 Cain's Hundred (J. Goldsmith)(4:28).

Review: A sleek, romantic comedy, with often brightly hilarious moments, Walk, Don't Run stars Cary Grant, as a British tycoon in Japan during the Olympics, who finds himself sharing a small apartment with a fastidious young English girl, Samantha Eggar, and an American athlete, Jim Hutton, much to the chagrin of Eggar's neighbors, puzzled and indignant over what they perceive as a menage-a-trois. Echoing the light moods cast in the film, Quincy Jones provided a delightful, slyly humorous score that perfectly captured the whimsical tone of the story. Rounding up the selections from the soundtrack are random tracks from other sources that are painfully out-of-context here, and disrupt the moods created by Quincy Jones' creations.

A Walk in the Clouds

1995, Milan Records; from the movie A Walk in the Clouds, 20th Century-Fox, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Music Editor: Dan Carlin Sr.; Orchestrations: Tom Pasatieri; Orchestra conducted by Maurice Jarre; Featured Musician: Liona Boyd (classical guitar solo); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Victoria (7:29); 2 Butterfly Wings (2:54); 3 The Harvest (3:01); 4 Crush In The Grapes (L. Brouwer/A. Arau) (2:17) Roberto Huerta, Juan Jimenez, Febronio Covarrubias, Ismael Gallegos; 5 First Kiss (3:15); 6 Mariachi Serenade (L. Brouwer/A. Arau) (2:49) Roberto Huerta, Juan Jimenez, Febronio Covarrubias, Ismael Gallegos; 7 Fire And Destruction (10:17); 8 A Walk In The Clouds (3:05).

Review: This romantic, Spanish-flavored orchestral work from Maurice Jarre follows the adventures of a young soldier, just returning from World War II, who agrees to pretend he is the husband of a pregnant woman whose family owns an idyllic Napa Valley winery. The score, which has an epic feel to it, is presented in several long symphonic suites, and is intercut with two songs with lyrics written by the film's director, Alphonse Arau.

Walk on the Wild Side

1991, Mainstream Records; from the movie Walk on the Wild Side, Columbia Pictures, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producer: Jackie Mills; Engineer: "Bones" Howe.

Selections: 1 Walk On The Wild Side (2:42); 2 Somewhere In The Used To Be (1:58); 3 Hallie's Jazz (3:30); 4 Rejected (3:43); 5 Doll House (2:35); 6 Teresina (1:52); 7 Night Theme (2:18); 8 Walk On The Wild Side Jazz (2:17); 9 Furnished Room (2:31); 10 Kitty (2:34); 11 Oliver (2:27); 12 Comfort Southern (1:41); 13 Finale (1:35); CD bonus tracks: 14 The Chase (from The Chase)(J. Barry)(1:30); 15 Cleopatra's Barge (from Cleopatra)(A. North)(2:35); 16 Theme from A Girl Named Tamiko (E. Bernstein)(2:21); 17 Theme from Two Weeks In Another Town (D. Raksin)(2:15); 18 The Man With The Golden Arm (from The Man With The Golden Arm)(E. Bernstein)(2:48).

Review: Nelson Algren's naturalistic novel, A Walk on the Wild Side, elicited a turbulent, unpredictable and exciting score from Elmer Bernstein, when it was brought to the screen in 1962. Set in New Orleans in the 1930s, and starring Laurence Harvey, Jane Fonda and Barbara Stanwyck in the principal roles, it involves a young man from Texas, looking for the girl he had left behind, and eventually finding her in a bordello run by a lesbian madam. The jazz-influenced score Bernstein wrote evoked the seamy underside of the film's locale and situations, bringing to mind the powerful score he had written a few years earlier for The Man with the Golden Arm, but without the benefit of an equally strong main theme. Still, a strong, flavorful music that has held very well all these years, and displays many ingratiating charms.

Walker

1987, Virgin Records; from the movie Walker, Universal Pictures, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Joe Strummer; String and Horn Arrangements: Joe Strummer, Dick Bright; Guitar Arrangements: Zander Schloss; Featured Musicians: Zander Schloss (guitar, charanga, vuhela, banjo, guitarron, tambour), Rebecca Mauleon (piano, organ), Michael Spiro (congos, bongos, timbales, percussion), Rich Girard (bass), Richard Zobel (harmonica, mandolin, banjo), Mary Fettig (saxophone, flute), Dick Bright (country fiddle, violin), Michael Hatfield (marimba, vibes, piano organ), David Bendigkiet, John Worley (trumpet), Dean Hubbard (trombone), John Tenney, Dean Franke (violin), Susan Chan (viola), Stephen Mitchell (snare drum), Dan Levin (fast piano), Sam Lehmer (bass drum), Joe Strummer, Richard Zobel (vocals); Album Producer: Joe Strummer; Engineer: Sam Lehmer.

Selections: 1 Filibustero (3:57); 2 Omotepe (3:46); 3 Sandstorm (1:56); 4 Machete (3:04); 5 Viperland (2:40); 6 Nica Libre (3:15); 7 Latin Romance (3:52); 8 The Unknown Immortal (3:45); 9 Musket Waltz (2:38); 10 The Brooding Side Of Madness (3:02); 11 Tennessee Rain (2:54); 12 Smash Everything (3:21); 13 Tropic Of No Return (3:09); 14 Tropic Of Pico (4:26).

Review: Joe Strummer's exotically limned score for this adventure film set in Nicaragua in the middle of the 19th century relies on its tropical rhythms to evoke the time and the place, and attract the listener. It succeeds beautifully. This story of an American adventurer who, with the financial support of Cornelius Vanderbilt, invaded Nicaragua in 1855 at the head of a band of mercenary and set out to become president of the country, found a deep, resonant echo in Strummer's idealistic score, with each cue elaborating on the storyline and giving it an appropriately epic tone, while the many percussion instruments and rhythmic accents anchor it in its specific locale. Highly enjoyable, with many melodic themes that catch one's interest, it is a rare treat, and though probably difficult to find (it was issued ten years ago and was only briefly available), it is well worth looking for.

Walking Thunder

1996, JOS Records; from the movie Walking Thunder, Majestic Entertainment, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Munich Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:45); 2 Main Titles/A Son's Sacrifice (2:46); 3 Summer 1850 (2:08); 4 Stranded (5:40); 5 Dark Wind Recounts The Legend (2:29); 6 Journey To Horsecreek (6:56); 7 Horsecreek Rendezvous: Turkey Strut/Darling Rosalinde/ Horsecreek Quadrille (6:16); 8 Trouble In Horsecreek (1:13); 9 The Return Journey (5:45); 10 How To Survive With Nature (2:12); 11 Forest Secrets (4:34); 12 The Bad Bunch (2:48); 13 Utah (1:39); 14 A New Life/The Final Reckoning (10:22); 15 Dark Wind Fulfills His Destiny (1:35); 16 The Legend Of Walking Thunder (2:35).

Review: Although the setting is the old West of 1850, John Scott passes on most conventional genre methods and instead focuses his score on the personal story of one family's decision to start a new life in the Utah wilderness after a bear attacks and disables their covered wagon. They eventually meet and befriend a Native American, Dark Wind, who tells them the legend of Walking Thunder, the giant bear. Scott plays out each of the major factors now in the family's life, the vast expanses of their new home, their budding friendships with the neighbors, and the threat from a roving band of marauders. One of Scott's few concessions to the idiom is the use of a motif for Dark Wind, based on an actual Native American melody, that the actor playing the character sings in the film. There is also a superb theme for the villains, humorously titled "The Bad Bunch," which is an exuberant tip of the hat to genre masters Ennio Morricone and Jerry Fielding. Oddly, the first part of the six-minute suite "Horsecreek Rendezvous," the "Turkey Strut," includes an overlay of ambient crowd noise.

Wall Street/Salvador

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movies Wall Street, 20th Century-Fox, 1987; and Salvador, Cinema '85, 1985.

Album Notes: Wall Street: Music: Stewart Copeland; Performer: Stewart Copeland; Salvador: Music: Georges Delerue; The Vancouver Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Georges Delerue; Album Producers: Tom Null, Richard Kraft; Engineers: Jeff Seitz, Judd Levinson.

Selections: WALL STREET: 1 Bud's Scam (2:46); 2 Are You With Me (1:10); 3 Trading Begins (2:43); 4 The Tall Weeds (2:58); 5 Break-Up (Darian)(1:48); 6 Anacott Steal (2:56); 7 End Title Theme (1:07);

SALVADOR: 8 Main Title (2:16); 9 El Playon (2:20); 10 Siege Of Santa Ana (3:00); 11 Goodbye, Maria (1:26); 12 At The Border (1:01); 13 Road Block (1:13); 16 Love Theme/Finale (4:00).

Review: Two scores from early Oliver Stone films are offered on this CD. Stewart Copeland's Wall Street is one of the sorriest excuses for a film score ever. A sufficiently talented rock and roll drummer, Copeland is rather less adept at the musical demands of melody and counterpoint. His "score" for Wall Street is not so much music as it is musical sound effects (and even resorts to using sampled dog barking!), and is the work of someone of dubious musical inclination cloaking his deficiencies by using sophisticated synthesizers. Any amateur tinkering with a keyboard could have achieved as good a result.

On the other hand, Georges Delerue's Salvador is a work of genius. Delerue was a master of melody and rich orchestration. Like most Oliver Stone films, Salvador was an infantile, pretentious rant, but it allowed Delerue a departure from his usual assignments, calling for strident, violent music (he was better known for lyrical scores). Admittedly the more dissonant cues do not work quite so well on an album. But Delerue's tragic end title for strings and chorus is one of the most longingly heartfelt evocations of tragedy ever written for a movie. This track alone makes the CD worth owning.

The War

1994, MCA Records; from the movie The War, Universal Pictures, 1994.

Selections: 1 Peace Train (Cat Stevens)(4:09) Cat Stevens; 2 Think (A. Franklin/T. White)(2:16) Aretha Franklin; 3 Summertime (from Porgy And Bess) (G. & I. Gershwin/D. Heyward)(3:58) Janis Joplin; 4 Daydream (J. Sebastian) (2:19) The Lovin' Spoonful; 5 Sunny (B. Hebb)(2:40) Bobby Hebb; 6 Spirit In The Sky (N. Greenbaum)(4:00) Norman Greenbaum; 7 Follow (J. Merrick) (6:20) Richie Havens; 8 Up On Cripple Creek (R. Robertson)(4:29) The Band; 9 Someday We'll Be Together (H. Fuqua/J. Bristol/J. Beavers)(3:29) Diana Ross & The Supremes; 10 Juliette (3:10); 11 Trolley (2:02); 12 The War (Main Title)(1:13); 13 Hornets (:52); 14 Resuscitation (1:33); 15 Gone Again (2:39); 16 Life Be A Bowlful (1:26); 17 2nd Vietnam (6:13); 18 Junkyard Billy (1:08); 19 Dare (2:32); 20 Hospital (2:33); 21 Angel Pen (3:35).

Review: Set in Mississippi, this sensitive tale of a Vietnam War veteran, disillusioned about everything that he once held dear, and his teenage boy, provided Thomas Newman with the right motivation to write a score that subtly underlined the moods in the film, while making a deep, emotional comment of its own. The beautifully lyrical "Main Theme" and the lengthy "2nd Vietnam" summarize the basic elements in the score, with the strong orchestral motifs outlining the prevalent feelings of loneliness, abandonment and deception, both the vet (played by Kevin Costner), and his son (Elijah Wood), experience to varying degrees and for obviously totally different reasons. It's a very evocative score, with flashes of orchestral gusto, and themes that are particularly meaningful. A selection of pop tunes help set the drama in its appropriate time period.

War and Peace

1988, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie War and Peace, Paramount Pictures, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Nino Rota; Orchestra conducted by Franco Ferrara; CD Producers: Tom Null, Richard Kraft; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Prelude (4:43); 2 The Orgy (1:51); 3 Andrei Leaving For The War/Pierre And Natasha (2:33); 4 The Battle Of Austerlitz (3:32); 5 Moment Musical/Andrei And Natasha/The Hunt (5:31); 6 War And Peace (Natasha's Waltz)(1:59); 7 Anatole And Natasha (3:44); 8 Winter And The Remembrance Of Andrei (4:03); 9 The Charge Of The Cavalry And The Wounded (4:11); 10 Exodus From Moscow (3:16); 11 Napoleon's Retreat (3:59); 12 The Homecoming At Moscow (4:15).

Review: Nino Rota, best known in this country for the scores he wrote for the films of Federico Fellini and for The Godfather, struck a different, original note early in his career for this Napoleonic era romantic saga based on Leo Tolstoy's familiar novel. With the radiant Audrey Hepburn portraying Natasha, Mel Ferrer the handsome Prince Andrey, and Henry Fonda the bespectacled student Pierre, the King Vidor-directed film splashed across the big screen with scenic grandeur and an epic feel that echoed the passionate scope of the book. Opulent and magnificently mounted, the production also afforded Rota with many set-pieces where his lyrical inspiration took a free flight ("The Battle of Austerlitz," "The Charge of the Cavalry," "Exodus from Moscow," "Napoleon's Retreat"), all of which resulted in cues that are still impressively dramatic and powerfully appealling today. One of the film's most ravishing scenes, a whirling ballroom sequence, inspired him to create a lilting waltz ("War and Peace") as fresh and lovely as anything he wrote for the screen, that beautifully captured the giddy atmosphere of the situation. Despite the fact that the recording is in mono, it has all the sweep and magnificence one associates with this superproduction.

The War Lord

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie The War Lord, Universal Pictures, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Jerome Moross; The Universal Studio Orchestra, conducted by Joseph Gershenson; CD Producer: Robert Townson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:15); 2 Forsaken Village (1:46); 3 Love Theme (2:22); 4 The Ascent To The Tower and Frustrated Love (3:33); 5 The Druid Wedding (2:50); 6 Nocturnal Procession (2:34); 7 Chrysagon And Bronwyn (2:13); 8 The War Lord In Battle (H.J. Salter)(3:17); 9 Premonitions (2:13); 10 The Death Of Draco (H.J. Salter)(1:48); 11 The Reckoning and End Title (4:05).

Review: An impressive medieval epic, The War Lord found in Jerome Moross a sympathetic, inventive composer who evidently thrived on this story set in the 11th century, about a war lord of the Duke Of Normandy, fighting the Vikings around the North Sea coast countryside, and the strong, abiding love he feels for a young woman from the Druid village he is defending against the invading hordes. Instead of writing a swashbuckling score, as most composers would have done, Moross took the opposite approach, focusing first on the love story between the Lord, played by Charlton Heston, and the village maiden, portrayed by Rosemary Forsyth, occasionally interrupting the "wistful translucence" with action cues designed to underline the violent confrontations between the Lord, his men and the marauding Vikings. Two cues, composed by Hans J. Salter on themes provided by Moross, add a somewhat different, though nonetheless effective feel to the overall score.

War of the Buttons

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie War of the Buttons, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; The Irish Film Orchestra, conducted by David Snell; Album Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: Brian Masterson.

Selections: 1 Front Titles (4:34); 2 Murphy's Dunes Mobilization (1:28); 3 Chasing The Fox (3:30); 4 Night Maneuvers (1:18); 5 Battle Of Murphy's Dunes (1:16); 6 Fergus Is Captured (2:22); 7 Naked Battle (4:11); 8 Fishy's Mushrooms (1:16); 9 Buttons (1:29); 10 Battle Of Bunduff Castle (7:32); 11 Fergus Hides In The Woods (2:09); 12 Helicopter Rescue (4:16); 13 Pillow Fight/End Titles (3:43).

Review: In an early demonstration of the skills that have since singled her out as a vastly talented film composer, Rachel Portman created the flavorful score for this enjoyable screen adaptation of the French novel by Louis Pergaud, La guerre des boutons. Set in Ireland, and opposing two groups of youngsters with a common ideal, War of the Buttons suggested to Portman a series of whimsical cues that followed the action on the screen, with a flurry of delightful little details that made her score even more appealling than the slight film would have suggested ("Battle Of Murphy's Dunes"). As usual with her scores, the music takes a life of its own when removed from its original supportive role, and in this case becomes an enchanting program one might like to return to frequently.

Warlock

1989, Intrada Records; from the movie Warlock, New World Pictures, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Robin Gray.

Selections: 1 The Sentence (4:03); 2 Ill Wind (2:06); 3 The Ring (2:16); 4 The Trance (5:31); 5 Old Age (4:10); 6 Growing Pains (5:34); 7 The Weather Vane (5:01); 8 Nails (4:24); 9 The Uninvited (4:54); 10 Salt Water Attack (8:42); 11 The Salt Flats (7:07).

IRVING BERLIN

Although he was born in Russia, Irving Berlin created songs that epitomize American music. During his lifetime, Berlin published more than one thousand songs, some failures and many successes; some have been forgotten, and some, such as "White Christmas" and "God Bless America," will be remembered always. Berlin could not read music, but he is one of the 20th century's most beloved composers.

Berlin's life began in poverty. He was born Israel Baline on May 11, 1888. In 1907 he published his first song, "Marie From Sunny Italy." The artist who drew the cover for the printed music of the song misprinted his name as I. Berlin; thinking the name sounded more American than Israel Baline, the composer renamed himself Irving Berlin.

In 1909 he got his first Tin Pan Alley job, as lyricist for the publishing firm of Waterson & Snyder. In 1911 he published "Alexander's Ragtime Band," which immediately thrust him into songwriting fame; his song was such a hit that he was instantly dubbed the "King of Tin Pan Alley."

In 1914 Berlin wrote his first complete Broadway musical, Watch Your Step. When sound came to moving pictures in 1929, Berlin began to write film scores. His first two films, Puttin' on the Ritz and Cocoanuts, were adaptations of Broadway shows. His next film, Top Hat (1935) was written expressly for Hollywood. More films followed including Holiday Inn, which contains the song that has sold more recordings than any other, "White Christmas."

When the Second World War broke out in Europe, Berlin needed to make a musical statement. When Kate Smith sang Berlin's "God Bless America" on November 11, 1938, the country gained a new—if unofficial—national anthem. Berlin continued writing until the early '60s. He died on September 22, 1989.

Review: Everybody has a bad day once in awhile, and Jerry Goldsmith must have had a very difficult couple of weeks trying to come up with material to score Warlock, the 1989 New World production that was shelved for a couple of years when the studio went bankrupt. Not that the movie – a mixture of horrific fantasy and tongue-in-cheek "fish out of water" comedy – gave the composer much to work with, but for whatever reason, Goldsmith wrote a tremendously dull, synthesizer-laden score with a pokey-sounding main motive offering neither horror, fantasy, nor anything musically interesting to entice listeners or viewers. The bulk of the music is, particularly for Goldsmith, atypically atonal and very blah; needless to say, the composer didn't return for the movie's needless follow-up.

Warlock: The Armageddon

1993, Intrada Records; from the movie Warlock: The Armageddon, Trimark Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Mark McKenzie; Orchestrations: Pat Russ, Mark McKenzie; Music Editor: Jim Young; The Southwest Symphony Orchestra and Choir, conducted by Mark McKenzie; Album Producer: Mark McKenzie; Engineer: Elliot Solomon.

Selections: 1 The Battle Has Just Begun (4:57); 2 Swimming (2:09); 3 Birth Of The Warlock (3:16); 4 Ken's Magic (3:13); 5 May I Help You Sir? (3:35); 6 Give Me The Stopnes (2:33); 7 Samantha And Ken's Love (2:10); 8 Party Crasher (2:25); 9 Samantha Becomes A Warrior (2:34); 10 Ken's New Life (4:09); 11 Warlock Gathers The Stones (2:16); 12 Armageddon Averted (3:21); 13 A Warlock Fantasia (4:03).

Review: A Requiem mass for disembodied voices and symphonic orchestra sets the tone for this horrific tale, unrelated to the earlier thriller, in which an evil emissary of Satan in a small Northern California community engages in fierce territorial battle with two descendants of 17th century Druids with the power to destroy him. McKenzie's score, contrasting the horror with more lyrical accents, proves very endearing overall. The themes are for the most part quite melodic ("Ken's Magic," "Samantha and Ken's Love"), and paint a vivid picture of the screen action. Recapping the main themes into a single cue, "A Warlock Fantasia" concludes the CD on a bright, positive note. The only real fault here is with the sound quality which emphasizes the highs and defeats the lows, resulting in thin-sounding strings and very little bottom to what should sometimes be a booming recording.

Warning Sign

1985, Southern Cross Records; from the movie Warning Sign, 20th Century-Fox, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Craig Safan; Album Producer: Craig Safan; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Main Title: Biotek (1:22); 2 Joanie Forced To Talk (1:24); 3 The Disease Takes Hold (1:16); 4 The Massacre (4:27); 5 Joanie Protects Schmidt (1:31); 6 Fairchild And Morse Break Into Biotek (2:15); 7 Joanie Fights (2:10); 8 Joanie Runs (1:57); 9 Discovery Of Serum (2:43); 10 Loading The Serum Guns (1:06); 11 Fighting And Curing (5:12); 12 All Is Well (2:45); 13 End Title (3:19).

Review: A creepy ambient synthesized score by Craig Safan effectively uses a non-thematic minimalist approach, ala The Andromeda Strain, for this tale of a chemical spill in a germ warfare lab. Interesting sound design, with an occasional new age theme, it has its moments, but it sounds very repetitious, and wears out its welcome too soon to hold any interest for long, unless you're really prepared to experience something different.

Waterworld

1995, MCA Records; from the movie Waterworld, Universal Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Jeff Atmajian, Robert Elhai, Chris Boardman, James Newton Howard; Music Editor: Jim Weidman; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Featured Musicians: Steve Porcaro, James Newton Howard (synth and drum programming), Katrin Kern (vocalist), The L.A. Master Chorale, Paul Salamunovich, director; Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (4:43); 2 Escaping The Smokers (3:49); 3 The Atoll (1:42); 4 Prodigal Child (1:54); 5 Smokers Sighted (2:10); 6 Swimming (4:15); 7 The Skyboat (3:54); 8 National Geographics (1:46); 9 Speargun (1:44); 10 The Bubble (3:23); 11 Helen Frees The Mariner (3:27); 12 Helen Sews (:50); 13 Slide For Life (4:51); 14 Half An Hour (4:36); 15 We're Gonna Die (2:02); 16 Arriving At The Deez (4:28); 17 Deacon's Speech (3:52); 18 Haircuts (1:32); 19 Gills (1:59); 20 Why Aren't You Rowing? (2:38); 21 Balloon Flight (:48); 22 Dry Land (1:48); 23 Mariner's Goodbye (3:15); 24 Main Credits (2:18).

Review: James Newton Howard did a yeoman's job coming in at the last minute to replace Mark Isham's original score for Waterworld, Kevin Costner's super-troubled 1995 sci-fi adventure that nevertheless boasted a number of bright spots – chief among them being Newton Howard's soundtrack. With a tone that ranges from new age-styled synthesizers to rousing, Korngold-inspired action cues, Newton Howard's score maintains a fine balance between being a musical underscore and a major player in Kevin Reynolds' film, often times helping to define the relationship between the various characters in the story and their fight against the evil Deacon (played with great relish by Dennis Hopper). The music is a lot of fun on its own, and works as an enjoyable soundtrack for listeners who typically enjoy large-scale action scores.

Wavelength

1983, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Wavelength, New World Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Chris Franke, Edgar Froese, Johannes Schmoelling; Album Producers: Tangerine Dream; Engineers: Tangerine Dream.

Selections: 1 Alien Voices (:19); 2 Wavelength Main Title (1:56); 3 Desert Drive (2:05); 4 Mojave End Title (4:03); 5 Healing (2:26); 6 Breakout (1:13); 7 Alien Goodbyes (1:51); 8 Spaceship (2:25); 9 Church Theme (3:46); 10 Sunset Drive (3:27); 11 Airshaft (3:15); 12 Alley Walk (2:57); 13 Cyro Lab (2:20); 14 Running Through The Hills (1:36); 15 Campfire Theme (1:28); 16 Mojave End Title (reprise)(3:56).

Review: Tangerine Dream took a very lyrical approach to score this futuristic film, though the minimalist electronic style of the score might not be to everyone's liking. Occasionally ("Main Title," "Alien Goodbyes"), the themes developed are remarkably effective, with acoustic and electronic instruments forming a melodic texture that's quite attractive. More accessible than many of the group's efforts, the score makes a very convincing case for the use of electronics in certain situations.

Wayne's World

Wayne's World

1991, Reprise Records; from the movie Wayne's World, Paramount Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Roy Thomas Baker, Gary Lyons, Tom Keifer, David Garrison, Gary Wright, Ted Templeman, Rick Rubin, Black Sabbath, G.E. Smith, Peter Collins,Lenny Waronker; Album Executive Producers: Michael Ostin, Ted Templeman.

Selections: 1 Bohemian Rhapsody (F. Mercury) (5:58) Queen; 2 Hot And Bothered (T. Keifer/E. Brillingham) (4:17) Cinderella; 3 Rock Candy (R. Montrose/S. Hagar/B. Church/D. Carnassi) (5:04) BulletBoys; 4 Dream Weaver (G. Wright) (4:26) Gary Wright; 5 Sikamikanico (A. Kiedis/J. Frusciante/C. Smith) (3:25) Red Hot Chili Peppers; 6 Time Machine (G. Butler/R. James/T. Iommi) (4:20) Black Sabbath; 7 Wayne World's Theme (M. Myers/G.E. Smith) (5:15) Mike Myers, Dana Carvey; 8 Ballroom Blitz (M. Chapman/N. Chinn) (3:30) Tia Carrere; 9 Foxy Lady (J. Hendrix) (3:19) Jimi Hendrix; 10 Feed My Frankenstein (A. Cooper/N. Coler/I. Richardson) (4:46) Alice Cooper; 11 Ride With Yourself (G. Fields/G. Dolivo) (3:16) Rhino Bucket; 12 Loving Your Lovin' (J. Williams) (3:55) Eric Clapton; 13 Why You Wanna Break My Heart (D. Twilley) (3:33) Tia Carrere.

Review: This Saturday Night Live bit clicked in a big way, and hambone guitar rock is a big part of the schtick. We'll never again be able to listen to Queen's "Bohemian Rhapsody" without remembering the cast's hysterical lip-syncing routine, and the film gave Gary Wright's "Dream Weaver" a new life, too. And, of course, it gives us the "Wayne's World Theme" performed by Mike Myers and Dana Carvey. Party on, dudes.

1993, Reprise Records; from the movie Wayne World's 2, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Robert Plant, Gin Blossoms, Bernard Edwards, Kenny Laguna, Ricthcie Cordell, Erik Jacobsen, J. Mascis, 4 Non Blondes, Golden Earring, Edgar Winter, Jacques Morali; Album Executive Producers: Peter Afterman, Michael Ostin; Engineer: Stephen Marcussen.

Selections: 1 Louie, Louie (R. Berry) (2:54) Robert Plant; 2 Dude (Looks Like A Lady) (S. Tyler/J. Perry/D. Child) (5:05) Aerosmith; 3 Idiot Summer (Gin Blossoms) (4:13) Gin Blossoms; 4 Superstar (L. Russell/B. Bramlett) (3:53) Superfan; 5 I Love Rock And Roll (A. Merrill/J. Hooker) (2:56) Joan Jett & The Blackhearts; 6 Spirit In The Sky (N. Greenbaum) (4:02) Norman Greenbaum; 7 Out There (J. Mascis) (5:55) Dinosaur Jr.; 8 Mary's House (L. Perry/S. Hall) (4:04) 4 Non Blondes; 9 Radar Love (G. Kooymans/B. Hay) (5:05) Golden Earring; 10 Can't Get Enough (M. Ralphs) (4:15) Bad Company; 11 Frankenstein (E. Winter) (4:44) Edgar Winter; 12 Shut Up And Dance (S. Tyler/J. Perry/J. Blades/T. Shaw) (3:44) Aerosmith; 13 Y.M.C.A. (H. Belolo/J. Morali/V. Willis) (4:49) Village People.

Review: Not quite as successful as its predecessor, mostly because the film wasn't as big a hit. This is still a good compendium of guitar rock, though, and even artfully makes connections between the crunch of Bad Company's "Can't Get Enough" from the '70s and the woozy attack of Dinosaur Jr.'s "Out There" from the '90s. Led Zeppelin singer Robert Plant doesn't sound like his heart is into covering "Louie Louie," and a couple of overexposed songs—the Village People's "YMCA" and Norman Greenbaum's "Spirit in the Sky" don't add much to the proceedings, either.

Weeds

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Weeds, De Laurentiis Entertainment, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Angelo Badalamenti; Orchestrations: Angelo Badalamenti, Joe Turrin, Andy Barrett; The Australian Pops Orchestra, conducted by Angelo Badalamenti; Album Producer: Angelo Badalamenti.

Selections: 1 Unity And Harmony (3:48); 2 We're Movin' Together (1:47); 3 From Hell To Freedom To Love (3:54); 4 Navarro Dies (2:53); 5 San Quentin Riot (3:23); 6 Theatre Dreams (:43); 7 Letters From The Outside (2:39); 8 Trilogy For Godot (3:29); 9 Elation Turns To Sorrow (1:57); 10 Irony In The Yard (2:03); 11 Mysteries Of Love (A. Badalamenti/D. Lynch)(3:26); 12 I Wanna Go Home (M. Etheridge)(1:46); 13 Texas Tankard (3:17); 14 Pimp Song (O. Stoeber/ A. Mitchell)(1:19); 15 Lock And Key (R. Peasless/O. Stoeber/A. Mitchell) (1:36); 16 We're Movin' Together (1:36).

Review: Normally known for his unconventional work on Twin Peaks, Angelo Badalamenti's score for this Nick Nolte film about a prison acting troupe is the complete contradiction in style and content. Done mostly in a classical style, the music for Weeds has a realistic, down-to-earth emotional temperament. Since the major characters in the ensemble are ex-cons, the music romanticizes them as lost souls whose only freedom is found within their enthusiasm for acting. Badalamenti does a fine job in creating this moving mix of passion and pathos. Latter part of the album contains instrumental tracks by other composers, including Melissa Etheridge ("I Wanna Go Home") and Twin Peaks director David Lynch ("Mysteries of Love").

Welcome Home Roxy Carmichael

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Welcome Home Roxy Carmichael, Paramount Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 In A Closet (1:46); 2 Little Black Bird (1:23); 3 Hers Are Nicest (1:10); 4 Refrigerator Shrine (2:37); 5 Missing Bossetti Child (:56); 6 Wake Up (1:27); 7 Clyde (1:45); 8 Her Limousine (1:57); 9 Several Letters (1:13); 10 Choke It (2:18); 11 Arriving By Aeroplane (:57); 12 Cleveland (1:13); 13 Yours Are Nice (:41); 14 Baby Soup (2:57); 15 In A Beauty Parlor (:36); 16 G. On A Bike (1:06); 17 Her Majesty's Dress (1:23); 18 This Was My Intention (2:30); 19 In A Small Town (1:33).

Review: Winona Ryder made a striking impression in this film, in which she portrays a 15-year-old adopted nymphet with a rebellious streak, who lives in a small Ohio town suddenly set abuzz with the impending return of Roxy Carmichael, a local girl who has made good as a Hollywood actress. With a sprinkling of electronics, and a deft complement of acoustic instruments, Newman fashioned a score which is a trifle arid, even as it attempts to give support to the screen action. An occasionally attractive track emerges from the ensemble ("Choke It," "In a Beauty Parlor"), but for the most part it's more atmosphere stuff than melodic programming, something which works against the CD as pure musical entertainment.

We're Back

1993, MCA Records; from the animated feature We're Back! A Dinosaur's Story, Universal Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Don Davis, Arthur Kempel, Tom Pasatieri; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Horner; Featured Musicians: Charlie Davis, Doug Sharf (trumpet); Iki Levy (drums/ percussion); Thomas Dolby (keyboards); Jon E. Love, Will Ray (guitars); Pasquale Zicari (sax/flute); William Henn (bass); Skip Edwards (piano); Album Producers: James Horner, Thomas Dolby; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Primeval Times (4:14); 2 Flying Forward In Time (5:48); 3 Welcome To New York (2:26); 4 First Wish, First Flight (3:48); 5 A Hint Of Trouble/The Contract (1:49); 6 Roll Back The Rock (To The Dawn Of Time)(J. Horner/ T. Dolby)(2:55) John Goodman; 7 Grand Slam Demons (2:05); 8 Hot Pursuit (3:18); 9 Central Park (1:21); 10 Screweyes's Circus/Opening Act (1:12); 11 Circus (2:29); 12 Fright Radio/ Rex's Sacrifice (6:39); 13 Grand Demon Parade (7:39); 14 The Kids Wake Up/A New Day (2:57); 15 The Transformation (5:30); 16 Special Visitors To The Museum Of Natural History (2:12); 17 Roll Back The Rock (To The Dawn Of Time)(J. Horner/T. Dolby)(2:56) Little Richard.

Review: When four cuddly monsters from the dinosaur age fly forward in time to the 20th century, what do you get but a brightly amusing animated feature, courtesy of Steven Spielberg, and a wonderful score to match, composed by James Horner. Not exactly Jurassic Park, but close! Frequently exhilarating and whimsical, the motifs created by the composer follow the story while giving musical life to the animated characters that inhabit it, sometimes in portraits that are vividly sketched and amusingly detailed. As is frequently the case with Horner, some cues are extremely profuse, enabling his creativity to better express itself, while his lush, florid style takes full advantage of the colorful orchestral palette in themes that are always quite attractive and enjoyable. There are many, many delightful moments in this score, beginning with the explicit "Main Title/ Primeval Times," but encompassing such ingenious stops as "Welcome to New York," "Hot Pursuit," "Grand Demon Parade," and the jaunty "Special Visitors to the Museum of Natural History." Little Richard's rollicking performance of "Roll Back the Rock (To the Dawn of Time)" adds a tongue-in-cheek coda to the recording that is not even out of place.

The Whales of August

1987, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Whales of August, Nelson Films/Alive Films, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Price; Orchestrations: Derek Wadsworth; Orchestra conducted by Derek Wadsworth; Album Producer: Alan Price.

Selections: 1 The Whales Of August (1:31); 2 The Morning Walk (1:12); 3 Sarah And Mr. Maranov (:43); 4 In The Winter, In St. Petersburg (:35); 5 Remembering/Libby And Sarah (3:58); 6 Sisters (1:22); 7 Have You Seen The Whales? (1:48); 8 Mr. Maranov (:44); 9 The Whales Of August (reprise)(1:03); 10 First Date (1:46); 11 We're Not Leaving Home, Philip (1:00); 12 Mr. Maranov's Farewell (1:12); 13 The Whales Should Be Back (1:28); 14 Towards The Point (:44); 15 Libby And Sarah: The Old Stereopticon (:39); 16 Hairbrushing/Tisha's Theme (1:59); 17 Flowers For Sarah (:41); 18 Anniversary (3:02); 19 You Can Never Tell (End Titles)(2:09).

Review: This is a delightful orchestral score composed by Alan Price for the 1987 screen adaption of David Berry's stage play about two aging sisters in a seaside Maine house (Bette Davis and Lillian Gish in her last film). The film is a simple, albeit compelling story of the waning years of life, that inspired Price to emphasize the women's strength and dignity, the things that have served them well all their lives. He fashioned slow, careful melodies for them, but the score gets some energy in the themes for the whales. The sisters eagerly await the return of these magnificent creatures who appear each August. Price also provides a distraction, an ethnic theme for the elderly Russian emigre, Mr. Maranov (Vincent Price). Unfortunately, because the film was based on a dialogue-driven play, the score is only a mere 28 minutes long. I was left wishing for more, but it's still an engaging delight. Derek Wadsworth, who composed the score for the second season of the Space: 1999 television series arranged and conducted the score.

When a Man Loves a Woman

1994, Hollywood Records; from the movie When a Man Loves a Woman, Touchstone Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Zbigniew Preisner; The Sinfonia Varsovia, conducted by Wojciech Michniewski; Featured Soloists: Tomasz Stanko (trumpet), Konrad Mastylo (piano); Album Producer: Zbigniew Preisner; Engineers: Rafal Packowski; Assistant Engineers: Leszek Kaminski, Geoff Foster.

Selections: 1 When A Man Loves A Woman (A. Wright/C. Lewis)(2:51) Percy Sledge; 2 Crazy Love (V. Morrison)(3:47) Brian Kennedy; 3 El gusto (Son Huasteco)(E. Ramirez)(2:56) Los Lobos; 4 Main Title (2:00); 5 Garbage Compulsion (1:27); 6 Homecoming (2:23); 7 I Hit Her Hard (3:35); 8 Dressing Casey (1:23); 9 Gary (2:02); 10 Michael Decides (:57); 11 Alice And Michael (1:04).

Review: A solid melodrama starring Meg Ryan as an alcoholic woman and Andy Garcia as the man who stands by her in spite of all the scorn and abuse he has to endure, When a Man Loves a Woman elicited a wonderful score from Zbigniew Preisner, who developed his own themes rather than use the well-known pop song performed by Percy Sledge (appropriately heard here as the opening track). A veritable recital of gorgeous love motifs, sensitively written and performed, the mesmerizing cues unfold with great serenity, belying the tension and turmoil in the narrative. "Crazy Love" by Brian Kennedy, and "El gusto" by Los Lobos add a different, though equally welcome note.

When Harry Met Sally...

1989, Columbia Records; from the movie When Harry Met Sally..., Castle Rock Entertainment, 1989.

Album Notes: Orchestrations: Marc Shaiman; Featured Performers: Harry Connick, Jr. (piano, vocals), Benjamin Jonah Wolfe (bass), Jeff "Tain" Watts (drums), Frank Wess (tenor sax), Jay Berliner (acoustic guitar); Album Producers: Marc Shaiman, Harry Connick Jr.; Engineer: Tim Geelan.

Selections: 1 It Had To Be You (I. Jones/G. Kahn)(with big band and vocals) (2:42); 2 Our Love Is Here To Stay (G. & I. Gershwin)(4:13); 3 Stompin' At The Savoy (B. Goodman/C. Webb/E. Sampson)(4:17); 4 But Not For Me (G. & I. Gershwin)(4:34); 5 Winter Wonderland (F. Bernard/D. Smith)(3:05); 6 Don't Get Around Much Anymore (E.K. Ellington/B. Russell)(4:24); 7 Autumn In New York (V. Duke)(2:50); 8 I Could Write A Book (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(2:31); 9 Let's Call The Whole Thing Off (G. & I. Gershwin)(4:14); 10 It Had To Be You (I. Jones/G. Kahn)(instrumental trio)(1:44); 11 Where Or When (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(3:53).

Review: This CD, titled Music from the Motion Picture When Harry Met Sally, is a true enigma. While When Harry Met Sally launched Harry Connick, Jr.'s impressive commercial career, he did not (as is suggested by the title of the album, and the cover art, cleverly taken from the film) perform all of the songs in the movie. What's missing here are Frank Sinatra's gorgeous rendition of the film's most important song, "It Had to Be You," and a number of other numbers that were performed in the film by Ella Fitzgerald, Louis Armstrong and other top musical talents.

So, in a sense, this CD release is misleading. No matter. When Harry Met Sally is a witty, whimsical tale—the quintessential "New York" love story—and Connick's cover version is excellent, replete with some of the very finest standards, pleasingly sung and performed, that perfectly complement the tender, romantic plot that Rob Reiner lovingly brought to the screen.

When We Were Kings

1997, DAS/Mercury Records; from the documentary When We Were Kings, Gramercy Pictures, 1997.

Album Notes: Album Executive Producers: David Sonenberg, Scot McCracken.

Selections: 1 Rumble In The Jungle (W. Jean/P. Michel/L. Hill/M. Taylor/K. Fareed/T. Smith/J. Forte/B. Andersson/B. Ulvaeus/S. Anderson/C. Taylor)(5:07) The Fugees, A Tribe Called Quest, Busta Rhymes, Forte; 2 Drew "Bundini" Brown (:07); 3 Ain't No Sunshine/You (B. Withers)(3:00) Bill Withers; 4 Sweet Sixteen (B.B. King/J. Brown)(4:40) James Brown; 14 "Mr. Tooth Decay" (:24) Ali; 15 I'm Coming Home (T. Bell/L. Creed)(4:10) The Spinners; 16 When We Were Kings (A. Marvel/A. Powers/A. Roman)(4:40) Brian McKnight, Diana King; 17 Drew "Bundini" Brown (:20); 18 I'm Calling (Say It Loud)(Z. Davis/A. Marvel/B. Telson/J. Brown/A.J. Ellis)(5:12) Zelma Davis; 19 "You out sucker" (:21) Ali; 20 Chant (:36).

Review: What turned into a documentary about Muhammad Ali and "The Rumble in the Jungle" actually started out chronicling the all-star R&B concert that occured during the festival surrounding the famed Ali-George Foreman fight. So it's not surprising that there are some incendiary live performances by James Brown, B.B. King, The Spinners, The Jazz Crusaders and Bill Withers, whose "Ain't No Sunshine/You" medley is a great moment in soul music. Some of Ali's diatribes included here hold their own with modern-day rappers—some of whom, notably Fugees and A Tribe Called Quest, open the album with a song called "Rumble in the Jungle."

Where Angels Fear To Tread

1991, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Where Angels Fear to Tread, FineLine Features, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; The Hungarian Film and Television Orchestra, conducted David Snell; Featured Musicians: Nicholas Bucknall (clarinet), William Bennett (flute); Album Producer: Rachel Portman; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Where Angels Fear To Tread (4:30); 2 Life And Death (2:08); 3 A Night At The Opera (1:57); 4 Monteriano (1:14); 5 Harriet's Mission (2:10); 6 The Storm (3:43); 7 I Love Him Too (5:02); 8 The Mad Scene (from Lucia di Lamermoor)(G. Donizetti)(12:25) Jennifer Smith, The London Independent Players; 9 Santa Deodata (1:46); 10 Philip's Visit (1:28); 11 Caroline And Gino (2:04); 12 Lilia's Panic (1:59); 13 Latte freschissimo (1:03); 14 Sawston (1:22); 15 Finale (2:38).

Review: Rachel Portman's first major feature, Where Angels Fear to Tread revealed the depth of the composer's creativity, as well as her uncanny ability to write attractive themes with great cinematic power. All the basic elements that have characterized Portman's efforts since can be found in this superbly confident score—an abundance of solid melodic material, intelligently literate, handsomely orchestrated, overflowing with generously romantic ideas that build up in layers, the whole thing served in a particularly winsome way that invites repeated listening. The film, a sensitive tearjerker about an Italian man whose British wife died when she gave birth to their son, and who must confront her relatives who want to take the child back to England with them, resulted in a profuse series of cues in which the romantic Impressionistic influences dominate. While coherent in the context of the film, the "Mad Scene" from Donizetti's Lucia di Lammemoor seems redundant and unnecessary in this soundtrack album, and actually detracts the listener's attention rather than eliciting a more complete vision of the film.

Where the River Runs Black

1986, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Where the River Runs Black, M-G-M/UA, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestra conducted by James Horner; Album Producer: James Horner; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Where The River Runs Black (4:36); 2 Underwater Ballet (3:00); 3 Serra Pelada (2:46); 4 Alone (3:39); 5 The Orphanage (3:19); 6 The Dolphins (2:23); 7 Baptism (4:36); 8 Down River (5:59); 9 Magic Kitchen (2:01); 10 Discovered At The Mine (3:51); 11 The City (1:11); 12 The Assassin (1:49); 13 End Title (4:30).

Review: A film dealing with the clash of civilization and indigenous people in South America, Where the River Runs Black would seem to offer fertile ground for a composer. James Horner's score however is one of his weakest, and entirely forgettable. Obviously influenced by the music for The Emerald Forest (composed a year earlier), Horner's score is a blend of new-age and "ethnic" styles, realized on a sampling keyboard. There are some pleasantly airy moments, but most of the score consists of droning pre-set rhythms, over which the composer fiddles with various samples (strings, voice and most predominantly panpipe, which comes out sounding more like a circus organ than an authentic South American instrument). In fact most of the score sounds like it was improvised as Horner sat at the keyboard. There is little structure and negligible melodic invention. Track 10, "Discovered at the Mine," is literally no more than a continuous programmed rhythm, with no development or (apparently) even human influence. Where the River Runs Black is a sad example of how the ease of synthesizers can induce even a talented composer to press a button and allow electronics to do his work for him.

While You Were Sleeping

1995, Uni Records; from the movie While You Were Sleeping, Hollywood Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: John Lasalandra; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineers: Elton Ahi, Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Opening (2:21); 2 Peter's Family (2:07); 3 Love Theme (1:45); 4 An Untimely Accident (2:40); 5 Phone Tag (1:45); 6 Dreaming Of Florence (3:06); 7 He's Alive (2:30); 8 Riverside Walk (5:21); 9 A Testacular Situation (1:48); 10 Jack And Lucy (2:57); 11 Leave It To Sol (2:06); 12 The Dream Is Over (:48); 13 Sound Advice (1:43); 14 Tear Jerking Tale (1:31); 15 Bumpy Encounter (2:36); 16 A Happy Ending (2:21).

Review: Bouncy, infectious melodies distinguish this upbeat score by Randy Edelman. His dance-like opening theme well suits the pace of this comedy about a pretty subway token clerk (Sandra Bullock) who is mistaken for the fiancee of a comatose man. Desperately lonely, she gets drawn into the warmth of his family circle, aided by Edelman's heart-tugging "Love Theme." A delight, though a bit repetitive.

White Mischief

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie White Mischief, Columbia Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: George Fenton; Orchestrations: George Fenton, John Warren, Simon Chamberlain; Album Producer: George Fenton; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 White Mischief (Main Title)(1:56); 2 Happy Valley Foxtrot (2:39); 3 The Farm (2:13); 4 Dance Of The Sugar Plum Fairy (P.I. Tchaikovsky) (2:10); 5 Muthaiga Club Quickstep (2:28); 6 The Beach At Malindi (1:28); 7 The Picnic (1:56); 8 Begin The Beguine (C. Porter)(3:33); 9 Suspicion (2:02); 10 The Rains/Jungle Stomp (3:03); 11 News At Dawn (3:29); 12 Roadhouse Rumba (G. Fenton/S. Chamberlain)(3:03); 13 The Djinn Palace (5:26); 14 Cocktails At The Grave (2:26); 15 Alphabet Song and End Credit (3:58) Sarah Miles; 16 White Mischief (3:45) Tim Finn.

Review: A gorgeously dance band-inspired score by George Fenton illuminated this story of British settlers in Kenya's so-called "Happy Valley," whose life of opulence and debauchery during the early days of World War II contrasted with the hardship of their peers at home as well as that of the natives around them. Essentially, a triangular love affair, White Mischief, starring Greta Scacchi, Joss Ackland, and Charles Dance, involved itself with a couple of newlyweds, freshly arrived in Nairobi's golden circle of British colonialists. Their relationship turns sour when she meets another man, whose sudden murder unveils the scandalous lifestyle of the "Happy Valley" residents. Punctuating the various incidents in the story, Fenton devised a score that draws its strength from the several cues tailored after the giddy dance numbers evocative of that period ("Happy Valley Foxtrot," "Muthaiga Club Quickstep," "Jungle Stomp," "Roadhouse Rumba," as well as a cover of Cole Porter's "Begin the Beguine"), all of them sprightly and entertaining. Other moods are established with cues that specifically detail the time and place of the screen action, but that are devoid of any "African" accents, in keeping with the isolationist attitude of the British denizens. Film co-star Sarah Miles has a field day performing the "Alphabet Song," while Tim Finn delivers a wicked vocal version of the title tune.

White Nights

1985, Atlantic Records; from the movie White Nights, Columbia Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Arif Mardin, Phil Collins, Hugh Padgham; David Pack, James Newton Howard; Robert Plant, Benji Lefevre; Eumir Deodato, Roberta Flack; Nile Rodgers; Phil Ramone; Robbie Buchanan; David Foster.

Selections: 1 Separate Lives (Love Theme From White Nights)(S. Bishop) (4:06) Phil Collins, Marilyn Martin; 2 Prove Me Wrong (D. Pack/J. Newton Howard)(4:19) David Pack; 3 Far Post (R. Plant/R. Blunt/J. Woodroffe)(4:43) Robert Plant; 4 People On A String (M. Colombier/K. Wakefield)(4:01) Roberta Flack; 5 This Is Your Day (N. Rodgers)(3:46) Sandy Stewart, Nile Rodgers; 6 Snake Charmer (J. Hiatt)(3:42) John Hiatt; 7 The Other Side Of The World (M. Rutherford/B. Robertson)(3:33) Chaka Khan; 8 My Love Is Chemical (W. Aldridge)(4:30) Lou Reed; 9 tapDance (D. Foster/T. Keane/J. Hey)(4:45) David Foster; 10 People Have Got To Move (N. Rodgers)(4:20) Jenny Burton.

Review: Robert Plant's "Far Post" is one of the great lost B-sides of the '80s, so it's nice to have that preserved on an album. Phil Collins and Marilyn Martin hit No. 1 with the love duet "Separate Lives," but meatier material is provided by Lou Reed ("My Love is Chemical") and John Hiatt ("Snake Charmer"). Worthwhile, but not essential.

White Palace

1990, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie White Palace, Universal Pictures, 1990.

Selections: 1 White Palace Main Title (3:08); 2 Lost In Thought (2:03); 3 The Dream and Awakening (6:08); 4 I'm 44/I'm 27 (1:48); 5 You Make Me Feel Beautiful (3:00); 6 Slow Contact (4:15); 7 The Reading (3:59); 8 Nora's Secret (2:56); 9 The Breakup (2:17); 10 St. Louis To New York (3:00); 11 Alone In A Crowd (1:15); 12 The Kiss (2:16); 13 A Line From A Poem (3:57); 14 Younger Men (3:06).

Review: With undertones reminiscent of The Graduate, White Palace stars James Spader as the younger man and Susan Sarandon as the bolder woman, whose encounter results in a May-to-September love affair, in this romantic drama involving a 27-year-old advertising executive and a 44-year-old waitress in a St. Louis diner. Reminiscent of the film's typically hesitant approach to its unconventional story, the score created by George Fenton moves from ruminative melodies to glorious celebrations of love, with acoustic instruments playing over orchestral textures limning the moods in appealling fashion. Along the way, there are many telling selections, including "The Dream and Awakening," with its clearly defined contrasting emotions, the elegiac "You Make Me Feel Beautiful," and the equally rewarding "The Kiss." Throughout, the themes are strongly etched and evocative, making this another vibrant effort from the composer.

Who Framed Roger Rabbit?

1988, Disneyland Records; from the movie Who Framed Roger Rabbit?, Touchstone Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestrations: James Campbell; Music Editor: Kenneth Karman; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Alan Silvestri; Featured Musicians: Jerry Hey (trumpet), Tom Scott (saxophone), Randy Waldman, Chet Swiatkowski (piano), Chuck Domanico (bass), Harvey Mason, Steve Schaefer (drums); Album Producer: Alan Silvestri; Engineer: Dennis Sands.

Selections: 1 Maroon Logo (:17); 2 Maroon Cartoon (3:21); 3 Valiant And Valiant (4:19); 4 The Weasels (2:04); 5 Hungarian Rhapsody (dueling pianos) (1:40); 6 Judge Doom (3:48); 7 Why Don't You Do Right? (J. McCoy)(3:02) Amy Irving; 8 No Justice For Toons (2:40); 9 The Merry-Go Round Broke Down (Roger's Song)(C. Friend/D. Franklin)(:45); 10 Jessica's Theme (2:01); 11 Toontown (4:40); 12 Eddie's Theme (5:18); 13 The Gag Factory (3:54); 14 The Will (1:06); 15 Smile Darn Ya Smile (C. O'Flynn/J. Meskill/M. Rice)/That's All Folks! (C. Friend/D. Franklin)(1:15); 16 End Title (4:56).

Review: The goofy, unlikely story of a down-at-the-heel private investigator in Hollywood's 1940s, and his involvement with (pardon the word!) 'toon characters is the mischievous premise upon which the hilarious Who Framed Roger Rabbit is based. Starring Bob Hoskins, looking appropriately baffled most of the time, Christopher Lloyd as the nefarious Judge Doom bent on destroying all the cute little characters, and Roger Rabbit, unable to concentrate on acting ever since he and his wife, the sultry Jessica, have become estranged, the whole silly affair is a hoot from beginning to end, thanks largely to its brilliant integration of live action and animation. Adding a comedic voice of its own, Alan Silvestri's frequently rollicking score keeps things in proper musical focus, with slyly tongue-in-cheek cues that enhanced the screen action and provided it with a strong peg. Heard on their own musical merits, however, some selections in this soundtrack album come across as too one-dimensional without the benefit of the dazzling visuals, in a clear indication of how well the score was intimately integrated in the picture. Exceptions include the uproarious "The Merry-Go-Round Broke Down (Roger's Song)"; Jessica's sexy rendition (with Amy Irving's voice) of the standard "Why Don't You Do Right?"; "Jessica's Theme" and "Eddie's Theme," two flavorful instrumentals; the frantically manic "Toontown," which, more than any other, captured the spirit of the film itself; and "Smile Darn Ya Smile/That's All, Folks!," which provided an appropriate coda to the film and to this disc.

The Whole Wide World

1996, Mojo Trax Records; from the movie The Whole Wide World, Sony Pictures Classics, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer, Harry Gregson-Williams; Orchestrations: Harry Gregson-Williams; Album Producers: Harry Gregson-Williams, Slamm Andrews; Engineer: Slamm Andrews.

Selections: 1 The Love Theme (5:34); 2 Two Sides Of Bob (2:01); 3 Conan Emerges (5:23); 4 Novalyne Reflects (1:01); 5 The Telegram (3:42); 6 A Yarn Unfolds (4:13); 7 Letters At Sunset/The Cabin (1:27); 8 Bob's Despair (4:09); 9 ...Let Go Of Your Mother (5:01); 10 Novalyne's Theme (0:00); 11 Sombrero (0:00); 12 End Titles (0:00).

Review: A word of explanation about the strange timings for the tracks listed above. The label copy lists twelve tracks; the CD only shows nine. Somebody, somewhere, goofed. Which, in a sense, is really too bad, because Hans Zimmer and Harry Gregson-Williams have written what is essentially a very lovely score for this unconventional little film based on the true-life three-year friendship between a schoolteacher and would-be novelist, Novalyne Price, and Robert E. Howard, creator of such pulp fiction fantasy characters as Conan the Barbarian and Red Sonja. Beyond the basic feelings that brought these two fiercely independent souls together (the deep intellectual and literary understanding they shared), other, equally profound elements conspired to keep them apart: Price's approach to writing was naturalistic, something for which Howard, more interested in the fantastic tales that came out of his imagination, had very little interest. The film, exploring what was apparently a platonic relationship, moved Zimmer and Gregson-Williams to write several cues in which the dominant moods are plainly romantic, sometimes with a solo instrument stating the melody over a synthesizer line. The two characters receive detailed motifs ("Two Sides of Bob," "Novalyne's Theme") written in a similar vein. Only occasionally, as in "Conan Emerges," do the composers indulge in a bit of epic writing which dissipates quickly. It all adds up to a generally very satisfying score, highly listenable. If only the tracks were properly listed...

Widow's Peak

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Widow's Peak, Fine Line Features, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Carl Davis; Orchestrations: Nic Raine; Orchestra conducted by Carl Davis; Album Producer: Carl Davis; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Main Titles (1:50); 2 Love Theme and Miss O'Hare (1:35); 3 Godfrey's Theme (2:09); 4 Edwina's Theme (1:33); 5 Grogen (1:05); 6 The Tea Party (1:11); 7 Maddie's Theme (1:21); 8 Lookout Point (1:22); 9 A Gold Ring (:46); 10 The Regatta (3:42); 11 Good Evening Maddie (1:41); 12 Leaving (1:21); 13 Lunch (2:18); 14 Boat Trips And Murder (1:51); 15 End Titles (3:09); 16 Fantasia On A Theme By Thomas Tallis (R. Vaughn Williams)(14:19) The City Of Birmingham Symphony Orchestra, Norman Del Mar.

Review: This delightfully laid-back collection of cues by Carl Davis transports us back to the early part of the 20th century, when a free spirited World War I widow stirs up a small Irish town. Though comforting at first, like the opening movement of a symphony, the tone eventually degrades into a murky darkness with the nightmarish cues "The Regatta" and "Boat Trips and Murder." The score is quite satisfying, but regretfully short at only about 24 minutes. Vaughn Williams' 14-minute "Fantasia on a Theme by Thomas Tallis" fills out the running time.

The Wild Angels

1996, Curb Records; from the movie The Wild Angels, American-International Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Songs: Mike Curb, Harley Hatcher, Davie Allan; Music Arranged and conducted by Mike Curb; Album Producer: Mike Curb.

Selections: 1 Theme From The Wild Angels (1:23) The Visitors, Barbara; 2 Lonely In The Chapel (1:51) The Hands Of Time; 3 Blues Theme (2:09) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 4 Theme From The Wild Angels (instrumental)(1:32) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 5 Midnight Rider (1:50) The Hands Of Time; 6 Rockin' Angel (2:10) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 7 The Lonely Rider (1:03) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 8 The Unknown Rider (2:12) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 9 The Wild Angels Ballad (Dirge)(2:27) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 10 The Losers Burial (1:40) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 11 Losers Lament (1:32) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 12 The Dark Alley (1:42) Davie Allan and The Arrows; 13 Wild Angels Chase (3:41) David Allan and The Arrows; 14 The Last Ride (:41) Davie Allan and The Arrows.

Review: Though widely criticized at the time of its release for its excess of sex and violence, The Wild Angels is best remembered today as one of the first movies to effectively deal with the California motorcycle gangs, and to bring together a sensational cast, including Peter Fonda, Nancy Sinatra, Bruce Dern, Michael J. Pollard, and Diane Ladd. Another aspect of the film is its explosive soundtrack, featuring Davie Allan and The Arrows. In view of the many changes that have occurred in rock and in film music over the years, the songs, written by Mike Curb, Harley Hatcher and Davie Allan, may sound rather primitive today, but they have retained the raw edge that made them so vibrant and so much part of the film's appeal at the time, something this reissue on CD clearly evidences.

Pesco/J. Vincent)(4:49) David Rudder, Margareth Menezes.

Review: A soundtrack album as exotic and vibrant as the Brazilian setting for this film, chronicling the power play between an unscrupulous millionaire with kinky sexual tendencies, a sleazy jetset businesswoman, and a young girl from the Midwest on her way to discovering Rio de Janeiro and her own eroticism. The film itself is not too terribly steamy, but this compilation certainly is, with many great tracks featuring some of the most endearing performers in both hemispheres—Ofra Haza, Nana Vasconcelos & The Bushdancers, Simone Moreno, on one hand; and David Rudder, Hank Ballard, Underworld, and The Rhythm Methodists, on the other.

Willow

1988, Virgin Movie Music; from the movie Willow, LucasFilms, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: James Horner; Orchestrations: Greig McRitchie; Music Editor: Jim Henrikson; The London Symphony Orchestra and The King's College Choir, conducted by James Horner; Featured Soloists: Ian Underwood (Fairlight), Kazu Matsui (Sakauhachi), Mike Taylor, Tony Hennigan (Pap pipes, Kena), Robin Williamson (Celtic harp, bagpipes); Album Producers: James Horner, Shawn Murphy; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Elora Danan (9:45); 2 Escape From The Tavern (5:04); 3 Willow's Journey Begins (5:26); 4 Canyon Of Mazes (7:52); 5 Tir Asleen (10:47); 6 Willow's Theme (3:54); 7 Bavmorda's Spell Is Cast (18:11); 8 Willow The Sorcerer (11:55).

Review: An extraordinarily profuse score and album (73 minutes of music, and not a weak moment in it), Willow signaled James Horner's definite entry in the big time as a film composer. Brilliantly imaginative, opulent and emotionally charged, the music added its voice to this sword-and-sorcery tale about misfit heroes, evil magicians, dangerous animals, angry hordes of medieval knights, and a fragile little baby, protected by a dwarf, whose very existence will fulfill an ancient prophecy. Propelled by an epic main theme, called by resonant trumpets, the music devised by Horner, in turns elegiac and heroic, serves the story by providing a strongly imaginative and appropriately illustrative anchor. With robust themes enhancing the exciting action scenes with rich details, the score captures the pageantry and the thrill in the story in broad, colorful swathes that find an extraordinary resonance in the recording. The long selections, which regroups the cues into a comprehensive musical narrative, make for a sumptuous audio experience, one that compels the listener to return to it frequently, with renewed pleasure.

The Wind and the Lion

1990, Intrada Records; from the movie The Wind and the Lion, M-G-M, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: George Horn.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:30); 2 I Remember (Love Theme)(2:44); 3 The Horsemen (3:11); 4 True Feelings (2:33); 5 The Raisuli (2:12); 6 The True Symbol (2:34); 7 Raisuli Attacks (3:17); 8 Lord Of The Riff (2:43); 9 The Tent (1:49); 10 The Palace (2:29); 11 The Legend (4:01); 12 Morning Camp (3:19); 13 The Letter (2:34); 14 Something Of Value (3:49).

Review: Jerry Goldsmith's finest adventure score was written for this John Milius' historical epic about an Arabian desert chieftain played by Sean Connery who kidnaps an American woman during the presidential term of Teddy Roosevelt. From the thunderous percussion of its sweeping title music Goldsmith creates a score of amazing passion and scope, blending a gorgeous romantic melody with some of the most frenzied and rhythmically inventive action music of the composer's career. "Raisuli Attacks" has to stand as one of the most insanely satisfying action blow-outs ever composed for film, with a devilishly complicated, Arabesque melody rattling through every section of the orchestra, climaxing in a deliriously powerful trumpet solo. Almost as good is the wild, dervish percussion of "The Horsemen" and the rich, barbaric pageantry of cues like "Lord of the Riff" and "The Palace." It's a score in the grand Hollywood tradition, but sparked by Goldsmith's inspired rhythmic and orchestral experimentation, a classic in every respect.

Review: The eerily somber moods in Juergen Knieper's score seem totally appropriate for this offbeat story of a couple of angels coming back to Berlin in the 1980s to win their wings, with one of them falling in love with a trapeze artist and deciding he wants to become a human. But while the music works very well within the context of the film, on record it fails to create the desired effect, and proves eventually less compelling and arresting. Further confounding the listener, various texts in German prove a deterrent for those not familiar with the language. Several selections, composed by others (including Laurie Anderson) and placed after the score, sustain the moods with somewhat strident and abrasive sounds that prove more curious than musically attractive. Definitely not for every taste.

Strummer)(3:59) Joe Strummer; 11 Angel Of Death (3:36); 12 You Are So Beautiful (B. Preston/B. Fisher)(2:12) Michael Chiklis, Billy Preston; 13 Eulogy (2:22).

Review: A filmed biography of John Belushi, Wired, which only missed Belushi's presence to succeed, retraced the comedian's meteoric career, from his early days on Saturday Night Live, to his untimely death. Much of this soundtrack album is devoted to recreations of "Blues Brothers" songs by Michael Chiklis, who portrayed Belushi, and Gary Groomes as Aykroyd, with an occasional assist from Billy Preston lending an aura of veracity. But the real thing ("real" if we don't consider that the Blues Brothers were already an imitation to begin with) being on another label, all we have here is a warmed-up, second-hand product. Basil Poledouris was evidently inspired by the storyline if we are to believe the four cues also included here, but his score, too, is given a short shrift in this sorry album.

Wisdom

1988, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Wisdom, Gladden Entertainment, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Danny Elfman; Orchestrations: Steve Bartek, Danny Elfman; Album Producers: Danny Elfman, Steve Bartek; Engineer: Bill Jackson.

Selections: 1 Change Of Life (6:02); 2 The Mirror (1:52); 3 The Passion Of Wisdom (2:25); 4 Job Search (1:33); 5 The Big Heist (3:19); 6 Karen Decides (2:06); 7 Close Call In Albuquerque (4:25); 8 The Face Off (1:33); 9 Trouble (1:29); 10 The Shootout (2:25); 11 Wisdom Phone Home (2:39); 12 Heist (Part Two)(2:22); 13 Karen Bites The Bullet (1:44); 14 In The Desert (1:31); 15 Finale (3:44); 16 Main Title (3:26).

Review: A strongly accented synth score composed by Danny Elfman, this effort seems eons away from the more vibrant and interesting music he has created since. While the dry, minimalist sounds might have helped establish the basic atmosphere in this story of an idle youngster who robs a bank to impress his girlfriend, taken on their own melodic merits, they often fail to evoke more than a slight interest. Often arid in their expression, and devoid of any real spark, the cues frequently seem more formulaic than genuinely inspiring.

The Witches of Eastwick

1987, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie The Witches of Eastwick, Warner Bros., 1987.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Music Editor: Ken Wannberg; Orchestra conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: John Williams; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 The Township Of Eastwick (2:47); 2 The Dance Of The Witches (4:57); 3 Maleficio (3:20); 4 The Seduction Of Alex (2:40); 5 Daryl's Secrets (3:55); 6 The Seduction Of Suki and The Ballroom Scene (7:05); 7 Daryl Arrives (2:35); 8 The Tennis Game (2:52); 9 Have Another Cherry! (3:25); 10 Daryl Rejected (3:03); 11 The Ride Home (3:22); 12 The Destruction Of Daryl (5:39); 13 The Children's Carousel (1:54); 14 End Credits (The Dance Of The Witches Reprise)(4:57).

Review: If John Williams hadn't already enjoyed such a formidable reputation as the most eclectic composers around, this happily gritty, sardonic score would have clearly singled him out as one of the best. Delightfully anchored by the sprightly "Dance of the Witches," a motif that dominates it, the music details this modern tale of sorcery and, well... devil-may-care, about three women living in a quaint New England town full of upright people, who are yearning for Mr. Right... and find him in the guise of a wealthy newcomer who proves himself a smooth-talking, eyebrow-waggling, tantrum-throwing little devil (literally!). Matching the seriously tongue-in-cheek mode of this screen adaptation of John Updike's novel, starring Cher, Susan Sarandon, Michelle Pfeiffer and Jack Nicholson, the music is a constant feast of sparkling melodies and themes, which detail the screen action and add an extra ounce (make that a ton) of whimsy to it. Separated from it, it retains its humor and eclat, and proves totally enjoyable.

Witness

1985, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Witness, Paramount Pictures, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Featured Musicians: Michael Boddicker, Randy Kerber, Stewart Levin, Michel Mention, Chris Page, Pete Robinson, Clark Spangler, Nyle Steiner, Ian Underwood; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Humberto Gatica.

Selections: 1 Witness (Main Title)/Journey To Baltimore (6:24); 2 The Murder (1:22); 3 Book's Disappearance (3:29); 4 Futility Of An Inside Job/ Delirious John (3:08); 5 Building The Barn (4:58); 6 Book's Sorrow (2:45); 7 Rachel And Book (Love Theme)/Beginning Of The End (4:40); 8 The Amish Are Coming (3:21).

Review: One of the first scores of Maurice Jarre's "electronic period" of the '80s, during which he turned out a number of impressive and effective synthesizer scores, Witness is perhaps the best of these electronic efforts, and one of the few synthesizer soundtracks written at the time which does not sound dated today. One reason is probably because Jarre elected to use synthesizers for artistic rather than budgetary reasons. (The film deals with the Amish society—a society which does not believe in musical instruments. As such Jarre determined an orchestral score would not be true to the ethos being depicted.) Although "new age" might best describe the overall tone of the soundtrack, Jarre's score has an eclectic array of moods, mirroring the film's elements of love story, crime thriller and human drama. Suspense cues in most electronic scores are often no more than noise, but the suspenseful moments in Witness are enthralling and satisfyingly musical. The showpiece of the score however is Jarre's music for the barn-raising sequence, which is a noble, Americana-flavored piece, and certainly one of the finest moments in Jarre's career.

Wolf

1994, Columbia/Sony Classical; from the movie Wolf, Columbia Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Orchestra conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Ennio Morricone; Engineer: Dan Wallin; Assistant Engineer: Carl Glanville.

Selections: 1 Wolf And Love (3:33); 2 The Barn (1:59); 3 The Dream And The Deer (9:16); 4 The Moon (5:29); 5 Laura Goes To Join Wolf (2:20); 6 Laura And Wolf United (1:24); 7 First Transition (1:29); 8 The Howl And The City (3:22); 9 Animals And Encounters (4:37); 10 Laura Transformed (3:37); 11 Wolf (2:48); 12 Second Transition (1:18); 13 Will's Final Goodbye (1:31); 14 Chase (5:44); 15 Confirmed Doubts (3:41); 16 The Talisman (3:28); 17 Third Transition (:57); 18 A Shock For Laura (2:43); 19 Laura And Will (2:26); 20 Laura (2:37).

Review: Jack Nicholson had another memorable screen role in this great thriller about a middle-aged Manhattan book editor who is bitten by a wild animal, following a car accident on a dark country road, and begins to change into a werewolf as a result. Adding emotional power to this tale, Morricone wrote a musical subtext that enhances and defines the action, with sharp themes that describe it in uncompromising ways. The centerpiece of his score is a nine minute-plus cue, "The Dream and the Deer," in which some of the composer's signature effects (staccato chords darting in and out of a melodic theme) create an uneasy, foreboding mood. "The Chase," another highlight, is an explosive, fierce statement that leaves an unsettling impression as themes collide and combine to create an uneasy, active atmosphere. In the composer's body of work, Wolf definitely ranks as a breathtaking achievement.

Review: Looking back, that August weekend in 1969 marked more of an end than a beginning, and, thanks to the Michael Wadleigh film, the legend has now utterly obscured the muddy, can't hear/can't see reality. It still makes a nice legend, though, especially on these audio recordings: the abundant wrong notes you hear in the movie were corrected in a New York studio before the original three-LP set was released. And now, with Atlantic's nicely packaged 4-CD set, the sound is even better, and most of the artists missing from the film or the two previous Woodstock soundtrack albums have been brought into the fold. Career-making performances by the likes of Joe Cocker, Santana, The Who, and Sly and the Family Stone have weathered the years; the Band and Janis Joplin are no longer missing in action. "We must be in heaven, man."

A World Apart

1988, RCA Victor Records; from the movie A World Apart, Atlantic Entertainment Group, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer, Al Clay, Brian Gulland, Gavin Wright, Chris Menges, Shawn Slovo, Judy Freeman; Music Producer: Hans Zimmer; Engineers: Al, Hans, with Chris Menges, Judy Freeman, Shawn Slovo.

Selections: 1 Nkosi Sikelela I-Afrika (trad.)(2:17) The Messias Choir, Henry Mlauzi; 2 A World Apart Suite (17:48); 3 Zithulele Mama (trad.)(1:55) The Messias Choir; 4 Amandla (H. Zimmer/ S. Slovo)(2:40); 5 The Pennywhistle Song (L. Majaivana)(2:49) Lovemore Majaivana & The Zulu Band; 6 Let's Twist Again (Kalman)(2:25) Lovemore Majaivana & The Zulu Band; 7 Bhayakala (L. Majaivana)(3:38) Lovemore Majaivana & The Zulu Band; 8 Molly's Theme (:51); 9 A World Apart End Title (4:59).

Review: Set in South Africa in the early 1960s, A World Apart took a sobering look at the apartheid system, and its effects on a family of white settlers who oppose the government policy and become the target of a crackdown from the authorities. A story such as this requested a compelling score, and Hans Zimmer provided it in a series of themes that detail the action, as seen through the eyes of Molly, the settlers' 13-year-old uncomprehending daughter. With solid assist from the Messias Choir, Zimmer's score explores the emotional implications in the story, often reaching deep into the moods to come up with forceful expressions that force the listener's attention. The cues, assembled together into a seamless musical suite, provide a narrative that is most engaging. Augmenting the score, selected traditional songs anchor the soundtrack album into its ethnic locale and bring a different touch of authenticity.

Wrestling Ernest Hemingway ♪♪♪♪

1994, Mercury Records; from the movie Wrestling Ernest Hemingway, Warner Bros., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Convertino; Orchestrations: John Neufeld, Conrad Pope; Music Editor: Tom Carlson; Orchestra conducted by Artie Kane; Album Producer: Michael Convertino; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Wrestling Ernest Hemingway (1:57); 2 A Ship Offshore (3:58); 3 Rain (3:14); 4 La mujer de Antonio (M. Matamoros)(2:31); 5 Fireworks (6:54); 6 Time At Sea (5:27); 7 Nena (P. Ballagas)(2:59); 8 1939 (4:20); 9 Farewell Frank (4:09); 10 Lagrimas negras (M. Matamoros)(3:50).

Review: Starring Robert Duvall and Richard Harris as two older men trying to outdo each other in the fancily detailed stories they tell about their real (or imagined) past, Wrestling Ernest Hemingway received an eloquent musical support from Michael Convertino, whose enjoyably lyrical score finds a new life of its own in this attractive recording. Augmenting the most descriptive cues ("Fireworks," "Time At Sea," "1939"), a trio of tunes in Spanish add a definitely exotic flavor to the proceedings.

Wyatt Earp ♪♪♪♪

1994, Warner Bros. Records; from the movie Wyatt Earp, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: James Newton Howard; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter, Chris Boardman, James Newton Howard; Music Editor: Jim Weidman; The Hollywood Recording Musicians Orchestra, conducted by Marty Paich; Featured Musicians: Dean Park (guitars), Alasdair Fraser (solo violin), Frank Marocco (accordion), Phil Ayling (recorders); Album Producers: James Newton Howard, Michael Mason; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Sue MacLean, Greg Dennen, Mark Eshelman, Bill Talbott.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:40); 2 Home From The War (1:59); 3 Going To Town (2:00); 4 The Wagon Chase (2:42); 5 Mattie Wants Children (1:56); 6 Railroad (1:50); 7 Nicholas Springs Wyatt (1:31); 8 Is That Your Hat? (2:07); 9 The Wedding (3:16); 10 Stillwell Makes Bail (2:37); 11 It All Ends Now (1:54); 12 Urilla Dies (4:35); 13 Tell Me About Missouri (2:56); 14 The Night Before (3:11); 15 O.K. Corral (7:02); 16 Down By The River (2:58); 17 Kill 'Em All (5:02); 18 Dodge City (1:02); 19 Leaving Dodge (1:24); 20 Indian Charlie (1:33); 21 We Stayed Too Long (1:50); 22 Winter To Spring (1:18); 23 It Happened That Way (1:10).

Review: Tombstone was a major hit in the winter of 1993, and subsequently seemed to take out the wind from the sails of Wyatt Earp, the more ambitious but far less successful 1994 epic from star Kevin Costner and co-writer/director Lawrence Kasdan. Well-acted but pretentious and often downright boring, Earp was a financial disaster and critical disappointment, though no fingers will ever be pointed at James Newton Howard's outstanding score, which works as both a reflection on the conventions of the western genre and the heroic nature of Earp himself, capturing the various dimensions of the setting and the characters along the way. The score boasts a number of impressive themes and musical ideas, and has been copied in numerous films and movie trailers since; even if you never see the film, Newton Howard's soundtrack stands as a superior film score and comes highly recommended.

The Year of Living Dangerously ♪♪♪½

1983, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie The Year of Living Dangerously, M-G-M/UA, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Electronic Realization: Spencer Lee, Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 Wayang Kulit (4:37); 2 Poverty And Misery (2:47); 3 The Death Of A Child (4:38); 4 Kwan (3:20); 5 Enchantment At Tuga (4:08); 6 Djakarta (3:44); 7 What Can We Do? (3:13); 8 Kwan's Sacrifice (4:58).

Review: Described by Maurice Jarre as "music like an Asian mist," The Year of Living Dangerously was his first foray into predominantly electronic scoring. Jarre's encyclopedic knowledge of ethnic music is also put to good use in this film, which deals with journalists covering political unrest in 1960s Indonesia. Stylistically, the score might superficially be described as "new age," given its airy electronic passages, but Jarre also invests the score with music of the region, and features indigenous instruments. Some tracks (such as "Wayang Kulit") are rather atonal and non-melodic, and do not make for enjoyable listening. However they are counterbalanced by tracks like "Enchantment at Tugu" and "Kwan's Sacrifice" both of which offer beautiful, ethereal evocations of Southeast Asia.

It should perhaps be pointed out that the piano theme heard in the love scenes is not included on this recording, as it is not by Maurice Jarre, but from a Vangelis recording which the director tracked into the film (and is available on the album Opera Sauvage, on Polydor). However, Maurice Jarre's score remains a thoroughly mystical and sensuous musical experience, and one of the best examples of syntho-ethnic scoring on disc.

Year of the Comet

1992, Varese-Sarabande; from the movie Year of the Comet, Castle Rock Entertainment, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Hummie Mann; Orchestrations: Brad Dechter; Music Editor: Scott Grusin; Orchestra conducted by Kurt Bestor; Album Producers: Hummie Mann, Rick Riccio; Engineer: Rick Riccio.

Selections: 1 Maggie Goes To Scotland (2:08); 2 The Seduction (1:46); 3 Finding The Bottle (3:37); 4 Helicopter Chase (3:31); 5 MacPherson Castle (2:23); 6 In Pursuit Of Jamie (3:32); 7 Fight On The Lake (1:29); 8 Nico Comes On Strong (1:02); 9 Driving Through Scotland (:43); 10 Formula On The Box (:57); 11 Maggie's Dive (:44); 12 Chasing The Greeks (:49); 13 It's Gotta Be Love (2:20); 14 The Injection (3:20); 15 Philippe Flips Out (1:23); 16 End Credits (5:13).

Review: This is an energetic and lovely score by Hummie Mann, best known for his orchestrations on many of Marc Shaiman's soundtracks (including City Slickers). Despite having an interesting premise and a good cast, Year of the Comet was an underwhelming comedy-adventure from Peter Yates and writer William Goldman. Mann's score makes the most of the film's Irish setting and ultimately becomes far more memorable than the picture itself; the tone is sprightly and fun, and Mann's main theme is nothing short of excellent, the kind of infectious tune you wish other soundtracks were built around. Curiously enough, Mann's music was, in fact, a replacement score for the rejected, original soundtrack written by John Barry, a fact that further mystified viewers when Barry's music was prominently heard in the coming attractions trailer!

Year of the Gun

1991, Milan Records; from the movie Year of the Gun, Triumph Release, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Bill Conti; Orchestrations/Synthesizer Programming: Jack Eskew; Music Editor: Steve Livingston; Album Producer: Bill Conti; Engineer: Lee DeCarlo.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:37); 2 The Kidnapping (2:22); 3 Lia Rrives Home (2:00); 4 David And Lia (2:01); 5 The Bank Job (2:40); 6 Party Crashers (4:01); 7 Alison And David Walking (2:25); 8 Bianchi's Guest (1:45); 9 Bianchi Follows (3:44); 10 The First Phone Call (1:49); 11 Moro/Terrorists/Lipstick (4:24); 12 Back Door To Venice (3:07); 13 Sunday Afternoon (1:37); 14 Another Phone Call (4:49); 15 Dave's Apartment Trashed (1:32); 16 The Graveyard (2:29); 17 The Big Chase (3:57); 18 Lia Says Trust Me (2:59); 19 Balcony To Grave (2:29); 20 Not Geraldo (2:28); 21 End Title (3:34).

Review: This Bill Conti effort, performed on synthesizers, starts off well enough, but soon degrades into a lackluster collection of mind-numbing effects cues. Despite a passably curious "Main Title," featuring a chanting male choir, the bulk of the score sounds more as if it was composed by some inexperienced youngster rather than the Academy Award-winning artist responsible for The Right Stuff and Rocky. The score also has one of the most unromantic love cues ever heard ("Alison and David Walking"). None of the music ever fully projects even the slightest effective emotional response. Track #13, "Sunday Afternoon" is so poorly distorted (was this done intentionally?), it should have been left out of the album. Packaging, with no liner notes and just one blurry cover photo, is equally uninspiring. How the mighty have fallen.

Yor the Hunter from the Future

1993, Label X Records; from the movie Yor the Hunter from the Future, Columbia Pictures, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: John Scott; The Unione Musicisti di Roma, conducted by John Scott; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineer: Paolo Enditti.

Selections: 1 Ka-Laa Dance (2:27); 2 Death Rules This Land (4:05); 3 Pursued By Pygmies (2:28); 4 Queen Road (1:48); 5 Into The Storm (1:36); 6 Yor's Salon de Refuses (29:43).

Review: It's hard to believe, but the majority of this John Scott orchestral score was replaced by an electronic "disco" effort by Guido and Maurizio De Angelis. Of course, if you see the film, and its slapdash mix of stone age and post-Apocalypse genre concepts, you'll realize that the filmmakers never had any idea what they were aiming for. Despite all this, Scott has produced a wonderful score that, taken out of context, has an unabashed innocence and romantic quality. Instead of concentrating on the sci-fi elements, he focused on elements in Yor's primitive and naive culture. Where he was able to draw on all this inspiration remains a mystery, but Scott has always exhibited a knack to rise far above some of the more poorly realized films he has had the unfortunate luck to have been associated with. In fact, hiring him often seems to be the only genuinely inspired idea some of these filmmakers have. On Yor, however, that wasn't true in the end. All the unused cues, almost 30 minutes of music, have been assembled into one suite and released on this CD for the first time. Obviously, no one wanted to go back and look at the film to try and title the music. Three of the four individually numbered and titled tracks (except "Death Rules This Land") appeared on the original LP issue along with twelve cues by the De Angelis brothers. These four were all the music by Scott that miraculously survived the final cut.

You Only Live Twice

1988, EMI-Manhattan; from the movie You Only Live Twice, United Artists, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Lyrics: Leslie Bricusse; Orchestrations: John Barry; Orchestra conducted by John Barry.

Selections: 1 Title Song: You Only Live Twice (2:39) Nancy Sinatra; 2 Capsule In Space (2:51); 3 Fight At Kobe Dock/Helga (2:51); 4 Tanaka's World (2:04); 5 A Drop In The Ocean (2:15); 6 The Death Of Aki (4:16); 7 Mountains And Sunsets (3:06); 8 The Wedding (2:42); 9 James Bond Astronaut? (3:25); 10 Countdown For Blofeld (2:31); 11 Bond Averts World War Three (2:12); 12 End Title: You Only Live Twice (2:45) Nancy Sinatra.

Review: This James Bond score, broadly informed by Nancy Sinatra's title song which bookends it, is another John Barry feast, with cues that cleverly enhance the overblown screen action, this time set in Japan, and introduce many new themes, some of them subtly accented with koto sonorities. The sound on this CD reissue is unpleasantly strident and brash, particularly in the brass figures, but don't let that deter you from enjoying it... until, that is, EMI decides to properly remix and master the whole series, hopefully complementing each title with some of the previously unreleased tracks that are still dormant in the company's vaults.

Review: This third volume in the Belgian label Prometheus' series, "The Spectacular Film Music of Miklos Rozsa," presents a rare treat: the score the composer created for a big historical film about the early years of the young woman who was to become the Queen of England, starring Jean Simmons, Stewart Granger, Deborah Kerr, and Charles Laughton, the latter reprising the role of Henry VIII that had brought him fame in 1933 in Alexander Korda's The Private Life of Henry VIII. Though largely fictional, the film, based on Margaret Irwin's novel of skullduggery under the Tudors, was a sweeping chronicle of life in the 16th century, told in breathtaking cinematographic details, which inspired Rozsa to write a fine, romantic effort, full to the brim with gorgeously heroic accents, jaunty little tunes, and effusive love themes. Though recorded in mono, and with occasional slight image shifting and hiss, the recording is vibrant and richly evocative.

(3:27); 7 He Was My Boyfriend (3:22); 8 My Name Is Frankenstein! (3:18); 9 Introduction/Puttin' On The Ritz (I. Berlin)(3:33); 10 A Riot Is An Ugly Thing (:54); 11 He's Broken Loose (6:15); 12 The Monster Talks (1:50); 13 Wedding Night/ End Title (1:09); 14 Theme From Young Frankenstein (2:53) Rhythm Heritage.

Review: One of Mel Brooks' most successful lampoons, Young Frankenstein brought together several of the director's "regulars" in a film that happily spoofed all the tenets of the monster genre, all the way to the black and white lensing and atmospheric settings that echoed the moods of the original and its numerous sequels. The icing on the cake was John Morris' oppressively romantic-with-a-wink score, dominated by the plaintive violin tune played by Frau Blucher (horses braying in the background) first to lure Dr. Fron-kon-steen into his grandfather's private library, then to seduce the monster into submission after he escapes. Large portions of dialogue vividly recall some of the film's most hilarious moments, and the album also contains the ultimate sendup, the Monster singing Irving Berlin's "Puttin' on the Ritz." The only discordant note in the set is Rhythm Heritage's totally unnecessary contempo rendition of the Main Theme.

Review: One of Hollywood's most sadly neglected early composers, Hugo Friedhofer is in dire need of a total reevaluation of his impressive achievements. For a long while considered a brilliant orchestrator rather than a composer in his own right, it was not until he reached his full maturity in the late 1940s-early 1950s that he began to be taken seriously as a film scorer, eventually contributing an impressive catalogue of great works, including The Best Years of Our Lives, Vera Cruz, An Affair to Remember and Boy on a Dolphin, among the best known. From a 1958 World War II drama came The Young Lions, for which Friedhofer received an Oscar nomination. Based on a novel by Irwin Shaw, the film presents strikingly eloquent views of the war as seen through the eyes of a motley group of GIs on one side, and German officers on the other. In the first group, Montgomery Clift portrays an American Jew, confronted with racial prejudice, and Dean Martin a would-be draft dodger caught in spite of himself by the daunting task ahead of him. Portraying a young German officer is Marlon Brando, a true believer in Hitler's Nazi theories, whose sense of humanity eventually found him at odds with the Fuehrer's tenets about total annihilation of the Jewish people. In scoring the film, Friedhofer provided themes and musical ideas that sustained the action, but stayed behind it rather than helped propel it. As a result, his score was a succession of subdued cues with a relatively passive role, that filled a purpose and were serviceable at best, even though they were powerfully adapted to the film's dramatic atmosphere.

A score of a different color, This Earth Is Mine, composed a year later, provided Friedhofer with a romantic subject which inspired him to write a richly melodic series of themes. Introduced by a dispensable title tune, courtesy of Sammy Cahn and James Van Heusen, who must have written more title songs than anyone else (with the possible exception of Jay Livingston and Ray Evans), the score unfolds with great tender feelings to illustrate this story, based on a novel by Alice Tisdale Hobart and set in the 1930s in California's Napa Valley, about an older generation of vintners, eager to preserve the traditions that have been their pride, and younger tyros, more interested in a quick profit. Outlining specific moments in the action, and drawing sharp portraits of the various participants (including Claude Rains, Rock Hudson and Jean Simmons), Friedhofer's music is rich in melodic details, and very attractive.

The presentation of both scores in a 2-CD set was a great idea!

Younger and Younger

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movie Younger and Younger, Vine International Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Arrangements: Hans Zimmer; Featured Musicians: Alex Wurman, Bob Telson (Mighty Wurlitzer); Album Producers: Hans Zimmer, Percy Adlon, Alex Wurman; Engineers: Jay Rifkin, Bret Newman.

Selections: 1 Vorspiel (8:32); 2 My Organ (A. Wurman)(1:48) Don Jon Vaughn; 3 Roses (1:41); 4 Lazy Afternoon (3:42); 5 The Morning After (A. Wurman)(1:42) Don Jon Vaughn; 6 Ghosts In Love (1:16); 7 Penny From Heaven (2:08); 8 Show Me Your Face (B. Telson/L. Breuer)(8:06) Donald Sutherland, Lisa Angel; 9 Rabbits (A. Wurman)(2:15) Don Jon Vaughn; 10 Disco (A.

Wurman) (3:47); 11 Show Me Your Face (reprise)(B. Telson/L. Breuer)(4:01).

Review: This is an odd collection of moderately pleasing, but insubstantial synthesizer music realized by Hans Zimmer. Despite the fact that he is the only composer credited on the cover, he only wrote four of the album's ten tracks. Zimmer's score cues are interpolated with additional material by Alex Wurman, performed in most cases on The California Theatre's Mighty Wurlitzer organ. The CD is most notable only because actor Donald Sutherland sings (!) a duet with Lisa Angel on the song "Show Me Your Face" (written by Bob Telson and Lee Breuer). Otherwise, it's generally a vacuous effort, with primitive electronic sounds, that vainly attempts, and fails, to create an intimate romantic fantasy score.

Kidd)(2:18) Chad & Jeremy; 23 No Tears For Johnny (D. Springsfield/J. Hawker)(2:13) Chad & Jeremy;

ALIKI, MY LOVE: 24 Aliki (M. Hadjidakis)(2:57); 25 The Loneliness Of Autumn (G. Calvi)(3:25).

Review: An impressive retelling of a little known historic incident – the total annihilation of a squadron of British soldiers at the hands of more than 4,000 Zulu warriors – Zulu was a major release, enhanced by the generally high quality of the film in all its aspects, including John Barry's seriously-minded score. For the composer, the production marked the first time when he was given an opportunity to display his talent in films other than light comedies or action spy thrillers, that were often dismissed as being too insignificant. For the film, he fashioned a hard-hitting series of cues, accented by the brass instruments anticipating and signalling the eventual doom of the valiant group of soldiers assigned to defend the garrison at Rorke's Drift against their Zulu foes. Though the film itself lasted over two hours, Barry only composed 16 minutes of dense, dramatic music, sparsely used throughout, and augmented with traditional Zulu dances.

To give the CD longer playing time, other selections have been added, including excerpts from Barry's Elizabeth Taylor in London and Four in the Morning, two scores that cry out to be reissued in complete form, as well as pop vocals by Chad and Jeremy and other instrumental tracks that were arranged by John Barry at a time when his composing career had not yet taken its full flight. Sonically speaking, the CD is not all that it should be, with some analog drops and hiss particularly noticeable on some of the tracks.

Ain't Misbehavin'

1987, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Ain't Misbehavin', 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Thomas "Fats" Waller; Lyrics: Andy Razaf, Lester A. Santly, Clarence Williams, Richard Maltby, Jr., Murray Horwitz, Billy Rose, J.C. Mayhew)/Honeysuckle Rose (reprise) (7:12) Ken Page, Armelia McQueen, Charlaine Woodard, Andre De Shields, Nell Carter.

Review: The songs of Thomas "Fats" Waller received the Broadway treatment in a great revue that not only created a stir at the time it opened on May 9, 1978, but paved the way for other similar shows, including Sophisticated Ladies and Eubie. With just five fantastically gifted performers on stage (Nell Carter, Armelia McQueen, Charlaine Woodard, Ken Page and Andre De Shields), a solid band led by Luther Henderson, and a wealth of wonderful numbers, the show became the most talked-about hit on Broadway that season, won several Tony Awards, including the one for Best Musical, and enjoyed an unprecedented run of 1,604 performances.

Aladdin

1992, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature Aladdin, Walt Disney, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Menken; Lyrics: Howard Ashman, Tim Rice; Orchestrations: Danny Troob; Vocal Arrangements: David Friedman; Musical Direction: David Friedman; Cast: Bruce Adler, Jonathan Freeman, Brad Kane, Lea Salonga, Robin Williams; Album Producers: Alan Menken, Tim Rice; Engineer: Bruce Botnock.

Selections: 1 Arabian Nights (1:19) Bruce Adler; 2 Legend Of The Lamp (1:25); 3 One Jump Ahead (2:23) Brad Kane; 4 Street Urchins (1:53); 5 One Jump Ahead (reprise)(1:00) Brad Kane; 6 Friend Like Me (2:26) Robin Williams; 7 To Be Free (1:39); 8 Prince Ali (2:51) Robin Williams; 9 A Whole New World (2:40) Brad Kane, Lea Salonga; 10 Jafar's Hour (2:43); 11 Prince Ali (reprise)(1:08) Jonathan Freeman; 12 The Ends Of The Earth (1:35); 13 The Kiss (1:51); 14 On A Dark Night (2:55); 15 Jasmine Runs Away (:46); 16 Marketplace (2:36); 17 The Cave Of Wonders (4:57); 18 Aladdin's Word (1:51); 19 The Battle (3:38); 20 Happy End In Agrabah (4:11); 21 A Whole New World (4:07) Peabo Bryson, Regina Belle.

Review: Following the success of the Little Mermaid and Beauty and the Beast, Alan Menken and Howard Ashman turned their talent to creating an animated musical based on the 1001-night tale of Aladdin. A large measure of the film's success was due to Robin Williams' inspired performance as the voice of the Genie (which was drawn after Williams' mimicries). The score itself was true to the formula already set by the previous two films, with a standard share of romantic numbers for Ali and Jasmine (vocals by Brad Kane and Lea Salonga), some exciting instrumentals, a couple of humorous moments for the Genie, and a hit song ("A Whole New World"), which won an Academy Award that year.

Review: When George Gershwin wrote his masterful tone poem An American in Paris, he based it upon his experiences in that great city, where he resided for a time in the late '20s. As in his other works, Gershwin composed the piece in a way that encouraged personal visualization on the part of the listener. Apparently, Gershwin's composition left a great impression on famed M-G-M producer Arthur Freed, who deftly created a film plot that used the orchestral suite as the vehicle for a ballet within the picture, and enlisted the services of dancing star Gene Kelly: two moves that practically guaranteed the film's success. Rounding out the musical lot were nearly two dozen George and Ira Gershwin songs that, at the time, were already certifiable standards.

What emerges from this expertly restored edition of the original film soundtrack is just how solid Freed's concept, and his execution of the musical portion of the film, really were. It is a delight to hear not only the title composition (cleverly arranged by the venerable Saul Chaplin), but all of the familiar Gershwin tunes that have become so tightly woven into the fabric of American popular music: "Embraceable You," "But Not For Me," "Love Walked In," "I've Got a Crush on You," "Love Is Here to Stay" ... the list goes on and on!

As with each of the Rhino restorations of the soundtracks from the M-G-M film library, this 2 CD set is replete with historically important "bonus" material, culled from the original session recordings, including alternate and outtakes, and extended versions of songs. Insightful liner notes, and a wonderful interview of Saul Chaplin by Michael Feinstein provide the listener with a complete understanding of the importance of the film, and its music.

Review: The sun did come out on Broadway when big-voiced moppet Andrea McArdle stepped on the stage as Little Orphan Annie, and belted the show-stopping "Tomorrow," her triumphant claim to fame. The show, based on the celebrated comic strip, opened on April 21, 1977, won seven Tony Awards (including for its score and for Best Musical), and had an enduring run of 2,377 performances, though the popularity of this one-hit wonder was probably overrated, as a recent revival on Broadway sadly confirmed. Co-starring Reid Shelton as Daddy Warbucks, and Dorothy Loudon (another Tony winner) in an over-the-top performance as the nefarious Miss Hannigan, the musical had its ingratiating moments, wonderfully captured in the original cast album.

In 1982, it was transferred to the screen in a splashy version that starred Carol Burnett (delightfully delirious as Miss Hannigan), Albert Finney as Daddy Warbucks, the cute Aileen Quinn as Annie, and Tim Curry, Bernadette Peters, Geoffrey Holder, and Ann Reinking. Despite all the talent that went into its production, the musical looked like an anomaly on the screen and showed signs of decrepitude.

1993, Angel Records; from the NBC-TV production Annie Get Your Gun, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Irving Berlin; Lyrics: Irving Berlin; Orchestra conducted by Louis Adrian; Cast: Mary Martin (Annie Oakley), John Raitt (Frank Butler).

Selections: 1 Overture (2:40); 2 I'm A Bad Bad Man (1:43) John Raitt; 3 Doin' What Comes Natur'lly (2:24) Mary Martin; 4 The Girl That I Marry (2:14) John Raitt; 5 You Can't Get A Man With A Gun (3:19) Mary Martin; 6 Moonshine Lullaby (3:36) Mary Martin; 7 They Say It's Wonderful (3:35) Mary Martin, John Raitt; 8 My Defenses Are Down (3:23) Bruce Yarnell; 9 I'm An Indian Too (2:38) Mary Martin; 10 I Got Lost In His Arms (3:13) Mary Martin; 11 I Got The Sun In The Morning (3:15) Mary Martin; 12 Anything You Can Do (3:04) Mary Martin, John Raitt; 13 There's No Business Like Show Business (3:03) Mary Martin, John Raitt.

Review: The life story of Wild West sharpshooter Annie Oakley became the central idea for a lively, exuberant musical starring Ethel Merman, for whom the show was written. Irving Berlin, who had initially declined to create the score for a "book" show, eventually agreed to undertake it and wrote an incredible amount of popular songs, many of which have since become standards – "They Say It's Wonderful," "You Can't Get a Man With a Gun," "Doin' What Comes Natur'lly," "I Got the Sun in the Morning," "Anything You Can Do," and the all-time anthem to the entertainment industry, "There's No Business Like Show Business." In the somewhat simplified plot devised by Herbert and Dorothy Fields, Colonel Buffalo Bill discovers Annie Oakley, and makes her part of his famous Wild West Show, in which she shares billing with Frank Butler. Soon, Annie discovers that "You Can't Get A Man With A Gun," though in the end love prevails over the rivalry between the two. Annie Get Your Gun opened on May 16, 1946, and had an extended run of 1,147 performances; in 1950, it was made into a rip-roaring movie, starring Betty Hutton and Howard Keel.

Of the recordings listed here, the first is the 1946 original cast album, starring Ethel Merman and Ray Middleton. Though no longer up to standard sonics, it is a valuable document, with la Merman at the top of her vocal powers.

Twenty years later, the actress returned to the role in a much-touted revival, presented by producer Richard Rodgers at the then new Music Theater of Lincoln Center in New York, in which Bruce Yarnell was cast as Frank Butler. The cast album recording, on RCA, stands out as the best representation of the score, in vivid stereo sound, with a new song, "An Old Fashioned Wedding," written for this occasion by Irving Berlin.

The recording on Angel features Mary Martin and John Raitt in a 1957 NBC-TV spectacular, reprising the roles they had played ten years earlier in the original road company of the show, and in a San Francisco Civic Light Opera revival a few months prior to the telecast. Though in mono, it is an excellent alternate presentation of the score.

At this writing, the soundtrack to the film has not yet been reissued on compact disc, though songs from the score, performed by Judy Garland, who was scheduled to star in the film before she withdrew from it, can be heard on a Rhino compilation.

Review: A brilliant (and brilliantly flawed) musical by Stephen Sondheim, Anyone Can Whistle is one of those fabulous flops the history of the American Musical Theatre occasionally spawns. A sardonic study of political corruption in a small town, the show details the efforts by the city management to capitalize on a fake miraculous spring to revive the town's flagging economy. The plans are derailed when patients from a local mental hospital escape and begin mingling with the tourists, much to the horror and dismay of the town council. Starring Angela Lansbury, Harry Guardino and Lee Remic, three film stars with little or no previous Broadway experience, the show was roundly lambasted and closed after only nine performances. It was, however, recorded by Goddard Lieberson, head of A&R at Columbia Records, who, with incredible foresight, saw in it something quite unique. Posterity proved him right: today, Anyone Can Whistle is often mentioned as a precursor to the great shows (Company, Follies, Sweeney Todd) Sondheim wrote a decade later, a work way ahead of its time in which one can find in embryo the themes the composer developed subsequently, including man's isolation in the modern world, and the fact that "no one's always what they seem to be."

Anything Goes

1988, RCA Victor; from the Broadway revival Anything Goes, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Cole Porter; Lyrics: Cole Porter; Orchestrations: Michael Gibson; Orchestra conducted by Edward Strauss; Cast: Patti LuPone (Reno Sweeney), Howard McGillin (Billy Crocker), Kathleen Mahony-Bennett (Hope Harcourt), Anthony Heald (Lord Evelyn Oakleigh), Anne Francine (Mrs. Harcourt), Rex Everhart (Elisha Whitney), Bill McCutcheon (Moonface Martin); Album Producer: Jay David Saks; Engineers: Paul Goodman, Anthony Salvatore.

Selections: 1 Prelude (1:31) Cole Porter; 2 I Get A Kick Out Of You (2:10) Patti LuPone; 3 There's No Cure Like Travel/Bon Voyage (2:59) Alec Timerman, Michele Pigliavento; 4 You're The Top (4:10) Patti LuPone, Howard McGillin; 5 Easy To Love (4:03) Howard McGillin; 6 I Want To Row On The Crew/Sailor's Chantey (2:12) Rex Everhart, Chantey Quartet; 7 Friendship (2:46) Patti LuPone, Bill McCutcheon; 8 It's De-Lovely (4:05) Howard McGillin, Kathleen Mahony-Bennett; 9 Anything Goes (3:58) Patti LuPone; 10 Entr'acte (2:21); 11 Public Enemy Number One (1:39) Company; 12 Blow, Gabriel, Blow (4:08) Patti LuPone; 13 Goodbye, Little Dream, Goodbye (1:24) Kathleen Mahony-Bennett; 14 Be Like The Bluebird (2:07) Bill McCutcheon; 15 All Through The Night (3:03) Howard McGillin, Kathleen Mahony-Bennett; 16 The Gypsy In Me (2:13) Anthony Heald; 17 Buddie, Beware (3:25) Linda Hart; 18 I Get A Kick Out Of You/Anything goes (2:09) Company.

Review: One of Cole Porter's wittiest shows, and a hoot and a holler, Anything Goes introduces Broadway audiences to nightclub performer Reno Sweeney, her friend Billy Crocker, in love with socialite Hope Harcourt, and Public Enemy No. 13 Moonface Martin, all of them passengers on a cruise ship where, as the title whimsically points out, everything and anything goes (actually a reference to the problems initially encountered when putting together the musical, about a shipwreck, in the face of several disasters, including the unrelated sinking of the "S.S. Morro"). Ethel Merman, William Gaxton and Victor Moore starred in the goofball original, for which Porter had written some of his most memorable tunes, including "All Through the Night," "Blow, Gabriel, Blow," "You're the Top," and the title tune. It opened November 21, 1934, for 420 performances, the fourth longest running production of the decade, and was made into a screen musical two years later with Bing Crosby, Ethel Merman, and Charlie Ruggles in the principal roles. In 1956, Crosby starred with Donald O'Connor, Mitzi Gaynor and Zizi Jeanmaire, in another film version which only retained the title of the original, and a couple of songs by Porter.

In a somewhat pared down revival, Anything Goes returned to Off Broadway in 1962, with Hal Linden, Eileen Rodgers and Mickey Deems, with the cast album recording, on Epic, documenting this enjoyable but uneven production.

Then, in 1987, it was again revived in a sensational new production, starring Patti LuPone as Reno Sweeney, which opened at Lincoln Center's Vivian Beaumont Theatre, on October 13, 1987, for a long run of 804 performances. That production yielded the original cast album on RCA, which includes several interpolations and is the best representation of the score available by far.

The Apple Tree

1992, Sony Broadway; from the Broadway production The Apple Tree, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Bock; Lyrics: Sheldon Harnick; Orchestrations: Eddie Sauter; Musical direction: Elliot Lawrence; Cast: Barbara Harris (Eve/Barbara/Ella/Passionella), Alan Alda (Adam/Sanjar/Flip/The Prince/Charming); Larry Blyden (The Snake/Balladeer/Narrator); Album Producer: Goodard Lieberson; Engineers: Fred Plaut, Larry Keyes, Robert Waller; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Tim Tiedemann.

Selections: THE DIARY OF ADAM AND EVE: 1 Eden Prelude (1:16); 2 Here In Eden (2:37) Barbara Harris; 3 Feelings (1:22) Barbara Harris; 4 Eve (3:10) Alan Alda; 5 Friends (2:04) Barbara Harris; 6 The Apple Tree (Forbidden Fruit)(2:37) Larry Blyden; 7 Beautiful Beautiful World (2:14) Alan Alda; 8 It's A Fish (1:46) Alan Alda; 9 Go To Sleep, Whatever You Are (1:20) Barbara Harris; 10 What Makes Me Love Him?/Eden Postlude (3:29) Barbara Harris;

THE LADY OR THE TIGER?: 11 Prelude/I'll Tell You A Truth/Make Way (4:13) Larry Blyden; 12 Forbidden Love (In Gaul)(3:26)

Alan Alda, Barbara Harris; 13 The Apple Tree (reprise)(:59) Larry Blyden; 14 I've Got What You Want (2:00) Barbara Harris; 15 Tiger, Tiger (1:58) Barbara Harris; 16 Make Way (reprise)/ Which Door?/I'll Tell You A Truth (reprise) (3:40) Marc Jordan, David McCorkle, Alan Alda, Barbara Harris, Larry Blyden;

PASSIONELLA: 17 Prelude (:25); 18 Oh, To Be A Movie Star (4:08) Barbara Harris; 19 Gorgeous (1:44) Barbara Harris; 20 (Who, Who, Who, Who) Who Is She? (1:22) Barbara Harris; 21 I Know (2:29) Barbara Harris; 22 Wealth (1:33) Barbara Harris; 23 You Are Not Real (2:41) Alan Alda; 24 Postlude/Finale (2:12) Alan Alda, Barbara Harris.

Review: An innovative three one-act musical production, starring Alan Alda, Larry Blyden and Barbara Harris, The Apple Tree was the creation of Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, following their hugely successful Fiddler On The Roof. The production took its name from the first work, based on Mark Twain's amusing "The Diary Of Adam And Eve," and also included Frank R. Stockton's "The Lady and the Tiger," and Jules Feiffer's ''Passionella.'' Though hardly on the same level as its glorious predecessor, The Apple Tree was warmly received by critics when it opened on October 18, 1966, and enjoyed a run of 463 performances. It won a Tony for Barbara Harris' hilarious performance in the third play as a chimney sweeper who dreams of becoming a mooooovie star.

Babes in Arms

1990, New World Records; from the studio cast recording Babes in Arms, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Rodgers; Lyrics: Lorenz Hart; The New Jersey Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Evans Haile; Cast: Gregg Edelman (Valentine LaMar), Judy Blazer (Billie Smith), Jason Graae (Gus Fielding), Donna Kane (Dolores Reynolds), Judy Kaye (Baby Rose), Adam Grupper (Peter Jackson), Michael Taranto, Christopher May, David Montgomery, Steven Katz: JQ and The Bandits (Quartet); Album Producer: Elizabeth Ostrow; Engineer: Henk Kooistra.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:35); 2 Where Or When (4:22) Judy Blazer, Gregg Edelman; 3 Babes In Arms (2:56) Company; 4 I Wish I Were In Love Again (4:02) Jason Graae, Donna Kane; 5 Way Out West (5:05) Judy Kaye, JQ and The Bandits; 6 My Funny Valentine (4:03) Judy Blazer; 7 Johnny One-Note (2:12) Judy Kaye; 8 Ballet: Johnny One-Note (5:35); 9 Imagine (4:11) Judy Kaye, JQ and The Bandits, Jason Graae; 10 All At Once (3:35) Gregg Edelman, Judy Blazer; Peter's Journey: 11 Imagine (reprise 1)(1:03) Adam Grupper, JQ and The Bandits, Jason Graae; 12 Ballet: Peter's Journey (11:25); 13 Imagine (reprise 2) Adam Grupper, JQ and The Bandits; 14 The Lady Is A Tramp (4:20) Judy Blazer; 15 You Are So Fair (5:50) Jason Graae, Donna Kane; 16 Finale (1:14) Company.

Review: In a classic let's-put-a-barnyard-show-together, a group of teenagers, all of them children of vaudevillian performers, decide to stage a revue in order to avoid being sent to work school, in this whimsical musical by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart. It opened on April 14, 1937, and yielded such standards as "Where or When," "I Wish I Were in Love Again," "My Funny Valentine," "Johnny One-Note," and "The Lady Is a Tramp."

The studio cast album listed above, the only one currently available in the catalogue, beautifully captures the spirited moods of the musical, and brings them forth in an excellent recording that enhances the impish, youthful exuberance of the score.

Ballroom

1992, Sony Broadway; from the Broadway production Ballroom, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Billy Goldenberg; Lyrics: Alan & Marilyn Bergman; Orchestrations: Jonathan Tunick; Orchestra conducted by Don Jennings; Cast: Dorothy Loudon (Bea Asher), Vincent Gardenia (Alfred Rossi), Lynn Roberts (Marlene), Bernie Knee (Nathan Bricker); Album Producers: Larry Morton, Kala Productions; Engineers: Stan Tonkel, Ted Brosnan; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Tim Tiedemann.

Selections: 1 Overture: The Stardust Waltz (1:48); 2 A Terrific Band And A Real Nice Crowd (4:20) Dorothy Loudon; 3 A Song For Dancing (3:23) Lynn Roberts, Bernie Knee; 4 One By One (3:13) Lynn Roberts, Bernie Knee; 5 Dance Montage (cha-cha)(2:50); 6 Dreams (3:58) Lynn Roberts; 7 Somebody Did All Right For Herself/Dreams (3:46) Dorothy Loudon, Lynn Roberts; 8 Tango (4:44); 9 Goodnight Is Not Goodbye (1:28) Lynn Roberts, Bernie Knee; 10 I've Been Waiting All My Life (3:10) Bernie Knee; 11 I Love To Dance (4:01) Dorothy Loudon, Vincent Gardenia; 12 More Of The Same (2:46) Lynn Roberts, Bernie Knee; 13 Fifty Percent (3:40) Dorothy Loudon; 14 I Wish You A Waltz (3:35) Dorothy Loudon.

Review: In what is essentially a two-character show, Dorothy Loudon and Vincent Gardenia starred in Ballroom, a big dance musical based on the television musical drama, "Queen of the Stardust Ballroom." The drama had aired four years earlier with Maureen Stapleton and Charles Durning, respectively, as a widow and a middle-age married man who meet on the dance floor and have an affair. Brilliantly staged by Michael Bennett, and a showcase for his unique talent as a choreographer, the musical (with a score by Billy Goldenberg, and Alan and Marilyn Bergman) introduced the show-stopping "Fifty Percent," sung by Dorothy Loudon at the peak of her talent, and presented several big band-styled numbers performed by Lynn Roberts and Bernie Knee. Though it only enjoyed a short run of 116 performances, following its December 14, 1978 opening, it yielded a cast album which is perhaps the best thing it had to offer.

Bambi

1996, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature Bambi, 1942.

Album Notes: Music: Frank Churchill, Edward H. Plumb; Lyrics: Larry Morey; Orchestrations: Charles Wolcott, Paul J. Smith; Choral Arrangements: Charles Henderson; The Disney Studio Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Alexander Steinert; CD Producer: Randy Thornton; Engineer: John Polito.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Love Is A Song)(2:55) Donald Novis; 2 Sleepy Morning In The Woods/Everybody Awake/The Young Prince/ Learning To Walk (5:13); 3 Exploring/Through The Woods/Say Bird/Flower (6:02); 4 Little April Shower (3:53) Chorus; 5 The Meadow/Bambi Sees Faline/Bambi Gets Annoyed (4:56); 6 Gallop Of The Stags/The Great Prince Of The Forest/Man (4:11); 7 Autumn/The First Snow/Fun On The Ice (4:40); 8 The End Of Winter/New Spring Grass/Tragedy In The Meadow (2:32); 9 Wintery Winds (1:09); 10 Let's Sing A Gay Little Spring Song (1:41) Chorus; 11 It Could Even Happen To Flower (2:00); 12 Bambi Gets Twitterpated/Stag Fight (2:32); 13 Looking For Romance (I Bring You A Song)(2:08) Chorus; 14 Man Returns (2:04); 15 Fire/Reunion/ Finale (Love Is A Song)(5:34) Chorus; 16 Rain Drops (demo)(1:37).

Review: One of Walt Disney's best animated features, and certainly the studio's most visually gracile, Bambi, based on Felix Salten's classic story about a little fawn, was a huge critical and commercial success when it was initially released on August 21, 1942. With its charming portrayal of many forest denizens, including Thumper, the mischievious little rabbit, and Flower, the skunk, who befriend Bambi, the film is further enhanced by the great score and songs created for it by Frank Churchill, Ed Plumb and Larry Morey, which include "Love Is A Song" and "Let's Sing a Gay Little Spring Song," among its better moments. Properly remastered, and including many instrumental selections available for the first time, the CD reissue is a great memento from this delightful fable.

The Band Wagon

1996, Rhino Records; from the screen version The Bandwagon, M-G-M, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Arthur Schwartz; Lyrics: Howard Dietz; Arrangements and Orchestrations: Roger Edens, Conrad Salinger, Robert Franklyn, Alexander Courage, Lloyd "Skip" Martin; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Adolph Deutsch; Cast: Fred Astaire (Tony Hunter), Cyd Charisse (Gabrielle "Gaby" Gerard), Oscar Levant (Lester Marton), Nanette Fabray (Lily Marton), Jack Buchanan (Jeffrey Cordova), James Mitchell (Paul Byrd); CD Producers: George Feltenstein, Bradley Flanagan; Engineer: Doug Schwartz.

Selections: 1 Main Title (New Sun In The Sky/I Love Louisa/ High And Low) (1:57); 2 By Myself (1:43) Fred Astaire; 3 Penny Arcade (Shine On Your Shoes Intro)(1:56); 4 A Shine On Your Shoes (4:30) Fred Astaire; 5 Oedipus Bridge (1:28) Jack Buchanan; 6 That's Entertainment (3:27) Fred Astaire, Jack Buchanan, Nanette Fabray, Oscar Levant; 7 Is It All A Dream (La Femme Rouge) (2:30); 8 Sweet Music (outtake)(4:26) Nanette Fabray, Oscar Levant; 9 You Have Everything (outtake)(3:48); 10 Got A Bran' New Suit (outtake)(2:27) Nanette Fabray, Fred Astaire, Oscar Levant; 11 Sweet Music (1:05); 12 Medley: Carriage In The Park (R. Edens/C. Salinger)/High And Low (1:54); 13 Dancing In The Dark (3:28); 14 Two-Faced Woman (outtake)(4:07) India Adams, Oscar Levant; 15 You And The Night And The Music (1:23); 16 The Egg (C. Salinger)(1:58) Chorus; 17 Something To Remember You By (1:30)Chorus; 18 I Love Louisa (2:31) Fred Astaire, Nanette Fabray, Oscar Levant; 19 New Sun In The Sky (1:09) India Adams; 20 I Guess I'll Have To Change My Plan (1:47) Fred Astaire, Jack Buchanan; 21 Louisiana Hayride (2:00) Nanette Fabray; 22 Triplets (2:31) Fred Astaire, Nanette Fabray, Jack Buchanan; 23 The Girl Hunt Ballet (11:43) Fred Astaire; 24 By Myself (reprise)(:59) Fred Astaire; 25 For He's A Jolly Good Fellow (:26) The M-G-M Studio Chorus; 26 That's Entertainment (reprise) (1:15) Fred Astaire, India Adams, Nanette Fabray, Jack Buchanan, Oscar Levant; 27 Two-Faced Woman (demo)(2:44) Roger Edens; 28 That's Entertainment (demo)(3:36) Roger Edens, Richard Beavers.

Review: Another in a long line of producer Arthur Freed's films built around specific composers' song catalogs, The Band Wagon centers on the music of Arthur Schwartz and the lyrics of Howard Dietz. Starring Fred Astaire and Cyd Charisse, it includes many of the pair's most celebrated collaborations, including "By Myself," "That's Entertainment," "Dancing in the Dark," "You and the Night and the Music," and "I Guess I'll Have to Change My Plan."

The Band Wagon proved to be one of M-G-M's last brilliant successes, and this newly restored "complete" edition, produced under the auspices of George Feltenstein and Bradley Flanagan, is an important addition to the ever-growing library of M-G-M film recordings being preserved by Rhino Records.

Unfortunately, the sonic quality of this particular release is not up to Rhino's usual standard for the M-G-M line, primarily due to the way that the film company transferred the original stereo tracks. According to Feltenstein, while most of the original 1953 sessions were recorded in stereo on 3-track magnetic tape, the only surviving reels are the monophonic, 1/4" mixdowns done in the 1960s, which were the masters used for this release. The outstanding music makes it easy to overlook the abundance of tape hiss, however. As is customary with these issues, Rhino has dipped into the vault and included a specially produced mix of "The Girl Hunter Ballet," and two demo recordings by associate producer Roger Edens.

Witter, Jim Dale*; 20 Finale Chase (:12) William C. Witter; 21 The Final Event/There Is A Sucker Born Ev'ry Minute (reprise)(1:31) Jim Dale.

Review: The life of Phineas Taylor (P.T.) Barnum provided Cy Coleman, Michael Stewart and Mark Bramble with the gem of an idea for a brassy Broadway show. Agilely portrayed by Jim Dale, with Glenn Close playing Barnum's long-suffering wife, Chairy, the musical was not, by any stretch of the imagination, a circus tent attraction, but an honest-to-goodness production, with big numbers solidly integrated within the development of a book that retraced Barnum's phenomenal career as a showman. Wittily staged by Joe Layton, it offers stylized side glances at circus life, and concentrates instead on Barnum's humble beginnings, his first successes, his romantic involvement with Jenny Lind, the Swedish Nightingale, and his eventual teaming with James A. Bailey in creating the Greatest Show on Earth. Bright, extraordinarily lively and exciting, the score yielded many hits, including "The Colors of My Life," "Come Follow the Band," and "Join the Circus," all delivered with the right amount of dash and personal glee by the energetic Jim Dale (who won a Tony for his performance), as heard in the original cast album. The show opened on Broadway on April 30, 1980, and had a run of 854 performances.

Review: The venerable classic 1757 tale by Mme Leprince de Beaumont, about a beautiful maiden and the horrible beast who becomes her guardian in exchange for her father's life, had been a wonderful magical source for the creativity of French filmmaker Jean Cocteau. It proved equally reliable when Disney decided to adapt it for an animated musical feature released in 1991. Deftly combining standard animation and computer imagery, the studio craftsmen created a work that is technically polished and sophisticated, yet completely delightful as only the Disney films can be. Adding to the impact of the film and its soundtrack, well-known performers loan their vocal talents to the film, including Angela Lansbury as the homebody Mrs. Potts; Robby Benson, as the Beast, who turns out to be a Prince under an evil spell; Paige O'Hara, whose crystalline voice gives Beauty incredible life on the screen; and Jerry Orbach who, as Lumiere, the candelabra-holding genial host at the Beast's castle, adds a welcome touch of show biz chutzpah. Also particularly welcome is the score by Alan Menken and Howard Tashman, which features some excellent numbers, including "Beauty and the Beast," sensitively rendered by Angela Lansbury, and reprised by Celine Dion and Peabo Bryson in a pop version heard over the end credits; the humorous "Gaston," bellowed by Richard White as the insufferable "lover" of Beauty, and Jesse Corti, as Lefou, Gaston's all-'round yes man and friend; and "Be Our Guest," in which Angela Lansbury, Jerry Orbach, and the other household characters at the Beast's castle celebrate the arrival of Beauty.

Much of the magic and enchantment found in the film had dissipated by the time a live version of the musical opened on Broadway on April 18, 1994. Where the animated feature is clever and whimsical, the stage version is heavy-handed and caricatural. New songs added to the original score only confirm this impression, with the all-too-human characters on stage having a difficult time trying to keep up with the animated screen counterparts, and not succeeding too well. As a result, the cast album, featuring Terrence Mann as the Beast, Susan Egan as Belle, and Burke Moses as Gaston may be of interest to those who have seen the show, still running on Broadway, but if you haven't seen the show or aren't sure which version to get, stick with the original soundtrack from the film.

The Belle of New York

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the screen musical The Belle of New York, M-G-M, 1952.

Album Notes: Music: Harry Warren; Lyrics: Johnny Mercer; Orchestrations: Conrad Salinger, Maurice de Packh; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Adolph Deutsch; Cast: Fred Astaire (Charles Hill), Vera-Ellen (Angela Bonfils), Alice Pearce (Elsie Wilkins); CD Producer: Dan Rivard; Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Overture (When You're Out With The Belle Of New York)(1:31) Orchestra, Chorus; 2 Bachelor's Dinner Song (3:23) Fred Astaire; 3 Let A Little Love Come In (R. Edens)(1:41) Alice Pearce, Anita Ellis; 4 Seeing's Believing (3:50) Fred Astaire; 5 Baby Doll (4:33) Fred Astaire; 6 Oops! (4:59) Fred Astaire; 7 A Bride's Wedding Day (Thank You, Mr. Currier, Thank You, Mr. Ives)(7:47) Anita Ellis; 8 Naughty But Nice (4:40) Anita Ellis; 9 Naughty But Nice (reprise)(2:05) Alice Pearce; 10 Baby Doll (reprise)(:36) Fred Astaire; 11 I Wanna Be A Dancin' Man (4:10) Fred Astaire; 12 Finale: When You're Out With The Belle Of New York (1:00) Orchestra.

Review: Based on a musical created in 1897, but sporting a brand new score by Harry Warren and Johnny Mercer, The Belle of New York is a classic Arthur Freed production, starring Fred Astaire as a dissolute playboy who finds redemption in the arms of an unlikely Salvation Army-type officer, in what is a sly bow in the direction of Guys and Dolls, still a running hit on Broadway at the time. Naturally bright and breezy, the screen musical was the occasion for several song-and-dance numbers, among which the most memorable and successful include a long sequence shot before various backdrops borrowed from the Currier and Ives lithographs; "Baby Doll," which became a standard; and "I Wanna Be a Dancin' Man," which Astaire turned into an exuberant signature song.

Bells Are Ringing

1989, Capitol Records; from the screen version Bells Are Ringing, M-G-M, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Jule Styne; Lyrics: Betty Comden & Adolph Green; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage, Pete King; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra and Chorus conducted by Andre Previn; Cast: Judy Holliday (Ella Peterson), Dean Martin (Jeff Moss), Jean Stapleton (Sue), Eddie Foy, Jr. (Sandor), Hal Linden; Album Producers: Lee Gillette, John Palladino.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:30); 2 It's A Perfect Relationship (3:09) Judy Holliday; 3 Do It Yourself (1:54)P: Dean Martin; 4 It's A Simply Little System (3:01) Eddie Foy Jr.; 5 Better Than A Dream (2:45) Dean Martin, Judy Holliday; 6 I Met A Girl (1:58) Dean Martin; 7 Just In Time (4:02) Judy Holliday, Dean Martin; 8 Drop That Name (2:14) Judy Holliday; 9 The Party's Over (3:15) Judy Holliday; 10 The Midas Touch (3:10) Hal Linden; 11 I'm Going Back (3:31) Judy Holliday; 12 Finale (1:49) Chorus.

Review: An "original book" musical (as opposed to an adaptation), Bells Are Ringing, which opened on November 29, 1956 for a run of 924 performances, was the brainchild of Betty Comden, Adolph Green and composer Jule Styne, who fashioned a breezy, often hilarious show for their star, Judy Holliday. The show, about a lonely operator at an answering phone service who meddles in the lives of her customers and gets involved with a playwright with a temporary creative block, is peopled by a collection of colorful characters (actors, socialites, bookies, policemen and subway riders), and is the occasion for a festival of bright, cheery tunes. Among those, the score introduced the jaunty "Just in Time," and one of Broadway's great show-stopping hits, the mournful "The Party's Over." The cast album, Columbia's first in stereo, ranks among the top recordings ever released by the label.

Judy Holliday reprised her Tony Award-winning performance, and Dean Martin replaced Sydney Chaplin as the playwright, when Bells Are Ringing went Hollywood in 1960 for a big screen treatment that remained somewhat faithful to the original. Even though its score is seriously downsized, it includes a couple of new numbers, including "Do It Yourself," performed by Martin, and "Better Than a Dream," a duet shared by the two stars, and yielded a soundtrack album that has some bright moments, even though it is a poor substitute to the original.

Ben Franklin in Paris

1993, Angel Records; from the Broadway production, Ben Franklin in Paris, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Sandrich Jr.; Lyrics: Sidney Michaels; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Donald Pippin; Cast: Robert Preston (Benjamin Franklin), Ulla Sallert (Comtesse Diane de Vobrillac),Susan Watson (Janine Nicolet), Franklin Kiser (Temple Franklin), Jerry Schaefer (Benjamin Franklin Bache), Bob Kaliban (Pierre Caron de Beaumarchais), Sam Greene (Captain Wickes); Album Producer: Dick Jones.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:01); 2 We Sail The Seas (2:41) Company; 3 I Invented Myself (2:35) Robert Preston; 4 Too Charming (2:09) Robert Preston, Ulla Sallert; 5 Whatever Became Of Old Temple (1:48) Franklin Riser; 6 Half The Battle (3:17) Robert Preston, Jerry Schaefer, Franklin Kiser, Bob Kaliban; 7 A Balloon Is Ascending (1:28) The Company; 8 To Be Alone With You (3:15) Robert Preston, Ulla Sallert; 9 You're In Paris (3:28) Susan Watson, Franklin Kiser; 10 How Laughable It Is (2:06) Ulla Sallert; 11 Hic Haec Hoc (1:20) Company; 12 God Bless The Human Elbow (2:34) Robert Preston, Jack Fletcher, Bob Kaliban; 13 When I Dance With The Person I Love (3:39) Susan Watson; 14 Diane Is (1:15) Robert Preston; 15 Look For Small Pleasures (4:35) Robert Preston, Ulla Sallert; 16 I Love The Ladies (3:27) Robert Preston, Sam Greene, Bob Kaliban, Franklin Kiser; 17 Finale (4:32) Robert Preston.

Review: The primary interest in this cast album resides in Robert Preston's portrayal of Benjamin Franklin, his first role on Broadway since The Music Man. Saddled with an impossible book recounting Franklin's visit to Versailles and the court of French King Louis XVI, and his alleged involvement with Comtesse Diane de Vobrillac, Preston also had to struggle with a score that lacked fire and imagination, and a co-star with whom he shared little stage chemistry. Despite the beguiling presence of Susan Watson, fresh as a daisy in a secondary role, and a minor hit in the song "Half the Battle," spiritedly delivered by Preston and cohorts, the show floundered and mercifully closed after 215 performances.

Best Foot Forward

1988, DRG Records; from the off-Broadway revival Best Foot Forward, 1963.

Selections: 1 Wish I May (2:48)Ensemble; 2 Three Men On A Date (2:48) Glenn Walken, Christopher Walken, Edmund Gaynes; 3 Hollywood Story (3:48) Paula Wayne, Grant Walden; 4 The Three "B's" (5:29) Liza Minnelli, Kay Cole, Renee Winters; 5 Ev'ry Time (4:10) Karin Wolfe; 6 Alive And Kicking/The Guy Who Brought Me (2:42) Paula Wayne, Grant Walden, Edmund Gaynes, Christopher Walken, Glenn Walken; 7 Shady Lady Bird (2:53) Karin Wolfe, Edmund Gaynes, Gene Castle, Don Slaton, Paul Charles; 8 Buckle Down Winsocki (4:07) Jack Irwin, Edmund Gaynes, Paul Charles; 9 You're Lucky (2:50) Paula Wayne; 10 What Do You Think I Am? (3:08) Liza Minnelli, Edmund Gaynes, Kay Cole, Christopher Walken; 11 A Raving Beauty (3:00) Christopher Walken, Kay Cole; 12 Just A Little Joint With A Juke Box (2:55) Liza Minnelli, Gene Castle, Don Slaton, Paul Charles; 13 You Are For Loving (5:13) Liza Minnelli; 14 Finale: Buckle Down Winsocki (reprise)(:33) Paula Wayne.

Review: The 1963 revival of Best Foot Forward, the self-proclaimed "bright musical comedy hit," is best remembered today for the fact that it introduced Liza Minnelli in her first stage role. Initially produced on Broadway in 1941, where it enjoyed a run of 326 performances, Best Foot Forward had been a lightweight but delightful vehicle for a group of talented newcomers, including June Allyson and Nancy Walker, cast as prep school students at Winsocki, Pennsylvania, upset when a Hollywood starlet (Rosemary Lane) steals the spotlight and their boyfriends when she appears as a publicity stunt at the school's annual prom. The show, directed by George Abbott, also launched the careers of Hugh Martin and Ralph Blane. In 1943, it was brought to the screen by Arthur Freed, with Lucille Ball, William Gaxton and Gloria de Haven joining June Allyson and Nancy Walker, the only holdovers from the original stage production.

Presented at the Stage 73 Theatre on April 2, 1963, the revival starred Paula Wayne, Christopher Walken, and Karin Wolfe, and kept the original score in which Martin and Blane had interpolated two new songs, including "You Are For Loving," performed as a second act solo by Liza Minnelli. It had a run of 224 performances. Though an obvious piece of fluff, the recording reveals a score that is fairly uncomplicated and easy on the ear, with some recognizable numbers. It will mostly appeal to completists.

The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas

1988, MCA Records; from the screen version The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas, Universal Pictures, 1982.

Selections: 1 20 Fans (4:33) Jim Nabors; 2 A Lil' Ole Bitty Pissant Country Place (5:26) Dolly Parton, Teresa Merritt; 3 Sneakin' Around (D. Parton)(1:53) Dolly Parton, Burt Reynolds; 4 Watchdog Report/Texas Has A Whorehouse In It (3:04) Dom DeLuise and The Dogettes; 5 Courtyard Shag (3:29); 6 The Aggie Song (7:43); 7 The Sidestep (3:43) Charles Durning; 8 Hard Candy Christmas (3:50) Dolly Parton; 9 I Will Always Love You (D. Parton)(3:03) Dolly Parton.

Review: Like rock, country music has seldom made a successful foray on Broadway, though a particularly effective exception was The Best Little Whorehouse in Texas, which opened in 1978. Created by Carol Hall, the musical deals with the Chicken Ranch, a legendary Texas emporium and the only authorized brothel in the country, and efforts by some self-appointed protectors of morality to close the place, even though (or perhaps because) its customers include several influential politicians and important citizens. Deliberately lewd and raunchy, the show was a hit on Broadway and enjoyed a lengthy run of 1,584 performances. Sadly, its cast album has never been reissued on compact disc.

In 1982, however, it was turned into a screen musical, starring Dolly Parton (who contributed a couple of songs to the score) as Miss Mona, the house owner, and Burt Reynolds as the local sheriff and Mona's former lover. The recording presents what remains of Carol Hall's profuse score, which is very little, but it includes the show-stopper "The Sidestep," in which Charles Durning, a politician and customer at the Chicken Ranch, gives his own version of the tactful art of diplomacy, and "Hard Candy Christmas," a novel Yule anthem.

In 1994, the show spawned a sequel in The Best Little Whorehouse Goes Public, staged by Tommy Tune, which flopped, though it yielded a cast album on the Varese-Sarabande label.

Big River

1985, MCA Records; from the Broadway production Big River, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Roger Miller; Lyrics: Roger Miller; Orchestrations: Steven Margoshes, Danny Troob; Musical Direction and Vocal Arrangements: Linda Twine; Dance and Incidental Music: John Richard Lewis; Cast: Daniel Jenkins (Huckleberry Finn), Ron Richardson (Jim), Bob Gunton (The King), Rene Auberjonois (The Duke); Album Producer: Jimmy Bowen; Enginners: Bob Bullock, Josh Abbey, Steve Tillisch.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:48); 2 Do Ya Wanna Go To Heaven? (2:54); 3 The Boys (1:55); 4 Waitin' For The Light To Shine (1:29); 5 Guv'ment (2:02); 6 Hand For The Hog (1:10); 7 I Huckleberry, Me (1:56); 8 Muddy Water (2:30); 9 The Crossing (1:58); 10 River In The Rain (3:27); 11 When The Sun Goes Down In The South (2:28); 12 Entr'acte (1:20); 13 The Royal Nonesuch (2:07); 14 Worlds Apart (2:54); 15 Arkansas/How Blest We Are (4:01); 16 You Oughta Be Here With me (2:19); 17 Leavin's Not The Only Way To Go (2:31); 18 Waitin' For The Light To Shine (reprise)(1:58); 19 Free At Last (2:44); 20 Muddy Water (reprise) (1:09).

Review: "King of the Road" songwriter Roger Miller enjoyed a long, 1,005-performance run with the multiple Tony Award-winning musical Big River, a clever adaptation of the Mark Twain stories about Huck Finn and the runaway slave Jim, as they travel on a raft down the Mississippi, from St. Petersburg, Missouri, to Hillsboro, Arkansas. With Heidi Landesman providing the evocative settings that gave the show its local folk colors, Big River was a powerful hit that survives to this day through its flavorful cast recording album.

The Boy Friend

1989, RCA Victor; from the off Broadway production The Boy Friend, 1954.

Album Notes: Music: Sandy Wilson; Lyrics: Sandy Wilson; Orchestrations: Ted Royal, Charles L. Cooke; Paul McGrane and His Bearcats, under the direction of Anton Coppola; Cast: Millicent Martin (Nancy), Julie Andrews (Polly), Ann Wakefield (Maisie), Stella Claire (Fay), Dilys Lay (Dulcie), Paulette Girard (Hortense), Bob Scheerer (Bobby Van Husen), Ruth Altman (Madame Dubonnet), Eric Berry (Percival Browne), John Hewer (Tony), Geoffrey Hibbert (Lord Brockhurst); Album Producer: Hugo Winterhalter; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:31) The Bearcats; 2 Perfect Young Ladies (1:10) Paulette Girard, Millicent Martin, Ann Wakefield, Stella Claire, Dilys Lay; 3 The Boy Friend (2:44) Julie Andrews; 4 Won't You Charleston With Me? (3:16) Ann Wakefield, Bob Scheerer; 5 Fancy Forgetting (2:22) Ruth Altman, Eric Berry; 6 I Could Be Happy With You (3:19) Julie Andrews, John Hewer; 7 Sur la plage (1:50); 8 A Room In Bloomsbury (2:43) John Hewer, Julie Andrews; 9 The You-Don't-Want-To-Play-With-Me Blues (3:10) Ruth Altman, Eric Berry, The Perfect Young Ladies; 10 Safety In Numbers (2:49) Ann Wakefield, The Boy Friends; 11 The Riviera (2:53) Ann Wakefield, Bob Scheerer; 12 It's Never Too Late To Fall In Love (2:02) Geoffrey Hibbert, Dilys Lay; 13 Carnival Tango (2:17) The Bearcats; 14 Poor Little Pierrette (3:28) Ruth Altman, Julie Andrews; 15 Finale (1:28) Julie Andrews, John Hewer.

Review: A lighthearted send-up of the simple musicals of the 1920s, The Boy Friend, written by Sandy Wilson, was initially created in London in 1953 as an after-hour entertainment at an intimate private theatre club. Set on the Riviera in 1926, its skimpy storyline deals with a young English heiress at Madame Dubonnet's finishing school, and the young delivery boy (actually a peer in disguise) with whom she falls in love. On September 30, 1954, The Boy Friend opened at the Royale Theater under the aegis of producers Cy Feuer and Ernest Martin where it played a total of 485 performances. In its cast was a fresh 19-year-old, Julie Andrews, whose next stop on Broadway two years later would be in the huge hit My Fair Lady. The show was revived off-Broadway in 1958, for a run that lasted 763 performances, and again on Broadway in 1970 for 119 performances, with Sandy Duncan and Judy Carne in the cast.

The 1954 cast album listed above, while in mono, presents Julie Andrews and cohorts in the first production, in what turns out to be a delightful recording of Sandy Wilson's whimsical score.

The Boys from Syracuse

The Boys from Syracuse

1993, Sony Broadway; from the studio cast recording The Boys from Syracuse, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Rodgers; Lyrics: Lorenz Hart; Chorus and orchestra conducted by Lehman Engel; Cast: Portia Nelson (Adriana), Jack Cassidy (Antipholus of Syracuse/Antipholus of Ephesus), Bibi Osterwald (Luce/Courtesan), Holly Harris (Luciana), Stanley Prager (Dromio of Syracuse/Dromio of Ephesus), Bob Shaver (Singing Policeman); Album Producer: Goddard Lierberson; CD Producer: Didier C. Review: "If it's good enough for Shakespeare, it's good enough for us." With these words to the wise, on November 23, 1938, Rodgers and Hart introduced their latest musical, The Boys from Syracuse. A wild romp through classic antiquity, the musical is based on the Bard's Comedy of Errors, itself borrowed from Plautus' Menaechmi, and is about two sets of twins separated at birth, one pair living in Ephesus, in Asia Minor, the other in Syracuse. When the boys from Syracuse, named Antipholus and Dromio, arrive in Ephesus, they are immediately mistaken for their Ephesus twins, also named Antipholus and Dromio. In the end, of course, all's well that ends well, with the reunited twins and their respective spouses and mates ready to enjoy life together.

With its irreverent book by George Abbott and a score brimming with many great tunes ("Falling in Love with Love," "This Can't Be Love"), The Boys from Syracuse enjoyed a run of 235 performances. In 1940, it was transferred to the screen in a film version that starred Allan Jones and Martha Raye. On April 15, 1963, it was successfully revived off-Broadway for a 25th anniversary production which had a run of 500 performances. That production is documented in the Angel recording listed above, with Stuart Damon, Cathryn Damon, Clifford David and Karen Morrow in its cast. It is a lively, spirited recording that echoes the impish moods in this amusing musical.

Though a mono recording, the 1953 studio cast recording, starring Jack Cassidy, Portia Nelson and Bibi Osterwald is of interest because it features a fuller orchestra than the 1963 revival, the original orchestrations, and a vibrant cast that evidently enjoys singing the songs by Rodgers and Hart. As an alternative option, you can't go wrong.

Review: A musical about a Scottish village which reappears for one day every hundred years and the two American travelers that stumble upon it seems a fairly unlikely proposition for a hit Broadway show. However, Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe succeeded admirably. While the score is near perfection, it does vacillate a bit between traditional musical comedy and the new style of musical play. Regardless, the tunes and lyrics are easily hummed and remain in the memory long after the album ends. In the 1947 original cast album, Marion Bell is lovely as Fiona, the Highland lass who falls in love with the American Tommy, ardently sung by David Bell. Lee Sullivan is a winning Charlie Dalrymple and Pamela Britton enthusiastically sings only one of Meg Brockie's two numbers. This release gets the highest rating in spite of too many cuts and rather ordinary monaural sound.

While the 1954 film has beautiful settings and costumes and well-seasoned performers, it doesn't measure up to the original Broadway production. Unfortunately, the same can be said for the soundtrack. The orchestrations are beautifully done, the singing is more than acceptable and the sound is in stereo, but the score is cut to shreds and several wonderful songs are not included, although a few outtakes and much dance music previously unavailable are. Gene Kelly, Carol Richards and Van Johnson do their best, but there is a certain blandness that affected many of the era's big MGM musicals taken from the Broadway theater.

For its most recent incarnation, the 1992 studio cast, John McGlinn did a wonderful job recreating a theatrical atmosphere within the sterile confines of the recording studio. In fact, the recording is so spectacular, you can almost feel the mist of the Scottish Highlands drift out from your speakers. Arguably, there are no better performers in the Broadway theater today than the ones chosen for this recording. Rebecca Luker is a lovely, charming Fiona MacLaren, with Brent Barrett a strong, yet sensitive Tommy Albright. Judy Kaye portrays Meg Brockie as a lusty Highland wench and John Mark Ainsley as Charlie Dalrymple sings his songs from the heart. The Ambrosian Chorus and the London Sinfonietta play as if the music were in their blood, which is a very high compliment from this corner. Don't miss this extraordinary recording in terrific, modern stereo digital sound.

Review: Some shows are an effective blend of songs and dances, combined with a solid dramatic texture that gives the whole package an uncompromising theatrical flair. Usually, these shows translate very well to the recording medium, even though a large part of their theatricality is no longer part of the mix. Others just don't fare so well. Such is the case with Bring in ' Da Noise, Bring in ' Da Funk, a dramatic retelling of the struggle of African Americans from the days of slavery to the Civil Rights movement, as seen though a show which is essentially a songfest of tap dancing and percussion. On stage, the concept is quite effective, largely because of the drive and energy demonstrated by Savion Glover and the dancers in his company. In fact, "Industrialization," a scene which explores the industrial revolution only in terms of tap and percussion, proves an explosive show-stopper. However, the concept proves much less effective on record, simply because it is primarily visual. For this medium, many numbers have mercifully been abbreviated, with the focus shifted to Ann Dusquesnay's inspiring but eventually limited songs. The cast album (if that's what it is) cannot even convey the fire and excitement displayed on stage, much less the intensity evident in most of the performances.

Herzog)(3:20) Vivian Reed; 14 It Don't Mean A Thing (E.K. Ellington/I. Mills)(4:55)Company.

Review: At heart a jazz/R&B musical revue, Bubbling Brown Sugar took some 40 musical numbers by some of the brightest songwriters of the 1930s, and aimed to bring back an era that was particularly rich and evocative, melodically and theatrically speaking. With a cast that included stage stars Josephine Premice and Avon Long (best remembered from the original Porgy And Bess), expert tap dancer Joseph Attles, and nightclub performer Vivian Reed, the revue presented its cast in various songs. Many of them were familiar numbers like "Stompin' at the Savoy," "Take the 'A' Train," "Sophisticated Lady," "Honeysuckle Rose," "I Got It Bad (And That Ain't Good)," "God Bless the Child," and "It Don't Mean a Thing," that are still available in their original cast albums. Propelled by its star-power and its song roster, the musical enjoyed an excellent run of 768 performances following its Broadway premiere on March 2, 1976.

Review: Taking a cue from Elvis Presley's much publicized induction in the Army, composer Charles Strouse and lyricist Lee Adams, making their Broadway bow, wrote a joyously exhilarating musical which poked amiable fun at its famous model. The first of the great pop-rock musicals, the show was in truth an old-fashioned affair that relied on the trials and tribulations of Albert Peterson, a former English teacher turned music publisher and manager of Conrad Birdie (the show's Elvis alter ego), and his long-suffering girlfriend and secretary, Rose. The device used here is the hope that with Conrad being drafted, Albert might have more time to spend with Rose and make her dream of getting married a reality.

On a broader scale, the show also takes sharp aim at life in a small American town (where Conrad is going to make his last public appearance in a well orchestrated disappearing act), and at the generational misunderstanding between Conrad's teenage fans, all smitten by the nascent rock'n'roll craze, and their uncomprehending parents.

The musical became a springboard for many of its creators, including choreographer Gower Champion, and stars Dick Van Dyke and Chita Rivera. Several songs soon emerged from the score, including the unqualified hit, "Put on a Happy Face."

In its transfer to the big screen, the show retained most of its winning elements, substituting Janet Leigh for Chita Rivera, and adding Ann-Margret for box-office appeal. The recording, however, leaves a lot to be desired, with some distortion on the vocals and overall strident sonics that make it less than an acceptable representation in this digital age.

Review: In a stunning way, Cabaret captures a story set in the late 1920s, when storm clouds were beginning to gather over Germany and subsequently over all of Europe. Joel Grey was terrific as the sleazy Master of Ceremonies of the Kit Kat Klub with its slimy, decadent atmosphere of a Berlin that was going mad. Whatever performance she gave on stage, Jill Haworth, as Sally Bowles, created a strong character which comes charmingly across on the original cast album. Her delivery contains the perfect combination of humor and raucousness needed for the part. Saddled with a nondescript part, Bert Convy made the most of his numbers. Lotte Lenya, who personified these very Berlin years with just a shred of voice, was wonderful as Fraulein Schneider, whether expressing delight, tenderness or bitterness. Jack Gilford, a noted comedian, showed another side of his talent as the very sweet and vulnerable Herr Schultz, who, in spite of the madness around him, just wants to marry Fraulein Schneider. While the stereo recording is quite reverberant, it adds to the theatrical feel.

The film, which was a completely re-thought version of the show, was one of the last hit musical films based on a Broadway musical. Every performer in it is perfect, from the stars to the extras behind them, which is very evident on the recording. Arguably, Liza Minnelli, who won an Oscar for her portrayal as Sally Bowles, gave the greatest performance of her career in this film. Joel Grey, recreating and refining his stunning stage portrayal as the Master of Ceremonies in an Oscar winnning performance, was, if possible, even more sleazy and decadent on film than he was on stage. Both take up most of the soundtrack, together and separately. The plot songs from the stage were cut for the film and a few new songs were added. The punch-in-the-gut quality comes across very well on the album, but be warned that the packaging has no cast list and is very, very stingy with much needed information. However, the stereo sound is fine and adds to the impact of this truly enjoyable recording.

Review: A black musical fable about the eternal struggle between Good and Evil and a rather unsteady sinner named Little Joe Jackson, Cabin in the Sky opened on Broadway on October 25, 1940, and immediately became the hottest show in town. With a great score by Vernon Duke and John Latouche, in which a big hit was "Taking a Chance on Love," and a cast that included Ethel Waters, Todd Duncan, Dooley Wilson, Rex Ingram and Katherine Dunham, the show recounted how Little Joe, seriously wounded in a street brawl, was given a reprieve of six months by the Lawd's General to prove himself or be forever cast in Hell, where Lucifer Jr. gleefully waited for him. In a twist that recalled several other shows with similar storylines (Liliom, The Green Pastures, and even Damn Yankees, many seasons later), Lucifer Jr. tried to trip Little Joe with the help of a sultry siren named Georgia Brown, but to little avail.

Ethel Waters, as Petunia, Little Joe's trusting wife, and Rex Ingram, as Lucifer Jr., were also the stars of the 1943 film version, which was directed by Vincente Minnelli for M-G-M. The film's cast also included Eddie "Rochester" Anderson, playing Little Joe, Lena Horne as Georgia Brown, Louis Armstrong and Duke Ellington and his orchestra. Unlike the stage musical, the film concluded on a different note, with Little Joe waking up at the end to realize it was all a bad dream. Also undergoing modifications was the score, in which only three songs from the original were retained, supplemented with several numbers written by Harold Arlen and E.Y. Harburg, including "Happiness Is a Thing Called Joe," and "Life's Full of Consequences." The film yielded a sensational soundtrack album, recently given the superlative Rhino treatment.

The original stage show was revived in 1964, with Rosetta LeNoire starring as Petunia, in an off Broadway production that had a limited run of 47 performances. The Angel cast album chronicles that revival and is of interest as the only recording of the production as it was originally presented.

Review: Ethel Merman, the actress with the mostes', portrayed a reasonable facsimile of Perle Mesta, the hostess with the mostes' (who had recently been appointed American ambassador to Luxembourg by president Harry Truman), in Call Me Madam, an engaging musical by Irving Berlin, which opened on October 12, 1950. The show, a breezy satire dealing with an abrasively direct and definitely not diplomatic woman named ambassador to a tiny duchy (the action is set, according to the program notes, "in two mythical countries, Lichtenburg and the United States"), pokes gentle fun at American-style politics abroad, with Berlin delivering a serviceable and frequently enjoyable score. In 1953, the show reached the big screen, with Merman reprising the role, and George Sanders and Donald O'Connor in the cast.

This recording, starring Tyne Daly, originated at New York City Center's Encore! series, and, in the absence of original cast and soundtrack album recordings, provides a clear vision of the score, which included the popular hits "It's a Lovely Day Today" and "You're Just in Love." As is usually the case with this concert series, the performances are spirited and quite enjoyable.

Review: The original cast recording on Columbia gets a top rating as it is a sheer delight from the upward sweep of the "Overture" to the haunting reprise of the title song that brings the album to its gentle, rueful close. Richard Burton makes an imposing, regal Arthur. Julie Andrews is, by turns, a shy, alluring, then passionate Guenevere. Robert Goulet is sexy and strong as Lancelot and Roddy McDowall shows a richly malevolent streak as Mordred. There is also a young, assertive John Cullum in a small role. Arguably, Alan Jay Lerner never turned in finer lyrics than in this work. Every word is allied with the music in such a way as to be inevitable. Frederick Loewe continued to grow and enrich the sound of Broadway music with this musical, writing one of the all-time great Broadway scores. While the original production was plagued with problems and illnesses, listening to this album, one would never know it. It sounds effortless and continually fresh, and is a must in any library of Broadway show music.

While the recording of the London revival (on Varese-Sarabande) is wrong where the album of the 1960 Broadway cast is right, there are a few virtues to be found in it. More of the score has been included on this CD than on the original, and it is fairly well played by the orchestra, if somewhat out of tune here and there. The brilliance of the writing by Lerner and Loewe comes through with top honors. Unfortunately, the performances, with the possible exception of Robert Meadmore, a passionate yet sensitive Lancelot, are mediocre at best. Whatever the quality of his performance on stage, and though he tries hard, Richard Harris is just not good as Arthur on this album. He was much more effective in the film and on its soundtrack. Fiona Fullerton gives a small, whiney performance as Guenevere. The rest of the cast is acceptable. However, as there is no Arthur and Guenevere worth the listen, then there is no point in listening. This album is only for completists.

While visual elements of the film were so stunning that the music and lyrics tended to get lost, on the soundtrack recording (on Warner Bros.), the images don't mean anything and one can focus on the musical performances. Unfortunately, Richard Harris as King Arthur, Vanessa Redgrave as Queen Guenevere and Franco Nero (dubbed by Gene Merlino) as Lancelot do not measure up to the original cast in any way. With the exception of Merlino, the actors are non-singers and can be rather difficult to listen to, especially if one is familiar with the Broadway cast album. That said, there are also things to enjoy here. While her tempos and style of singing are quite different, Redgrave is an excellent Guenevere. Harris' Arthur is also very strong and likable, and the singing of Merlino comes across almost as powerful as the original. My choice will always be the original Broadway cast album as the best and most complete version of this truly magical score. However, the soundtrack album has its own particular joys and is well worth the time spent listening to it.

Can-Can

Can-Can

1989, Capitol Records; from the Broadway production, Can-Can, 1953.

Album Notes: Music: Cole Porter; Lyrics: Cole Porter; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Musical Direction: Milton Rosenstock;

Cast: Lilo (La Mome Pistache), Peter Cookson (Judge Aristide Forestier), Hans Conried (Boris Adzinidzinadze), Gwen Verdon (Claudine), Erik Rhodes (Hilaire Jussac).

Selections: 1 Introduction: Maidens Typical Of France (3:03) Female Chorus; 2 Never Give Anything Away (2:01) Lilo; 3 Quadrille (2:11); 4 C'est Magnifique (3:24) Lilo, Peter Cookson; 5 Come Along With Me (4:36) Erik Rhodes, Hans Conried; 6 Live And Let Live (1:56) Lilo; 7 I Am In Love (2:40) Peter Cookson; 8 If You Loved Me Truly (3:14) Gwen Verdon, Hans Conried; 9 Montmart'(1:33) Peter Cookson; 10 Allez-Vous En, Go Away (2:16) Lilo; 11 Never, Never Be An Artist (2:58) Hans Conried; 12 It's All Right With Me (2:01) Peter Cookson; 13 Every Man Is A Stupid Man (2:24) Lilo; 14 I Love Paris (2:29) Lilo; 15 Can-Can (2:58) Lilo.

Review: Cole Porter's particular fondness for things French found one of its best expressions in Can Can, a lullaby to turn-of-the-century Paris, when the "naughty" new dance at the Moulin-Rouge attracted huge crowds of society revelers... and the police, eager to close the place for these lewd exhibitions. In the show, the clash between Judge Forestier, a bastion of morality, and La Mome Pistache, owner of Bal du Paradis, a night club where the dissolute dance is performed nightly, eventually leads to a compromise when the Judge falls for La Mome, and becomes one of the Can-Can's most ardent defenders. Starring Lilo as Pistache and Peter Cookson as Forestier, the show also introduced Gwen Verdon, whose memorable Tony Award-winning turn in the seductive "Garden of Eden" ballet led to a starring role two years later in Damn Yankees. The score, one of Porter's most elegantly achieved, included at least two great songs, "C'est magnifique" and "I Love Paris." Can Can, which opened on May 7, 1953, had a run of 892 performances.

Can-Can

1989, Capitol Records; from the screen version, Can-Can, 20th Century-Fox, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Cole Porter; Lyrics: Cole Porter; Orchestrations: Nelson Riddle; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra, conducted by Nelson Riddle; Cast: Shirley MacLaine (Simone Pistache), Louis Jourdan (Philippe Forestier), Frank Sinatra (Francois Durnais), Maurice Chevalier (Paul Barriere), Juliet Prowse (Claudine); Album Producer: Dave Cavanaugh.

Selections: 1 Entr'acte (3:24) Orchestra; 2 It's All Right With Me (4:16) Frank Sinatra; 3 Come Along With Me (3:07) Shirley MacLaine; 4 Live And Let Live (1:52) Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan; 5 You Do Something To Me (1:59) Louis Jourdan; 6 Let's Do It (2:49) Frank Sinatra, Shirley MacLaine; 7 Main Title: a. I Love Paris/b. Montmart' (3:04) Frank Sinatra, Maurice Chevalier; 8 C'est Magnifique (2:03) Frank Sinatra; 9 Maidens Typical Of France (2:06) Chorus; 10 Just One Of Those Things (2:11) Maurice Chevalier; 11 I Love Paris (2:24) Frank Sinatra, Maurice Chevalier; 12 Can-Can (3:19) Orchestra.

Review: What a shame that one of the most endearing of all of Frank Sinatra's film soundtracks has never enjoyed a proper presentation, one befitting the charming Cole Porter score, and its very special performances. Such is the case with Can-Can, originally released in 1960 as an LP on Capitol Records. At the time, little attention was paid to either the technical quality of the recording, or the actual sequencing of the songs. Unfortunately, little has changed with the transfer of the LP to compact disc. As in the LP, the "Entr'acte" opens the disc, while the "Main Title" appears in the middle of the program.

Sonically, the recording is dull, and the quality of the sound varies from track to track. Particularly distressing is the muffled, distorted sound on one of Sinatra's finest songs, "It's All Right With Me." Others, like the Sinatra-Maurice Chevalier duet on "I Love Paris," sound plain flat and one-dimensional. Overall, the equalization is poor, and the original transfer engineers liberally used reverb to conceal a myriad of defects.

These unforgivable technical problems aside, the Frank Sinatra, Maurice Chevalier and Shirley MacLaine performances of some of Porter's finest songs are essential, and deserve attention for their artistic value.

Review: Some Broadway shows undergo extensive rewrites before their opening, and occasionally even after they have received their official premiere. But few have been as extensively altered and modified than Candide, which initially opened on Broadway on December 1, 1956, only to close 76 performances later, and has since been revived (and revised) several times, both winningly and unsatisfactorily.

The first version, written by Lillian Helman, remained faithful to Voltaire's tale of the two innocent lovers, Candide and Cunegonde, who go through the most incredible misadventures before they can live together, wiser and presumably happier. However, it couldn't reconcile the various elements in the narrative with the tale's often idiosyncratic tone set by Voltaire in his satirical comments that all that happens happens for a good reason "in the best of all possible worlds," the truism uttered by Doctor Pangloss, Candide and Cunegonde's beloved teacher. Sometimes too heavy-handed, sometimes awkward, Helman's book failed to match the light, humoristic tones in Leonard Bernstein's brilliant score, which so effectively echoed the irony in Voltaire's novella.

Despite its failure on Broadway, the show became a cult favorite, thanks largely to its cast album, which remained a constant best seller in the Columbia catalogue, with Barbara Cook radiant as Cunegonde, and Robert Rounseville handsomely fetching as Candide.

Finally, in 1973, producer-director Harold Prince decided to try and revisit the show. Helman's book was discarded, and Hugh Wheeler was brought in to write a new, more theatrical version, with Stephen Sondheim contributing some new lyrics to Bernstein's songs. The revised show, pruned down and more effective, opened on Broadway on March 10, 1974, to ecstatic reviews, and enjoyed a run of 740 performances. A cast album, released at the time by Columbia Records, has never been reissued on compact disc, but with a few additional revisions reflecting Prince's more operatic approach to a new staging for the New York City Opera, the New World recording listed above gives an idea of the extensive work that went into the score.

More recently, on April 29, 1997, Candide returned to Broadway in a sparkling new edition, again produced and directed by Prince, with more revisions brought to it, and a sensational cast headed by Jim Dale as Pangloss, Harolyn Blackwell as Cunegonde, Jason Daniely as Candide, and Andrea Martin as The Old Lady. A cast album was expected on RCA Victor at this writing, and will no doubt provide a fresh alternative to the other two listed above. In the final analysis, however, the 1956 recording is probably the one that will endure, if only because it was one of the original show's most satisfactory ingredients, and is not weighted down by the book as was the case with the production itself.

Review: M-G-M's lovely fable, Lili, about the little orphan girl who joins a carnival and befriends the puppets who saved her life when she was considering suicide became the basis for a new Broadway musical, Carnival. The musical had a book by Michael Stewart and a score by Bob Merrill, and opened on April 13, 1961 for a run of 719 performances. While missing some of the charm and lilt of the film, a pervasive song to match the memorable "Hi-Lili, Hi-Lo," and the ingratiating waif-like presence of Leslie Caron, the stage show had a fetching attitude of its own that was most engaging, a lovely hit in the song "Love Makes the World Go 'Round," and Tony Award-winner Anna-Maria Alberghetti as Lili. In it, Jerry Orbach portrayed Paul, the crippled puppeteer whose crankiness contrasted with the warmth he displayed in his puppets behind the scrim. The musical also features James Mitchell as Marco the Magician, the flashy circus entertainer with whom Lili falls in love, not knowing he is already married to Kaye Ballard. The cast album, one of the first to be reissued on compact disc, provides a pleasant memento of the relatively nondescript score, with various bonus tracks that may be of minor interest to musical theatre fans.

Review: The second Rodgers and Hammerstein musical has, in half a century, aged as well as any of their work, and the CD listener can hear it in a variety of forms. The original cast album, on MCA, presents an edited and rearranged version of the score (in monaural, of course) performed by selected cast members. John Raitt, the template for the Broadway leading man of the era, is a fine, larger-than-life Billy Bigelow, and Jan Clayton makes a feisty Julie Jordan. The supporting roles are all also first-rate. The standards—"If I Loved You," "June Is Bustin' Out All Over," "You'll Never Walk Alone"—stand up against their countless cover versions.

Rodgers and Hammerstein's unfairly "sentimental" reputation stems mostly from the movies, not the Broadway shows, and the film version of Carousel—which softened and lightened the original—was one of the chief culprits. But Alfred Newman's musical direction and Ken Darby's vocal arrangements put a fresh spin on the soundtrack—less operatic, especially, than the various Broadway recordings; Gordon MacRae (replacing Frank Sinatra, who quit) "acted" his songs in a compelling way; and Shirley Jones is this listener's favorite Julie. Capitol's CD puts back a couple of songs cut from the movie, and because the film recording was multi-track, the sound is a sort of before-its-time stereo.

Twenty years on, John Raitt returned to play Billy in one of the first of the grand-scale Broadway revivals at the (then new!) Lincoln Center. RCA took the opportunity to release a stereo version of the score with Eileen Christy, Susan Watson, Katherine Hilgenberg and Jerry Orbach in supporting roles. Raitt's Billy no longer sounds desperate enough to kill himself, but the singing holds up. The recording also includes a couple of reprises omitted from the earlier recording.

Fast forward another three decades, and Lincoln Center again presented a Carousel, this one a hugely successful British import remarkably staged by Nicholas Hytner. Minus the memorable set and choreography, this loses a bit of its impact, but nonetheless makes a worthy addition to the recorded legacy. Michael Hayden plays Billy as younger and less formidable than Raitt or MacRae, but if anything this makes the character more believable. Among the supporting roles, Audra Ann McDonald's Carrie stands out. The Angel recording offers more of the score than any of its precursors, including the music for the ballet in Act Two. The booklet provides pages of color photography from the show, and an instructive essay by Ethan Mordden.

Review: Who would have thought that T.S. Eliot's "Old Possum's Book of Practical Cats" would one day provide the dramatic texture for a musical, and a successful one at that? Yet, Cats, which opened in New York on October 7, 1982, has not only enjoyed more than the proverbial nine lives it was supposed to have, but has now become the longest running show on Broadway, leaving behind such blockbusters as A Chorus Line, Les Miserables, Phantom of the Opera, 42nd Street, Grease and Fiddler on the Roof. Much of the success of the show, of course, falls squarely on Andrew Lloyd Webber's score, an amalgam of rock'n'pop songs and big theatrical numbers that work effectively on stage and off. Listening to the cast album, one is constantly reminded how delightful the songs are, and how perfectly the melodies complement and enhance Eliot's words. Simple, unaffected, wonderfully direct and effective, Webber's score is far different from the pompous works he has created since, so much so that Cats may be considered his most inspired creation. In truth, he just hit the right note with this one, and it shows.

Review: Subtitled "A Musical Vaudeville", this groundbreaking musical received, the first time around, an original cast recording that enshrined a score filled with such dramatic truth as to make it nearly indispensable to anyone who values the musical theater. While Gwen Verdon, as Roxie Hart, and Chita Rivera, as Velma Kelly, reveal a certain vocal roughness, they surely give the performances of their career, as two "merry murderesses of the Cook County Jail." Jerry Orbach, as the silver-tongued shyster Billy Flynn, and Mary McCarty, as Matron Mama Morton, show just the right combination of sleaze and greed. Barney Martin and M(ichael) O'Haughey are terrific as the unwary innocents caught in a web of deceit, lust, cynicism and venality. The rest of the small cast is superb, as is the orchestra. Everything seems just about perfect, including the remastered sound. Fred Ebb's lyrics and John Kander's music capture both the spirit of the 1920s as well as the flavor of the 1970s in such a timeless manner that it sounds as if the score had been written yesterday.

Brought back to Broadway 20 years later, the splendid score of this incredible musical is given a better recording than the production deserves. More of the score and book are included here than on the 1975 recording and the sound of this recent digital recording is slightly better. But the cynicism of the original is no longer tempered with subtlety. Every joke and situation is related in the most coarse and obvious manner, with Bebe Neuwirth, James Naughton and the orchestra the standouts in the new cast album. The real problem is Ann Reinking as Roxy Hart. She hits each moment with the impact of a sledgehammer, thereby losing the admittedly few tender and vulnerable moments Roxy was allowed. These moments are important to our understanding of the character and what drives her very callous acts throughout the show. As it is, there is nothing scintillating about this sinner.

Review: Essentially a work in progress, A Chorus Line, a musical without a book, gave a voice and a face to the gypsies, the often unrehalded boys and girls whose thankless task it is to set off and enhance the performance of a musical's headliner. Thrown in the spotlight for the first time, they were allowed to confront their own demons, reveal the sacrifices they had to make just to be in a show, confess the problems and difficulties they so often encountered in their pursuit of an elusive instant in the limelight, before returning as surely into the obscurity and anonymity which is their usual lot. Devised by Michael Bennett, with the collaboration of the various actors and actresses involved in the show itself, A Chorus Line recounted the grueling audition all the gypsies have to go through when they answer a casting call, this time for an unnamed big Broadway musical in which the star (probably a well-known female performer) is "the one." If at times it sounds a bit confessional and revelatory of secrets buried deep within each member of the cast, it is only because the musical itself eventually was a celebration of the talent they all bring to a show.

The score, with music by Marvin Hamlisch and lyrics by Ed Kleban, was unusually sympathetic to members of the cast, and provided solo turns where all could express their aspirations and anguish, and mesmerize the audience with their individual talents. A multi-Tony Award winner (for Best Musical, Best Score, Best Direction, Best Book, among many others), A Chorus Line enjoyed incredible life on Broadway, breaking all records of longevity with its run of 6,137 performances, only recently surpassed by Cats. The cast album recording, since 1976 a popular title in the Columbia catalogue, has just been remixed and mastered, giving it an overall vibrancy and sheen that makes it sound even better than it ever did.

Sadly, the same cannot be said about the film, a travesty of the genre if there ever was one, and a total disservice to the gypsies it aimed to celebrate. When Fred Astaire began to dance on the screen in his now legendary films with Ginger Rogers for RKO, he made sure that the dances would show him and his partner from head to toe, unlike what had been done before when dancers in action would often be framed down to the waist. The film version of A Chorus Line framed the musical and its performers down to the waist, losing so many great aspects from the show in this sorry transfer to the screen that it emerged as a very pale image of the original, loud, brash, and totally misguided. The same faults apply to the soundtrack album which, when compared to the original recording, is a total disaster. The performers who struggled through this mishmash deserved better.

Review: Another wonderful animated transmogrification of a classic fairy tale, Cinderella, released on March 4, 1950, was Walt Disney's return to a genre that had proved quite successful for the studio, following several less distinguished "compilations" of mini-cartoons, a challenge the studio faced head-on with extraordinary vitality. Adding a new twist to the worn-out tale of the poor orphan girl mistreated by her stepmother and stepsisters, who discovers an 11th-hour romance with a Prince Charming thanks to her fairy godmother, the film introduced several animal characters who provided comic relief and a dose of enjoyment even the Charles Perrault original had never envisioned. Most particularly, the feature was graced by a sensational score in which songs like "Bibbidi Bobbidi Boo," an Academy Award winner, "So This Is Love," and "A Dream Is a Wish Your Heart Makes" soon emerged as standards. The newly mastered CD, with a lot of extra, previously unavailable material, is a lively reminder that the Disney scores were frequently great sources of entertainment in their own right.

Review: Charles Perrault's popular fairy tale became an attractive television special when Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein set it to music in 1957, in a production that starred Julie Andrews, fresh from her own success as Eliza Dolittle in My Fair Lady. While hardly comparable to their stage works, Cinderella nonetheless proved particularly endearing, with the pair working their own magic in tunes like "In My Own Little Corner," in which Cinderella laments her unglamorous existence and dreams for better tomorrows, and "Ten Minutes Ago," a glorious waltz in which Cinderella and the Prince discover that their hearts beat to the same 3/4 time.

In 1964, Rodgers returned to the work for a new production, also televised by CBS, which introduced Lesley Ann Warren as Cinderella, and was quite enjoyable, though not as exciting as the original.

Review: Broadway maverick composer Cy Coleman had a winning show in City of Angels, a whimsical spoof of the 1940s' film noir genre, further made exhilarating by its offbeat approach about a Hollywood scriptwriter with a poor record with women, and his alter ego, a gumshoe with a successful track record. With a book by Larry Gelbart, and lyrics by David Zippel, the show opposed the two men, Stine, whose existence happened in a black and white decor, and Stone, who enjoyed the glitz and color of Hollywood films, in another nifty touch that added zest to the stage proceedings. Along for the musical ride were Stine's long-suffering wife, Gabby, and Stone's secretary, Oolie, as well as a bevy of other attractive characters, some sharing Stine's real-life existence, some stemming from Stone's invented background. The score invented by Coleman matched the various moods in the story, with a zest directly borrowed from the big band sound of the 1940s, and songs that were all extremely enjoyable on stage and off, as can be experienced in the original cast album. City of Angels opened on December 11, 1989, and enjoyed a run of 878 performances. Among its awards, it won the Tonys for best musical, book and score.

The London cast album, on RCA Victor, is basically similar to the Broadway cast album, though it seems to lack the crackling energy in evidence in its predecessor.

Review: A seminal work, Company opened on April 26, 1970, and was the first in a streak of productions written by Stephen Sondheim and directed by Harold Prince that revolutionized the Broadway musical throughout the decade. Unlike the shows that were created at the time, many of which still relied on the tried-and-true formula that had prevailed until then, the new musical by Sondheim, finally hitting his stride, took a sobering, uncompromising look at contemporary life in a brilliant, unstructured display that had theatrical flair and personality. With the 35th birthday of Robert, the central character and link between the vignettes that made up the book by George Furth, providing the anchor for most of the action, Company was a critical study of married life in a big city, with its various couples revealed in their less-than-happy existence, often portrayed as neurotic individuals, fighting, smoking pot, boozing, and desperately clinging to each other, all the while wishing their lives would be different. The score yielded at least one showstopper in "The Ladies Who Lunch," delivered in drunken stupor by Elaine Stritch, but also brimmed with many great musical moments that come strikingly alive in the newly remixed and mastered CD reissue, which includes two bonus tracks performed by Larry Kert, who replaced Dean Jones on Broadway and went on to star in the London production. The winner of seven Tony Awards (including best musical, book, music, lyrics, and direction), Company had a run of 706 performances.

The 1995 revival, headed by Boyd Gaines, took a slightly diffident new approach by hinting at Robert's possible underlying homosexuality, and by also offering the suggestion of his involvement in an interracial relationship. The cast, however talented they may have been, could not compete with the incandescent original.

Review: The Gershwins' 1930 hit Girl Crazy got a new lease on life as Crazy for You, a heavily revamped and modernized version which took Broadway by storm on February 19, 1992, and racked up 1,622 performances, a great deal more than the 272 accumulated by the original. While the new book, by Ken Ludwig, made few concessions to current trends, and in fact harkened back to the days of yore when inconsequential storylines merely served as a way to introduce new songs by the brilliant tunesmiths of the day, what mattered here was the score featuring many familiar numbers by the Gershwins, including "Shall We Dance," "Embraceable You," "Someone to Watch Over Me," and "They Can't Take That Away from Me," all cleverly threaded into the thin plot, and delivered with the right amount of gusto and fun by the spirited cast.

The London cast album is an apt alternative to the Broadway cast, with equally ingratiating performances.

Dames at Sea

1992, Sony Broadway; from the off Broadway production Dames at Sea, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: Jim Wise; Lyrics: George Haimsohn, Robin Miller; Orchestrations: Jonathan Tunick; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Richard J. Leonard; Cast: Tamara Long (Mona Kent), Sally Stark (Joan), Steve Elmore (Hennessey/The Captain), Bernadette Peters (Ruby), David Christmas (Dick), Joseph R. Sicari (Lucky); Album/CD Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Engineers: Fred Plaut, Arthur Kendy, Glen Kolotkin; CD Engineer: Charles Harbutt.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:52)Orchestra; 2 Wall Street (2:36) Tamara Long; 3 It's You (2:10) David Christmas, Bernadette Peters; 4 Broadway Baby (2:55) David Christmas; 5 That Mister Man Of Mine (3:57) Tamara Long; 6 Choo-Choo Honeymoon (2:09) Sally Stark, Joseph R. Sicari; 7 The Sailor Of My Dreams (2:56) Bernadette Peters; 8 Good Times Are Here To Stay (4:09) Sally Stark,; 9 Dames At Sea (3:38) Company; 10 The Beguine (4:25) Tamara Long, Steve Elmore; 11 Raining In My Heart (5:26) Bernadette Peters; 12 Singapore Sue (4:59) Joseph R. Sicari; 13 There's Something About You (2:09) David Christmas, Bernadette Peters; 14 The Echo Waltz (2:18) Tamara Long, Sally Stark, Bernadette Peters; 15 Star Tar (2:45) Bernadette Peters; 16 Let's Have A Simple Wedding (2:18) Company.

Review: A frequently funny, delightful send-up of the Hollywood musicals of the 1930s, Dames at Sea took as its plot a storyline not unlike the one developed for the film 42nd Street, in which a new chorine gets to replace the star of a Broadway-bound musical when the latter can't go on (in this case because she gets seasick when the show, kicked out of its theatre, opens on board a ship anchored in the harbor). Bernadette Peters made a splash in this production, her first major show, as the new kid on the block, with Tamara Long as the displaced star. The score, while not always as musically memorable as the Harry Warren-Al Dubin works it spoofed, came up with some hilariously campy tunes of its own, like "Choo-Choo Honeymoon," "Singapore Sue," and "The Echo Waltz."

Review: The old Faustian legend about the man who sells his soul to the Devil in order to regain youth and good looks received a clever updating in this whimsical musical, which took the tale and squarely set it against the background of America's favorite pastime, baseball. As reconceived by Douglas Wallop and George Abbott, Damn Yankees, based on

Mr. Wallop's novel "The Year the Yankees Lost the Pennant," transplanted Faust into middle-America and gave him the name Joe Boyd. After he makes a pact with the Devil, a businessman more prosaically named Mr. Applegate, Boyd becomes "Shoeless" Joe Hardy, a hard-hitter, who takes the Washington Senators, his favorite team (and perpetual losers), all the way to the finals of the American League game, where they face those "damn Yankees." But this being a musical, set in America, there is a happy ending to the story: in spite of Mr. Applegate, and his assistant, the sultry Lola, Joe Hardy invokes the "escape clause" he and the Devil had agreed on initially, and at the last minute, just before curtain time, returns to his loving wife as Joe Boyd, serene in the knowledge that it was he who helped the Senators win the Pennant.

A multiple Tony Award-winner (including for Best Musical) in 1956, Damn Yankees ran for 1,019 performances (a rarity at the time), and made a star of Gwen Verdon, playing Lola, whose siren song, "Whatever Lola Wants," became a huge popular hit. Virtually intact, and with only one major cast change (Tab Hunter replacing Stephen Douglass as Joe Hardy), the show was transferred to the screen in 1958, in a splashy screen transfer that retained all the flavor and guile of the original.

After extensive revisions, in 1994 it was revived on Broadway, with Bebe Neuwirth as Lola and Victor Garber as Mr. Applegate, where it enjoyed a successful run, before going on the road, with Jerry Lewis, billed above the title, taking over as the Devil.

Of the three recordings available, the first Broadway cast offers the original stars (Gwen Verdon, Stephen Douglass, and Ray Walston as Mr. Applegate) in a spirited rendition which has all the freshness and excitement usually experienced when a show first hits Broadway. Its only drawback (if that's the word!) is that it is in mono sound, since stereo didn't become an industry standard until later that year.

The soundtrack album, available for the first time in stereo in this CD version, is almost identical to the Broadway cast album, but offers, in addition to the cast change noted above, and Ray Heindorf's flavorful orchestrations, longer versions of some of the songs, as well as better polished performances overall.

The 1994 Broadway cast album, with its abundance of new selections, and dynamic renditions of the songs by Bebe Neuwirth, Victor Garber, and the other members of the cast, is as good a recording as can be gotten. It has the vibrancy, the fun, and the excitement one usually expects in that kind of production, and its sound quality is up to the latest standards.

Dear World

Selections: 1 Overture (5:30) Orchestra; 2 The Spring Of Next Year (1:50) Joe Masiell, William Larsen, Clifford Fearl, Charles Karel, Zale Kessler, Charles Welch; 3 Each Tomorrow Morning (4:39) Angela Lansbury; 4 I Don't Want To Know (2:39) Angela Lansbury; 5 I've Never Said I Love You (3:38) Pamela Hall; 6 Garbage (3:21) Milo O'Shea, Angela Lansbury, Jane Connell, Carmen Mathews; 7 Dear World (3:54) Angela Lansbury; 8 Ballet (2:27) Orchestra; 9 Kiss Her Now (2:04) Angela Lansbury; 10 The Tea Party: Memory, Pearls, Dickie, Voices, Thoughts (7:27) Carmen Mathews, Angela Lansbury, Jane Connell; 11 And I Was Beautiful (2:55) Angela Lansbury; 12 Each Tomorrow Morning (reprise)(1:27) Kurt Peterson; 13 One Person (2:32) Angela Lansbury; 14 Finale (2:06) Company.

Review: Jean Giraudoux's play The Madwoman of Chaillot was the source for this flawed musical by Jerry Herman, which opened on February 6, 1969 for a meager run of 132 performances. Starring Angela Lansbury, Jane Connell, Carmen Mathews and Milo O'Shea, as sure-footed a cast as any, the musical failed to duplicate the success of Mame three years earlier largely because its characters were not as endearing, and audiences did not connect with this story about three holdovers from another era trying to fight big business in their desire to save the Paris environment. Though the title song was repeated as frequently in the score as "Hello, Dolly!" and "Mame" were in their respective shows, it too failed to make an impact.

Review: Based on Arthur Laurents' Time of the Cuckoo, which had already served as the basis for the film Summertime, starring Katherine Hepburn and Rossano Brazzi, Do I Hear a Waltz? had all the earmarks of a great musical. With a score by Richard Rodgers, his first since No Strings, and lyrics by Broadway wunderkind Stephen Sondheim, a protégé of the late Oscar Hammerstein, it was already touted as the next Tony Award winner and a rightful successor to some of the best works bearing Rodgers' name. By the time it finally opened on Broadway, on March 18, 1965, however, things are soured considerably, and despite some positive reviews and glowing comments about the score, it failed to attract an audience and closed after 220 performances. Surprisingly, it was the combination Rodgers-Sondheim that failed to ignite: the composer, a traditionalist at heart, evidently didn't take too kindly some of the lyrics his younger collaborator proposed; conversely, Sondheim, forced to comply with the criteria of a "Rodgers musical," was unable to display some of the wit and sardonic edge he had previously exhibited in his own works, like A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, and more specifically Anyone Can Whistle.

By the time the show reached Broadway, this story of an American spinster visiting Venice and falling in love with a married Italian man had become so edulcorated that it had lost much of its bite and had become quite ordinary, if not actually tepid. Further compounding the problems the show encountered during its tryout period was the evident lack of stage chemistry between Elizabeth Allen as the spinster, and Sergio Franchi obviously ill-at-ease as her Latin lover. Still the cast album recording reveals many attractive moments in the score, particularly the lilting title tune, which is Leona's way to find out that she's in love, and the diaphanous "Moon in My Window," in which Leona and two other women dream about love everlasting while looking at the bright Venetian moon.

Do Re Mi

1994, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Do Re Mi, 1961.

Album Notes: Music: Jule Styne; Lyrics: Betty Comden & Adolph Green; Orchestrations: Luther Henderson; Vocal Arrangements: Buster Davis; Musical Direction: Lehman Engel; Cast: Phil Silvers (Hubert Cram), Nancy Walker (Kay Cram), John Reardon (John Henry Wheeler), Nancy Dussault (Tilda Mullen), George Mathews (Fatso O'Rear), David Burns (Brains Berman), George Givot (Skin Demopoulos); Album Producers: Hugo Peretti, Luigi Creatore; Engineer: Ernest Oelrich; CD Producer: Bill Rosenfield; Engineer: Jay Newland.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:06) Orchestra; 2 Waiting, Waiting (2:13) Nancy Walker; 3 All You Need Is A Quarter (1:55) Chorus; 4 Take A Job (3:39) Phil Silvers, Nancy Walker; 5 It's Legitimate (5:02) Phil Silvers, George Mathews, David Burns, George Givot; 6 I Know About Love (1:47) John Reardon; 7 Cry Like The Wind (2:00) Nancy Dussault; 8 Ambition (3:14) Phil Silvers, Nancy Dussault; 9 Fireworks (3:13) John Reardon, Nancy Dussault; 10 What's New At The Zoo (2:49) Nancy Dussault; 11 Asking For You (1:42) John Reardon; 12 The Late, Late Show (3:33) Phil Silvers; 13 Adventure (5:46) Phil Silvers, Nancy Walker; 14 Make Someone Happy (2:51) John Reardon; 15 All Of My Life (4:39) Phil Silvers; 16 Finale (1:12) Entire Company.

Review: Television and film comedian Phil Silvers starred as an unflinching wheeler-dealer in this delirious musical with a score by Jule Styne, Betty Comden and Adolph Green. In the book written by Garson Kanin, Silvers portrayed a would-be music tycoon, convinced he can make a big deal if he muscles his way into the then-nascent jukebox business with the help of three of his cronies. While he hardly succeeds, he manages to launch the career of a singer, played by Nancy Dussault. Another beloved clown, Nancy Walker, portrayed Silvers' long-suffering wife, with both ensuring that the show, which opened December 26, 1960, would have a long run of 400 performances. Also contributing to the success of the musical was the strong score, in which "Make Some Happy" soon emerged as a showstopping number, as did "It's Legitimate," with Silvers, and his three mobster friends (David Burns, George Mathews and George Givot), evoking the success they're bound to find as music entrepreneurs.

Doctor Dolittle

1997, Philips Records; from the screen musical Doctor Dolittle, 20th Century-Fox, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: Leslie Bricusse; Lyrics: Leslie Bricusse; Orchestrations and Arrangements: Alexander Courage; The 20th Century-Fox Orchestra, conducted by Lionel Newman; Cast: Rex Harrison (Doctor John Dolittle), Samantha Eggar (Emma Fairfax), Anthony Newley (Matthew Mugg), Richard Attenborough (Albert Blossom), Peter Bull (General Bellowes), William Dix (Tommy Stubbins), Geoffrey Holder (William Shakespeare the Tenth); CD Producer: Nick Redman; CD Engineer: Daniel Hirsch.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:16); 2 My Friend The Doctor (3:31) Anthony Newley; 3 The Vegetarian (4:35) Rex Harrison, Samantha Eggar, Anthony Newley; 4 Talk To The Animals (2:51) Rex Harrison; 5 At The Crossroads (2:08) Samantha Eggar; 6 I've Never Seen Anything Like It (2:28) Richard Attenborough; 7 Beautiful Things (4:13) Anthony Newley, Samantha Eggar; 8 When I Look In Your Eyes (1:47) Rex Harrison; 9 Like Animals (4:09) Rex Harrison; 10 After Today (2:19) Anthony Newley; 11 Fabulous Places (3:42) Samantha Eggar, Rex Harrison, Anthony Newley; 12 Where Are The Words (3:50) Anthony Newley; 13 I Think I Like You (2:39) Rex Harrison, Samantha Eggar; 14 Doctor Dolittle (2:31) Anthony Newley, William Dix, Polynesia; 15 Something In Your Smile (2:23) Rex Harrison; 16 My Friend The Doctor (:56) Chorus.

Review: A big, sprawling musical, Doctor Dolittle aimed to be another Mary Poppins, though it lacked that film's undeniable charm and memorable songs. Based on Hugh Lofting's original stories about a 19th Century veterinarian who has learned to talk to the animals (in everything from "Alligatorese" to "Zebran"), it starred Rex Harrison as the benign Doctor, along with Anthony Newley, Samantha Eggar and a large, colorful cast. Sadly, the songs by Leslie Bricusse fail to capture the whimsy of the stories. While they are enjoyable in their own right, they never quite achieved the anticipated popularity, though "Talk To The Animals" received an Academy Award in 1967 for "Best Original Song." The CD reissue, marking the 30th anniversary of the film's release, simply replicates the original LP, and is noticeable for the fact that it is particularly hissy in some passages.

Dreamgirls

1982, Geffen Records; from the Broadway production Dreamgirls, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Krieger; Lyrics: Tom Eyen; Orchestrations: Harold Wheeler; Vocal Arrangements: Cleavant Derricks; Musical Direction: Yolanda Segovia; Cast: Deborah Burrell, Vanessa Bell, Tenita Jordan, Brenda Pressley (The Stepp Sisters), Sheryl Lee Ralp (Deena Jones), Loretta Devine (Lorrell Robinson), Jennifer Holliday (Effie Melody White), Vondie Curtis-Hall (Marty), Ben Harney (Curtis Taylor, Jr.), Obba Babatunde (C.C. White), Cleavant Derricks (James Thunder Early), Tony Franklin (Wayne), Paul Binotto, Candy Darling, Stephanie Eley (Dave and The Sweethearts); Album Producer: David Foster; Engineer: Humberto Gatica; Assistant Engineer: Ia Eales.

Selections: 1 Move (You're Steppin' On My Heart)(1:56) Jennifer Holliday, Loretta Devine, Sheryl Lee Ralph; 2 Fake You Way To The Top (2:27) Cleavant Derricks, Loretta Devine, Jennifer Holliday, Sheryl Lee Ralph; 3 Cadillac Car (3:32) Ben Harney, Cleavant Derricks, Obba Babatunde, Vondie Curtis-Hall, Loretta Devine, Jennifer Holliday, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Paul Binotto,Candy Darling, Stephanie Eley; 4 Steppin' To The Bad Side (3:44) Ben Harney, Cleavant Derricks, Obba Babatunde, Tony Franklin, Loretta Devine, Jennifer Holliday, Sheryl Lee Ralph; 5 Family (3:19) Jennifer Holliday, Obba Babatunde, Cleavant Derricks, Loretta Devine, Ben Harney, Sheryl Lee Ralph; 6 Dreamgirls (3:14) Sheryl Lee Ralph, Loretta Devine, Jennifer Holliday; 7 Press Conference (1:40) Sheryl Lee Ralph, Ben Harney; 8 And I Am Telling You I'm Not Going (4:05) Jennifer Holliday; 9 Ain't No Party (2:08) Loretta Devine; 10 When I First Saw You (2:41) Ben Harney, Sheryl Lee Ralph; 11 I Am Changing (3:59) Jennifer Holliday; 12 I Meant You No Harm (1:05) Cleavant Derricks; 13 The Rap (2:52) Cleavant Derricks; 14 Firing Of Jimmy (1:39) Cleavant Derricks, Ben Harney, Loretta Devine; 15 I Miss You Old Friend (1:33) Obba Babatunde, Jennifer Holliday; 16 One Night Only (3:42) Jennifer Holliday, Sheryl Lee Ralph, Loretta Devine, Deborah Burrell; 17 Hard To Say Goodbye My Love (3:36) Sheryl Lee Ralph, Loretta Devine, Deborah Burrell.

Review: Following the success of A Chorus Line, Michael Bennett returned to the world of show business and backstage struggles in Dreamgirls, which opened December 20, 1981. The plot follows a trio of black female singers who eventually hit the big time, but only after one of them (considered too heavy and therefore less marketable) is replaced by a more glamorous singer. Not only did the show make a star of Jennifer Holliday (the one who was dumped), its sleek, hard-driving look also ensured its enormous success. In fact, it ran for 1,522 performances. With the exception of "And I Am Telling You I'm Not Going," the plaintive lament of Effie (the character played by Holliday) after she has been told that she is no longer a member of the Dreams, a trio loosely shaped after the Supremes, the action-driven score by Henry Krieger and Tom Eyen sounds much less memorable and exciting in the original cast recording than it did in the theatre. With its careful dose of theatrical, by-the-numbers rhythm-and-blues songs, it is enjoyable to a point, but only hits a high in the occasional glitzy moments when the Dreams actually perform together ("Dreamgirls," "One Night Only"). The rest of the time, it is merely routine and without much zest.

Review: A great musical, splashed all over the screen in brilliant colors, Easter Parade had a lot going for it: a pleasant story about a hoofer trying to find a new dance partner and discovering love in the process, an inspired pair of co-stars in Fred Astaire and Judy Garland, and a sprightly score by Irving Berlin. The title tune, originally written in 1933 for the Broadway show As Thousands Cheer, became the occasion for a festive musical number. While the storyline seemed at best serviceable, it provided many pegs for various big production numbers that continue to delight and dazzle to this day—"A Fella With an Umbrella," shared by Garland and Peter Lawford; "Shakin' the Blues Away," performed in typical frantic manner by Ann Miller; "Steppin' Out With My Baby," which gave Fred Astaire an opportunity to dance in slow-mo in a remarkably inventive moment; "A Couple Of Swells," in which Astaire and Garland echoed an earlier duet, "Be a Clown," between Garland and Gene Kelly in The Pirate; and an exhilarating, long "Vaudeville Montage," built around several songs by Irving Berlin ("I Love a Piano," "Snookey Okums," "Ragtime Violin," and "When the Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabam'"). The soundtrack recording on Rhino, newly mastered and augmented with several instrumental bridges, outtakes, and other incrementa, brings out all the juicy moments from the film, and then some.

Review: In 1979, Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice took Broadway by storm with Evita, smartly directed by Hal Prince, who certainly deserved to share in the success of the show. A fancy account of the life and times of Eva Peron, wife of the Argentinian dictator and inspiration of her beloved "descamisados," the low-life workers to whom she appealed and who canonized her after her death, Evita was also the first sung-through musical to hit Broadway. It was a precursor in many ways of the opera-like works Webber and his followers brought to the stage in subsequent years with varying degrees of success.

With Mandy Patinkin portraying a sympathetic Che Guevarra (who in real life never met Eva Peron), Bob Gunton as Peron, and Patti LuPone crying on cue in her bravura performance of the show's hit tune, "Don't Cry For Me Argentina," Evita opened on Broadway on September 25, 1979, to rapturous reviews. It won almost every Tony it could take (for Best Musical, Best Book, Best Score, Best Direction, and for Patti LuPone and Mandy Patinkin, among others), and enjoyed a long run of 1,567 performances. Much of its theatricality dissipates on the original cast album recording, though the undeniable dramatic flair of the score occasionally comes across in great style.

Though the show had to wait more than 15 years to make it to the screen, it was well worth it because it found in Madonna the ideal Evita. An actress with enormous charm and charisma, Madonna evidently studied hard and well to overcome her pop stylings and give her performance a more legit flair. Gorgeously lavish and expressive, the screen version of Evita is further enhanced with the presence of Antonio Banderas as Che, and Jonathan Pryce as Peron. The recording, while presenting the same basic flaws in style found in the original, has a more vibrant pop vitality that gives the score greater impact. And Madonna is simply wonderful in a role she was obviously destined to perform.

Fanny

1996, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Fanny, 1954.

Album Notes: Music: Harold Rome; Lyrics: Harold Rome; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Lehman Engel; Cast: Ezio Pinza (Cesar), Walter Slezak (Panisse), Florence Henderson (Fanny), William Tabbert (Marius), Nejla Ates (Arab Dancing Girl), Alan Carney (Escartifigue), Gerald Price (The Admiral), Edna Preston (Honorine), Don McHenry (M. Brun), Mohammed el Bakkar (Arab Rug Seller), Lloyd Reese (Cesario); Album Producers: Hugo Winterhalter, Joe Carlton; CD Producer: Bill Rosenfield; Engineer: Marian Conaty.

Selections: 1 Overture (5:03) Orchestra; 2 Octopus Song (1:06) Gerald Price; 3 Restless Heart (2:48) William Tabbert; 4 Never Too Late For Love (2:13) Walter Slezak; 5 Cold Cream Jar Song (:28) Walter Slezak; 6 Why Be Afraid To Dance? (3:38) Ezio Pinza; 7 Shika, Shika (2:27) Nejla Ates, Mohammed el Bakkar; 8 Welcome Home (3:25) Ezio Pinza; 9 I Like You (2:35) Ezio Pinza, William Tabbert; 10 I Have To Tell You (2:09) Florence Henderson; 11 Fanny (1:55) William Tabbert; 12 Panisse And Son (2:27) Walter Slezak; 13 Wedding Dance (2:07) Chorus; 14 Finale Act 1 (:52) Chorus; 15 Birthday Song (2:22) Florence Henderson, Edna Preston; 16 To My Wife (2:13) Walter Slezak; 17 The Thought Of You (2:05) Florence Henderson, William Tabbert; 18 Love Is A Very Light Thing (2:10) Ezio Pinza; 19 Other Hands, Other Hearts (1:48) Ezio Pinza, Florence Henderson, William Tabbert; 20 Montage (2:32) Chorus; 21 Be Kind To Your Parents (2:21) Florence Henderson, Lloyd Reese.

Review: Marcel Pagnol's flavorful Mediterranean film trilogy—Marius, Fanny, Cesar—became an odd, though interesting musical when Harold Rome presented his take on it with Fanny, which opened on November 4, 1954. Collapsing the complex drama from the three films into one production, the show lost some of the insightful details that made the films so uniquely remarkable. It compensated for it, however, with a strongly emotive score, sharply defined characters, and superb performances by Ezio Pinza as Cesar, owner of a cafe in Marseilles; William Tabbert as his only son, Marius, who only dreams of being a sailor; Florence Henderson as Fanny, who loves Marius, and with whom she has a baby; and Tony Award-winner Walter Slezak, as Panisse, a well-to-do local businessman, whom Fanny marries after Marius sails out to sea. The show, the first presented under the aegis of legendary David Merrick, had a run of 888 performances.

The Fantasticks

1979, Polydor Records; from the off Broadway production The Fantasticks, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Harvey Schmidt; Lyrics: Tom Jones; Musical Direction: Julian Stein; Cast: Jerry Orbach (El Gallo), Kenneth Nelson (Matt), Rita Gardner (Luisa), William Larsen (Hucklebee), Hugh Thomas (Bellomy).

Selections: 1 Overture (2:03) Orchestra; 2 Try To Remember (2:47) Jerry Orbach; 3 Much More (2:35) Rita Gardner; 4 Metaphor (4:15) Kenneth Nelson, Rita Gardner; 5 Never Say No (2:16) William Larsen, Hugh Tomas; 6 It Depends On What You Pay (4:20) Jerry Orbach, William Larsen, Hugh Thomas; 7 You Wonder How These Things Begin (1:15) Jerry Orbach; 8 Soon It's Gonna Rain (4:44) Kenneth Nelson, Rita Gardner; 9 The Rape Ballet/Happy Ending (3:15) Hugh Thomas, William Larsen, Rita Gardner, Kenneth Nelson; 10 This Plum Is Too Ripe (3:36) Rita Gardner, Kenneth Nelson, William Larsen, Hugh Thomas; 11 I Can See It (4:07) Kenneth Nelson, Jerry Orbach; 12 Plant A Radish (2:33) William Larsen, Hugh Thomas; 13 Round And Round (6:00) Jerry Orbach, Rita Gardner; 14 There Is A Curious Paradox (:32) Jerry Orbach; 15 They Were You (2:43) Kenneth Nelson, Rita Gardner; 16 Try To Remember (reprise) (2:04) Jerry Orbach.

Review: Close to 40 years and too-many-performances-to-remember later, how do you describe The Fantasticks, other than to say it's... well, fantastic! A small, off Broadway musical, loosely based on Edmond Rostand's 1894 play, Les Romanesques, The Fantasticks continues to thrive, despite tepid reviews after it opened on May 3, 1960. It has also suffered various disasters, both man-made (newspaper and transportation strikes) and natural (snow blizzards and torrential rainstorms) that all but threatened its precarious run at one time or another. Now comfortably nestled at the 150-seat Sullivan Street Playhouse, in the heart of Greenwich Village, the musical—which launched the careers of Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt, who wrote it, Jerry Orbach, who first starred in it, and many other thespians who appeared in it before moving on to greater and meatier roles—has become a fixture in New York City, an icon that is taken for granted like the Empire State Building or the Statue of Liberty.

At regular intervals, the show's press agent routinely provides the media with the many outstanding figures that speak on behalf of the production: since its creation, it has known nine Presidents (Eisenhower was still at the White House when it first opened), has spawned more than 10,000 productions around the world, and has repaid its investors close to 10,000% on their initial cash outlay of $16,500.

A playful variation on the Romeo and Juliet theme of star-crossed lovers who belong to feuding families (though in this case the neighboring fathers are conniving to make believe they are enemies), The Fantasticks, lest we forget, introduced one of the musical theatre's most evocative songs, "Try to Remember." The song is performed in the show by The Narrator, who also portrays El Gallo, a bandit brought in by the two pater familias to kidnap their Juliet in a well laid out plan so that Romeo will deliver her and fall in love with her.

Fiddler on the Roof

Fiddler on the Roof

Review: Sholom Aleichem's Tevye and His Daughters became the basis for one of Broadway's brightest productions of the 1960s, Fiddler on the Roof, which opened on September 22, 1964. For a while, it held the record as the longest-running musical with 3,242 performances. A poor milkman in the Russian village of Anatevka, Tevye has five daughters whom he plans to marry off to some of his well-to-do neighbors like the next-door butcher. The girls, however, have different views, and with the tacit support of their mother, the eldest marries a poor tailor, the second sets off for Siberia with a revolutionary student, and the third finds someone who is not even Jewish. By the time the Russian Cossacks come in to destroy the village, forcing the people of Anatevka to move out, Tevye philosophically hangs on to what is left of his family as he prepares to emigrate to America.

In turns profoundly moving and exuberant, Fiddler on the Roof owed much of its initial success to Zero Mostel's portrayal as Tevye, one of the legendary characterizations the theatre is often fond of evoking. And indeed, in this all-too-human but grander-than-life role, Mostel was certainly unique: even though many others essayed the part subsequently, including the Israeli star Topol, who played the role in the London production, the movie version and in a celebrated Broadway revival, theatregoers who were fortunate enough to see Zero Mostel in the original production still recall his star turn in this show.

For those who were not as fortunate, the original cast album on RCA Victor gives a dimension of his portrayal, and still stands out as the best recording available.

Topol can be heard in both the London cast recording on Columbia, and the film soundtrack on EMI. The former is an acceptable facsimile that lacks some of the imaginative fire in the original cast recording, and contains at least one less selection ("The Rumor").

The film soundtrack, bigger, glossier, schmaltzier, loses some of the restrained simplicity in the original, and trades it off for the presence of Isaac Stern as the fiddler of the title, lush orchestrations by John Williams (who won an Oscar), and a generally tepid performance by Topol, Molly Picon, Leonard Frey and the other principals.

Review: A whimsical blend of fantasy and social commentary, Finian's Rainbow, which opened on Broadway on January 10, 1947, was the brainchild of playwright-lyricist E.Y. Harburg. Harburg combined together two stories he had tried to develop unsuccessfully, one about a stuffy Southern senator who becomes a black man overnight, the other about a leprechaun whose crock of gold has been stolen and who chases the robber to America. The resulting musical, with a score by Burton Lane, dealt with Finian McLonergan, an Irishman newly arrived with his daughter, Sharon, from his native Ireland, who wants to bury the crock of gold he has stolen near Fort Knox, where it will fructify, unaware of the fact that it has the power to grant three wishes. When they settle in Rainbow Valley, in Missitucky, the place becomes prosperous, attracting the attention of Senator Billboard Rawkins who wants to expropriate the valley's current denizens, including Finian and several black families. When Sharon inadvertently expresses the wish that Senator Rawkins should become a black man, things take a turn to the worse, though everything gets straightened out by the last curtain. Following its opening on Broadway, Finian's Rainbow had a run of 725 performances; it was successfully revived several times, notably in 1960, and was given a lavish film treatment, directed by Francis Ford Coppola, in 1968, with Fred Astaire cast as Finian (his last dancing role on screen), Petula Clark as Sharon, and Tommy Steele as Og.

The score, with many familiar tunes, yielded the wistful show-stopping "How Are Things In Glocca Morra?"; a jazz favorite, "Old Devil Moon"; and the Leprechaun's amusingly distorted reflexion, "When I'm Not Near the Girl I Love," among its better moments. The original cast album, on Columbia, the first for the label, sounds a trifle dated by today's digital standards, but boasts terrific performances by Ella Logan as Sharon, and David Wayne as Og, the Leprechaun.

The 1960 Broadway revival cast, on RCA, has the advantage of being in stereo, with several reprises not found on the Columbia album, but performances are less inspired overall, and lack the immediacy in the original.

The soundtrack album, available on a Warner Bros. LP, was never reissued on compact disc.

Fiorello!

1989, Angel Records; from the Broadway production Fiorello!, 1959.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:57) Orchestra; 2 On The Side Of The Angels (4:47) Bob Holiday, Nathaniel Frey, Patricia Wilson; 3 Politics And Poker (3:59) Howard Da Silva; 4 Unfair (2:18) Tom Bosley; 5 Marie's Law (3:00) Patricia Wilson, Nathaniel Frey; 6 The Name's La Guardia (3:18) Tom Bosley; 7 The Bum Won (2:23) Howard Da Silva; 8 I Love A Cop (3:00) Pat Stanley; 9 'Til Tomorrow (3:35) Ellen Hanley; 10 Home Again (1:00) Company; 11 When Did I Fall In Love (4:25) Ellen Hanley; 12 Gentleman Jimmy (2:23) Eileen Rodgers; 13 Little Tin Box (3:39) Howard Da Silva; 14 The Very Next Man (3:25) Patricia Wilson; 15 Finale (2:01) Tom Bosley, Patricia Wilson.

Review: This Pulitzer Prize-winning musical was the first Broadway hit for composer Jerry Bock and lyricist Sheldon Harnick—who went on to write Fiddler on the Roof—and its New York wiseguy blend of history, humor and wonderful music make it a classic of the genre. The title character, New York City's crusading mayor in the 1930s and '40s, is ably played by Tom Bosley. However, the best songs go to the supporting cast, especially Howard da Silva as a less-than-idealistic political boos, and Patricia Wilson as the mayor's long-suffering secretary. Up against The Sound of Music, the show won or tied for six Tony Awards.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:32) Orchestra; 2 Prologue/Unafraid (3:58) Liza Minnelli; 3 All I Need (Is One Good Break)(3:21) Liza Minnelli; 4 Not Every Day Of The Week (3:45) Liza Minnelli, Bob Dishy; 5 Sign Here (3:51) Bob Dishy, Liza Minnelli; 6 The Flame (3:46) Mary Louise Wilson, Bob Dishy; 7 Palomino Pal (1:51)

Dortha Duckworth, James Cresson; 8 A Quiet Thing (4:00) Liza Minnelli; 9 Hello, Waves (2:38) Bob Dishy, Liza Minnelli; 10 Dear Love (3:58) Liza Minnelli; 11 Express Yourself (2:48) Cathryn Damon, Bob Dishy; 12 Knock Knock (3:08) Mary Louise Wilson, James Cresson; 13 Sing Happy (3:29) Liza Minnelli; 14 You Are You (3:21) Joe E. Marks, Liza Minnelli, Robert Kaye, Stephanie Hill, Jamie Donnelly, Marie Santell, Danny Carroll.

Review: The first musical by John Kander and Fred Ebb (they had previously worked together on Barbra Streisand's hit "My Coloring Book"), Flora, the Red Menace also marked the first time Liza Minnelli starred on Broadway, as well as the start of her creative relationship with the songwriting team. The show had its ingratiating moments, although all the parties concerned would eventually know bigger and better successes. Based on Lester Atwell's novel, "Love Is Just Around The Corner," Flora deals with a young art student in New York during the Depression years who becomes involved with another student, a Communist, played by Bob Dishy. Received with lukewarm reviews when it opened on May 11, 1965, it copped a Tony for its young star, but closed shortly after, having played only 87 performances. While the score was relatively undistinguished, it offered a couple of good, theatrical moments in "Palomino Pal" and "Dear Love," but today it is hardly memorable. The original cast album reveals why.

Review: Sometimes mentioned as one of the least interesting collaborations by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein, Flower Drum Song, which opened on December 1, 1958, is in need of a thorough reevaluation. While it may not be on the same level as the pair's greatest hits (Oklahoma!, The King and I, South Pacific or The Sound of Music), it is nonetheless a lovely, ingratiating musical with a deftly written score. It has many wonderful moments in its story about a shy picture bride from China, who arrives in San Francisco to marry her intended, a nightclub operator more interested in the star of his floor show, only to fall in love with the son of the old-fashioned Chinese man who gives her and her father temporary shelter. Briskly directed by Gene Kelly (in his only directorial venture on Broadway), the show, based on Chin Y. Lee's novel of the same name, took its dramatic turns from the generational conflicts between traditional first-generation Chinese immigrants and their children, more adapted to the mores in their adopted country. The contrast was also brought into sharp focus in the score in which softer Chinese-styled numbers ("A Hundred Million Miracles") contrasted with jazzier American-inspired songs ("I Enjoy Being a Girl," "Grant Avenue").

The musical, which yielded several notable hits ("I Enjoy Being a Girl," "Sunday"), was also the occasion for Oscar Hammerstein to show the extent to which he had mastered his craft as a lyricist in the inventive pantoum "I Am Going to Like It Here." A pantoum is a rare and sophisticated form of poetry that originated in Malaya, in which the second and fourth lines in a stanza are repeated in the first and third lines of the following quatrain, in a cyclical musical movement.

Flower Drum Song enjoyed a long run of 600 performances. It was made into a beautiful film production in 1961 that had the enormous merits of retaining most of the songs in the score, as well as Miyoshi Umeki and Juanita Hall from the Broadway original, while cleverly expanding on the show's best assets, its big musical numbers. Nancy Kwan and Jack Soo also starred. The soundtrack album, available at one time on LP from Decca, was never reissued on compact disc, but the Broadway original cast album is a worthy and necessary addition to any collection.

Review: For some musical-theater devotees, this Stephen Sondheim-James Goldman show about a reunion of "Weismann" Follies girls is as good as Broadway gets. But the original Broadway production was not a hit; the only major revival to date was in London in 1987; and the listener who wants all of Follies must invest in the three CD versions listed here.

The Capitol Records original cast album was cut during production from two LPs to one, and except for one song ("One More Kiss"), the deleted material was either discarded or never recorded, so this CD (now on Angel) represents all that survives. Still, the performances are fine throughout, especially that of Alexis Smith, a former Hollywood ingenue who emerged as a Broadway star here.

The London production, on the other hand, was a smash, powered by megawatt performances from Diana Rigg and Julia McKenzie, and established Sondheim's shows as fixtures of the West End. The recording's also first-rate, but here's the catch: with 16 years' hindsight, Sondheim and Goldman rewrote the book, deleted songs and added new ones, and almost completely reworked the "Loveland" fantasy sequence that consumes the show's last half-hour. For this listener, the changes are positive on balance, and matched song-for-song against the Broadway original, this is a better recording, but... it's a different show.

If you can only afford one version of Follies, however, this is the one to buy. Culled from two concert performances at New York's Lincoln Center, the recording was conceived and fought for by producer Thomas Z. Shepard, and it endures not just as the only "complete" recording of the original score, but as one of the finest assemblages of musical theater talent ever put on record. Barbara Cook, Lee Remick, Mandy Patinkin and George Hearn are the four marvelous principals, but the cameos, by the likes of Elaine Stritch, Carol Burnett and Phyllis Newman, bring down the house. As far as this listener is concerned, it could go on forever. (Also available, with some hilarious backstage moments, on video.)

Review: A tuneful Arthur Freed production for M-G-M, For Me and My Gal starred Gene Kelly in his first Hollywood film following the big impression he had made on Broadway in Pal Joey, and Judy Garland in her first major film sans her usual partner, Mickey Rooney. Neither Kelly nor Garland would have to complain, as both gave ingratiating performances that showed his screen personality in the best light, and revealed greater depth in her own ability to sing and dance. The lame story of two vaudevillians in the years of World War I, For Me and My Gal was the occasion for many breezy musical numbers in which Garland, Kelly and George Murphy performed songs from the period like "When You Wore A Tulip," "After You've Gone," "Till We Meet Again," and the title tune with style, ease and a charm that belied the overall corny plot. The recently reissued soundtrack album on Rhino, supplemented with a lot of previously unreleased material, proves irresistible and charmingly dated, with the three principals particularly engaging in these musical moments, individually and together.

Review: The 1933 backstage screen musical, 42nd Street, became a major stage hit when David Merrick brought it virtually intact to Broadway on August 25, 1980. Retaining the film's basic plot—chorus girl (Wandy Richert) steps up to the spotlight when big star (Tammy Grimes) can't go on and wins the day—as well as many of the songs written by Harry Warren and Al Dubin, plus many others from other films, the show also benefitted from the incredible creative energy and choreographic drive Gower Champion (who died hours before the premiere) gave it, in a breathtaking display of ensemble dancing seldom seen on Broadway. With Jerry Orbach portraying Julian Marsh, the hard-driving director of the show-within-a-show, and Lee Roy Reams as Billy Lawlor, Peggy's love interest and eventual dancing partner, the musical, a razzling-dazzling paean to show business, walked away with the Tony for Best Musical, and enjoyed a long run of 3,486 performances. The original cast album is a brilliant recreation of the musical numbers as they were heard when the show opened.

Funny Face

1996, Verve Records; from the screen musical Funny Face, Paramount Pictures, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: George Gershwin; Lyrics: Ira Gershwin; Orchestrations: Mason Van Cleave, Alexander Courage, Skip Martin, Conrad Salinger; The Paramount Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Adolph Deutsch; Cast: Fred Astaire (Dick Avery), Audrey Hepburn (Jo Stockton), Kay Thompson (Maggie Prescott); Album Producer: Norman Granz; CD Producer: Michael Lang; Engineer: Steven Fallone.

Selections: 1 Overture: a) Funny Face, b) 'S Wonderful, c) Think Pink (R. Edens/L. Gershe)(3:48) Fred Astaire, Kay Thompson; 2 How Long Has This Been Going On? (5:05) Audrey Hepburn; 3 How Long Has This Been Going On? (reprise)(1:05) Orchestra; 4 Funny Face (3:43) Fred Astaire; 5 Bonjour, Paris! (6:04) Fred Astaire, Audrey Hepburn, Kay Thompson; 6 Clap Yo Hands (3:32) Fred Astaire, Kay Thompson; 7 He Loves And She Loves (5:00) Fred Astaire; 8 Bonjour, Paris (1:00) Orchestra; 9 On How To Be Lovely (R. Edens/L. Gershe)(2:41) Audrey Hepburn, Kay Thompson; 10 Basal Metabolism (2:54) Orchestra; 11 Let's Kiss And Make Up (4:48) Fred Astaire; 12 'S Wonderful (2:06) Fred Astaire, Audrey Hepburn.

Review: Utilizing five songs written by the Gershwin brothers for the 1927 stage show of the same name, including the title tune, plus material provided by Roger Edens and Leonard Gershe, on loan from M-G-M, Funny Face was a delightful screen musical that owed much of its charm to the presence of Audrey Hepburn. Hepburn is delicious as a Greenwich Village bookstore operator who is spirited away to Paris by a famous fashion photographer and becomes a top model, though her one objective is to meet the guru of Empathicalism, a new philosophical movement. Strikingly lensed in the French capital, and with the action smoothly integrating its various musical numbers, the film a clef (in which Astaire's Avery was a stand-in for Richard Avedon, who worked on the film as visual consultant, and Michel Auclair's Professor Flostre was a thinly disguised screen image of Jean-Paul Sartre) gave Fred Astaire ample opportunities to show his undiminished talents as a dancer and singer. Astaire spends much of the film either wooing Audrey Hepburn or sharing the spotlight with Kay Thompson, hilariously cast as a no-nonsense top magazine editor. Unfortunately, the CD soundtrack is in mono, and only replicates the original album the way it was initially released in 1957, without any extras.

Review: The story of vaudeville comedian Fanny Brice, her rise to stardom in the Ziegfeld Follies, her emotional involvement with gangster Nick Arnstein, and the eventual break-up of their marriage provided the strong dramatic elements for a musical by Isobel Lennart, with a sensational score by Jule Styne and Bob Merrill. More specifically, it also launched the career of Barbra Streisand, as Fanny Brice, in one of the theatre's legendary portrayals. The show, which opened March 26, 1964 to rave reviews, yielded many hit tunes, all performed by the nascent star, including "Don't Rain On My Parade," "The Music That Makes Me Dance," "I'm The Greatest Star," and "People," which, alone, became a standard for an entire generation. Though it failed to receive any Tony Award (Hello, Dolly! was the big winner that year), Funny Girl enjoyed a long run of 1,348 performances. Streisand went on to star in the film version, which added to the score two songs associated with Fanny Brice, "I'd Rather Be Blue Over You" and "My Man." Both the original cast and the soundtrack albums are worthy additions to any musical collection; the former features Streisand at the peak of her talent, in a portrayal that has not yet become stilted, with Sydney Chaplin appropriately suave as Nick Arnstein, and Kay Medford and Jean Stapleton in supporting roles.

The soundtrack album, overblown and sounding more elaborate than its stage counterpart, substitutes Omar Sharif as Nick Arnstein, but drops several tunes from the show, adding the two cover songs, as well as "Roller Skate Rag," "The Swan," and "Funny Girl," written specifically for the film. By then, Streisand had become a superstar, and her portrayal, while outstanding, also seemed less fresh and genuine than in the original.

Funny Lady

1990, Bay Cities Records; from the screen musical Funny Lady, Columbia Pictures, 1975.

Album Notes: Orchestrations: Peter Matz; Musical Direction: Peter Matz; Cast: Barbra Streisand (Fanny Brice), James Caan (Billy Rose), Ben Vereen (Bert Robbins); Album Producer: Peter Matz; Engineers: Kevin Cleary, John Neal; CD Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 How Lucky Can You Get (F. Ebb/J. Kander) (4:49) Barbra Streisand; 2 So Long Honey Lamb (F. Ebb/J. Kander) (3:12) Barbra Streisand, Ben Vereen; 3 I Found A Million Dollar Baby (In A Five And Ten Cent Store) (H. Warren/B. Rose/M. Dixon) (2:00) Barbra Streisand; 4 Isn't This Better (F. Ebb/J. Kander) (3:30) Barbra Streisand; 5 Me And My Shadow (B. Rose/A. Jolson/D. Dreyer) (3:04) James Caan; 6 If I Love Again (J. Murray/B. Oakland) (2:58) Barbra Streisand; 7 I Got A Code In My Doze (B. Rose/A. Fields/F. Hall) (1:10) Barbra Streisand; 8 (It's Gonna Be A) Great Day (B. Rose/E. Eliscu/V. Youmans) (5:15) Barbra Streisand; 9 Blind Date (F. Ebb/J. Kander) (4:57) Barbra Streisand; 10 Am I Blue (G. Clarke/H. Akst) (3:21) Barbra Streisand; 11 It's Only A Paper Moon/I Like Him (B. Rose/E.Y. Harburg/H. Arlen/F. Ebb/J. Kander) (1:04) Barbra Streisand; 12 It's Only A Paper Moon/I Like Her (2:38) James Caan; 13 More Than You Know (B. Rose/E. Eliscu/V. Youmans) (2:28) Barbra Streisand; 14 Clap Hands, Here Comes Charley (B. Rose/ B. MacDonald/J. Meyer) (2:14) Barbra Streisand, Ben Vereen; 15 Let's Hear It For Me (F. Ebb/J. Kander) (3:13) Barbra Streisand.

Review: In this sequel to her stage and screen success Funny Girl, Barbra Streisand again portrayed Fanny Brice, singing songs the comedienne had created, and new material written specifically for the film by Kander and Ebb. Though taking many liberties with historical accuracy (Brice, now a big Broadway star, still pines for Nick, but eventually marries producer-songwriter Billy Rose, until she finds him in bed with a rival), Funny Lady, released in 1975, was a huge box office hit for Streisand. Omar Sharif briefly appeared as Nick Arnstein, and James Caan portrayed Billy Rose. The soundtrack album focuses on the various musical numbers performed by Streisand in the film, with occasional assist from Ben Vereen.

Review: Something appealing, nothing appalling, something for, well, almost everyone... Stephen Sondheim's first music-and-lyrics Broadway outing endures as well as the jokes in this ancient-Rome-meets-Larry Gelbart farce, a favorite through the years and the show that made Zero Mostel a Broadway star. Mostel "acts" superbly on the original cast album recording, as do co-clowns Jack Gilford, David Burns and John Carradine. Performances of several discarded songs—including the lovely "Love Is in the Air"—can be found on various Sondheim CD collections. (Serious collectors—and British listeners—may also want to seek out EMI/Angel's original London cast recording, also available on CD, starring Frankie Howerd.)

The 1996 revival waited a couple of years for Nathan Lane, and he's fine here, as are fellow jokesters Mark Linn-Baker, Lewis J. Stadlen and Mary Testa, so why does this technically flawless recording lack the impact of the original? At this writing, the show's still packing 'em in on Broadway (now with Whoopi Goldberg); the CD captures valuable bits of dialogue and re-expands several of the songs from the '62 cast album; but here, as in math class, you can't divide by Zero. Unique to this CD is the spoken-and-sung "House of Marcus Lycus," which provides the same strange thrili as hearing someone describe a copy of Playboy. The recording producer, Phil Ramone, was also kind enough to restore the essential "Pretty Little Picture," although it was absent from this stage production.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:26) Orchestra; 2 It's High Time (2:46) Yvonne Adair; 3 Bye Bye Baby (3:14) Jack McCauley, Carol Channing; 4 A Little Girl From Little Rock (3:04) Carol Channing; 5 I Love What I'm Doing (2:18) Yvonne Adair; 6 Just A Kiss Apart (3:00) Eric Brotherson, Yvonne Adair; 7 The Practice Scherzo (1:09) Orchestra; 8 It's Delightful Down In Chile (3:20) Rex Evans, Carol Channing; 9 Sunshine (3:19) Yvonne Adair, Eric Brotherson; 10 I'm A'Tingle, I'm A'Glow (2:27) George S. Irving; 11 You Say You Care (3:41) Eric Brotherson, Yvonne Adair; 12 Mamie Is Mimi (3:04) Honi Coles, Cholly Atkins; 13 Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friend (2:58) Carol Channing; 14 Gentlemen Prefer Blondes (1:04) Carol Channing, Jack McCauley; 15 Homesick Blues (3:25) Carol Channing, Yvonne Adair, Jack McCauley, Eric Brotherson, Alice Pearce, George S. Irving; 16 Keeping Cool With Coolidge (2:14) Yvonne Adair.

Review: Carol Channing, portraying a quintessential 1920s gold-digger, became a star in Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, the droll, fictional tale of two dizzy American flappers and their search to nail down the right man, preferably one with a large bank account, based on a short story by Anita Loos. Sporting a brilliant score by Jule Styne and Leo Robin, the musical, which opened on December 8, 1949, had a run of 740 performances, and with many alterations (including the deletion of all but three of the songs from the stage show) became the first starring vehicle for Marilyn Monroe in 1953. In its stage treatment, the song-and-dance extravaganza followed the outline of its original source story, and focused on Lorelei Lee, a "little girl from Little Rock," and her friend from the Follies, Dorothy Shaw, as they embark on a transatlantic trip to Europe, a gift from Lorelei's generous "sugar daddy," a button tycoon. On board the "Ile de France," both Lorelei and Dorothy meet various suitably accomodating gentlemen, with Lorelei the center of interest for several of them. The show gave Carol Channing the right opportunity to display her flair for comedy in a portrayal that has remained legendary in the annals of the musical theatre. The score, replete with many excellent numbers, yielded the hits "A Little Girl From Little Rock" and "Diamonds Are A Girl's Best Friends."

Review: We are truly fortunate to be living in this modern (digital) world. Technology and a new-found appreciation of our Broadway and Hollywood musical heritage has unlocked the archives of recording companies and film studios the world over. The new soundtrack album recording of Gigi, on Rhino, is a testament to the treat we all have in store as these archives become more and more available. In addition to the basic songs that have been available over the years in several incarnations, LP, CD and cassette, we now have available, for our enjoyment, instrumental interludes, reprises, extended versions and even experimental recordings with Leslie Caron's singing voice. As most film buffs are aware, her singing voice was dubbed, in part, by Betty Wand. This classic recording also includes such stars as Maurice Chevalier, Louis Jourdan and Hermione Gingold. The score of this film again shows the versatile talent of Lerner and Loewe, both of whom can catch a character, a place and a time like no other song writing team. While the story of this film is similar to My Fair Lady, in a superficial way, the music and lyrics do not sound like the previous musical at all. The new transfers are in the best stereo sound they have ever had and will pour gloriously from your speakers every time you play this album.

In 1973, Gigi was turned into a big, lavish Broadway musical which, unfortunately for all involved, ran not quite three months. However, fortunately for us, a recording was made during the run of the show and it is wonderfully alive. Though none of the principals equal their counterparts in the film, they do capture the spirit and the fun of the material beautifully. Karin Wolfe, while not quite an unknown, was perceived as new to the scene and she played Gigi as a charming young girl on the brink of womanhood. Daniel Massey really understood the character of Gaston down to his fingertips and he displays more voice on the recording than his film counterpart. If Alfred Drake wasn't Maurice Chevalier, he was, well... Alfred Drake, and he brought a touching self-awareness to the character of Honore. Maria Karnilova and Agnes Moorehead were wonderful as Gigi's two role models. Lerner and Loewe wrote several lovely new songs for the show with "The Contract" being a knockout. The stereo sound on the compact disc is good and it reproduces the many felicities of this score well.

Review: A radiant little musical with a score by George and Ira Gershwin, Girl Crazy made very few pretenses other than amuse and entertain its audiences when it opened on October 14, 1930. Set in Arizona, it dealt with a New York playboy sent to the golden West by his millionaire father to manage a ranch, in the hope that the wastrel will forget his fondness for alcohol and the fair sex in the great open spaces. However, the lad, who arrives in the womanless town of Custerville by taxicab from New York has other ideas, and immediately proceeds to transform the place into a dude ranch, glamorizing it with a girl chorus imported from Broadway. Light as the story might have been, it was the occasion for the wonderful score which contained such gems as "Bidin' My Time," "Embraceable You," "I Got Rhythm," and "But Not For Me," among its better moments. Transferred to the screen in 1943 with its score almost intact and the plot bearing a distant resemblance to the one conceived by Guy Bolton and John McGowan for the original, it became another sprightly vehicle for the popular team of Mickey Rooney and Judy Garland. In true, traditional fashion, they took advantage of the storyline to put on a show, actually a grandiose finale, staged by Busby Berkeley.

The Elektra recording, one of several studio cast recreations of the great Gershwin 1930s musicals, stars Lorna Luft (Judy Garland's daughter), Judy Blazer and David Carroll in a spirited rendition of the score, beautifully directed by John Mauceri.

While sonically inferior, the Rhino set presents the M-G-M 1943 film version, starring Judy Garland (a winner in her playful rendition of "Bidin' My Time") and Mickey Rooney, complete with its interpolations (including "Fascinating Rhythm," performed by Rooney at the piano, with Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra), outtakes, instrumental bridges, and, as is usual for the label, a wealth of written and photographic information that makes this CD the ultimate release for this marvelous soundtrack.

Review: A modest musical by normal Broadway standards, Godspell found its genesis in the Gospel according to St. Matthew, with Stephen Schwartz chronicling the last seven days in the life of Christ, portrayed wearing clown make-up and a T-shirt emblazoned with an "S," to the rhythms of a rock'n'roll score. Surprisingly, it not only worked very well, it also was quite fetching and entertaining, and not preachy. Initially presented at the off-Broadway Cherry Lane Theatre, on May 17, 1971, it eventually moved to Broadway on June 22, 1976, for a run of 527 performances. Altogether, it played 2,651 performances in New York alone. In 1973, it also was made into a film musical, which essentially retained all the ingredients from the stage show, merely expanding on them and opening up the stage setting to include outdoors shots against the New York skyline. Both the original cast album and the soundtrack recording are virtually identical, and both are equally enjoyable.

Golden Boy

1993, Angel Records; from the Broadway production Golden Boy, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Charles Strouse; Lyrics: Lee Adams; Orchestrations; Ralp Burns; Musical Direction: Elliot Lawrence; Cast: Sammy Davis, Jr. (Joe Wellington), Paula Wayne (Lorna Moon), Billy Daniels (Eddie Satin), Kenneth Tobey (Tom Moody), Terrin Miles (Terry), Johnny Brown (Ronnie), Jaime Rogers (Lopez); CD Engineer: Bob Norberg.

Selections: 1 Workout (1:37) The Company; 2 Night Song (4:04) Sammy Davis Jr.; 3 Everything's Great (2:07) Kenneth Tobey, Paula Wayne; 4 Gimme Some (1:52) Sammy Davis Jr., Terrin Miles; 5 Stick Around (1:30) Sammy Davis Jr.; 6 Don't Forget 127th Street (5:43) Sammy Davis Jr., Johnny Brown; 7 Lorna's Here (2:34) Paula Wayne; 8 This Is The Life (3:41) Billy Daniels, Sammy Davis Jr., Paula Wayne; 9 Golden Boy (2:39) Paula Wayne; 10 While The City Sleeps (3:00) Billy Daniels; 11 Colorful (2:39) Sammy Davis Jr.; 12 I Want To Be With You (4:34) Sammy Davis Jr., Paula Wayne; 13 Can You See It (2:24) Sammy Davis Jr.; 14 No More (6:30) Sammy Davis Jr.; 15 Finale: The Fight (3:05) Sammy Davis Jr., Jaime Rogers.

Review: Despite the presence of Sammy Davis, Jr. in the title role, this musical adaptation of Clifford Odets' play was not a great success. Davis, playing an aspiring young boxer who thinks he's made it after he wins a couple of bouts, only to lose a determining championship fight, worked very hard to win support for the show, something that explains his strained voice in this cast album recorded a few weeks after the opening. But the book, a tame version of the play, and particularly the score, by Charles Strouse and Lee Adams (of Bye Bye Birdie fame), let the star down. Ultimately, the show had a run of 569 performances, largely due to the star's box office appeal, and the novelty of an interracial relationship between Joe and Lorna (played by Paula Wayne) which challenged Broadway audiences at a time when such things were still being frowned on (see also No Strings). The show received Tony nominations for Best Musical, Best Actor, Best Producer, and Best Choreography. Also appearing in the cast were newcomers Louis Gossett and Lola Falana.

Good News

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the screen musical Good News, M-G-M, 1947.

Blane)(4:32) Joan McCracken; 9 The Big Game (1:10) Orchestra; 10 Just Imagine (2:49) June Allyson; 11 A Visit To The Dean (1:10) Orchestra; 12 The Best Things In Life Are Free (reprise)(3:39) Mel Torme, Peter Lawford; 13 Finale: The Varsity Drag (5:28) June Allyson, Peter Lawford.

Review: A pleasantly mindless campus musical, Good News is best remembered today for the fact that it introduced June Allyson and Peter Lawford in their first starring roles. It also boasts a rousing score in which the natural highlights are the standard "The Best Things In Life Are Free," reprised almost ad nauseam throughout the film, "Pass That Peace Pipe," and "The French Lesson," in which Allyson teaches Lawford the rudiments of the language (or was it the other way around?). Bright and zippy, the film offers the wisp of a storyline about football star Lawford, a chronic failure in every other discipline, forced to study with Allyson, who is secretly in love with him, if he wants to graduate. The hint of a romantic conflict is introduced when Lawford falls for an attractive, but ultimately empty-headed co-ed, played by Patricia Marshall, while Mel Torme croons his way through a couple of numbers. All of it is innocuous, fun, and eventually enjoyable, with the whole cast joining in a spirited "Varsity Drag" to bring the screen shenanigans to a pleasant conclusion, just as it can be heard on the recording.

Review: A 1950s musical, Grease took Broadway pundits off-guard when it premiered on February 14, 1972. With its pungent high school antics, its rivalries between gangs of greasers and pink ladies, and its pervasive rhythmic score, the musical offered a devastating, if slightly amusing look at a fictitious high school group of students in the early days of the rock'n'roll era. Spirited, direct, somewhat satirical, it was a great deal of fun, and even though it probably grated on the more traditional audiences usually flocking in to catch the latest shows, it enjoyed an unprecedented long run of 3,388 performances, quite an achievement. Of note, it introduced various talented youngsters who eventually went on to bigger and better things, including Barry Bostwick, Adrienne Barbeau (for a long while film director John Carpenter's egeria), Treat Williams, and John Travolta, who starred in the film version (see below).

In 1994, the show returned to Broadway in a splashy, plastic presentation, staged by Tommy Tune's protégé Jeff Calhoun, in a production that was all show and little flair. Smartly packaged, however, with various name performers (Rosie O'Donnell, Jasmine Guy, Brooke Shields, Joe Piscopo) starring in it at one time or another, the musical has succeeded in building an audience, and continues to thrive at this writing, with apparently no end for its current run in sight. RCA Victor released two cast albums that are virtually identical and are only differentiated by the fact that Rosie O'Donnell is in one, and Brooke Shields in the other.

The 1978 film version, starring John Travolta and Olivia Newton-John expanded the concept in the original, and brought in frontline groups and performers to tackle the score, thus making what was essentially a simple stage musical into an all-star rock presentation. Surprisingly, it worked very well, and with the two principals bringing their own vocal and dramatic talents to the roles of Danny, the main greaser, and Sandy, the virtuous newcomer to Rydell High, Grease further benefitted from the presence in its cast of Frankie Valli, Frankie Avalon, the rock group Sha-Na-Na, and mostly Stockard Channing, hilarious as Betty Rizzo, the leader of the Pink Ladies. The soundtrack album reflected the improvements, and continues to be one of the most enjoyable representations of this musical.

Review: Amid the dazzling array of lights, color and motion that create the spectacular Gotham-esque atmosphere of the staging for this pivotal musical comedy lies one of the most alluring scores of all time: fun-filled, action-packed and, at the same time, beautifully tender and romantic. And while it's rare for every element of a production to marry and form a perfect union, it is rarer still for nearly every song from a show to become a bona-fide standard, as is the case with Frank Loesser's magnificent compositions for Guys and Dolls.

Fortunately, fans of the theatre can instantly transport themselves back to the glamour and panache of Runyonland, via two superb CD issues: the original 1950 Broadway cast recording, and the unmatched 1992 "new" Broadway cast recording—both highly recommended.

The original 1950 cast recording (starring Robert Alda, Vivian Blaine and Sam Levine) features all of the familiar hit songs from the original production, and remains a warm, cherished historic document of the charm that made Guys and Dolls an immediate critical success. The sonic restorations from the original recording elements (lacquer discs) are quite good, but in general, the monophonic sound lacks the presence that a show with the sizzle of Guys and Dolls requires.

However, the 1992 Broadway cast recording, featuring Nathan Lane, Faith Prince, and Peter Gallagher, completely makes up for any of the original's shortcomings. Crackling with intense energy and excitement, Michael Starobin's crisp, tight orchestrations immediately set the stage for some of the most polished, seamless performances in Broadway history—so bright and snappy, it almost makes the original show's tempos and performances seem lackluster! As a bonus, the recording offers two essential dance sequences appearing for the first time on record: "Havana," and "The Crapshooter's Dance."

Regrettably, no officially issued recording exists for the 1955 film version of the show, starring Marlon Brando, Frank Sinatra and Vivian Blaine. In addition to being a terrific film adaptation, the movie contains several new songs written by Loesser to assist in the show's transition from stage to screen, and the soundtrack is noticeable by its unforgivable absence on the market. Sinatra fans might enjoy the all-star studio recording released by Reprise, enjoyable for the most part except for Debbie Reynolds' misguided performance as Adelaide.

Review: The old girl from the world of showbiz, Mama Rose, proves both indestructable and a fine vehicle for singing female stars. Originally created by Ethel Merman, for whom it was written, the part has been variously handled by Rosalind Russell in the film version (not available on CD), Angela Lansbury, Tyne Daly, and more recently Bette Midler, among many others.

The quintessential backstage musical, and for many the best ever written, Gypsy related the real-life story of stripper Gypsy Rose Lee and her sister June Haver, and how each was shaped into a star of the first magnitude by their monster of a stage mother. With a fine, solid book by Arthur Laurents, and a splendid score by Jule Styne (music) and Stephen Sondheim (lyrics), the show has endured through repeated revivals, losing none of its freshness and its strength, even though by now its plot and tunes have become remarkably familiar.

The three recordings listed here are all superb in their own right, the personality of the actress playing Mama Rose being the main focus. Merman, the belter and originator of the part, is still the best, though the recording itself, an early transfer to CD from the original analog tapes, leaves a bit to be desired sonically.

Tyne Daly, in the 1990 Broadway revival, added her own touch to the role, but without significantly altering it, in a performance that has its moments of excellence.

As for Bette Midler, in the 1993 television treatment, she camps the part a bit, but she is also remarkably true to the spirit of the original in a performance that has been justifiably lauded.

Review: A seminal rock'n'roll musical, Hair opened on April 29, 1968, amid the brouhaha created by several facets of the production. Firstly, conservative Broadway seemed ill-prepared to accept a show advocating the tenets of the flower power generation of the late 1960s. Secondly, the musical was determinedly anti-militarist at a time when the war in Vietnam, though increasingly unpopular, still arose much patriotic fervor. Lastly, a much-publicized "nude" scene went against the accepted, traditionalist norms (the year before, the dancers in Les ballets africains had been allowed to appear bare-breasted because the revue was an "ethnic" show). The Jerry Falwells of the world notwithstanding, Hair became an immediate success, not the least because it received an unconditional endorsement from Clive Barnes in "The New York Times," who rhapsodized about its many virtues. A "total experience," the show ushered in a new era on Broadway, though, in retrospect, it appears hopelessly rooted in its own time period and so seriously dated by now that various attempts at reviving it in the late 1970s and early 1980s failed completely.

Propelled by its rhythm-driven score, in which "Aquarius," "Good Morning Starshine," and "Let The Sunshine In" soon became great favorites, and songs which, at the time, enjoyed a succes de scandale ("Sodomy," "I Believe In Love," "Hashish," "Colored Spade," "Walking In Space"), the loosely-structured show had a run of 1,750 performances, and launched the careers of several performers who appeared in it at one time or another, including Melba Moore, Ronnie Dyson, Diane Keaton, Paul Jabara, Nell Carter, Ben Vereen, Philip Michael Thomas, and Meatloaf.

In 1979, a screen version, directed by Milos Forman, tried to recapture the hippie moods and feelings of the show in an ill-conceived effort that was only mildly successful.

Of the two recordings listed, the original cast album is the one to have, though be prepared to experience something of a culture shock when you listen to it today and realize that it is no longer what it was touted to be.

Even more of a curiosity, the soundtrack album might be of interest to people who must have every title in their collection.

Review: Radical chic came to Broadway in 1967 with this look at race relations and show business, but the results were less than what had been anticipated. In trying to be topical, the creators of Hallelujah, Baby! (Arthur Laurents, Jule Styne, Betty Comden and Adolph Green) failed to remember that what mattered in a musical was the music, not so much the message. In trying to portray the life of an entertainer (Leslie Uggams, in a fetching portrayal), her slow ascension to stardom, and her love affairs with a Black man (Robert Hooks) and a white man (Allen Case), intertwined through sixty years of race stuggles and emancipation, they only succeeded in muddling the stage with a story that was not very convincing (the characters did not age, further confusing the audience), and a score that was not too terribly entertaining. By the time the show won the Tony as Best Musical (by default, it should be mentioned), it already had closed and would have been forgotten were it not for this cast album which actually makes it sound much better than it really was.

Review: Like Gypsy, Hello, Dolly! is a splendid vehicle for a grander-than-life performance. Many actresses have tried it, with varying degrees of success, but to the many fans of the musical and its spirited score by Jerry Herman, the best among them remains Carol Channing, who created the part on Broadway. A recent revival in which she returned to the scene of her former triumph proved, if needed, that she was Dolly Gallagher Levy, even if the show itself had become a lame carbon copy of the original.

Pearl Bailey, who was brought in as an odd replacement with an all-Black cast to rekindle the show's flagging fortunes at the box office (rumor at the time had it that Liberace had also been considered by producer David Merrick to head an all-male cast), added some of her own idiosyncracies to a part that already had quite a few them written into it. But the show gave her a rare opportunity to return to Broadway where her absence had been sorely noticed for many years.

Were it not for the presence of Louis Armstrong in the cast, the film version, starring Barbra Streisand, totally miscast in a role written for a much older actress, would be a total disaster. Even then, Armstrong's moment of glory, in the seven-minute long title track, is barely sufficient to recommend this sorry recording, in which future-Phantom Michael Crawford also makes an appearance.

Hercules

1997, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature Hercules, Walt Disney, 1997.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Menken; Lyrics: David Zippel; Orchestrations and Arrangements: Danny Trooh; Vocal Arrangements: Michael Kosarin; Music Editors: Earl Ghaffari, Kathleen Fogarty-Bennett; Musical Direction: Michael Kosarin; Cast: Lillias White, Cheryl Freeman, LaChanze, Roz Ryan, Tawatha Agee, Vaneese Thomas (The Muses); Roger Bart (Young Hercules); Danny DeVito (Phil); Susan Egan (Meg); Album Producer: Alan Menken; Engineers: Frank Wolf, John Richards.

Selections: 1 Long Ago... (:31); 2 The Gospel Truth I/Main Titles (2:24) Lillias White, Cheryl Freeman, LaChanze, Roz Ryan, Vaneese Thomas; 3 The Gospel Truth II (:59) Roz Ryan; 4 The Gospel Truth III (1:04) Cheryl Freeman, LaChanze, Vaneese Thomas, Lillias White; 5 Go The Distance (3:13) Roger Bart; 6 Oh, Mighty Zeus (:46); 7 Go The Distance (reprise)(:57) Roger Bart; 8 One Last Hope (3:00) Danny DeVito; 9 Zero To Hero (2:20) Lillias White, Tawatha Agee, Cheryl Freeman, LaChanze, Roz Ryan, Vaneese Thomas; 10 I Won't Say (I'm In Love)(2:20) Susan Egan, Cheryl Freeman, LaChanze, Vaneese Thomas, Lillias White; 11 A Star Is Born (2:03) Lillias White, Cheryl Freeman, LaChanze, Roz Ryan, Vaneese Thomas; 12 Go The Distance (single)(4:41) Michael Bolton; 13 The Big Olive (1:05); 14 The Prophecy (:54); 15 Destruction Of The Agora (2:06); 16 Phil's Island (2:26); 17 Rodeo (:40); 18 Speak Of The Devil (1:29); 19 The Hydra Battle (3:28); 20 Meg's Garden (1:14); 21 Hercules' Villa (:37); 22 All Time Chump (:38); 23 Cutting The Thread (3:23); 24 A True Hero/A Star Is Born (5:34).

Review: The latest, at this writing, of Disney's animated musical blockbusters, Hercules focuses on the hero of mythology, son of Zeus, the strongest man in the world, in an up-to-date version film that doesn't take its subject too seriously, as the introduction, "Long Ago...," clearly indicates. With David Zippel contributing the clever lyrics to Alan Menken's vastly hummable music, the film introduces several lovable characters well designed to endear the younger members in the audience, while providing the necessary dose of comic relief usually demanded by this type of entertainment. Spearheaded by its hit single, "Go The Distance," also performed by Michael Bolton, the score has great appeal, and is bound to delight many listeners, though sequencing deprives the album of the same continuity enjoyed in the film.

High Society

1956, Capitol Records; from the screen musical High Society, M-G-M, 1956.

Album Notes: Music: Cole Porter; Lyrics: Cole Porter; Orchestrations: Conrad Salinger, Nelson Riddle; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Johnny Green; Cast: Bing Crosby (Dexter Haven), Grace Kelly (Tracy Samantha Lord), Frank Sinatra (Mike Connor), Celeste Holm (Liz Imbrie).

Selections: 1 High Society (Overture)(3:29) Orchestra; 2 High Society Calypso (2:12) Louis Armstrong and His Band; 3 Little One (2:30) Bing Crosby; 4 Who Wants To Be A Millionaire (2:05) Frank Sinatra, Celeste Holm; 5 True Love (3:05) Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly; 6 You're Sensational (3:52) Frank Sinatra; 7 I Love You, Samantha (4:27) Bing Crosby; 8 Now You Has Jazz (4:16) Bing Crosby, Louis Armstrong and His Band; 9 Well Did You Evah? (3:47) Bing Crosby, Frank Sinatra; 10 Mind If I Make Love To You (2:22) Frank Sinatra.

Review: One of Cole Porter's very last musical efforts, High Society is probably also one of his most memorable works—due in large part to the stellar cast that starred in the film: Frank Sinatra, Grace Kelly, Bing Crosby, Louis Armstrong and Celeste Holm. Their effervescent performances, and their fine interpretations of some of Porter's wittiest songs have helped rank High Society among the classics. Unfortunately, the beauty of the performances, cushioned by the splendid Johnny Green orchestrations, is lost in this soundtrack recording, a sea of sonic murk as are all of Sinatra's Capitol soundtracks.

Poor production values truly detract from enjoyment of the disc. It is difficult to ascertain whether the original film recordings were poorly recorded and inherently sound "brittle" and muffled (doubtful, since new restorations of the M-G-M soundtracks of the 1940s reveal very pleasing sonics), or if the defects were created later, when the film tracks were transferred by the record company for commercial release.

Either way, the situation should have been corrected when the CD was planned for issue. In time, this (and other important soundtracks) will be restored with the attention and care that they deserve. Until then, this unforgivably inferior CD will have to suffice.

House of Flowers

1990, Sony Music Special Products; from the Broadway production House of Flowers, 1955.

Album Notes: Music: Harold Arlen; Lyrics: Truman Capote; Dances and Musical Numbers: Herbert Ross; Musical Direction: Jerry Arlen; Cast: Pearl Bailey (Mme. Fleur), Diahann Carroll (Ottilie), Juanita Hall (Mme. Tango), Rawn Spearman (Royal), Ada Moore (Pansy), Enid Mosier (Tulip), Dolores Harper (Gladiola); Album Producer: Goddard Lieberson.

Selections: 1 Overture (5:19) Orchestra; 2 Waitin' (1:49) Dolores Harper, Ada Moore, Enid Mosier; 3 One Man Ain't Quite Enough (3:10) Pearl Bailey; 4 A Sleepin' Bee (5:18) Diahann Carroll, Dolores Harper, Enid Mosier, Ada Moore; 5 Bamboo Cage (2:20) Dolores Harper, Ada Moore, Enid Mosier; 6 House Of Flowers (3:15) Diahann Carroll, Rawn Spearman; 7 Two Ladies In De Shade Of De Banana Tree (5:01) Ada Moore, Enid Mosier; 8 What Is A Friend For? (3:22) Pearl Bailey; 9 Slide "Boy" Slide (2:22) Juanita Hall; 10 I'm Gonna Leave Off Wearing My Shoes (2:19) Diahann Carroll; 11 Has I Left You Down (3:24) Pearl Bailey, Dolores Harper, Ada Moore, Enid Mosier; 12 I Never Has Seen Snow (4:02) Diahann Carroll; 13 Turtle Song (3:22) Diahann Carroll, Rawn Spearman; 14 Don't Like Goodbyes (2:29) Pearl Bailey; 15 Mardi Gras (5:19) M. Burton.

Review: A musical set in the fragrant Caribbean, on an island where voodoo and French culture have settled down in amiable unity, House of Flowers opened on December 30, 1954, with a cast that included Pearl Bailey, Juanita Hall, and a fresh newcomer named Diahann Carroll. Carroll dazzled first night audiences with her innocent portrayal of a flowergirl who wants to marry a mountain boy and her crystalline vocal talent. Inspired by a short story written by Truman Capote following a trip he had taken to Haiti, the show involves the struggle between two feuding local madames, Mme Tango and Mme Fleur, for the control of the leisure time of both the island's residents and visitors. Temporarily supplanted in her trade by her rival, Mme Fleur is counting on her new protégé, Ottilie, to rekindle her business, though, as we all know, the best laid plans... Punctuating the action with songs that have the right color and occasional carnival exuberance one associates with life in the West Indies, the score by Harold Arlen teemes with bright moments, among which "A Sleepin' Bee," performed by Diahann Carroll, still attracts the most, while Pearl Bailey revealed her devastating side in the show-stopping numbers, "One Man Ain't Quite Enough," "What's a Friend For?," and "Has I Let You Down." House of Flowers had a short run of 165 performances, and won a Tony for Oliver Messel's florid settings.

(:15) Walter Cronkite; 28 Brotherhood Of Man (5:50) Matthew Broderick, Gerry Vichi, Lillias White; 29 Finale (1:09) Company.

Review: A Pulitzer Prize-winning musical, something of a rarity in the theatre, How to Succeed in Business Without Really Trying was based on a Shepherd Mead's manual, which Abe Burrows took as its inspiration to trace the rise up the corporate ladder of a window washer who, by the time he has finished applying Mr. Mead's recommendations for quick success, indeed finds himself at the head of the World Wide Wicket Company. In the course of the evening, the young tyro defeats his envious rival, nephew of the company's president, and finds love in the eyes of his secretary, Rosemary.

A delightful satire of big business, the show received a tremendous boost in Frank Loesser's exhilarating score, and in Robert Morse's impish portrayal as J. Pierpont Finch, whose guile allows him to succeed without really trying. With Rudy Vallee making a last stage appearance as J.B. Biggley, president of the company, and Charles Nelson Reilly at his manic best as the grudging nephew, How to Succeed opened to rave reviews on October 14, 1961, and settled for a long run of 1,417 performances. It won five Tony Awards, including one for Best Musical, and one for Robert Morse as Best Actor. With Michele Lee playing the female lead, and with its score virtually intact, it transferred to the screen in 1966.

A slightly revised, more politically-correct version, starring Matthew Broderick, opened on March 23, 1995, and closed after 548 performances.

Of the two recordings available, the original cast album, starring Robert Morse and Rudy Vallee, remains as lively and vibrant as the day when it was first recorded.

The 1995 revival cast recording, with Matthew Broderick, contains better sonics, more music, a show-stopping rendition of "Brotherhood of Man" performed by Lillias White, and the voice of Walter Cronkite, as the show's narrator.

The Hunchback of Notre Dame

1996, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature The Hunchback of Notre Dame, Walt Disney Pictures, 1996.

Selections: 1 The Bells Of Notre Dame (6:14) Paul Kandel, David Ogden Stiers, Tony Jay; 2 Out There (4:25) Tony Jay, Tom Hulce; 3 Topsy Turvy (5:35) Paul Kandel; 4 Humiliation (1:40); 5 God Help The Outcasts (3:42) Heidi Mullenhauer; 6 The Bell Tower (3:04); 7 Heaven's Light/Hellfire (5:23) Tom Hulce, Tony Jay; 8 A Guy Like You (2:53) Jason Alexander, Charles Kimbrough, Mary Wickes, Mary Stout; 9 Paris Burning (1:53); 10 The Court Of Miracles (1:27) Paul Kandel; 11 Sanctuary! (6:01); 12 And He Shall Smile The Wicked (3:29); 13 Into The Sunlight (2:09); 14 The Bells Of Notre Dame (reprise)(1:09) Paul Kandel; 15 Someday (4:18) All-4-One; 16 God Help The Outcasts (3:27) Bette Midler.

Review: Alan Menken and Stephen Schwartz teamed to write the score for this animated feature, very loosely based on the well-known story by Victor Hugo. The book's plot centers around a deformed hunchback in medieval Paris, who falls in love with the gorgeous gypsy Esmeralda, in love with another, and who loses his life when he attempts to save her from a righteous archdeacon, eager to burn her at the stake, as was a common practice at the time, in order to atone for his own sins. Being that this was a Disney film, the story was slightly modified: Quasimodo gets encouragement and solace from gargoyles suddenly coming to life, and doesn't die at the end; the tone of the film was uplifted to remove the story from anything that might resemble the dour moods of the original; and the songs, of course, had to reflect the upbeat feelings that prevail. Otherwise, the narrative remains relatively faithful to its model, with splashy, colorful expressions of an easy, carnival-like atmosphere that probably would have baffled Parisians in the Middle Ages. The score echoes the hopeful moods in the story, and though it plays by the numbers, it finds attractive connotations to soothe and attract any audience. The film's essential politically-correct message is that "God Helps The Outcasts," a number heard twice in the recording, notably in a moving rendition by Bette Midler. There is nothing terribly earth-shaking about the rest of the recording, which, like most soundtracks written for the Disney films, is enjoyable, not too demanding, and just a tad this side of being bland.

I Can Get It for You Wholesale

1995, Columbia Records; from the Broadway production I Can Get It for You Wholesale, 1962.

Album Notes: Music: Harold Rome; Lyrics: Harold Rome; Orchestrations: Sid Ramin; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Lehman Engel; Cast: Lillian Roth, Jack Kruschen (Maurice Pulvermacher), Harold Lang (Teddy Asch), Elliott Gould (Harry Bogen), Sheree North (Martha Mills), Barbara Monte (Mitzi), William Reilly (Mario), Edward Verso (Eddie), Marilyn Cooper (Ruthie Rivkin), Bambi Linn (Blanche Bushkin), Ken LeRoy (Meyer Bushkin), Barbra Streisand (Miss Marmelstein), Steve Curry (Sheldon Bushkin), James Hickman (Tootsie Maltz), Luba Lisa (Manette), Wilma Curley (Gail), Pat Turner (Miss Springer); Album Producer: Goddard Lieberson; Engineers: Fred Plaut, Ed Michalski; CD Engineers: John Arrias, Bernie Grundman.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:28) Orchestra; 2 I'm Not A Well Man (2:21) Jack Kruschen, Barbra Streisand; 3 The Way Things Are (1:42) Elliott Gould; 4 When Gemini Meets Capricorn (2:49) Marilyn Cooper, Elliott Gould; 5 Momma, Momma, Momma (2:57) Elliott Gould, Lillian Roth; 6 The Sound Of Money (4:16) Sheree North, Elliott Gould, Barbara Monte, William Reilly, Edward Verso; 7 Too Soon (3:05) Lillian Roth; 8 The Family Way (3:09) Lillian Roth, Elliott Gould, Marilyn Cooper, Harold Lang, Bambi Linn, Ken LeRoy; 9 Who Knows? (3:42) Marilyn Cooper; 10 Ballad Of The Garment Trade (3:25) Barbra Streisand, Marilyn Cooper, Bambi Linn, Elliott Gould, Harold Lang, Ken LeRoy; 11 Have I Told You Lately? (3:11) Ken LeRoy, Bambi Linn; 12 A Gift Today (3:56) Elliott Gould, Lillian Roth, Ken LeRoy, Marilyn Cooper; 13 Miss Marmelstein (3:22) Barbra Streisand; 14 A Funny Thing Happened (2:39) Marilyn Cooper, Elliott Gould; 15 What's In It For Me? (1:57) Harold Lang; 16 East A Little Something (2:10) Lillian Roth; 17 What Are They Doing To Us? (7:12) Barbra Streisand, Kelly Brown, James Hickman, Luba Lisa, William Curley, Pat Turner.

Review: Today, Harold Rome's I Can Get It For You Wholesale is best remembered as the musical which launched the career of Barbra Streisand, whose comical performance as Miss Marmelstein (and performance of the song by that title) literally stopped the show. Adapted by Jerome Weidman from his own novel, with songs by Harold Rome, the musical is set in the 1930s and focuses on New York's garment industry. Gloomy and unnecessarily hard-edged, at least for a musical, it follows the rise and fall of a small-time entrepreneur, played by Elliott Gould, determined to succeed by whatever means necessary but unable to reach his goals, simply because he's not cut out for success. Matching the tones of the book, Harold Rome wrote a somber score in which few brighter moments emerged, one of them being the solo by Barbra Streisand. Following its premiere on March 22, 1962, the show had a run of 300 performances.

I Do! I Do!

1966, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production I Do! I Do!, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Harvey Schmidt; Lyrics: Tom Jones; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Musical Direction: John Lesko; Cast: Mary Martin (She), Robert Preston (He); Album Producer: Andy Wiswell; Engineer: Ernie Oelrich; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: 1 All The Dearly Beloved/Together Forever/I Do! I Do! (5:55) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 2 Goodnight (2:13) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 3 I Love My Wife (2:00) Robert Preston; 4 Something Has Happened (1:39) Mary Martin; 5 My Cup Runneth Over (2:10) Mary Mary, Robert Preston; 6 Love Isn't Everything (3:25) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 7 Nobody's Perfect (5:48) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 8 A Well Known Fact (2:37) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 9 Flaming Agnes (3:42) Mary Martin; 10 The Honeymoon Is Over (1:55) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 11 Where Are The Snows? (2:39) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 12 When The Kids Get Married (2:10) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 13 The Father Of The Bride (2:56) Robert Preston; 14 What Is A Woman? (3:05) Mary Martin; 15 Someone Needs Me (1:49) Mary Martin; 16 Roll Up The Ribbons (1:23) Mary Martin, Robert Preston; 17 This House (1:53) Mary Martin, Robert Preston.

Review: A delightful two-character musical, based on Jan de Hartog's "The Fourposter," I Do! I Do! brought together Mary Martin and Robert Preston as a couple whose married life becomes the focus of the show. The show follows them from their honeymoon to their golden old age, in an existence that encompasses 50 years, and the usual problems found in long-term relationships, from occasional infidelities, to raising children, to little difficulties and great joys. What set the show apart from other musicals is the fact that it was a traditional Broadway show played out on a small scale, which, in addition to involving only its two principals, was entirely set in the same room in their apartment. Smartly staged by Gower Champion, and boasting flavorful songs by Tom Jones and Harvey Schmidt (among which "My Cup Runneth Over" became a major hit), I Do! I Do! opened on December 5, 1966, and closed after 560 performances. The passing years have not diminished the glow left by the show nor the initial impression gathered from the original cast album of a trifle, but a most engaging one.

Into the Woods

1987, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Into the Woods, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Sondheim; Lyrics: Stephen Sondheim; Orchestrations: Jonathan Tunick; Musical Direction: Paul Gemignani; Cast: Bernadette Peters (Witch), Joanna Gleason (Baker's Wife), Chip Zien (Baker), Tom Aldredge (Narrator), Robert Westenberg (Wolf/Cinderella's Prince), Kim Crosby (Cinderella), Ben Wright (Jack), Kay McClelland (Florinda), Lauren Mitchell (Lucinda), Danielle Ferland (Little Red Riding Hood), Pamela Winslow (Rapunzel), Chuck Wagner (Rapunzel's Prince), Merle Louise (Cinderella's Mother/Giant), Maureen Davis (Sleeping Beauty), Jean Kelly (Snow White); Album Producer: Jay David Saks; Engineers: Paul Goodman, Anthony Salvatore.

Selections: 1 Prologue: Into The Woods (11:55) Tom Aldredge; 2 Cinderella At The Grave (1:14) Kim Crosby, Merle Louise; 3 Hello, Little Girl (2:32) Robert Westenberg, Danielle Ferland; 4 I Guess This Is Goodbye/ Maybe They're Magic (2:02) Ben Wright, Joanna Gleason, Chip Zien; 5 I Know Things Now (1:48) Danielle Ferland; 6 A Very Nice Prince/First Midnight/ Giants In The Sky (5:18) Kim Crosby, Joanna Gleason, Ben Wright; 7 Agony (2:36) Robert Westenberg, Chuck Wagner; 8 It Takes Two (2:47) Chip Zien, Joanna Gleason; 9 Stay With Me (2:40) Bernadette Peters, Pamela Winslow; 10 On The Steps Of The Palace (2:34) Kim Crosby; 11 Ever After (2:19) Tom Aldredge; 12 Act II Prologue: So Happy (3:48) Tom Aldredge; 13 Agony (2:15) Robert Westenberg, Chuck Wagner; 14 Lament (2:03) Bernadette Peters; 15 Any Moment/Moments In The Woods (4:56) Robert Westenberg, Joanna Gleason; 16 Your Fault/Last Midnight (4:43) Chip Zien, Ben Wright, Danielle Ferland, Bernadette Peters, Kim Crosby; 17 No More (4:11) Chip Zien, Tom Aldredge; 18 No One Is Alone (3:44) Kim Crosby, Danielle Ferland, Ben Wright, Chip Zien; 19 Finale: Children Will Listen (5:09) Bernadette Peters.

Review: In one of his most popularly accessible works, Stephen Sondheim, with the help of James Lapine, took several well-known fairy tales (Jack and the Beanstalk, Rapunzel, Cinderella, Little Red Riding Hood) and collapsed them into a genuinely inventive musical, Into the Woods, which opened November 5, 1987. In the show he not only gently pokes fun at the tales and their various characters, but uses them to web together a single ending where modern societal values and community responsibilities receive a serious thrashing. Clearly divided into two distinct parts (like his previous offering, Sunday in the Park with George), the show first presents its various characters, spinning their individual tales until they finally mesh into one long narrative in which, for instance, the Princes in "Cinderella" and "Rapunzel" share their own doubts about the outcome of their respective fairy tales ("Agony"). The moral of the story, delivered by The Witch, played by Bernadette Peters, is that "Children Will Listen," and that it is up to their parents to teach them the values by which they should be living. Though occasionally muddled by too much rhetoric, it was a brilliant concept which can be enjoyed today in this original cast album, and in a laserdisc edition of the show.

Irene

1992, Sony Broadway; from the Broadway revival Irene, 1973.

Selections: 1 Overture (5:36) Orchestra, Jeanne Lehman, Penny Worth, Meg Scanlon; 2 The World Must Be Bigger Than An Avenue (2:17) Debbie Reynolds; 3 What Do You Want To Make Those Eyes At Me For? (2:12) Chorus; 4 The Family Tree (1:57) Ruth Warrick; 5 Alice Blue Gown (3:02) Debbie Reynolds; 6 They Go Wild, Simply Wild, Over Me (2:20) George S. Irving; 7 An Irish Girl (4:02) Debbie Reynolds; 8 Mother, Angel, Darling (3:34) Debbie Reynolds, Patsy Kelly; 9 The Riviera Rage (1:55) Orchestra; 10 I'm Always Chasing Rainbows (3:48)

Debbie Reynolds; 11 The Last Part Of Ev'ry Party (2:41) Chorus; 12 We're Getting Away With It (1:35) Carmen Alvarez, Janie Sell, George S. Irving, Ted Pugh; 13 Irene (4:17) Monte Markham; 14 The Great Lover Tango (3:11) Monte Markham, Carmen Alvarez, Janie Sell; 15 You Made Me Love You (2:12) Monte Markham, Debbie Reynolds; 16 You Made Me Love You (reprise)(1:16) Patsy Kelly, George S. Irving; 17 Finale (1:48) Monte Markham, Debbie Reynolds.

Review: Despite the presence of Debbie Reynolds, radiant in the title role, the 1974 revival of Irene had little to offer, particularly as an old-fashioned, glamorous musical in an era that had turned its back on glories of the past. No doubt inspired by the success of the much better No No Nanette a couple of seasons before, Irene relied too heavily on the status of its star (eventually replaced by another screen luminary, Jane Powell), and too little on the originality of a revamped book, or on a score which, with the exception of "Alice Blue Gown," "I'm Always Chasing Rainbows" (both showstoppers for Debbie Reynolds) and George S. Irving's delightful rendition of "They Go Wild, Simply Wild, Over Me," had not much else to offer to starving audiences. Further compounding the problems the show experienced, Monte Markham, as Irene's romantic interest, didn't have the necessary chemistry. Nonetheless, the show held on for 605 performances.

Irma La Douce

1991, Sony Broadway; from the Broadway production Irma La Douce, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Marguerite Monnot; Lyrics: Julian More, David Heneker, Monty Norman; Orchestrations: Andre Popp, Robert Ginzler; Vocal Arrangements: Bert Waller, Stanley Lebowsky; Dance Music: John Kander; Musical Direction: Stanley Lebowsky; Cast: Elizabeth Seal (Irma-la-Douce), Keith Mitchell (Nestor-le-Fripe), Clive Revill (Bob-le-Hotu), Stuart Damon (Frangipane), Fred Gwynne (Polyte-le-Mou), George S. Irving (Police Inspector), Zack Matalon (Jojo-les-Yeux-Sales), Aric Lavie (Roberto-les-Diams), Osborne Smith (Persil-le-Noir), and Rudy Tronto, George Del Monte; Album Producer: Teo Macero; Engineers: Fred Plaut, Bud Graham; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Tim Tiedemann.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:15) Orchestra; 2 Valse Milieu (3:26) Clive Revill, Elizabeth Seal; 3 Sons Of France (2:09) Clive Revill, Zack Matalon, Aric Lavie, Osborn Smith, Stuart Damon, Fred Gwynne, George S. Irving; 4 The Bridge Of Caulaincourt (1:24) Elizabeth Seal, Keith Mitchell; 5 Our Language Of Love (2:33) Elizabeth Seal, Keith Mitchell; 6 She's Got The Lot (1:44) George S. Irving; 7 Dis-donc, Dis-donc (4:37) Elizabeth Seal; 8 Le Grisbi Is Le Root Of Le Evil In Man (2:17) Keith Mitchell, Clive Revill, Zack Matalon, Aric Lavie, Osborne Smith, Stuart Damon; 9 The Wreck Of A Meck (2:22) Keith Mitchell; 10 That's A Crime (1:58) Clive Revill; 11 From A Prison Cell (3:16) Keith Mitchell, Zack Matalon, Aric Lavie, Osborne Smith, Stuart Damon; 12 Irma-la-Douce (4:23) Elizabeth Seal; 13 There Is Only One Paris For That (6:29) Keith Mitchell; 14 But (2:39) Keith Mitchell, George S. Irving, Rudy Tronto, George del Monte, Fred Gwynne; 15 Christmas Child (1:44) Company.

Review: Based on a charming French musical about a "poule," her "mec" and the various low-life denizens of a "typical" Parisian neighborhood near Pigalle, the red light district in the French capital, Irma La Douce transcended its local origins, and became a resounding hit on Broadway, where it opened on September 29, 1960. Elizabeth Seal, Keith Mitchell, and Clive Revill reprised the roles they had initially created in London. Also in the cast were Elliott Gould and Fred Gwynne (who went on to achieve greater popularity on television as Herman Munster). Minus its songs, the story provided the basis for a screen version starring Shirley MacLaine and Jack Lemmon.

It's Always Fair Weather

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the screen musical It's Always Fair Weather, M-G-M, 1955.

Album Notes: Music: Andre Previn; Lyrics: Betty Comden and Adolph Green; Orchestrations: Andre Previn; Vocal Arrangements: Robert Tucker, Jeff Alexander; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Andre Previn; Cast: Gene Kelly (Ted Riley), Dan Dailey (Doug Hallerton), Cyd Charisse (Jackie Leighton), Michael Kidd (Angie Valentine), Dolores Gray (Madeline Bradbille), Lou Lubin (Fight Manager), David Burns (Tim); CD Producer: Dan Rivard; Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:04) Orchestra; 2 March, March (1:21) Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, Jud Conlin; 3 The Binge (5:07) Orchestra; 4 The Time For Parting (2:01) Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, Jud Conlin; 5 10-Year Montage (2:18) Orchestra; 6 The Blue Danube (Why Are We Here)(2:30) Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, Jud Conlin; 7 Music Is Better Than Words (2:10) Dolores Gray; 8 Stillman's Gym (2:10) Lou Lubin; 9 Baby You Knock Me Out (2:40) Carole Richards, Lou Lubin; 10 The Ad Men (:48) Dan Dailey, Paul Maxey; 11 Once Upon A Time (3:33) Gene Kelly, Dan Dailey, Jud Conlin; 12 Situation-Wide (2:49) Dan Dailey; 13 The Chase (1:04) Orchestra; 14 I Like Myself (4:10) Gene Kelly; 15 Klenzrite (1:34) Dolores Gray; 16 Finale: The Time For Parting (1:46) David Burns.

Review: A daring, unconventional musical, It's Always Fair Weather tells about three former Army buddies who get back together ten years later, only to realize that they have changed, and that, in fact, the bonds that once united them had dissipated to such extent that they really no longer like each other. Initially meant to be a "sequel" to On The Town, the new musical displayed a more cynical edge than its exuberant predecessor, and because of it didn't get the enthusiastic audience response its creators had anticipated. Today, however, in view of the changes that have happened in our society, it reveals itself more pungent and truthful than ever before, and where On the Town has remained an old-fashioned musical which belongs to the very era it was created, It's Always Fair Weather proves that it may, indeed, have been well ahead of its time.

Jamaica

1957, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Jamaica, 1957.

Album Notes: Music: Harold Arlen; Lyrics: E.Y. Harburg, Fred Saidy; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Musical Direction: Lehman Engel, Neal Hefti; Cast: Lena Horne (Savannah), Ricardo Montalban (Koli), Josephine Premice (Ginger), Ossie Davis (Cicero), Adelaide Hall (Grandma Obeah), Augustine Rios (Quico); Album Producer: Dick Peirce; CD Producer: Bill Rosenfield; Engineer: Jay Newland.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:47) Orchestra; 2 Savannah (1:41) Ricardo Montaban; 3 Savannah's Wedding Day (3:55) Adelaide Hall, Augustine Rios; 4 Pretty To Walk With (2:51) Lena Horne; 5 Push de Button (3:34) Lena Horne; 6 Incompatibility (2:52) Ricardo Montalban, Augustine Rios; 7 Little Biscuit (3:01) Josephine Premice, Ossie Davis; 8 Cocoanut Sweet (2:27) Lena Horne; 9 Pity The Sunset (2:14) Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban; 10 Yankee Dollar (2:27) Josephine Premice; 11 What Good Does It Do (2:23) Josephine Premice, Ricardo Montalban, Ossie Davis, Augustine Rios; 12 Monkey In The Mango Tree (3:08) Ricardo Montalban; 13 Take It Slow, Joe (2:36) Lena Horne; 14 Ain't It de Truth (4:03) Lena Horne; 15 Leave de Atom Alone (3:32) Josephine Premice; 16 For Every Fish (2:00) Adelaide Hall; 17 I Don't Think I'll End It All Today (3:15) Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban; 18 Napoleon (3:55) Lena Horne; 19 Savannah (finale)(1:08) Lena Horne, Ricardo Montalban.

Review: Harold Arlen took another foray into the Caribbean culture when he wrote the songs for Jamaica. Despite a weak story, the show enjoyed a run of 558 performances following its opening on October 31, 1957, thanks largely to the radiant presence of Lena Horne in the cast. Set on the mythical Pigeon Island, it deals with a simple fisherman (Ricardo Montalban) who wants nothing more than a quiet and easy life on his island, and the girl he loves, Savannah (Lena Horne), who only dreams of going to that other paradise, Manhattan. Co-starring Josephine Premice, Ossie Davis, Adelaide Hall, and a young dancer by the name of Alvin Ailey, Jamaica provides its star with many flavorful numbers which put her stylish delivery to the test, and which she turned into as many show-stopping moments, including "Push De Button," in which she extolled the merits of living in her mechanized dream world, "Ain't It De Truth," and "Napoleon."

Jekyll & Hyde

Jekyll & Hyde

1990, RCA Victor Records; from the production Jekyll & Hyde, 1990.

Review: On its way to becoming a Broadway show, Jekyll & Hyde underwent several transformations, documented by the three recordings here. The first, from 1990, was the bare-skin score with Colm Wilkinson and Linda Eder both portraying two characters in the show's first incarnation, an elaborate studio cast recording made in London. While necessarily incomplete, it gives a fair notion of the musical in its embryonic form, and is, in this respect, an interesting complement to the other two.

The second recording, made shortly after the show received its world premiere in Houston, in 1994, despite its apparent completeness, is still a work in progress. Many new songs have been added, and some have shifted from one character to another. Linda Eder's portrayal as the woman of easy virtue with whom Jekyll falls in love and whom Hyde eventually kills, has acquired a better sheen, and the overall impression is that the show is finally getting a much stronger identity than it had initially.

Following two years on the road, during which the musical was further honed and refined, Jekyll & Hyde finally opened on Broadway on April 28, 1997, with the third recording, the official cast album, reflecting the alterations and additional changes it went through during this period. More defined than in its previous incarnations, but still lacking the sense of humor and wicked fun (think Sweeney Todd) which might have made it more acceptable as a strong vehicle (something more apparent in the previous recording in which a couple of songs, displaying a sharper edge, were subsequently eliminated), it gets an inspiring reading with Robert Cuccioli a sexy, mesmerizing Jekyll (and Hyde), and Eder still the focus of his interest.

Jelly's Last Jam

1992, Mercury Records; from the Broadway production Jelly's Last Jam, 1992.

Selections: 1 Prologue (1:11) Keith David; 2 The Jam (3:58) Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 3 In My Day (3:39) Gregory Hines, Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 4 The Creole Way (1:39) Savion Glover; 5 The Whole World's Waitin' To Sing Your Song (4:30) Gregory Hines, Savion Glover; 6 Michigan Water (5:43) Mary Bond Davis, Ruben Santiago-Hudson; 7 The Banishment (4:13) Ann Duquesnay, Savion Glover, Gregory Hines; 8 Somethin' More (5:00) Gregory Hines, Stanley Wayne Mathis, Keith David, Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 9 That's How You Jazz (6:47) Gregory Hines, Stanley Wayne Mathis; 10 The Chicago Strut (3:24) Gregory Hines, Keith David, Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 11 Play The Music For Me (3:12) Tonya Pinkins; 12

Lovin's Is A Lowdown Blues (6:32) Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 13 Doctor Jazz (2:40) Gregory Hines; 14 Good Ole New York (1:35) Keith David, Gregory Hines, Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 15 Too Late, Daddy (3:28) Gregory Hines; 16 That's The Way We Do Things In New York (3:11) Gregory Hines, Gordon Joseph Weiss, Don Johansen; 17 Good Ole New York (reprise)(2:25)Ensemble; 18 Last Chance Blues (4:17) Gregory Hines, Tonya Pinkins; 19 The Last Chance (2:02) Keith David, Mamie Duncan-Gibbs, Stephanie Pope, Allison Williams; 20 The Last Rites (1:45) Company; 21 Creole Boy (3:14) Gregory Hines; 22 Finale: We Are The Rhythms That Color Your Songs (2:39) Company.

Review: A celebration of the music of Jelly Roll Morton, the "inventor" of jazz, Jelly's Last Jam owed much of its vitality and success to Gregory Hines's portrayal of Morton, and the flavorful way the show itself is put together. The show is not so much as a straight dramatic presentation of the composer's life, but a sort of parable in which various setpieces provide the impetus and background for the musical numbers. To be sure, much of the show's impact came from its visual flair, so much so in fact that the cast album recording, limited as it is, fails to convey much of the excitement that was on display on stage. Still, it brought together a cohesive group of vastly talented performers around Hines, notably Tonya Pinkins, a revelation in the show, Savion Glover, Anne Duquesnay, and Keith David, who, as a master of ceremony in top hat and tails surrounded by a trio of attractive lovebirds, presided over the proceedings.

Review: It's interesting to note that within the same year, two musicals, Godspell and Jesus Christ Superstar, both chronicling the last seven days of Christ, opened in New York. Unlike its more modest predecessor, however, Jesus Christ Superstar came on the heels of a gold studio recording, made the year before, and a large amount of publicity, mostly created by religious groups who resented the idea of seeing Christ portrayed as a rock'n'roll star, and Herod as a buffoon prancing the stage on mod shoes with platform heels.

The studio cast album, listed here since the original Broadway cast album was never reissued on CD by MCA, presents the score Andrew Lloyd Webber and Tim Rice wrote for this show. In it, one song, "I Don't Know How to Love Him," achieved international status as a major hit, but the score itself is not bereft of other attractive moments.

Since bigger on the screen usually doesn't mean better, it is a pleasant surprise to note that the soundtrack album, also on MCA, and also a 2-CD set, is almost as flavorful and enjoyable as the studio cast album. Only the principals have changed, though Yvonne Elliman, who made a career out of portraying Mary Magdalene, is back to sing her hit song.

Review: A Biblical tale that refuses to take its subject seriously, Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat began as a modest, 15-minute piece for a school boys choir, and told the story of Joseph, sold to slavery by his eleven brothers, who ends up as an adviser to Pharaoh, and saves Egypt from a great famine. Expanded first to a full 90 minutes, then to a two-hour presentation, it first came to Broadway on January 27, 1982, where it settled for a run of 747 performances. It returned more recently, on November 10, 1993, for another run of 223 performances. What makes the musical so totally delightful is the impish, almost sophomoric way it approaches its story: the score, a blend of rock'n'roll, calypso, big band numbers, is a virtual romp from beginning to end. The three recordings listed above document the show at various stages in its development, with the earliest one presenting a slightly expanded version from the original concept, involving a lot of school children, and individual performers (including Tim Rice) in a fun recording of the score.

The Chrysalis recording is the cast album of the 1982 Broadway presentation, with Laurie Beechman, a New York favorite, in the crucial role as the Narrator.

The last recording, on Polydor, is the most recent cast album from the 1993 Broadway revival, with Michael Damian as Joseph and Kelli Rabke as the Narrator. It is by far the most satisfying, ending on a nine-minute megamix which reprises many of the songs in the score, performed by the entire company in what has to be the most exhilarating number of any modern-day Broadway show. The same recording, incidentally, with minor variations, was also released on two different occsions, with Jason Donovan in one cast, and Donny Osmond, star of the Canadian production, in the other. Whichever you pick, you cannot go wrong.

The Jungle Book

1990, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature The Jungle Book, Walt Disney Pictures, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: George Bruns; Songs: Richard M. Sherman, Robert B. Sherman; Orchestrations: Walter Sheets; Music Editor: Evelyn Kennedy; Cast: Phil Harris (Baloo The Bear), Sebastian Cabot (Bagheera The Panther), Louis Prima (King Louie Of The Apes), George Sanders (Shere Khan, The Tiger), Sterling Holloway (Kaa, The Snake), J. Pat O'Malley (Colonel Hahti, The Elephant), Bruce Reitherman (Mowgli), Chad Stuart, Lord Tim Hudson (Vultures), John Abbott, Ben Wright (Wolves), Darleen Carr (Girl), Verna Felton, Clint Howard (Elephants); Album Producers: Randy Thornton, Ted Kryczko; Engineer: Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:40); 2 Baby (2:09); 3 Colonel Hahti's March (2:30) J. Pat O' Malley, Verna Felton, Clint Howard; 4 The Bare Necessities (T. Gilkyson)(4:50) Phil Harris; 5 I Wan'na Be Like You (4:01) Louis Prima, Phil Harris; 6 Monkey Chase (1:04); 7 Tell Him (2:13); 8 Colonel Hahti's March (reprise)(1:59) J. Pat O' Malley, Verna Felton, Clint Howard, Bruce Reitherman; 9 Jungle Beat (1:20); 10 Trust In Me (2:49) Sterling Holloway; 11 Watch'a Wanna Do (3:07); 12 That's What Friends Are For (2:03) Chad Stuart, Lord Tim Hudson; 13 Tiger Fight (2:41); 14 Poor Bear (1:05); 15 My Own Home (3:29) Darleen Carr; 16 The Bare Necessities (reprise)(:51) Phil Harris, Sebastian Cabot; 17 Sherman Brothers Interview (16:54).

Review: Walt Disney's The Jungle Book needs little introduction. Who among us hasn't experienced the delight of Disney's animated feature, based upon Rudyard Kipling's "Mowgli" stories?

All 16 songs written for the film are here, including "Colonel Hathi's March," "The Bare Necessities," and "I Wan'na Be Like You," plus a recorded interview with songwriters Robert and Richard Sherman (which includes rare demos, and two musical numbers from the album More Jungle Book: "Baloo's Blues" and "It's a Kick"). Particularly fun are Louis Prima's "monkeying" around on "I Wan'na Be Like You," and the infectious spontaneity of the Academy Award nominated song, "The Bare Necessities."

The original stereo film recordings are good, save for a small amount of hiss that accompanies most recordings of this vintage.

Review: Following the huge success of South Pacific two years before, much was expected from Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II. The King and I didn't disappoint. Based on the book by Margaret Landon's novel, "Anna and the King of Siam," already the source for a 1946 non-musical film starring Rex Harrison and Irene Dunne, the musical was devised as a vehicle for Gertrude Lawrence, who had first suggested it to Rodgers and Hammerstein. The actress portrayed Anna Leonowens, the English teacher who goes to Siam in the 1860s to tutor the royal children. Contrasting the civilized Occidental values with the less sophisticated traditions of the Asian country, The King and I gained greater emotional depth when Oscar Hammerstein introduced a secondary romantic plot between Tuptim, a slave girl offered to the King by the Prince of Burma, and Lun Tha, who has been chosen to escort her to Siam. In a particularly clever parallel, Rodgers and Hammerstein, along with choreographer Jerome Robbins, created a ballet adaptation of Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin." This device enabled them to further contrast, in song and dances, the differences between East and West. The show, which opened on March 29, 1951, and enjoyed a run of 1,246 performances, made a star of Yul Brynner, as the King, so much so in fact that focus in subsequent revivals shifted from Anna to the King, a trend eventually reversed in the 1996 Broadway production.

Of the various recordings listed above, the original cast album, made in 1951, suffers the most if only because it offers less selections from the profuse score, and is recorded in mono. However, it has the advantage of starring Gertrude Lawrence, radiant in her last stage role, and the budding Yul Brynner in the role that launched his international career.

The 1956 soundtrack album, besides having an incredibly sumptuous sound, was for many years the best recording available. Boasting a new overture orchestrated by Alfred Newman, it starred Brynner, properly regal as the King, and Deborah Kerr (dubbed by Marni Nixon) as Anna, with Rita Moreno as Tuptim. While the soundtrack focuses on the major musical numbers, it is not as complete as the extended version available with the deluxe laserdisc edition of the film, which includes many instrumentals and reprises.

In 1977, Yul Brynner returned to Broadway in the first of several revivals, in which he reprised the role of the King. The RCA Victor recording documents that revival, with a score that includes a lot of music previously unavailable. Though the revival was clearly dominated by Brynner, on the CD the balance between the various participants is better achieved, with the great sonics providing one of the best recordings of that score available up to that point.

With the focus back on Anna Leonowens, glowingly portrayed by Donna Murphy in the 1996 revival, the most recent cast album is the one to have. It features equally strong performances by Lou Diamond Phillips as the King, Taewon Kim as Lady Thiang, the King's first wife, Jose Llana as Lun Tha, and Joohee Choi as Tuptim, and it restores moments from the score ("Procession of the White Elephant"), not available elsewhere. However, like all other recordings, it fails to include the "Little House Of Uncle Thomas" ballet, which, so far, can only be found on the Broadway cast recording of the revue Jerome Robbins' Broadway (q.v.).

PRINCE

After the enigmatic multi-instrumentalist bandleader and singer-songwriter Prince signed a lucrative record deal in 1993, he promptly announced his retirement and changed his name to an unpronounceable symbol. It later became clear that this "retirement" applied only to the now-defunct Prince and not to the artist reborn as the symbol.

While he was Prince, he was one of the most consistent hitmakers in contemporary music, fusing soul, funk, rock, and power pop into a distinctive, exuberant brew. He displayed an astounding versatility, both in the studio and onstage.

By 1978 Prince had released his debut "For You," which featured the single "Soft and Wet." Working with his band the Revolution, Prince developed his trademark mix of funk workouts, soul balladry, and metallic guitar wailing on the subsequent efforts "Prince," "Dirty Mind," and "Controversy." He made his first huge splash with "1999," an ambitious double-length recording that exploded thanks to the apocalyptic dance music of the title track and the crossover sensation "Little Red Corvette." The album remained on the charts for two years, by which time the film and album Purple Rain had established Prince as one of pop's megastars.

Although the movie Purple Rain—conceived by and starring Prince—was poorly reviewed, it earned nearly ten times what it cost to make. The soundtrack was a sensation and featured both his most daring and his most commercially successful work to date. Featuring the single "When Doves Cry" and the barnburning "Let's Go Crazy," as well as the shimmering balladry of the tile song, the collection earned Prince an Academy Award for best original song score.

Selections: 1 Overture (5:11); 2 Sands Of Time (2:03) Rudy Vejar & Muezzins; 3 Rhymes Have I (2:32) Alfred Drake, Lee Venora; 4 Fate (2:09) Alfred Drake; 5 Not Since Nineveh (3:08) Anne Jeffreys, Henry Calvin; 6 Baubles, Bangles And Beads (2:58) Lee Venora; 7 Stranger In Paradise (4:07) Lee Venora, Richard Banke; 8 He's In Love (2:25) Albert Toigo; 9 Gesticulate (4:20) Alfred Drake, Anne Jeffreys, Henry Calvin; 10 Bored (2:53) Alfred Drake, Anne Jeffreys; 11 Night Of My Nights (3:16) Richard Banke; 12 Was I Wazir? Review:

A "musical Arabian Night" solidly rooted in the traditions of the American theatre, Kismet, based on a 1911 play by Edward Knoblock, was also the source for two film versions, including one starring Marlene Dietrich and Ronald Coleman. It exhibited an Oriental lushness that won over critics and audiences when it opened on Broadway on December 3, 1953. Many of the musical delights came from Robert Wright and George Forrest's smart adaptations of themes by Alexander Borodin to create their songs for this story. The musical is about an impertinent poet and beggar in ancient Baghdad, who, through his wile and guile, becomes emir of the city overnight (literally, since the action of the musical occurs over a 24-hour period), while his daughter, the lovely Marsinah, marries the Caliph, who has fallen in love with her.

Besides the settings that evoked the Orient with their heavy brocades and colorful designs, audiences were also treated to a legendary, grander-than-life portrayal by Alfred Drake as Hajj, the poet, prancing around the stage with such panache and gusto that the part became forever identified with him. While the show seemed like a sure-fire winner, its opening during a newspaper strike which prevented New York audiences from knowing what was happening around town threatened its very existence for a while. It was saved by Tony Bennett's rendering of the song "Stranger In Paradise," a huge radio hit at the time, which prompted many listeners to go and see for themselves what the show was all about. This ensured its success in the first crucial weeks, and guaranteed a long run of 583 performances afterwards. While the original cast album, in mono, is not up to today's digital standards, it is a resonant memento of the show as it was heard when it first opened, with Doretta Morrow, Joan Diener and Richard Kiley, excellent as Marsinah, Lalume (the Wazir's sexy wife, who takes a shine to Hajj), and the Caliph, respectively. Also in the cast was a muscular young man named Steve Reeves. The musical won several Tony Awards that season, including one for Best Musical, and another for Alfred Drake.

In 1955, more luscious and opulent than ever, it exploded on the big screen in a visually stunning film version that starred Howard Keel as Hajj, Ann Blyth as Marsinah, Dolores Gray as Lalume, and Vic Damone as the Caliph. It retained the original score almost intact, including "Baubles, Bangles And Beads," "And This Is My Beloved," and, of course, "Stranger In Paradise." The deluxe Rhino recording, complete with outtakes, instrumental ballets and songs previously unreleased, also presents the soundtrack in full stereo for the first time.

Alfred Drake returned to the role in a great revival in 1965, in which he starred opposite Anne Jeffreys as Lalume, Lee Venora as Marsinah, and Richard Banke as the Caliph, with Henry Calvin reprising the role of the Wazir he had created in 1953. This show, which had a limited run over the summer, is documented in the RCA Victor recording.

On March 1, 1978, the show returned to Broadway in a revival retitled Timbuktu!, noted for the fact that it was mostly a grandiose fashion extravaganza designed by Geoffrey Holder. Somewhat incidentally, it starred Eartha Kitt and Melba Moore, and had a run of 243 performances.

Review: A brilliant adaptation of William Shakespeare's The Taming of the Shrew, with a superb score by Cole Porter, Kiss Me, Kate brought the audience to its feet when it opened on December 30, 1948, before settling for a long run of 1,077 performances.

The show starred Alfred Drake as Fred Graham, an egocentric director who portrays Petruchio in a revival of "The Taming of the Shrew," and Patricia Morison as Lili Vanessi, Fred's tempestuous ex-wife, also cast as Katharina in the play-within-the-musical. Kiss Me, Kate had been suggested to Bella and Samuel Spewack, authors of the libretto, by the celebrated backstage feuds between real-life husband and wife thespians Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne. With a significant assist from Cole Porter, writing his best score for this occasion, the musical follows the touring actors, while they play Shakespeare on stage, and continue to battle or make up backstage. Adding spice to the plot, the Spewacks imagine an idyll between Fred and his second leading lady, Lois Lane, who is more interested in another actor, Bill Calhoun.

Commenting on the action, and sometimes punctuating it with clever lyrics, Porter wrote songs that have endured to this day. Many of those songs have passed into the language as colloquialisms, including "Another Op'nin', Another Show," "Tom, Dick or Harry," "Too Darn Hot," "Were Thine That Special Face," "Wunderbar," a mock Tyrolian duet, "I've Come To Wive It Wealthily In Padua," and "Brush Up Your Shakespeare," in which the composer amusingly used malapropisms to spoof those whose ignorance of the English language sometimes leads to confusing expressions.

Kiss Me, Kate won a Tony as Best Musical that season, and also earned awards for its authors and composer, among others. Its cast recording, a consistent best-seller in the Columbia catalogue, is a wonderful memento from that glittering show.

With the advent of stereo in the late fifties, record companies looked for new ways to expand their list of available titles. Because of this, in 1959, Capitol Records was successful in bringing together the four leads—Alfred Drake, Patricia Morison, Lisa Kirk and Harold Lang—from the original Broadway cast of a decade earlier, to re-record the songs from the show under the direction of the original musical director, Pembroke Davenport. The resulting album, recorded in aggressive two-channel sound, with a lot of reverb, is still a lot of fun to listen to, and proves that the four performers were still in marvelous voice.

The Rhino recording, again containing much material which is available here for the first time, documents the screen version made by M-G-M in 1953, with Howard Keel and Kathryn Grayson giving sensational portrayals as Fred and Lili, and Ann Miller incandescent as Lois, whose "Too Darn Hot" was a show-stopper in the film, a big CinemaScope, 3-D production.

Review: Turning Manuel Puig' unremittingly somber novel, Kiss of the Spider Woman, about inmates in a South American prison dreaming about an unsubstantial movie star, into a musical might have seemed at first a rather peculiar idea. However, Terrence McNally, John Kander and Fred Ebb combined their efforts to meet the challenge head-on, and managed to create a show that was vibrantly alive and original, while remaining faithful to the spirit of the original. Having not one but two cast albums of the same Broadway production might prove more than an embarrassment of riches – a bit of an overkill. Yet, each recording in its own way contributes a different aspect of the musical, with Chita Rivera and Vanessa Williams succeeding in creating portrayals that are sometimes at odds with each other, while at other times complement each other.

One's decision about opting to listen to one or the other (or both) will largely depend on what one expects from an original cast album. By focusing only on the musical numbers, the Chita Rivera-starrer provides an accurate vision of the score itself. The Vanessa Williams recording, by incorporating bits of spoken dialogue to introduce the songs, gives a better idea of the role played by the musical numbers within the greater framework of the play. Ultimately, both are equally successful and equally enjoyable.

La Cage Aux Folles

Review: It probably took daring to bring to the musical stage, particularly on Broadway where traditions run high, a show that centered around the love relationship between two men, Georges, owner of a gay club known as "La Cage aux folles," and Albin, who, as Zaza, headlines the revue presented at the club, in which all the performers are boys dressed as girls. It might have helped that the show is set on the French Riviera, where, as we know, spirits are generally much looser than they are in America, but the fact of the matter is that La Cage Aux Folles is an old-fashioned Broadway musical in the best sense of the word, with at its core a perfectly standard love affair. The rest of the plot, loosely based on the French stage play by Jean Poiret (also the source for the film of the same name, and the more recent remake titled The Birdcage) involved the various shenanigans to which Georges and Albin were subjected when Georges' son (an accident!) decides he wants to marry the daughter of a champion of morality, who insists on meeting his future son-in-law's relatives. With a brilliant score by Jerry Herman (which included such show-stopping numbers as "Song on the Sand," "The Best of Times," "With Anne on My Arm," and the defiant anthem "I Am What I Am"), the musical opened to rave reviews on August 21, 1983, for a run of 1,176 performances.

Review: George and Ira Gershwin made their first splash on Broadway with Lady, Be Good!, a jazzy, tuneful musical which opened on December 1, 1924, and pretty much set the tone for the type of music one would hear in the musical theatre for the rest of the decade. Significantly, the show also introduced the song-and-dance team of Fred and Adele Astaire, who would go on to dominate the stage as the leading Broadway performers until Adele decided to retire to get married, while Fred chose to continue in Hollywood with other partners.

Though its plot was, by modern standards, rather simplistic, the show endured for 330 performances, largely due to the fetching presence of its stars and the great score by the Gershwins. The score introduced such standards as "Fascinating Rhythm," and "Oh, Lady Be Good," among its many memorable numbers.

The studio cast recording on Elektra, part of a series documenting all the musicals by the Gershwins, features a cast of well-trained Broadway performers who extract all the juice and fun from the score.

Review: Victor Hugo's epic story Les Miserables, already the source of numerous stage, screen and TV adaptations, became a monstrous international musical hit with this show, sporting a score by the Claude-Michel Schonberg and Alain Boublil. Their original creation premiered in Paris in 1980, before moving to London in 1985, and to Broadway, where it opened on March 12, 1987. The plot centers around a splendid retelling of the story of Jean Valjean, a former convict, who redeems himself and becomes an honorable citizen, only to be pursued by the implacable police officer, Javert, who wants to arrest him again for breaking his parole. The show redefined the criteria by which Broadway musicals would be judged: spectacular in every way, with sharply drawn colorful characters, and a sweeping score of wall-to-wall songs and instrumental bridges tied together without dialogue. The pop opera raised the standards (and costs) of stage productions by being utterly extravagant and theatrical, while bringing a new seriousness to the medium, midway between the glorious musicals of yesteryear and the standard old-fashioned operas forever in search of new audiences.

The show, which is still running at this writing, won several Tony Awards, including for Best Musical, Best Book, and Best Score.

An incredible epic sweep runs throughout the score, replete with moving romantic moments and impressive crowd numbers. It follows Valjean, always one step ahead of Javert, from 1815 and his adoption of the little orphan Cosette, ward of the Thenardiers, a couple of mean-spirited innkeepers, all the way to the 1832 Paris street uprising where Valjean saves the life of Marius, whom Cosette loves, and finally confronts Javert. The splendid 2-CD Broadway cast album recording (one of several available) brings out all the flavor and passion in this extraordinary production.

Review: Al Capp's comic strip characters came to stage life when Li'l Abner, written by Gene De Paul and Johnny Mercer, opened on November 15, 1956. Taking a cue from the strip itself, in which Li'l Abner and Daisy Mae waited many years, to the great frustration of their fans, before getting married, the show also took a satirical look at politics in the rural Southern setting of Dogpatch, U.S.A. It exulted in the big annual occurrence, the frantic Sadie Hawkins' Day man-chasing race, when every eligible bachelorette can try to catch the man in her life. Starring Peter Palmer, looking for all intents and purposes like his comic strip alter ego, and Edith Adams as Daisy Mae, the musical enjoyed a long run of 693 performances. Its delirious score, marked by many humorous songs, yielded one of the theatre's big show-stopping numbers in "Jubilation T. Cornpone," in which Marryin' Sam (played by Stubby Kaye) extols the merits of Dogpatch's hero, an infamous and unglorious Southern general, better known for his incompetence than for his feats. With its cast virtually intact, the show was filmed in 1959.

Review: Fast becoming a contemporary classic, The Lion King is steeped in the finest Walt Disney tradition. Great story, gorgeous animation, quality music and songs—The Lion King sports all of these hallmarks, and more.

Cleverly incorporating the rhythms and sounds of the African jungle into its score, the film features songs by pop music legend Elton John, and Academy Award winning lyricist Tim Rice. Among the familiar hit songs included on the soundtrack are "Hakuna Matata," "Circle of Life," "I Just Can't Wait to Be King," and "Can You Feel the Love Tonight." Special Elton John vocal versions of the last three songs are also heard here, and actor Nathan Lane is featured on "Hakuna Matata."

Quality is what has made Disney films and soundtracks special, and important. Undoubtedly, generations of film fans of all ages will continue to enjoy the music from The Lion King through this wonderful soundtrack recording.

Review: Television comedian Sid Caesar found a new lease on life when he appeared on Broadway in Little Me, a musical with a book by Neil Simon, one of his regular writers on the "Show of Shows," and a score by Cy Coleman and Carolyn Leigh. Little Me opened on November 17, 1962. Initially based on a novel by Patrick Dennis about the rags-to-riches tale of a voluptuous blonde from the skids of an Illinois town to a glamorous Southampton estate, the book became the occasion for Caesar to play no less than seven roles. All of his characters were involved in one way or another with the unlikely-named Belle Schlumpfert, from a snobbish student to a French soldier, from a movie director to a miserly old banker, and from a down-on-his-luck duke to an aspiring genius who wants to be an engineer and musical composer.

While the score didn't have too many memorable songs (much of the stage action being taken by Caesar's antics, who kept the show running for 257 performances), it had an ingratiating one in "Real Live Girl," a wistful lament performed by the star as a soldier who gives the heroine her full name of Belle Poitrine.

The Little Mermaid

1988, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature The Little Mermaid, Walt Disney Pictures, 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Menken; Lyrics: Howard Ashman; Orchestrations: Thomas Pasatieri; Vocal Arrangements: Robbie Merkin, Alan Menken; Orchestra Conductor: J.A.C. Redford; Cast: Rene Auberjonois (Louis), Jodi Benson (Ariel), Pat Carroll (Ursula), Patti Edwards (Flotsam, Jetsam), Buddy Hackett (Scuttle), Christopher Daniel Barnes (Eric), Jason Marin (Flounder), Kenneth Mars (Triton), Edie McClurg (Carlotta), Will Ryan (Seahorse), Ben Wright (Grimsby), Samuel E. Wright (Sebastian); Album Producers: Alan Menken, Howard Ashman, Robert Kraft.

Review: The sagging fortunes of the Disney studios were revived thanks to this clever animated feature adaptation of Hans-Christian Andersen's lovely tale, about the mermaid who sacrifices her voice to acquire legs instead of her tail in order to be near the prince with whom she has fallen in love. Where Andersen's tale ended tragically, however, the film adopted a more uplifting note, in keeping with the studio image solidly burnished since the days of its founding father, Walt Disney. Providing the score (and songs) were a couple of relative newcomers, Alan Menken and Howard Ashman. Their reggae-inflected "Under the Sea," performed by a singing crab and a shy flounder soon became a worldwide hit, further ensuring the popularity of the film. The CD brings it all back home, fun and all.

Review: One of Stephen Sondheim's lightest and loveliest scores, A Little Night Music received a splendid recording in its original Broadway cast album. From its nearly unique vocal overture to its touchingly hopeful finale, the album is beautiful and pure pleasure. The score has an underlying rhythmic unity that adds a delightful dimension to the music. The cast is just about perfect and has not been equaled by any other production or on any other recording. Glynis Johns as Desiree Armfeldt, the ageing actress, is amazing. While not a singer, her version of the hit song "Send in the Clowns" is the most moving of any you are likely to hear. Len Cariou, as her former lover Fredrik Egerman, delineates the pride and vulnerability of this emotionally vacillating character with expert charm. Laurence Guittard, as Desiree's current lover Count Carl-Magnus, is manly and arrogant in equal degrees and Patricia Elliott as Charlotte, his wife, is delightful in her cunning and hope. The other actors are stunningly good in their parts and sing the music gloriously.

Though the score has received various readings, the 1995 recording is the first to challenge the 1973 Broadway original, at least as far as some of the performances are concerned. Judi Dench has arguably never given a greater performance of a musical role. While she too is not a singer, as the original star was not, she is as memorable in her way as Glynis Johns was in hers. Laurence Guittard here graduates to the role of Fredrik Egerman and steps into Len Cariou's shoes very effectively. Sian Phillips, as Madame Armfeldt, rivals the original Hermione Gingold with her world weary performance. The rest of the cast is not quite on this level, although everyone gives their very best. There is more music and dialogue on this album than on the Broadway recording, which also includes one song that was cut before the show opened on Broadway in 1973. If you can only afford one recording, try the Broadway version first. However, this album is wonderful and repays your attention. At the very least, get one of these versions of this lyrical, wonderful show.

Review: Unfortunately for the world, Lost in the Stars was Kurt Weill's last work for the Broadway theater since he died during its too brief run. It is difficult to describe this amazing work set in South Africa. It tackles the very emotional issues of apartheid, murder, lust, unfulfilled relationships between parent and child and one's fundamental belief in God. Weill caught the various emotions and personal struggles of the characters in a score that combines the various styles of musical comedy, opera, cabaret, jazz and folk song into one heterogeneous style. The original 1949 cast recording catches this wild, uncompromising, glorious work in rather mediocre mono sound with too many cuts. However, the cast has an authority that is nearly unassailable. The wonderful Todd Duncan makes his last appearance in a musical and is terrific as is the rest of the ensemble cast, in a recording which is essential in any library of Broadway theater music.

While the 1993 recording does not equal all aspects of the original, it does surpass it in a few respects and holds its own nicely. To begin, it contains much more music than the original, which is a plus, since the additional material that is available makes it easier to understand the complex and difficult relations between these all-too-human characters. Julius Rudel has always had my respect as a wonderful musician and here his conducting is as fine as he has ever done. He is so good that it makes one long to hear him conduct the entire Kurt Weill canon. He has captured the wild highs and the blackest pits of despair that are built into this score by the composer. Arthur Woodley rivals Todd Duncan in the role of Stephen Kumalo, a peaceful man thrust into an extremely difficult situation. Cynthia Clarey is vivid as Irina and Carol Woods burns up the speakers as Linda. The other roles are cast judiciously and the recording, to make everything more attractive, is in full, clear stereo sound.

(Ballet)(7:07) Michael McGrath, Judy Blazer; 19 You Can't Brush Me Off (3:58) James Ludwig, Alet Oury; 20 Finale Ultimo (1:35) Company.

Review: A classic Irving Berlin musical from 1940, Louisiana Purchase starred Victor Moore as a naive Senator (he had previously played a Vice President in Of Thee I Sing, and an Ambassador in Leave It To Me!) who finds himself embroiled with the crooked doings of a big business president he is investigating. The score, brimming with catchy Berlin tunes, yielded one major hit in "It's a Lovely Day Tomorrow."

The cast album on DRG stems from a concert performance at Carnegie Hall. It presents a marvelous recreation of the complete score, with an all-star cast, in a great-sounding recording.

Love Me or Leave Me

Donaldson)(2:14) Doris Day; 14 Finale (:19) Orchestra; 15 I'll Never Stop Loving You (3:03) Doris Day; 16 Ten Cents A Dance (outtake)(1:57) Doris Day; 17 Love Me Or Leave Me (outtake)(3:11) Doris Day

Review: Doris Day had an uncharacteristically dramatic (singing) role in Love Me Or Leave Me, the film biography of 1930's torch singer Ruth Etting. In the film, she starred opposite James Cagney, portraying Marty "The Gimp" Snyder, a limping laundry operator who discovered Etting and became her agent and "protector." Doris Day performed many of the songs created by Etting, and had a hit with the song "I'll Never Stop Loving You," written expressly for her by Sammy Cahn and Nicholas Brodszky. A staple in the Columbia catalog for many years, the CD released in 1993 offers the soundtrack for the first time in stereo, with several bonus tracks, including rare studio pre-recordings.

Lovely to Look At

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the screen musical Lovely to Look At, M-G-M, 1952.

Hand (1:54) Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel; 15 Finale: Lovely To Look At (1:12) Chorus.

Review: A remake of the 1933 stage musical Roberta (previously filmed in 1935, with Fred Astaire, Irene Dunne and Ginger Rogers in the cast), Lovely to Look At was a lame excuse to bring together M-G-M's ideal romantic musical couple, Howard Keel and Kathryn Grayson (they had previously starred in Show Boat). It also includes surefire box office comedian Red Skelton, and dancers extraordinaire Ann Miller and Marge and Gower Champion. Several songs from the original were dropped, but a couple of novelty numbers for Skelton were inserted, and of course the Kern/Harbach hits ("The Touch of Your Hand," "I'll Be Hard to Handle," "Yesterdays," and "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes") were retained, becoming the film's highlights. Directed with great savvy by Vincente Minnelli and Mervyn LeRoy, Lovely to Look At is a splash-dash of colors and songs that lives again in this soundtrack album recording.

Review: A failed musical its first time around (it only played 66 performances, following its opening on October 6, 1974), Mack and Mabel has become a cult show of sorts. Though it never was revived on Broadway, it received a concert version in London in 1988, and a full production in 1995, which fueled renewed interest in it.

The tragic love story between film director Mack Sennett and his star Mabel Normand, it was unfortunately saddled with an impossible book by Michael Stewart. The book tried desperately to make sense out of an affair that kept the two lovers apart more frequently than they were together, and ended on a negative note contrary to every tenet in the musical theatre.

On the bright side, however, was the score by Jerry Herman, a bittersweet collection of tunes in which the tone is given by the song "I Won't Send You Roses," in which Sennett lays out the rules by which his relationship with Normand will have to abide. There were, to be sure, lighter moods, notably in the opening number, "Movies Were Movies," in which Sennett extols the merits of movies when he was running the show. If anything, Mack and Mabel provided a unique opportunity for Robert Preston and Bernadette Peters to appear together in a show which, despite its shortcomings, magically comes to life in its bright cast recording.

Mame

1966, Columbia Records; from the Broadway production Mame, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Herman; Lyrics: Jerry Herman; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Donald Pippin; Cast: Angela Lansbury (Mame Dennis), Beatrice Arthur (Vera Charles), Jane Connell (Agnes Gooch), Willard Waterman (Dwight Babcock), Charles Braswell (Beauregard Burnside), Frankie Michaels (Patrick Dennis, age 10), Jerry Lanning (Patrick Dennis, 19 to 29), Sab Shimono (Ito); Album Producer: Goddard Lieberson.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:05) Orchestra; 2 St. Bridget (1:56) Jane Connell, Frankie Michaels; 3 It's Today (4:38) Angela Lansbury; 4 Open A New Window (3:46) Angela Lansbury; 5 The Man In The Moon (2:56) Angela Lansbury, Beatrice Arthur; 6 My Best Girl (3:26) Frankie Michaels, Angela Lansbury; 7 We Need A Little Christmas (3:04) Angela Lansbury, Frankie Michaels, Jane Connell, Sab Shimono; 8 Mame (6:17) Charles Braswell; 9 The Letter (3:00) Frankie Michaels, Jerry Lanning; 10 Bosom Buddies (4:10) Angela Lansbury, Beatrice Arthur; 11 Gooch's Song (3:28) Jane Connell; 12 That's How Young I Feel (2:14) Angela Lansbury; 13 If He Walked Into My Life (3:53) Angela Lansbury; 14 Finale (2:41) Angela Lansbury.

Review: Patrick Dennis' fond ruminations about the extravagant Auntie Mame, already the source for a 1954 play, became the occasion for another effervescent score by Jerry Herman, following the one he had written two years before for Hello, Dolly!. With Angela Lansbury at the peak of her stage career in a portrayal that still resonates with crackling energy in the original cast recording, Mame was a bustling, exciting musical which enjoyed tremendous longevity, following its opening of May 24, 1966.

In the book by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee, Mame, a socialite whose excessive lifestyle seems to be one party after another, becomes the guardian of young Dennis, her nephew, whom she encourages to live in a permissive way to best appreciate what life is all about. When the Depression hits and she finds herself without any means of support, Mame bravely seeks a job. Unfortunately, she fails at every attempt to secure a permanent one until she sweeps a Southern gentleman off his feet, Beauregard Burnside, whom she marries. When Beau dies accidentally, Mame, as indomitable as ever, manages to meddle into Dennis' affair with a scatterbrained, snobbish girl, and sets him up with her own assistant, wondering all along what she would do if Dennis walked into her life again.

Brilliantly directed by Gene Saks, with Bea Arthur regularly trading bitchy comments with Mame, her bosom buddy, the musical was a delight from beginning to end. Jerry Herman's score, which included "Open a New Window," "We Need a Little Christmas," "If He Walked Into My Life," and the exuberant "It's Today" and "That's How Young I Feel," is probably the best he's ever written.

Man of La Mancha

1965, MCA Records; from the Broadway production Man of La Mancha, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Mitch Leigh; Lyrics: Joe Darion; Orchestrations: Music Makers Inc.; Musical Direction: Neil Warner; Cast: Richard Kiley (Cervantes/Don Quixote); Irving Jacobson (Sancho), Joan Diener (Aldonza), Ray Middleton (The Innkeeper), Robert Rounseville (The Padre), Mimi Turque (Antonia), Eleanore Knapp (The Housekeeper), Gino Conforti (The Barber), Harry Theyard (Muleteer).

Selections: 1 Overture (3:45) Orchestra; 2 Man Of La Mancha (I, Don Quixote)(2:31) Richard Kiley, Irving Jacobson; 3 It's All The Same (2:56) Joan Diener; 4 Dulcinea (2:44) Richard Kiley; 5 I'm Only Thinking Of Him (2:58) Mimi Turque, Robert Rounseville, Eleanore Knapp; 6 I Really Like Him (2:18) Irving Jacobson, Joan Diener; 7 What Do You Want Of Me? (2:10) Joan Diener; 8 The Barber's Song (Golden Helmet)(2:54) Gino Conforti, Richard Kiley, Irving Jacobson; 9 To Each His Dulcinea (To Every Man His Dream)(1:48) Robert Rounseville; 10 The Impossible Dream (The Quest)(2:20) Richard Kiley; 11 Little Bird, Little Bird (11:53) Harry Theyard; 12 The Dubbing (Knight Of The Woeful Countenance)(1:57) Ray Middleton, Richard Kiley, Joan Diener, Irving Jacobson; 13 The Abduction (1:30) Harry Theyard; 14 Aldonza (3:30) Joan Diener, Richard Kiley; 15 A Little Gossip (1:43) Irving Jacobson; 16 Dulcinea (reprise)/The Impossible Dream (reprise)/Man Of La Mancha (reprise)/The Psalm/Finale (The Impossible Dream)(7:44) Joan Diener, Richard Kiley, Irving Jacobson, Robert Rounseville.

Review: Miguel de Cervantes' Don Quixote became the unlikely singing hero of another sensational 1960s musical when Man of La Mancha opened on November 22, 1965. It starred Richard Kiley as the gloomy Don, Irving Jacobson as his faithful manservant, Sancho, and Joan Diener as the servant girl the Don mistakes for a fair lady in distress. In a brilliant theatrical tour-de-force, Kiley first portrayed Cervantes, thrown in jail by the Inquisition for an offense against the Church, offering as his defense a reading of a novel he has recently completed about the exploits of a wandering knight. At the court's request, Cervantes then becomes the Don and enacts the story, with the other prisoners becoming the various characters Don Quixote encounters.

High among the tunes that became hits in the score by Mitch Leigh and Joe Darion is "The Impossible Dream," also known as "The Quest," in which Don Quixote mentions all the things it takes to become an errand knight.

The show, which won the Tony for Best Musical, had a run of 2,328 performances. The cast album is a must in any collection.

Mary Poppins

1990, Disneyland Records; from the screen musical Mary Poppins, Walt Disney Pictures, 1964.

Selections: 1 Main Title (4:11) Orchestra; 2 The Perfect Nanny (1:39) Karen Dotrice, Matthew Garber; 3 Sister Suffragette (1:47) Glynis Johns; 4 The Life I Lead (1:58) David Tomlinson; 5 A Spoonful Of Sugar (3:05) Julie Andrews; 6 Pavement Artist (1:52) Dick Van Dyke; 7 Jolly Holiday (2:14) Julie Andrews, Dick Van Dyke; 8 Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious (2:08) Julie Andrews, Dick Van Dyke, Pearlies; 9 Stay Awake (1:49) Julie Andrews; 10 I Love To Laugh (2:47) Ed Wynn, Julie Andrews, Dick Van Dyke; 11 A British Bank (2:02) David Tomlinson; 12 Feed The Birds (3:54) Julie Andrews; 13 Fidelity Fiduciary Bank (3:52) Dick Van Dyke, David Tomlinson; 14 Chim-Chim-Cheree

(2:52) Julie Andrews, Dick Van Dyke, Karen Dotrice, Matthew Garber; 15 Step In Time (2:07) Dick Van Dyke; 16 A Man Has Dreams (4:25) David Tomlinson, Dick Van Dyke; 17 Let's Go Fly A Kite (1:53) David Tomlinson, Dick Van Dyke.

Review: Julie Andrews, who had been dismissed in favor of Audrey Hepburn when My Fair Lady was made into a movie, had a sweet revenge when she appeared that same year in Mary Poppins, a delightful musical fantasy made by Walt Disney. In it, she made her screen debut and won the Oscar for Best Actress. Set in Victorian England at the turn of the century, the film, which combined live action and animated characters, told about Mary Poppins, the perfect nanny, whose impromptu arrival at the house of proper banker George Banks results in utter chaos. The chaos begins when she takes the children, Jane and Michael, on a merry trip to an enchanted land where the denizens are cartoon characters, and everyone seems to know her and her friend Bert, a chimney sweeper. When Jane and Michael report to their father what they have experienced, he immediately denounces the nanny for her wild flights of fancy which are a disservice to the education of his children.

Spearheaded by several enjoyable tunes written by Richard M. Sherman and Robert B. Sherman (including "A Spoonful of Sugar," "Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious," and "Chim-Chim Cheree"), and with Julie Andrews delightfully impish as Mary Poppins, the film became one of the studio's all-time big hits. The soundtrack album recording, while in need of complete remastering, provides total enjoyment.

Review: In a rare trend reversal, the M-G-M 1944 filmed musical hit, Meet Me in St. Louis became a Broadway stage show when it opened on November 2, 1989. That it took more than 45 years to achieve this feat says something about the problem created by such a decision. Indeed, despite an excellent cast led by George Hearn, Milo O'Shea, Charlotte Moore and Betty Garrett, all reliable performers, the show stayed around for only 253 performances, not a very long run by today's standards.

There were multiple reasons for that, but the one that loomed heavy above the entire production was the fact that a musical so magically captured on film could only appear halfway interesting on the stage. Despite Donna Kane's valiant efforts to give a fetching portrayal as Esther, her performance couldn't erase the memory of Judy Garland in the film. In truth, everything conspired to cast the musical into a negative light, by enhancing the stage limitations compared with the movies, and by drawing the unavoidable parallel with the film's performances.

However, the cast album is still of interest, though a clear second choice after the film soundtrack... when the latter becomes finally available from Rhino in that label's continuing restoration of the great musical scores from the M-G-M films.

Merrily We Roll Along

1992, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Merrily We Roll Along, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Sondheim; Lyrics: Stephen Sondheim; Orchestrations: Jonathan Tunick; Musical Direction: Paul Gemignani; Cast: Jim Walton (Franklin Shepard), Ann Morrison (Mary Flynn), Lonny Price (Charley Kringas), Jason Alexander (Joe Josephson), Donna Marie Elia (Terry), David Loud (Ted), Sally Klein (Beth), Marianna Allen (Girl Audition-ing); Album/CD Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:52) Orchestra; 2 The Hills Of Tomorrow/Merrily We Roll Along (1980)/Rich And Happy (10:21) Jim Walton; 3 Merrily We Roll Along (1979-75)/Old Friends/Like It Was (3:57) Ann Morrison, Lonny Price; 4 Merrily We Roll Along (1974-73)/Franklin Shepard, Inc. (5:32) Lonny Price; 5 Old Friends (4:36) Jim Walton, Ann Morrison, Lonny Price; 6 Not A Day Goes By (2:20) Jim Walton; 7 Now You Know (4:09) Ann Morrison; 8 It's A Hit! (4:35) Jason Alexander, Jim Walton, Ann Morrison, Lonny Price; 9 Merrily We Roll Along (1964-1962)/Good Thing Going (5:40) Donna Marie Elio, Lonny Price, Jim Walton; 10 Merrily We Roll Along (1961-1960)/Bobby And Jackie And Jack (5:09), Lonny Price, Sally Klein, Jim Walton, David Loud; 11 Not A Day Goes By (2:19) Jim Walton, Ann Morrison; 12 Opening Doors (6:52) Jim Walton, Ann Morrison, Lonny Price, Jason Alexander, Marianna Allen, Sally Klein; 13 Our Time (4:20) Jim Walton, Lonny Price, Ann Morrison; 14 The Hills Of Tomorrow (2:16) Company.

Review: An ambitious failure on Broadway, this time-runs-backwards musical about 25 years of changing relationships among a group of high-school friends endures in the repertoire because of its Stephen Sondheim score, which seems to grow in stature with every revival. "Not a Day Goes By" is as beautiful a song as Sondheim—or anyone else—has written for Broadway. CD listeners should take Sondheim up on his suggestion and try programming this recording in reverse ("chronological") order, noting the development of his musical ideas. Fans of the "Seinfeld" TV series will also want to note Jason Alexander's Broadway musical debut here, playing a Broadway producer.

CD 2: 1 If You Want To Die In Bed (3:41) Jonathan Pryce; 2 Let Me See His Western Nose (3:12) Jonathan Pryce; 3 I'd Give My Life For You (5:18) Lea Salonga; 4 Bui-Doi (4:05) Peter Polycarpou; 5 The Revelation (3:25) Peter Polycarpou, Simon Bowman, Claire Moore; 6 What A Waste (4:30) Jonathan Pryce; 7 Please (2:48) Simon Bowman, Lea Salonga; 8 The Fall Of Saigon (4:54) Peter Polycarpou, Simon Bowman, Lea Salonga; 9 Room 317 (3:29) Lea Salonga, Claire Moore; 10 Her Or Me (3:24) Claire Moore; 11 The Confrontation (4:05) Claire Moore, Simon Bowman, Peter Polycarpou; 12 The American Dream (6:02) Jonathan Pryce; 13 The Sacred Bird/Finale (5:55) Lea Salonga, Simon Bowman.

Review: If Claude-Michel Schonberg and Alain Boublil hoped to repeat with Miss Saigon the artistic success they had enjoyed with Les Miserables, they failed on at least one count: a tear-jerker set in Vietnam on the eve of the Fall of Saigon, their new show brought theatre-as-spectacle to a new high, while proving itself emotionally very empty.

Wall-to-wall instrumental bridges and tedious recitatives can hardly mask the paucity in melodic ideas in a score that only ignites on rare occasions. When the score is good (as in the unquestionable showstoppers, "The Heat Is on in Saigon," "The Morning of the Dragon," or "The American Dream"), it is very good. However, these moments are unfortunately too rare in a show that needs to rely on gimmicks like a much-touted-about helicopter landing on a roof to spellbind its audiences.

In this original London cast recording, Lea Salonga and Jonathan Pryce, who reprised their respective roles on Broadway, are excellent, she as a modern-day Madame Butterfly, whose love for a G.I. turns sour with the disastrous end of the conflict, he as an enterprising conman who, like Bloody Mary in South Pacific, makes himself necessary to the G.I.s lost in a foreign land. As Chris, Simon Bowman is vocally fine, but the limitations in his role do not enable him to be more than a casual presence.

In an early radio commercial for the Broadway edition of the show, a "member" of the audience recalled how he had never cried in real life, yet Miss Saigon had brought him to tears. Indeed...

Review: Frank Loesser had one of his earliest stage successes with The Most Happy Fella, a smart adaptation of the 1924 play

"They Knew What They Wanted," about a mail-order bride deceived into believing that her intended is a handsome young man when in reality he turns out to be an ageing Napa Valley vineyard owner of Italian descent. Starring Robert Weede as Tony, the vintner who is shy around women, Jo Sullivan as Rosabella, who answers Tony's marriage offer, and Art Lund as Joey, Tony's foreman, whose picture Tony has sent to Rosabella instead of his own, The Most Happy Fella was more a folk opera than a musical. It contained a profuse score that included more than 30 musical numbers, including arias, duets, and recitatives. The writing style, however, was pure Broadway, with tunes like "Standing on the Corner," "Big D," "My Heart Is So Full of You," "Abbondanza," "Warm All Over," and "Joey, Joey, Joey" harking back to the best musical theatre traditions.

The recording, initially an unusual 3-LP set (the first of its kind for Columbia Records), now on 2 CDs, features the entire score, with vibrant performances by all the principals.

The Music Man

The Music Man

(4:13) The Buffalo Bills, Barbara Cook; 16 Gary, Indiana (1:24) Eddie Hodges; 17 Till There Was You (2:44) Barbara Cook, Robert Preston; 18 Finale (2:16) Robert Preston, Barbara Cook.

Review: Is Robert Preston's spellbinding con man the finest male performance in this history of the musical theater? Has a more beautiful female voice than Barbara Cook's ever been heard on a Broadway stage? The evidence is here for your consideration, in Meredith Willson's breakthrough hit about his small-town Iowa childhood just after the turn of the century. What may at first seem to be Broadway's corniest classic also has remarkable sophistication, as Willson's score takes the listener on a tour of American musical styles of the period, moving from lovely melodies to songs based almost entirely on rhythm effects and percussion. Americana at its finest.

Review: With Robert Preston reprising his Broadway role as Harold Hill, and Shirley Jones (a more recognizable box-office name at the time) replacing Barbara Cook, The Music Man splashed across the big screen in a relatively faithful adaptation of the stage hit by Meredith Willson. Instead of painted settings, audiences were treated to the great outdoors in a small town (filmed on a studio backlot); and with Hermione Gingold, Paul Ford (as River City's mayor), and Buddy Hackett adding the luster of their performances to the storyline, this screen version provided filmgoers who might not have had a chance to see the Broadway show a great opportunity to enjoy it in all its glory. Adding an extra sheen to the score, Ray Heindorf's orchestrations urned the music into a boisterous, exhilarating sonic experience, faithfully captured in the recording. As in the Broadway cast album, Preston is the show.

Review: Considered by many to be one of the perfect Broadway musicals, the original Broadway cast recording might therefore be considered the perfect cast album. Every performer from Rex Harrison, Julie Andrews and Stanley Halloway to the smallest supporting player is superb and right in every detail. This exactness must be credited to the director, Moss Hart, as well as the splendid lyrics and music of Alan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe. If any cast album is essential, this is it and it is in bright spanking refurbished monaural sound. As a side note, there is a recording made two years later of the original London cast which includes essentially the same cast as the 1956 version. The performances have become more free and less tight than the original, but not in any way lazy or careless. For those who must have stereo, the London cast is fine and no one will feel cheated. However, the 1956 Broadway recording is just that much fresher and about as definitive a recording of a Broadway show score as an album can get.

The soundtrack of the film version proves that there is still life in the fair lady yet. The various dubious casting and dubbing issues aside, this is a big, bold old-fashioned film of a big Broadway show. With the exception of Audrey Hepburn replacing Julie Andrews, the male principals remain the same as the original 1956 Broadway and 1958 London cast recordings. The passage of eight years has taken its toll on the voices, which are beginning to fray around the edges and the performances are much looser and more studied than either of the previous recordings. Hepburn is dubbed, in part, by Marni Nixon and they both do an admirable job. However, it is easy to tell where one voice ends and the other one begins. Included on this release are previously extended dance music episodes, as well as unreleased tracks. The sound quality has been excellently refurbished and the album sounds better than it ever has. All in all, this is a most enjoyable recording of this legendary score.

My One and Only

1989, Atlantic Records; from the Broadway production My One and Only, 1983.

Album Notes: Music: George Gerhswin; Lyrics: Ira Gershwin; Orchestrations: Michael Gibson; Dance Arrangements: Wally Harper, Peter Larson; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Jack Lee; Cast: Tommy Tune (Capt. Billy Buck Chandler), Twiggy (Edith Herbert), Jill Cook (Reporter), Charles “Honi” Coles (Mr. Magix), Bruce McGill (Prince Nicolai Tchatchavadze), Roscoe Lee Browne (Rev. J.D. Montgomery), Denny Dillon (Mickey), Will Blankenship, Carl Nicholas, Adam Petroski, Casper Roos (Ritz Quartette), David Jackson, Ken Leigh Rogers, Ronald Dennis (The New Rhythm Boys); Album Producers: Ahmet Ertegun, Wally Harper; Engineer: Fred Miller; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Stephen Benben.

Selections: 1 Overture: I Can't Be Bothered Now/Blah, Blah, Blah (8:50) Tommy Tune, David Jackson, Ken Leigh Rogers, Ronald Dennis; 2 Boy Wanted/Soon (4:42)Twiggy, Jill Cook, Tommy Tune; 3 Sweet 'n Low Down (2:35) Charles ‘‘Honi’’ Coles, Tommy Tune, Twiggy; 4 He Loves And She Loves (5:00)Twiggy, Tommy Tune; 5 'S Wonderful (5:48) Tommy Tune, Twiggy; 6 Strike Up The Band (2:28) Tommy Tune; 7 Entr'acte/In The Swim (2:50)Orchestra, Female Chorus; 8 Nice Work If You Can Get It (3:33) Twiggy; 9 My One And Only (3:37) Tommy Tune, Charles ‘‘Honi’’ Coles; 10 Little Jazz Bird (3:43)Twiggy, Tommy Tune; 11 Funny Face (2:16) Denny Dillon, Bruce McGill; 12 My One And Only (reprise)(2:15) Tommy Tune; 13 Kickin' The Clouds Away (3:20) Roscoe Lee Browne; 14 How Long Has This Been Going On? (4:18) Tommy Tune, Twiggy.

Review: Initially intended as a straight revival of Funny Face, the 1927 musical by George and Ira Gershwin, My One and Only evolved into a significantly different musical with little relationship to its original, except for some of the songs that were retained. The new book, devised by Peter Stone, deals with a young aviator and the aquacade star with whom he falls in love: she is already a success, having crossed the English Channel, and he has ambitions of beating Lindbergh in flying over the Atlantic, which he does of course, after surmounting tremendous odds, winning his girl in the process.

The “blithely charming” show starred Tommy Tune and Twiggy in performances that kept luring audiences to it long after the show premiered on May 1, 1983, closing after 757 performances in a considerably longer run than its model.

While it retained many songs from the Funny Face score (including “He Loves and She Loves,” “'S Wonderful,” “Funny Face,” and the title song), it also interpolated many other familiar tunes from the Gershwin body of works, among them “I Can't Be Bothered Now,” “Soon,” “Strike Up The Band,” “Nice Work If You Can Get It,” “Little Jazz Bird,” and “How Long Has This Been Going On?,” all delivered with the appropriate period zest by a pleasantly twangy Twiggy and a charmingly self-effaced Tommy Tune, in performances that make the cast album recording an absolute delight.

Nine

Review: A brilliant musical based on Federico Fellini's 81/2, about a celebrated Italian filmmaker with a creative block, resting at a Venetian spa where he is haunted by memories from his youth, his strict Catholic upbringing, and the many women in his life, Nine is a dazzling display of music and songs by newcomer Maury Yeston. One of the last great American musicals (before the proliferation of British works that crowded Broadway in the 1990s), Nine is an extraordinary work as vibrant as it is original, as exciting as it is imaginative.

In the course of the evening, Guido Contini, the film director, struggles with his memories, while trying to find a way out of the creative impasse that prevents him from starting his new film. As the action progresses, in reality as much as in his mind, he has to deal with a disintegrating marriage, former lovers and current protégés, and his producer, in a show that features only one adult man in an otherwise all-female cast.

There are many superb touches in the score which ranges from electrifying production numbers ("Folies Bergeres," "The Grand Canal"), to highly charged emotional cries of despair ("Be on Your Own"), to sexy siren songs ("A Call from the Vatican"), to evocations of a past that had a strong influence on the present ("The Bells of St. Sebastian").

The original cast album, while unfortunately incomplete (longer excerpts from "Folies Bergere" and "Grand Canal" can be found in the cassette release), is a sensational reflection of this outstanding musical.

No, No, Nanette

1971, Columbia Records; from the Broadway revival No, No, Nanette, 1971.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:55)Orchestra; 2 Too Many Rings Around Rosie (4:12) Helen Gallagher; 3 I've Confessed To The Breeze (3:13) Susan Watson, Roger Rathburn; 4 Call Of The Sea (1:51) Bobby Van; 5 I Want To Be Happy (6:46) Jack Gilford, Susan Watson, Ruby Keeler; 6 You Can Dance With Any Girl (3:12) Helen Gallagher, Bobby Van; 7 No, No, Nanette (4:23) Susan Watson, Roger Rathburn, Patsy Kelly; 8 Tea For Two (8:19) Susan Watson, Roger Rathburn; 9 I Want To Be Happy (reprise)(1:35) Jack Gilford, K.C. Townsend, Loni Zoe Ackerman, Pat Lysinger; 10 Telephone Girlie (1:58) Bobby Van, Loni Zoe Ackerman, K.C. Townsend, Pat Lysinger; 11 Finaletto Act II (3:21)Company; 12 "Where-Has-My-Hubby-Gone" Blues (5:36) Helen Gallagher; 13 Waiting For You (2:10) Susan Watson, Roger Rathburn; 14 Take A Little One-Step/Finale (2:45) Ruby Keeler.

Review: One of the classic musical comedies of the 1920s, No, No, Nanette burst out again on the Broadway scene 46 years after its creation. It is as fresh and exciting as ever, thanks largely to the fact that it was staged by the genial Busby Berkeley, one of the movies' most inventive directors. Starring Berkeley's favorite dancer, Ruby Keeler—as sprightly at sixty something as she was when she pranced on the screen in 42nd Street—and a cast of seasoned theater and film performers (Bobby Van, Helen Gallagher, Jack Gilford, Susan Watson, Patsy Kelly), the Vincent Youmans original never looked so stunning, so enjoyable, so modern.

In its original presentation, in 1925, No, No, Nanette was an enormous success, both here and abroad; its popularity fueled by its two biggest hit songs, "Tea for Two" and "I Want to Be Happy." Undoubtedly, it was the most popular musical of the 1920s, a frothy entertainment with great songs and skimpy story line, the kind so amusingly spoofed by Sandy Wilson in The Boy Friend. It spawned two movie versions, in 1930 and 1940, and an offshoot, Tea for Two, starring Doris Day and Gordon MacRae in 1950.

Its return to Broadway in 1971, its first since 1925, was preceded by the kind of hoopla that usually accompanies the newest productions, not a revival. But the names of Berkeley and Keeler were the catch, and riding on a sudden wave of nostalgia, it opened to great fanfare and rhapsodic reviews on January 19, 1971.

Based on an obscure 1919 play, the book deals with a Bible publisher and philanderer, Jimmy Smith, who has been entertaining three attractive ladies in three different cities; his long-suffering wife, Sue; their schoolgirl ward, Nanette; their friends, Lucille and Billy; and their overworked housemaid, Pauline. When they all converge to Atlantic City for a weekend of rest in the Smith household, utter comic chaos ensues.

Inconsequential as the story might have been, what ignites the musical is its score by Vincent Youmans, Otto Harbach and Irving Caesar, propelled by Busby Berkeley's showstopping dance routines (the sight of Ruby Keeler, merrily tapping her time away surrounded by an impressive lineup of handsome chorus boys, alone was worth the cost of a dozen tickets). It proved a winning combination, as No, No, Nanette collected four Tony Awards, and enjoyed a run of 861 performances, nearly three times longer than its original run of 321 performances in 1925.

No Strings

1993, Angel Records; from the Broadway production No Strings, 1962.

Selections: 1 The Sweetest Sounds (5:00) Diahann Carroll, Richard Kiley; 2 How Sad (2:32) Richard Kiley; 3 Loads Of Love (3:18) Diahann Carroll; 4 The Man Who Has Everything (4:11) Mitchell Gregg; 5 Be My Host (2:38) Richard Kiley, Bernice Massi, Don Chastain, Alvin Epstein, Ann Hodges; 6 La La La (2:31) Noelle Adam, Alvin Epstein; 7 You Don't Tell Me (1:51) Diahann Carroll; 8 Love Makes The World Go (2:37) Polly Rowles, Bernice Massi; 9 Nobody Told Me (4:00) Richard Kiley, Diahann Carroll; 10 Look No Further (3:15) Richard Kiley, Diahann Carroll; 11 Maine (3:00) Richard Kiley, Diahann Carroll; 12 An Orthodox Fool (3:07) Diahann Carroll; 13 Eager Beaver (4:25) Bernice Massi, Don Chastain; 14 No Strings (4:24) Richard Kiley, Don Chastain; 15 Finale: The Sweetest Sounds (reprise)(1:29) Richard Kiley, Diahann Carroll.

Review: For his first effort sans Oscar Hammerstein II (who had died shortly after the opening of The Sound of Music two years earlier), Richard Rodgers decided to write both the music and lyrics for No Strings. Perhaps not so surprisingly, his words faintly echoed those of his former collaborator, revealing a sensitive side to Rodgers' creativity few had suspected he had.

The show itself, with a book by Samuel Taylor, deals with a topic that was still somewhat taboo at the time—an interracial love affair. Perhaps to deflate any possible criticism, it happens in France, where such things were apparently tolerated, and it involves two sophisticated American expatriates, she a glamorous fashion model (played by Diahann Carroll), he a writer (portrayed by Richard Kiley); also, though it is not stated specifically as such, it does not have a happy ending.

While not a great success along the lines of South Pacific or The Sound of Music, No Strings enjoyed a long run on Broadway thanks in part to the three Tonys it earned for Diahann Carroll, Richard Rodgers and director/choreographer Joe Layton.

Of Thee I Sing

1993, Angel Records; from the Broadway revival Of Thee I Sing, 1952.

(:52) Jack Carson, Paul Hartman; 3 The Dimple On My Knee (:59)Company; 4 Because Because (1:41)Company; 5 Finaletto: Never Was There A Girl So Fair/Some Girls Can Bake A Pie (4:55)Company; 6 Love Is Sweeping The Country (2:24) Jack Carson; 7 Of Thee I Sing (2:03) Jack Carson; 8 Finaletto: Supreme Court Judges/Here's A Kiss For Cinderella/I Was The Most Beautiful Blossom/Some Girls Can Bake A Pie (reprise)/Of Thee I Sing (reprise) (6:17) Company; 9 Hello, Good Morning (1:57) Jonathan Lucas, Joan Mann; 10 Mine (1:45) Jack Carson, Betty Oakes; 11 Who Cares? (1:42) Jack Carson, Betty Oakes; 12 Finaletto: Garcon, s'il vous plait/The Illegitimate Daughter/Who Cares? (reprise)/Because, Because (reprise)(6:17)Company; 13 The Senate Roll Call/Impeachment (2:51)Company; 14 Finaletto: Jilted/I'm About To Be A Mother (4:21) Lenore Lonergan, Betty Oakes; 15 Trumpeter Blow Your Horn (2:05)Company; 16 Finale (:39) Company.

Review: Political satire is not a genre that succeeds very well in this country, but a happy exception is the 1931 Gershwin musical, Of Thee I Sing, which takes sharp aim at the quadri annual spectacle of political conventions, the Presidency, congressional shenanigans, the Supreme Court, motherhood and apple pies, everything in fact that makes life worth living. Not only was the show a huge success at the time (it ran for 441 performances, quite a record), it also won the Pulitzer Prize, the first time ever the prestigious award was bestowed on a musical.

Revived in 1952, however, it failed miserably, and closed after a scant 72 performances. Although, happily again, a cast album recording was made at the time, thereby preserving for posterity some of the most stinging and amusing songs ever created by the Gershwin brothers.

The musical is built around a rather absurd plot—the presidential campaign of one John P. Wintergreen and his running mate Alexander Throttlebottom, who easily win the presidency, only to find themselves assailed from all sides: it seems that, during the campaign, Wintergreen's advisers had staged a beauty contest, promising that the winner would marry the candidate if he were elected. The lucky contestant is Diana Devereaux who, when Wintergreen is elected comes to claim her prize. The new president, however, has already married one of his assistants, Mary Turner, thereby setting the stage for a nasty scandal and an international conflict when it is revealed that Diana Devereaux is "an illegitimate daughter of an illegitimate son of an illegitimate nephew of Napoleon." Needless to say, when the Supreme Court is asked to arbitrate, everything gets resolved.

What made the show so enjoyable was the breezy score fashioned by George and Ira Gershwin, which contains several notable tunes—"Because, Because," "Love Is Sweeping the Country," "Of Thee I Sing," and "Mine," among them. The 1952 cast also featured some personable comedians, including Jack Carson, Paul Hartman, Betty Oakes and Lenore Lonergan in the principal roles. The cast recording always was a classic; its release on CD only confirms its status.

Oh, Kay!

1995, Elektra Records; from the studio cast recording Oh, Kay!, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: George Gershwin; Lyrics: Ira Gershwin; Orchestrations: Russell Warner; Vocal Arrangements: Kevin Cole; The Orchestra of St. Luke's, conducted by Eric Stern; Cast: Robert Westenberg (The Duke), Patrick Cassidy (Larry Potter), Adam Arkin (Shorty McGee), Liz Larsen (Philippa Ruxton), Stacey A. Logan (Dolly Ruxton), Dawn Upshaw (Kay), Kurt Ollmann (Jimmy Winter), Susan Lucci (Constance Appleton), Fritz Weaver (Judge Appleton); Album Producers: Tommy Krasker, John McClure; Engineer: Tom Lazarus; Assistant Engineers: Carl Glanville, Greg Pinto, Richard Clarke.

Selections: 1 Overture (6:45)Orchestra; 2 The Moon Is On The Sea (1:20)Ensemble; 3 When Our Ship Comes Sailing In (2:57) Patrick Cassidy, Robert Westenberg, Adam Arkin; 4 Don't Ask (2:20) Patrick Cassidy, Liz Larsen, Stacey A. Logan; 5 Someone To Watch Over Me (2:51) Dawn Upshaw; 6 The Woman's Touch (2:25)Female Ensemble; 7 Dear Little Girl (2:40) Kurt Ollmann; 8 Maybe (3:15) Dawn Upshaw, Kurt Ollmann; 9 Clap Yo' Hands (4:16) Patrick Cassidy; 10 Do, Do, Do (3:06) Kurt Ollmann, Dawn Upshaw; 11 Finale Act 1 (5:14) Adam Arkin, Liz Larsen, Stacey A. Logan, Dawn Upshaw, Kurt Ollmann, Susan Lucci, Fritz Weaver; 12 Entr'acte (4:22)Orchestra; 13 Bride And Groom (2:31)Ensemble; 14 Ain't It Romantic? (3:59) Dawn Upshaw, Adam Arkin, Kurt Ollmann; 15 Fidgety Feet (3:13) Patrick Cassidy, Liz Larsen; 16 Heaven On Earth (2:09) Kurt Ollmann; 17 Finaletto Act II, Scene 1 (4:14) Kurt Ollmann, Liz Larsen, Stacey A. Logan, Fritz Weaver, Dawn Upshaw; 18 Dance Specialty (1:30)Orchestra; 19 Oh, Kay! (3:06) Dawn Upshaw; 20 Finale Ultimo (2:01)Company.

Review: A somewhat inconsequential plot, and a great score, are the hallmarks in Oh, Kay!, a 1926 musical by George and Ira Gershwin, which centers around the dilemma faced by a young playboy, Jimmy Winter, whose impending marriage is threatened when he finds out he is in love with another woman, Kay Denham. Kay is the sister of a titled Englishman-turned-bootlegger, who has stashed away his stock of liquor in Winter's Long Island manse. Around this slight suggestion of a story, the Gershwins wrote a collection of tunes that yielded such standards as "Someone To Watch Over Me," "Dear Little Girl," "Do, Do, Do," "Maybe," and "Clap Yo' Hands."

The studio cast recording on Elektra, starring the wonderful Dawn Upshaw, is part of a series of Gershwin musicals, well worth looking into and enjoying to the hilt.

Review: Oklahoma!, the first show by Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II, was a pioneering work that changed the course of the American musical, launched one of the most prolific teams in the history of Broadway, and saved the sagging fortunes of the Theatre Guild, which produced it.

For the first time completely integrated in the narrative, instead of being inserted at random in the book, as had been so frequently the case before, the songs in Oklahoma! actually help propel the action forward. Adding a further element to the progression of the storyline, the musical also introduced the device of a dream ballet to reflect the state of mind of the principals, a novelty. To be sure, some musicals had previously shown a tighter, cohesive blend of book, songs and dances (certainly Porgy and Bess and Pal Joey, also trendsetters in their own right, denoted a maturity that often had seemed to be missing in most works at the time), but Oklahoma! can be said to be the first modern-day musical that brings all these disparate elements into a comprehensive, seamless whole.

For Rodgers, working for the first time with a new partner, following the death of Lorenz Hart, with whom he had written all his works through the 1930s, teaming with Hammerstein seemed a proposition fraught with many question marks: the famed lyricist of Show Boat had not had a hit show in many years, and was already written off by many in theatrical circles. The partnership ignited incredible creative responses in both men, with Rodgers reaching new levels of lyricism he had seldom felt with Hart, while Hammerstein found new means of expression that resulted in sharper, more pungent lyrics and book ideas than he had ever experienced before.

Based on "Green Grow the Lilacs," a 1931 play by Lynn Riggs, Oklahoma! concerns itself with the romance between a cowboy and his girl, Curly and Laurey, and the possible threat to their idyll represented by a mean-spirited working hand, Jud Fry. The whole story is set against the natural antagonism between farmers and cowmen, and the greater political framework brought by the impending entry of the territory within the Union.

Strikingly beautiful and simple in its expression, Oklahoma! is at heart a celebration of the pioneering American spirit, something that struck a particularly responsive note when it opened on March 31, 1943. Hailed as a landmark production, the show enjoyed an incredible run of 2,212 performances (a record at the time), and made stars of many members in its cast, including Alfred Drake who portrayed Curly, Joan Roberts as Laurey, Howard da Silva as Jud Fry, and Celeste Holm as Ado Annie, Laurey's man-crazed friend.

The show also introduced a large number of songs that have become as many classic standards, including "Oh, What A Beautiful Mornin'," "The Surrey with the Fringe on Top," "Kansas City," "People Will Say We're In Love," "Out of My Dreams," "All Er Nuthin'," and the rousing title tune.

On another level, Oklahoma! also marked the first time a Broadway musical received a cast album recording. Previously, when a successful show opened on Broadway, the common practice was to take its stars into a recording studio, provide them with fresh arrangements of the most popular tunes in the show, and record them as pop songs.

When Oklahoma! opened, the recording industry was in the midst of a long strike from the Musicians' Union, which prevented record labels from making new recordings with orchestral backing. Jack Kapp, A&R head at Decca Records, settled independently with the Union, and immediately looked for a new source of material to release under his new contract. The resounding success of Oklahoma! prompted him to take the entire cast into the studio and cut an album of the songs, as performed by the original members of the company. The move marked Decca's entry in the field of cast albums, in which it was a dominant force until 1950.

The first album listed here is the original 1943 cast, and while it may be sonically insufficient by today's standards, and certainly incomplete compared to more recent recordings, it is in many ways an essential, historical document.

The soundtrack album, on Capitol, for many years the best source for anyone wanting to listen to the score under optimum circumstances, still holds its own, with Gordon MacRae and Shirley Jones co-starring as Curly and Laurey, Rod Steiger appropriately menacing as Jud Fry, and Gloria Graham fetching as Ado Annie. The recording, incidentally, is from the standard 35 mm version, and not from the Todd-AO 65 mm roadshow presentation, which had a different, alternate soundtrack.

Revived many times since its creation, Oklahoma! came back to Broadway in a sumptuous stage version which opened on December 13, 1979, and yielded the splendid new cast album on RCA Victor. Starring Laurence Guittard, Christine Andreas, Martin Vidnovic and Christine Ebersole in the principal roles, it is by far the most complete and most satisfying recording of this sensational musical.

Review: Charles Dickens' Oliver Twist provided the gist for a magnificent new musical, Oliver!, which opened on Broadway on January 6, 1963, following a three-year run in London. "Freely adapted" from the novel, and slightly spruced up to conform with the tenets of the song-and-dance genre, the show, entirely conceived and created by Lionel Bart, tells the story of the orphan boy, who runs away from his life of misery and ends up in the streets of London, where he is eventually adopted by a well-to-do benefactor, who turns out to be his grandfather.

Received with glowing reviews from the Broadway pundits, the show enjoyed a profitable run of 774 performances. It introduced many songs that have since become quite popular, including the rousing "Oom-Pah-Pah," performed by customers in a seedy barroom led by Nancy, a woman of easy virtue who takes Oliver under a protecting wing; "Food, Glorious Food," the anthem of the famished orphans; "Consider Yourself," in which The Artful Dodger and his band of young pickpockets welcome Oliver; and mostly "As Long As He Needs Me," the throbbing love song in which Nancy reveals her passion for Sikes, her "protector."

The musical won a Tony Award for composer Lionel Bart, and in 1968 was made into a glossy screen version which retained much of its flavor and kept the entire score minus two songs. Of the two albums listed above, the 1963 cast album is probably the best, with Clive Revill a splendid Fagin, Georgia Brown resplendent as Nancy, and Bruce Prochnik as Oliver; Ron Moody, Shani Wallis and Mark Lester were equally effective in the film version, though the recording itself leaves a bit to be desired, sonically.

Review: Alan Jay Lerner's particular interest in extra-sensory perceptions, reincarnation, time regression, hypnosis, and other psychic phenomena led to this hopelessly flawed, but ultimately fascinating musical in which the heroine, Daisy, recalls a previous existence when she is placed under hypnosis by Dr. Bruckner, a psychologist. The story, an old-fashioned romance that doesn't need the mind trips to the past to succeed, is helped by the strong score, which help to gloss over some of the inconsistencies in the plot.

Much of the charm in the original disappeared in the blown-out-of-proportion screen version, in which Barbra Streisand and Yves Montand fussed as the two principal characters without sharing much empathy or chemistry between them.

Review: Carol Burnett gains at being seen rather than heard, but hints of the infectious comic genius that made her a theatrical star before she became a household name on television can be experienced in this cast album of her first Broadway show. Loosely based on the fairy tale by Andersen, "The Princess and the Pea," the show enables the comedienne to mug her way through a rather limp and flimsy story line, further limited by the so-so score, the product of Mary (daughter of Richard) Rodgers, and Marshall Barer.

The 1996 revival was even less fortunate in Sarah Jessica Parker, whose sense of comedy was not very evident in this sorry production. The cast album does little to convince that the show was worth bringing back to Broadway, let alone spending the money recording it.

Review: Leonard Bernstein's infectious ballet, Fancy Free, about three sailors on a 24-hour leave in New York City, was turned into an even more exhilarating musical comedy titled On The Town. Created in 1944, the composer's collaborators, Betty Comden and Adolph Green, and comedian Nancy Walker played important roles. Excerpts from the show were recorded at the time, and can be heard on an MCA CD in which they are coupled with a 1945 recording of Fancy Free.

In 1960, Bernstein returned to the studio with Comden, Green, Walker, and Cris Alexander, also from the original cast, to record the show all over again. A lively, rambunctious celebration of youth and vitality, the show follows the three sailors as they look (and find) their ideal dates for a day, in a score that brims with energy, irreverence, and jazzy style. The recording captures all these elements into one of the most exciting cast albums to be enjoyed.

In 1949, MGM filmed the story, with Gene Kelly and Frank Sinatra as two of the sailors. But with the exception of a couple of songs, including the rousing opening number, "New York, New York," MGM discarded most of Bernstein's sensational score, and replaced it with new songs by Roger Edens, Comden and Green that did not have the vibrant imagination of the original.

On the Twentieth Century

1991, Sony Broadway; from the Broadway production On the Twentieth Century, 1978.

Album Notes: Music: Cy Coleman; Lyrics: Betty Comden and Adolph Green; Orchestrations: Hershy Kay; Musical Direction: Paul Gemignani; Cast: John Cullum (Oscar Jaffe), Madeline Kahn (Mildred Plotka/Lily Garland), Imogene Coca (Letitia Primrose), George Coe (Owen O'Malley), Dean Dittman (Oliver Webb), Kevin Kline (Bruce Granit), Charles Rule (Bishop), Hal Norman (Actor), Tom Batten (Conductor Flanagan), Stanley Simmonds (Train Secretary Rogers), Keith Davis, Quitman Fludd III, Joseph Wise, Ray Stephens (Porters); Album Producer: Cy Coleman; Engineer: Frank Laico, Stanley Tonkel; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Tim Tiedemann.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:38) Orchestra; 2 Stranded Again/Saddle Up The Horse/On The Twentieth Century (4:12) Charles Rule, Hal Norman, George Coe, Dean Dittman, Tom Batten, Stanley Simmonds; 3 I Rise Again (3:15) John Cullum, George Coe, Dean Dittman; 4 Veronique (3:52) Madeline Kahn, John Cullum; 5 I Have Written A Play (:48) Tom Batten; 6 Together (2:22) John Cullum; 7 Never (2:44) Madeline Kahn, George Coe, Dean Dittman; 8 Our Private World (3:25) John Cullum, Madeline Kahn; 9 Repent (4:03) Imogene Coca; 10 Mine (2:18) John Cullum, Kevin Kline; 11 I've Got It All (4:29) Madeline Kahn, John Cullum; 12 On The Twentieth Century (:33) Company; 13 Entr'acte: Life Is Like A Train (2:58) Keith Davis, Quitman Fludd III, Joseph Wise, Ray Stephens; 14 Five Zeros (3:07) George Coe, Dean Dittman, Imogene Coca, John Cullum; 15 Sextet (6:17) George Coe, Dean Dittman, John Cullum, Imogene Coca, Madeline Kahn, Kevin Kline; 16 She's A Nut (3:41) Company; 17 Babbette (4:16) Madeline Kahn; 18 The Legacy (4:35) John Cullum; 19 Lily, Oscar (2:42) Madeline Kahn, John Cullum, George Coe, Dean Dittman; 20 On The Twentieth Century (reprise)(:55) Company.

Review: A brash, rambunctious musical based on Ben Hecht and Charles MacArthur's 1932 backstage play, On the Twentieth Century gave Cy Coleman, Betty Comden and Adolph Green the vehicle with which to fashion a score (and a musical) that was thoroughly entertaining, and a terrific proposition. The plot concerns the efforts of theatrical producer Oscar Jaffee, on board the New York-bound Twentieth Century to escape his creditors, to convince Lily Garland, his former leading actress and lover and now a celebrated movie star, to appear in his next production, "The Passion of Mary Magdalene." Using every trick in the book, he finally succeeds when he pretends he is dying after having shot himself, compelling Lily to affix her name, Peter Rabbit, at the bottom of the contract.

Breathing incredible life into the characters, John Cullum chews the scenery (a striking Art Deco set by Robin Wagner) as Oscar, while Madeline Kahn demurs as Lili, with Imogene Coca portraying a religious nut who gives Oscar a rubber check for his production, while Kevin Kline portrays Lili's current lover, an actor unlikely named Bruce Granit. The Tony Award winning score adds its own point to the proceedings, with Coleman, Comden and Green providing songs that closely match the humorous action.

Review: Unfortunately, no recording of the original 1936 cast of On Your Toes was ever made, and there were only scant excerpts by the 1938 London cast. As a result, the 1954 Broadway revival is the first recording of this amazing score, one of the best by Rodgers and Hart. While the top-billed star of the revival was Vera Zorina, the ex-Mrs. Balanchine, she does not appear on the cast album. However, all of the other performers do and they are stylish and grand. Bobby Van, fresh from his appearances in several Hollywood films, is relaxed and charming as Phil Dolan III, the part originally created by Ray Bolger. Kay Coulter as Frankie Frayne is warm and loving. And Elaine Stritch playing the featured part of Peggy Porterfield, the backer of a Russian ballet company, wipes everyone up with her sensational rendition of a song interpolated especially for her, with this recording about as enjoyable as it gets.

Good as the 1954 recording is, the 1983 revival cast album is even better and properly reflects the sound of the 1936 original. Make no mistake, this is a glorious warm, romantic score and this album is a stunner. Every performer is absolutely right and the 1930s performance style is preserved in this recording right down to the taps of the dancers. Lara Teeter captures the light breeziness of the music and lyrics with just the right amount of throwaway charm that is a constant delight. Christine Andreas turns Frankie into a fully believable character and charms the ear with her singing. Dina

Merrill and George S. Irving are just right in their roles. Both ballets are included, as well as much dance music. John Mauceri has never conducted a finer performance than here and it is captured in glorious stereo, digital sound.

Review: Arguably, one of the greatest of all of Cole Porter's later Broadway efforts, Out Of This World shows the composer/lyricist at his very peak. Unfortunately, the score is better known for what is missing than what is actually included. Shortly before its Broadway premiere, one of Porter's greatest songs, "From This Moment On", was deleted from the score; later added to the film version of Kiss Me Kate, it became a hit. That aside, the original cast recording is sheer unalloyed pleasure from beginning to end. There are love songs to suit every taste, delightful comedy songs and scintillating numbers devoted to man's (and woman's) favorite sport, sex. While Charlotte Greenwood was not the first choice to play Juno, she enters into the spirit of fun required by her character with unabashed fervor. George Jongeyans (Gaynes), who has a flawed voice, is enthusiastic and passionate as her errant husband Jupiter. Priscilla Gillette is a delight as the young American mortal who gives Jupiter ants in his pants. The rest of the super-talented performers cast their spell on this splendid sounding monaural album.

The 1995 recording resulted from a successful concert presentation at New York's City Center, which had show buffs eager with anticipation. Andrea Martin, as Juno, is terrific and proves, once again, that she is a wonderful musical comedy performer. She wrings every ounce of nuance, hedonism and joy out of her songs and is breathtaking in her energy and commitment. Ken Page, as the wandering Jupiter, works hard at his difficult role, but does not always succeed. Peter Scolari as Mercury is a lot of fun. Marin Mazzie and Gregg Edelman, as the modern American mortal couple, perform "From This Moment On," which has been restored in the score. Other songs that were either cut from the original production or not included on the original 1950 Broadway cast recording are also recorded here for the first time, making this album a winner in every way.

Review: The remarkable creative partnership between composer Stephen Sondheim and producer Harold Prince made its most daring foray with this musical treatment of the "opening" of Japan to western trade in 1853 – from the Japanese perspective. An all-Asian cast turns the Winter Garden stage into a whirling visual spectacle – which the CD listener can only imagine – and marvelously performs Sondheim's demanding score. The music is beautiful if not especially "hummable"; highlights include "Someone in a Tree" and the fast-forward, present-day finale, "Next".

Review: With the exception of a very few, musicals of the Old West do not succeed on Broadway. Westerns tend to be a product of Hollywood. Regardless of the quality of the book, which need not concern the listener, Paint Your Wagon is a happy exception, which can be savored repeatedly on the 1951 original cast album in clear, up-front monaural sound. The versatility of Lerner and Loewe is certainly amazing when this show is compared to their other works. It is not set in the proper parlors of Edwardian London, the mists of the Scottish Highlands, the elegant salons of Paris or in legendary Camelot. The setting here is the touchstone of Americana, the wild West during the Gold Rush. The elegant Lerner had a talent for creating words that seem to come from within the soul of each character. The music confirms that the very European Loewe was one of the most talented and versatile composers of the Broadway theater. While the vocal casting may not come across on the album as well as it surely did in the theater, all of the songs are sung with an energy and style that is appropriate to the setting of the show.While the 1977 film version has the same title and many of the same songs as the Broadway musical, it has almost an entirely new plot with additional characters. Lovers of the original cast album, be warned: the soundtrack recording will certainly give you a huge jolt. There is none of the subtlety or even charm of the original and the innate elegance of Frederick Loewe's music is gone. In fact, the original orchestral sound has been totally altered and replaced with a tough grittiness that was not apparent in the original. The new songs, written by Alan Jay Lerner with Andre Previn, as Loewe was evidently unwilling to work on the project, are actually quite good and don't sound out of place. However, except for Harve Presnell, an extremely gifted Broadway performer, the singing on this album is very rough. Lee Marvin and Jean Seberg were never considered singers and suffice it to say that this is Clint Eastwood's only musical performance. None of them are truly terrible and there is a sort of harsh reality contained in the performances that makes their characters seem real and earthy. Best that can be said is that, though not an important recording, it has its interesting side.

Review: One of the classic Broadway show scores of all time has received a recording that puts its charming, exuberant score in the best possible light. With energetic performances by John Raitt, Janis Paige, Eddie Foy, Jr. and Carol Haney along with the rest of the cast, chorus and orchestra, the score sounds better and more exciting than it actually is. There are several classic, well-known songs, but portions of this score are fairly uninteresting. It evens out to be about half and half. The slightly reverberant mono sound is in no way a deterrent to enjoyment. In fact, it takes one back to a time and a Broadway that no longer exist, perhaps never did. For that alone, it is worth listening to.

Review: The last effort by Richard Rodgers and Lorenz Hart, Pal Joey is a ground-breaking, innovative show that raises the musical genre to an art form (though few in 1940 suspected it), and stands today as an early precursor of the musicals Stephen Sondheim would create some 30 years later. Based on the short stories by John O'Hara, it introduces a charming "heel," a small-time nightclub performer who ditches the innocent girl in love with him for a middle-aged socialite in his desire to climb the ladder of success and open his own club. Though the mature aspects of the story left critics divided over the show's real merits, the score by Rodgers and Hart received unanimous praise, and yielded at least one instantly recognizable hit song in "Bewitched."

In 1950, Goddard Lieberson, head of A&R at Columbia Records, recorded a studio cast album of the score, with Vivienne Segal reprising the role of the socialite Vera Simpson, which she had created in the original, and Harold Lang singing Joey, the role originated by Gene Kelly in 1940. The recording was an immediate success, so much so that it led to a successful revival of the show on Broadway the following year. Though in upfront mono sound, the recording remains the closest document available of the score in its near-to-original presentation.

Pal Joey

1989, Capitol Records; from the screen musical Pal Joey, Columbia Pictures, 1957.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:36)Orchestra; 2 That Terrific Rainbow (1:50) Trudy Erwin; 3 I Didn't Know What Time It Was (2:51) Frank Sinatra; 4 Do It The Hard Way (2:00)Orchestra; 5 Great Big Town (1:11)Girls' Chorus; 6 There's A Small Hotel (2:37) Frank Sinatra; 7 Zip (3:07) Jo Ann Greer; 8 I Could Write A Book (3:55) Frank Sinatra; 9 Bewitched (4:26) Jo Ann Greer; 10 The Lady Is A Tramp (3:17) Frank Sinatra; 11 Plant You Now, Dig You Later (1:50)Orchestra; 12 My Funny Valentine (2:05) Trudy Erwin; 13 You Mustn't Kick It Around (2:26)Orchestra; 14 Bewitched (3:41) Frank Sinatra; 15 Strip Number (3:25)Orchestra; 16 Dream Sequence: What Do I Care For A Dame/Bewitched/I Could Write A Book (6:08) Orchestra/ Frank Sinatra.

Review: As is the case with Frank Sinatra's film soundtrack recordings on Capitol, the CD release of Rodgers & Hart's Pal Joey suffers from an interminable lack of quality.

While the musical numbers survive as some of the most endearing, snappy performances of Sinatra's entire career (this was 1957, after all, and the singer was at the peak of his vocal power), their full impact is marred by the lack of detail or presence in the sound quality—a characteristic that has marked this recording since its first release as an LP. Additionally, the original mastering engineers seem to have used pseudo-stereo processing on some tracks (the classic "Lady Is A Tramp," which originates from a Sinatra-Riddle Capitol Studio session, is here reduced to a blur—the clarity and detail of the original purposely destroyed so it would match the poor balance of the other tracks).

Sonic deficiencies aside, the soundtrack vitally preserves Sinatra's definitive performances of songs that have become almost synonymous with his name: "The Lady Is a Tramp," "Bewitched," "I Didn't Know What Time It Was" and "I Could Write a Book" among them. These are the songs, and the interpretations, that define Sinatra's finest hour!

Bebe Neuwirth; 14 Plant You Now, Dig You Later (4:46) Ned Eisenberg, Vicki Lewis; 15 Den Of Iniquity (3:17) Patti LuPone, Peter Gallagher; 16 Do It The Hard Way (2:24) Ned Eisenberg, Vicki Lewis; 17 Take Him (3:24) Daisy Prince, Patti LuPone; 18 Bewitched, Bothered And Bewildered (reprise)(1:25) Patti LuPone; 19 I'm Talkin' To My Pal (2:14) Peter Gallagher.

Review: Of the several recordings of the score available, this is by far the best: the sound quality is exceptional, and the crackling performances right on target, with Peter Gallagher appropriately charming as a heel, Patti LuPone grandly superb as Vera, Daisy Prince at her fetching best as the innocent Linda, and Bebe Neuwirth, whose rendition of "Zip" is a highlight, particularly effective as Melba. The recording, a result of a concert presentation in New York City Center's highly-acclaimed "Encore!" series, contains many selections not available elsewhere, and is the one to have if you must have only one.

Review: Stephen Sondheim and James Lapine's tale of obsessive love in 19th century Italy was a hit on Broadway, winning the 1994 Tony award for Best Musical. It made a star of Donna Murphy as a sickly, unattractive woman who wins her officer purely through the force of her longing. The recording is crystalline, the leads beautifully sung, but this music is ultimately more interesting than compelling, and seems unlikely to stand with the great Sondheim scores.

Peter Pan

1989, RCA Victor; from the Broadway and television productions Peter Pan, 1954.

Album Notes: Music: Jule Styne, Mark Charlap, Trude Rittman; Lyrics: Betty Comden and Adolph Green, Carolyn Leigh; Incidental Music: Trude Rittman, Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Albert Sendrey; Musical Direction: Louis Adrian; Cast: Mary Martin (Peter Pan), Cyril Ritchard (Mr. Darling/Capt. Hook), Kathy Nolan (Wendy), Margalo Gillmore (Mrs. Darling), Robert Harrington (John), Joseph Stafford (Michael), Sondra Lee (Tiger Lily), Heller Halliday (Liza); Album Producer: Hugo Winterhalter, Joe Carlton; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:30)Orchestra; 2 Prologue (1:56)Orchestra; 3 Tender Shepherd (2:00) Margalo Gillmore, Kathy Nolan, Robert Harrington, Joseph Stafford; 4 I've Gotta Crow (3:30) Mary Martin, Kathy Nolan; 5 Never Never Land (3:22) Mary Martin, Kathy Nolan; 6 I'm Flying (3:51) Mary Martin, Kathy Nolan, Robert Harrington, Joseph Stafford; 7 Pirate Song (:54)Pirates, Lost Boys; 8 Hook's Tango (1:26) Cyril Ritchard; 9 Indians (2:35)Indians; 10 Wendy (2:37) Mary Martin, Robert Harrington, Joseph Stafford; 11 Tarantella (:56) Cyril Ritchard; 12 I Won't Grow Up (3:07) Mary Martin, Kathy Nolan, Robert Harrington, Joseph Stafford; 13 Oh, My Mysterious Lady (3:28) Mary Martin, Cyril Ritchard; 14 Ugg-A-Wugg (3:25) Mary Martin, Sondra Lee; 15 Distant Melody (2:14) Mary Martin, Kathy Nolan; 16 Captain Hook's Waltz (2:53) Cyril Ritchard; 17 Finale: I've Gotta Crow/Tender Shepherd/I Won't Grow Up/Never Never Land (reprises)(6:57) Mary Martin, Cyril Ritchard, Heller Halliday, Kathy Nolan, Robert Harrington, Joseph Stafford, Margalo Gillmore.

Review: Mary Martin scored a personal, long-lasting triumph as the "boy who refuses to grow up" in this musical presentation which bombed on Broadway the first time it was staged, but then went on to make television history when it became a perennial favorite enjoyed by millions in repeated annual showings. Initially created by Mark "Moose" Charlap and Carolyn Leigh (who wrote "I Gotta Crow," "I Won't Grow Up," and the thrilling "I'm Flying"), the score was beefed up with new songs by Jule Styne, Betty Comden and Adolph Green, while the show was still in tryouts on the West Coast. Its arrival on Broadway on October 20, 1954, in the midst of a particularly busy season, was hardly noticed, and it closed after 154 performances, though both Mary Martin and Cyril Ritchard, as the hilariously evil Captain Hook, won Tony Awards for their performances. Though in glorious mono sound, the cast album does full justice to this enjoyable show, and to the star's winning portrayal.

1987, Polydor Records; from the Broadway production The Phantom of the Opera, 1987.

Selections: CD 1 (54:08): 1 Think Of Me Rosemary Ashe, Sarah Brightman, Steve Barton; 2 Angel Of Music Sarah Brightman, Janet Devenish; 3 Little Lotte/The Mirror Steve Barton, Sarah Brightman, Michael Crawford; 4 The Phantom Of The Opera Michael Crawford, Sarah Brightman; 5 The Music Of The Night Michael Crawford; 6 I Remember/Stranger Than You Dreamt It Sarah Brightman, Michael Crawford; 7 Magical Lasso Janos Kurucz, Janet Devenish, Mary Millar; 8 Notes/Prima Donna John Savident, David Firth, Steve Barton, Rosemary Ashe, Mary Millar, Janet Devenish, Michael Crawford; 9 Poor Fool, He Makes Me Laugh Rosemary Ashe; 10 Why Have You Brought Me Here/Raoul, I've Been There Steve Barton, Sarah Brightman; 11 All I Ask Of You Steve Barton, Sarah Brightman; 12 All I Ask Of You (reprise) Michael Crawford.

CD 2 (46:23): 1 Masquerade/Why So Silent; 2 Notes/Twisted Every Way David Firth, John Savident, Rosemary Ashe, John Aron, Steve Barton, Sarah Brightman, Michael Crawford; 3 Wishing You Were Somehow Here Again Sarah Brightman; 4 Wandering Child/Bravo, Monsieur Michael Crawford, Sarah Brightman, Steve Barton; 5 The Point Of No Return Michael Crawford, Sarah Brightman; 6 Down Once More/Track Down This Murderer.

Review: If crashing chandeliers are your thing, then this recording of Andrew Lloyd Webber's musical treatment of the Gaston Leroux celebrated gothic tale set in Paris at the turn of the century, might be right for you. In all fairness to Webber, his score, a wall-to-wall display of tunes that sometimes recall the stylistic profligacies of Puccini, brims with moments that elicit strong romantic response, and strikes a particularly effective theatrical note in the evening's only highlight, "The Music of the Night," sung in dulcet fashion by Michael Crawford. But the show, still running on Broadway at this writing, some ten years after its premiere on January 26, 1988, owes much of its success to Hal Prince's atmospheric staging of this story about a disfigured mad man hiding in Paris' Opera theater, in love with a soprano, has no qualms eliminating in ghoulish fashion anyone who stands in her way to stardom. Webber's wife at the time, Sarah Brightman, sounding better on record than she did on stage, portrays Christine, the Phantom's love interest.

Pinocchio

1992, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature Pinocchio, Walt Disney Pictures, 1940.

Album Notes: Music: Leigh Harline; Lyrics: Ned Washington, Paul J. Smith; The Disney Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Leigh Harline; Cast: Dickie Jones (Pinocchio), Christian Rub (Gepetto), Cliff Edwards (Jiminy Cricket), Evelyn Venable (The Blue Fairy), Walter Catlett (J. Worthington Foulfellow), Frankie Darro (Lampwick), Charles Judels (Stromboli/The Coachman), Don Brodie (Barker); Album Producer: Michael Leon; Engineers: John Polito, Doug Schwartz, Bruce Botnick.

Selections: 1 When You Wish Upon A Star (3:13) Cliff Edwards; 2 Little Wooden Head (5:43); 3 Clock Sequence (:53); 4 Kitten Theme (:38); 5 The Blue Fairy (3:26); 6 Give A Little Whistle (1:36) Cliff Edwards, Dickie Jones; 7 Old Gepetto (4:42); 8 Off To School (4:17); 9 Hi-Diddle-Dee-Dee (An Actor's Life For Me)(1:39) Walter Catlett; 10 So Sorry (1:34); 11 I've Got No Strings (2:21) Dickie Jones; 12 Sinister Stromboli (2:26); 13 Sad Reunion (3:20); 14 Lesson In Lies (2:29); 15 Turn On The Old Music Box (:48); 16 Coach To Pleasure Island (4:44); 17 Angry Cricket (1:18); 18 Transformation (3:49); 19 Message From The Blue Fairy (1:28); 20 To The Rescue (:32); 21 Deep Ripples (1:27); 22 Desolation Theme (1:40); 23 Monstro Awakens (2:01); 24 Whale Chase (3:18); 25 A Real Boy (1:42).

Review: Walt Disney had a real winner in this 1940 animated morality fable based on the Italian tale about a puppetmaker, Gepetto, whose wish to have a real son is eventually granted by the "Blue Fairy," though Pinocchio also has to win his wings and does so only after he lives many adventures with various unreliable people, and saves Gepetto from certain death. The score, by Leigh Harline and Ned Washington, yielded the Academy Award-winning "When You Wish Upon a Star," and brims with great musical moments that come vividly to life in this mono recording, recently dusted off and remastered, with a lot of instrumental passages added to the album.

The Pirate

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the screen musical The Pirate, M-G-M, 1948.

Album Notes: Music: Cole Porter; Lyrics: Cole Porter; Orchestrations: Conrad Salinger; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Lennie Hayton; Cast: Gene Kelly (Serafin), Judy Garland (Manuela); Album Producer: Dan Rivard; Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Title Music (1:49) Orchestra; 2 History Of The Pirate (:50) Judy Garland; 3 Nina (7:01) Gene Kelly; 4 The Sea Wall (4:46) Orchestra; 5 Mack The Black (3:57) Judy Garland; 6 Manuela's Sacrifice (1:31) Orchestra; 7 The Pirate Ballet (5:36) Orchestra; 8 You Can Do No Wrong (2:00) Judy Garland; 9 Be A Clown (3:20) Gene Kelly, The Nicholas Brothers; 10 Love Of My Life (2:14) Judy Garland; 11 Be A Clown (Finale)(2:52) Judy Garland, Gene Kelly; 12 Voodoo (1:47) Judy Garland; 13 Love Of My Life (alternate)(3:07) Judy Garland.

Review: A legendary flop, The Pirate seemed to have the right pedigree for success: a brilliant score by Cole Porter; two beloved artists, Gene Kelly and Judy Garland, billed above the title; a swashbuckling story, at a time when seafaring adventures still lured audiences; amusing characterizations by Walter Slezak and the Nicholas Brothers; superb direction by Vincente Minnelli; and the technicolor gloss that was a hallmark of the best M-G-M productions.

Circus entertainer Gene Kelly made a dashing figure as an 18th-century pirate, about whom feisty Judy Garland romanticized in her lonely Caribbean abode, until he came in and tried to sweep her off her feet; the stylized ballets and gorgeous technicolor photography took full advantage of the myriad technical possibilities offered by the studio's best craftsmen; and the score brimmed with great tunes, in which "Be a Clown" soon became a favorite. A succes d' estime, the screen musical is still very much revered today as one of the most attractive films to come out of the studio. The CD recording offers the score, plus two previously unreleased songs (one of them, "Voodoo," written for the film but discarded before its release).

Play On!

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the Broadway production Play On!, 1997.

Selections: 1 Take The "A" Train (3:43) Cheryl Freeman; 2 Drop Me Off In Harlem (4:38) Cheryl Freeman, Denizens of Harlem; 3 I've Got To Be A Rug Cutter (1:28) Andre De Shields, Cheryl Freeman; 4 I Let A Song Go Out Of My Heart (3:11) Carl Anderson; 5 Mood Indigo (3:41) Tonya Pinkins; 6 Don't Get Around Much Anymore (2:13) Cheryl Freeman, Tonya Pinkins; 7 Don't You Know I Care (2:26) Lawrence Hamilton; 8 It Don't Mean A Thing (3:19) Andre De Shields, Yvette Cason, Larry Marshall, Lawrence Hamilton; 9 I Got It Bad And That Ain't Good (4:10) Carl Anderson, Cheryl Freeman; 10 Hit Me With A Hot Note And Watch Me Bounce (2:19) Cheryl Freeman, Carl Anderson; 11 I'm Just A Lucky So And So (3:24) Andre De Shields; 12 Solitude (4:34) Cheryl Freeman, Carl Anderson, Tonya Pinkins, Lawrence Hamilton; 13 I Ain't Got Nothin' But The Blues (4:51) Tonya Pinkins; 14 I'm Beginning To See The Light (5:19) Lawrence Hamilton; 15 I Didn't Know About You (3:03) Cheryl Freeman; 16 Rocks In My Bed (5:59) Larry Marshall, Andre De Shields; 17 Love You Madly (1:58) Yvette Cason, Larry Marshall; 18 Prelude To A Kiss (4:13) Cheryl Freeman, Carl Anderson; 19 In A Mellow Tone (2:41) Cheryl Freeman, Carl Anderson, Tonya Pinkins, Lawrence Hamilton, Denizens of Harlem.

Review: Initially, it seemed like a terrific idea—Shakespeare's Twelfth Night, slyly updated to Harlem in the 1920s, with a score consisting of the best-known songs by the man who epitomized the period, Duke Ellington. But once the show hit Broadway, on March 20, 1997, it became obvious that something was not entirely right. Yes, all the elements were in perfect order—the story, despite the change of century and locale, held together rather well; the score, well... what can you say when the first number that hits you is "Take The 'A' Train" (naturally!), and also includes such gems as "I Let a Song Go Out of My Heart," "Mood Indigo," "Don't Get Around Much Anymore," "It Don't Mean a Thing," "I Got It Bad and That Ain't Good," "Solitude," "Love You Madly," and "Prelude to a Kiss"; and the cast, made of veteran performers and attractive newcomers, couldn't have been more congenial.

But somehow, the production itself looked stilted, polished but without much of the fire and intensity one might have expected from such a combination. As a result, and in the face of lukewarm reviews that did little to compel theatergoers to come and see for themselves, the show closed after a meager 61 performances.

None of the production's failings mar the cast recording, however, and both the songs and the performers literally shine in the most positive light in this exhilarating CD, the only proof positive that Play On! was a terrific idea, indeed.

Pocahontas

1995, Walt Disney Records; from the animated feature Pocahontas, Walt Disney Pictures, 1995.

Selections: 1 The Virginia Company (1:30) Chorus; 2 Ship At Sea (2:34); 3 The Virginia Company (reprise)(:35) Mel Gibson; 4 Steady As The Beating Drum (Main Title)(1:46)Chorus; 5 Steady As The Beating Drum (reprise)(:45) Jim Cummings; 6 Just Around The Riverbend (2:28) Judy Kuhn; 7 Grandmother Willow (1:27); 8 Listen With Your Heart (1:08) Linda Hunt, Bobbi Page; 9 Mine, Mine, Mine (3:05) David Ogden Stiers, Mel Gibson; 10 Listen With Your Heart (2:44) Linda Hunt, Bobbi Page; 11 Colors Of The Wind (3:33) Judy Kuhn; 12 Savages (Part 1)(1:43) David Ogden Stiers, Jim Cummings; 13 Savages (Part 2)(2:13) Judy Kuhn, David Ogden Stiers, Jim Cummings; 14 I'll Never See Him Again (1:54); 15 Pocahontas (1:23); 16 Council Meeting (1:11); 17 Percy's Bath (:51); 18 River's Edge (1:27); 19 Skirmish (2:02); 20 Getting Acquainted (1:30); 21 Radcliffe'sPlan (1:46); 22 Picking Corn (:54); 23 The Warriors Arrive (1:22); 24 John Smith Sneaks Out (1:14); 25 Execution (1:34); 26 Farewell (4:45); 27 Colors Of The Wind (End Title)(4:18) Vanessa Williams; 28 If I Never Knew You (End Title)(4:11) Jon Secada, Shanice.

Review: A politically-correct retelling of the love story between the feisty Indian beauty, Pocahontas, and handsome Captain John Smith, leading English settlers to Virginia's lush countryside, this Disney animated feature swept the Academy Awards in 1996, winning Oscars for best original score, and best original song ("Colors of the Wind"). The score, by Alan Menken and Stephen Schwartz, is a generally very lively affair, beautifully serviced by the vocal performers, including Judy Kuhn as Pocahontas, whose rendition of "Just Around the River Bend" is a particularly fetching moment in the album. Vanessa Williams' performance of "Colors of the Wind" is fancy and enjoyable, though it sounds stylistically out of context with the rest of the album, as does Jon Secada and Shanice's rendition of "If I Never Knew You," included no doubt for name (read "commercial") value.

Porgy and Bess

Porgy and Bess

1992, MCA Records; from the Broadway revival Porgy and Bess, 1942.

Review: A landmark in the history of the musical theatre, Porgy and Bess is a show that leaves critics and admirers alike totally baffled: though no one today denies the importance of the Gershwins and DuBose Heyward's masterpiece, few can agree about what the show should be called. An opera? A folk opera? A musical comedy? By its scope, and its abundance of musical numbers, arias and recitatives, it recalls an opera, though its story, set in Catfish Row, the glum black ghetto in Charleston, South Carolina, would designate it as a folk opera, a subtle nuance that has its importance. And again, because its authors feared that the tag would damage its chances of success when it premiered on October 10, 1935, it was presented in a Broadway theatre as a standard musical, even though there was really nothing standard about it.

Be that as it may, Porgy and Bess stands out today as an incredible theatrical achievement, one of the most colorful, large-scale offerings ever to come from the fertile pens of George and Ira Gershwin, who completed it in little over 20 months, a show that is often mentioned as the best example of the American musical theatre at its most creative and expressive. Though not a success in 1935 (it only played 124 performances), it nonetheless attracted both music and theater critics from all the dailies at the time, who only had praises for its score, in which "It Ain't Necessarily So," "I Loves You Porgy," "I Got Plenty O' Nuttin'," and "Summertime," its most recognizable tune, soon emerged as qualified hits.

Revived in 1942, in a somewhat downsized presentation, with Todd Duncan and Anne Brown reprising the roles they had created in 1935, and with Avon Long portraying Sportin' Life, the drug dealer who convinces Bess to leave Porgy and move to New York, the show had a successful run of 286 performances. It also yielded a cast album recording, the first listed above, which, though in mono sound, and only presenting the highlights from the score, still stands out as a historical document of prime importance.

Subsequently revived several times, it returned to Broadway in 1976, in a sumptuously theatrical production by the Houston Grand Opera that restored many scenes and musical moments previously discarded, and truly made it the "opera" Gershwin had initially envisioned. With Clamma Dale giving a breathtaking performance as Bess, the show had a run of 122 performances, extended from its original four-week engagement, before touring the country for several years. The complete cast album recording, on RCA, made shortly after the premiere on September 25, 1976, is the best available anywhere, a vibrant, outstanding testimony to Gershwin's musical genius.

Purlie

1990, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Purlie, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: Gary Geld; Lyrics: Peter Udell; Choral Arrangements and Orchestrations: Garry Sherman, Luther Henderson; Musical Direction: Joyce Brown; Cast: Cleavon Little (Purlie), Melba Moore (Lutiebelle), Novella Nelson (Missy), Sherman Hemsley (Gitlow), Linda Hopkins (Church Soloist), C. David Colson (Charlie), Helen Martin (Idella), John Heffernan (Ol' Cap'n); Album Producer: Andy Wiswell; Engineer: Bob Arnold; CD Producer: Bill Rosenfield; Engineer: Jay Newland.

Selections: 1 Walk Him Up The Stairs (6:03) Linda Hopkins; 2 New Fangled Preacher Man (2:17) Cleavon Little; 3 Skinnin' A Cat (1:52) Sherman Hemsley; 4 Purlie (3:49) Melba Moore; 5 The Harder They Fall (2:46) Cleavon Little, Melba Moore; 6 The Barrels Of War/The Unborn Love (:46) C. David Colson, Helen Martin; 7 Big Fish, Little Fish (2:23) John Heffernan, C. David Colson; 8 God's Alive (:31) C. David Colson, Helen Martin; 9 I Got Love (3:17) Melba Moore; 10 Great White Father (2:37)Male Ensemble; 11 Down Home (6:00) Cleavon Little, Novella Nelson; 12 First Thing Monday Mornin' (4:48)Male Ensemble; 13 He Can Do It (4:11) Novella Nelson, Melba Moore; 14 The World Is Comin' To A Start (2:47) C. David Colson; 15 Walk Him Up The Stairs/Epilogue (2:19) Cleavon Little.

Review: Based on Ossie Davis' "Purlie Victorious," Purlie is best remembered today for its cast of great performers, which include Cleavon Little, Melba Moore in her first starring role since Hair, Linda Hopkins, Sherman Hemsley (before he found grace on television as the irascible Jefferson), and Novella Nelson, a much underrated vocalist. Besides providing Melba Moore with one of her signature songs ("I Got Love"), the predictable score by Gary Geld and Peter Udell (also responsible for Shenandoah), has little to recommend it for, though Purlie lasted long enough, in a season marked by the absence of great shows, to cop a Tony as Best Musical, as well as one for its female star.

Ragtime

1996, RCA Records; from the studio cast recording Ragtime, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Flaherty; Lyrics: Lynn Ahrens; Orchestrations: William David Brohn; Vocal Arrangements: Stephen Flaherty; Musical Direction: Ted Sperling; Cast: Brian Stokes Mitchell (Coalhouse Walker, Jr.), Peter Friedman (Tateh), Marin Mazzie (Mother), Audra McDonald (Sarah), Mark Jacoby (Father), Lynnette Perry (Evelyn Nesbit), Steven Sutcliffe (Mother's Younger Brother), Mary Bond Davis (Sarah's Friend), Jim Corti (Harry Houdini), Michael Fletcher (Henry Ford), Camille Saviola (Emma Goldman), Nicholas Rose (Little Boy), Afton Eddy (Little Girl); Album Producer: Jay David Saks; Engineer: James P. Nichols.

Selections: 1 Ragtime (3:12) Nicholas Rose; 2 Goodbye My Love (2:13) Marin Mazzie; 3 Journey On (3:38) Mark Jacoby, Alan Swann, Afton Eddy, Peter Friedman, Marin Mazzie; 4 The Crime Of The Century (2:06) Lynnette Perry; 5 Gettin' Ready Rag (3:07) Brian Stokes Mitchell, Mary Bond Davis; 6 Henry Ford (1:38) Michael Fletcher, Brian Stokes Mitchell; 7 Your Daddy's Son (3:43) Audra McDonald; 8 New Music (4:04) Mark Jacoby, Marin Mazzie, Steven Sutcliffe, Brian Stokes Mitchell, Audra McDonald; 9 Wheels Of A Dream (3:39) Brian Stokes Mitchell, Audra McDonald; 10 The Night That Goldman Spoke At Union Square (2:15) Camille Saviola, Steven Sutcliffe; 11 Gliding (2:14) Peter Friedman; 12 'Till We Reach That Day (4:32) Mary Bond Davis, Brian Stokes Mitchell, Camille Saviola, Marin Mazzie, Peter Friedman, Steven Sutcliffe, Paula Newsome; 13 What A Game! (2:34) Mark Jacoby, Nicholas Rose; 14 Coalhouse's Soliloquy (1:55) Brian Stokes Mitchell; 15 He Wanted To Say (3:52) Steven Sutcliffe, Brian Stokes Mitchell, Camille Saviola; 16 Buffalo Nickel Photoplay, Inc. (2:05) Peter Friedman; 17 Our Children (2:21) Marin Mazzie, Peter Friedman; 18 The Show Biz (3:13) Jim Corti, Lynnette Perry; 19 Back To Before (3:47) Marin Mazzie; 20 Make Them Hear You (2:46) Brian Stokes Mitchell; 21 Wheels Of A Dream (reprise)(2:41) Nicholas Rose, Brian Stokes Mitchell, Audra McDonald.

Review: It is not unusual for a Broadway-bound musical to release a cast album in advance of its premiere (many of the shows by Andrew Lloyd Webber, and Jekyll and Hyde, in recent memory, have taken that route). But the hoopla that has accompanied the release of this cast album of Ragtime, fully two years ahead of its anticipated Broadway premiere, and the excitement it has generated is truly unheard of. Written by Lynn Ahrens and Stephen Flaherty, and based on E.L. Doctorow's best-selling novel and the 1981 film it yielded, Ragtime is a dazzling, old-fashioned musical, set at the turn of the century, that chronicles the profound social changes that paved the way for modern-day American culture and intellectual importance. Though admittedly a work-still-in-progress, Ragtime is as fully realized as anything one might hear or see on Broadway these days, with Marin Mazzie, Mark Jacoby, Audra McDonald and Brian Stokes Mitchell giving incredible life and energy to some of the main characters in this kaleidoscopic story.

Review: A modern treatment of Puccini's La Boheme, the ultimate romantic opera, Rent, which opened on Broadway on April 29, 1996, and is still running at this writing, is the work of Jonathan Larson, a promising young playwright-songwriter who died of an aortic aneurysm a few hours after the show's final dress rehearsal. Set in New York's East Village, the show is a joyous and turbulent musical that celebrates a community of young artists as they struggle with the soaring hopes and tough realities of today's life. Propelled by a contemporary rock score that gives it a vitality not unlike that of Hair three decades earlier, Rent tells the story of friends living in a rundown apartment in the East Village: Roger, an HIV-infected songwriter, and Mark, a would-be filmmaker, forever chronicling on video the various elements of life around them. Enter Mimi, the proverbial girl next door, a dancer in a nightclub of dubious repute and a chronic drug user, who seduces Roger, only to walk out on him later on. Add to the mix of characters Maureen, who has ditched Mark for Joanne, a lawyer; Tom, a computer-age expert and philosopher, who falls for Angel, a transvestite sculptor; and various other cutting-edge denizens, and voila! Brash, brilliant, occasionally unfocused and messy, Rent is a rock opera filled with junkies, bohemian types, artists, prostitutes, lesbians and homosexuals, the kind of stuff one would have thought unlikely to succeed in traditional Broadway. Yet, the show was roundly praised by critics, went on to win the Tony as Best Musical, and a Pulitzer Prize to boot (a rare occurrence in the musical theatre), and has been a hot ticket ever since. Though the score, presented complete on a 2-CD set recorded shortly after the opening, doesn't include a hit song along the lines of Hair's "Good Morning Starshine" or "Let the Sunshine In," it receives a colorful, authoritative reading from Adam Pascal, Anthony Rapp, Jesse L. Martin, Fredi Walker, Wilson Jermaine Heredia, Daphne Rubin-Vega, and Idina Menzel in the principal roles, with the anthem-like "La Vie Boheme" very likely to elicit strong, positive reactions from any listener.

The Rink

1984, Polydor Records; from the Broadway production The Rink, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: John Kander; Lyrics: Fred Ebb; Orchestrations: Michael Gibson; Musical Direction: Paul Gemignani; Cast: Liza Minnelli (Angel), Chita Rivera (Anna), Scott Holmes (Dino), Mel Johnson, Jr. (Hiram), Scott Ellis (Sugar), Frank Mastrocola (Tom), Jason Alexander (Lenny), Ronn Carroll (Dino's Father); Album Producer: Norman Newell; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 Colored Lights (5:32) Liza Minnelli; 2 Chief Cook And Bottle Washer (3:55) Chita Rivera; 3 Don't Ah Ma Me (2:33) Chita Rivera, Liza Minnelli; 4 Blue Crystal (2:58) Scott Holmes; 5 Under The Rollercoaster (2:03) Liza Minnelli; 6 Not Enough Magic (4:18) Liza Minnelli, Chita Rivera, Scott Holmes, Mel Johnson Jr., Scott Ellis, Frank Mastrocola, Jason Alexander, Ronn Carroll; 7 We Can Make It (3:29) Chita Rivera; 8 After All These Years (3:55) Scott Holmes, Mel Johnson Jr., Scott Ellis, Frank Mastrocola, Jason Alexander, Ronn Carroll; 9 Angel's Rink And Social Center (3:08) Liza Minnelli, Scott Holmes, Mel Johnson Jr., Scott Ellis, Frank Mastrocola, Jason Alexander, Ronn Carroll; 10 What Happened To The Old Days? (3:40) Chita

Rivera, Mel Johnson Jr., Ronn Carroll; 11 The Apple Doesn't Fall (4:19) Chita Rivera, Liza Minnelli; 12 Marry Me (3:10) Jason Alexander; 13 Mrs. A (3:50) Chita Rivera, Liza Minnelli, Jason Alexander; 14 The Rink (3:40) Scott Holmes, Mel Johnson Jr., Scott Ellis, Frank Mastrocola, Jason Alexander, Ronn Carroll; 15 Wallflower (2:12) Liza Minnelli, Chita Rivera; 16 All The Children In A Row (5:57) Liza Minnelli, Scott Ellis; 17 Finale (1:56) Liza Minnelli, Chita Rivera.

Review: Chita Rivera and Liza Minnelli share the spotlight in this original Kander and Ebb musical in which they portray a mother and her daughter, long estranged, who get back together to save from destruction a seaside roller rink the mother has been running by herself for years. Though flawed, and hardly a big hit by normal standards (it closed after a mere 204 performances, following its premiere on February 2, 1984), the show has a solidly defined score, announced by the Jacques Brel-like "Colored Lights," and featuring many excellent numbers for the two stars. The cast album brings it all together in one superlative recording.

The Roar of the Greasepaint—The Smell of the Crowd

1965, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production The Roar of the Greasepaint—The Smell of the Crowd, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Leslie Bricusse, Anthony Newley; Lyrics: Leslie Bricusse, Anthony Newley; Orchestrations: Philip J. Lang; Vocal and Dance Music Arrangements: Peter Howard; Musical Direction: Herbert Grossman; Cast: Anthony Newley (Cocky), Cyril Ritchard (Sir), Sally Smith (The Kid), Joyce Jillson (The Girl), Gilbert Price (The Negro), Murray Tannenbaum (The Bully), Rawley Bates, Lori Browne, Lori Caesar, Jill Choder, Gloria Chu, Kay Cole, Marlene Dell, Boni Enten, Mitzi Feinn, Pamela Gruen, Linda Rae Hager, Cyndi Howard, Laura Michaels, Debbie Palmer, Heather Taylor (The Urchins); Album Producer: George Marek; Associate Producer: Andy Wiswell; Engineer: Ernie Oelrich; CD Producer: Bill Rosenfield; Engineer: Anthony Salvatore.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:22)Orchestra; 2 The Beautiful Land (1:41)The Urchins; 3 A Wonderful Day Like Today (2:10) Cyril Ritchard; 4 It Isn't Enough (2:23) Anthony Newley; 5 Things To Remember (2:56) Cyril Ritchard; 6 Put It In The Book (1:31) Sally Smith; 7 With All Due Respect (2:03) Anthony Newley; 8 This Dream (2:32) Anthony Newley; 9 Where Would You Be Without Me? (2:48) Anthony Newley, Cyril Ritchard; 10 My First Love Song (3:15) Anthony Newley, Joyce Jillson; 11 Look At That Face (2:19) Cyril Ritchard, Sally Smith; 12 The Joker (2:29) Anthony Newley; 13 Who Can I Turn To (When Nobody Needs Me)(3:49) Anthony Newley; 14 That's What It Is To Be Young (1:06)The Urchins; 15 What A Man! (1:47) Anthony Newley, Cyril Ritchard; 16 Feeling Good (2:39) Gilbert Price; 17 Nothing Can Stop Me Now! (2:55) Anthony Newley; 18 Things To Remember (reprise)(1:57) Cyril Ritchard; 19 My Way (1:45) Cyril Ritchard, Anthony Newley; 20 Who Can I Turn To (reprise)(1:11) Cyril Ritchard; 21 The Beautiful Land (reprise)/Sweet Beginning (3:13) Anthony Newley, Cyril Ritchard.

Review: The eternal struggle between the haves and the have-nots, those in command and those under them, took an inordinate twist in The Roar of the Greasepaint—The Smell of the Crowd, in which Anthony Newley portrays Cocky, the eternal hopeful on the losing end, and Cyril Ritchard as Sir, whose obfuscating control Cocky tries to break, although he later realizes he needs it. The consistently satisfying score, conceived by Newley and Leslie Bricusse, is in turn elegiac, good natured, soulful, but always endearing; it yields two great solo numbers, both performed by Newley, "The Joker" and particularly "Who Can I Turn To," which soon became a favorite of cabaret singers all over the world.

Roberta

1990, CBS Special Products; from the studio cast recording Roberta, 1952.

Album Notes: Music: Jerome Kern; Lyrics: Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein II, Dorothy Fields, Jimmy McHugh; Musical Direction: Lehman Engel; Cast: Joan Roberts, Jack Cassidy, Kaye Ballard, Portia Nelson, Stephen Douglass, Frank Rogier; Album Producer: Goddard Lieberson.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:13)Orchestra; 2 Madrigal (3:26)Male Quartet; 3 You're Devastating (3:55) Stephen Douglass; 4 Let's Begin (3:11) Jack Cassidy, Joan Roberts; 5 (When Your Heart's On Fire) Smoke Gets In Your Eyes (6:03) Joan Roberts; 6 I Won't Dance (3:47) Kaye Ballard, Jack Cassidy; 7 The Touch Of Your Hand (3:26) Joan Roberts, Frank Rogier; 8 Something Had To Happen (2:12) Kaye Ballard, Jack Cassidy; 9 Yesterdays (3:57) Portia Nelson; 10 I'll Be Hard To Handle (3:35) Kaye Ballard; 11 Lovely To Look At (4:21) Joan Roberts, Stephen Douglass; 12 Finale (3:55) Kaye Ballard.

Review: A routine story, about an American sports figure who inherits a failing fashion house from his aunt in Paris and saves it from bankruptcy with the help of a friend, Roberta was the occasion for Jerome Kern to write a score that teems with great standards, including the classic "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" and "Yesterdays." Initially created in 1933, it was filmed on two occasions, in 1935, with Fred Astaire, Ginger Rogers, Irene Dunne and Randolph Scott in its cast; and again in 1952, as Lovely to Look At, with Red Skelton, Kathryn Grayson, Howard Keel, and Marge and Gower Champion.

The studio cast album, recorded in 1952 with Jack Cassidy, Portia Nelson, Joan Roberts, Stephen Douglass, and Kaye Ballard, is the only one currently available, and while not entirely up to today's exacting digital standards, deserves a particular place in any self-serving collection.

The Rocky Horror Picture Show

Selections: 1 Science Fiction/Double Feature (4:30) Richard O' Brien; 2 Dammit Janet (2:51) Barry Bostwick, Susan Sarandon; 3 Over At The Frankenstein Place (2:37) Barry Bostwick, Susan Sarandon, Richard O' Brien; 4 The Time Warp (3:15) Richard O' Brien, Little Nell, Patricia Quinn, Charles Gray; 5 Sweet Transvestite (3:21) Tim Curry; 6 Can I Make You A Man (2:07) Tim Curry; 7 Hot Patootie—Bless My Soul (3:00) Meatloaf; 8 I Can Make You A Man (reprise)(1:44) Tim Curry; 9 Touch-A, Touch-A, Touche Me (2:27) Susan Sarandon; 10 Eddie (2:44) Jonathan Adams; 11 Rose Tint My World: a) Floor Show (2:46) Barry Bostwick, Susan Sarandon, Little Nell, Peter Hinwood, b) Fanfare/Don't Dream It (3:34) P: Tim Curry,* c) Wild And Untamed Thing (1:53) P: Tim Curry, Richard O' Brien*; 12 I'm Going Home (2:48) Tim Curry; 13 Super Heroes (2:45) Barry Bostwick, Susan Sarandon; 14 Science Fiction/Double Feature (reprise)(1:26) Richard O' Brien.

Review: A cult favorite, The Rocky Horror Show took its cue from the classic horror films of the 1950s, introduced in its story elements of transvestism, spruced up the proceedings with a rock score, and set out to conquer the theatrical world. First performed in London, where it opened in June, 1973, it moved to Los Angeles, where it played various venues, including the Roxy, and made a belated debut on Broadway on March 10, 1975, closing 45 performances later. One might have thought that this would mark the end of the saga, but that same year, the show was made into a film, The Rocky Horror Picture Show, which has enjoyed incredible longevity throughout the years, particularly as a camp fixture among aficionados who faithfully attend regular midnight presentations to recite the dialogue along with the actors on screen. Starring Tim Curry as the cross-dressing Frank N Furter, and Barry Bostwick and Susan Sarandon as the lovers, the soundtrack album, released under various guises over the years, including an audience-participation version, is a hoot and a holler. Rocker Meatloaf (of "Bat Out of Hell" fame) also makes an appearance, as he did on stage.

Rover Dangerfield

1991, Warner Bros. Records; from the animated feature Rover Dangerfield, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: David Newman; Songs: Rodney Dangerfield, Bill Tragesser; Cast: Rodney Dangerfield (Rover).

Selections: 1 Las Vegas (3:01); 2 It's A Dog's Life And I Love It (1:59) Rodney Dangerfield; 3 Connie Leaves (2:43); 4 Dog Napping (:51); 5 Country (3:27); 6 Meal Time (1:11); 7 Somewhere There's A Party (1:01) Rodney Dangerfield; 8 In The Chicken Coop (:51); 9 I'd Give Up A Bone For You (2:13) Rodney Dangerfield; 10 The Sheep (:45); 11 Pep Talk (1:22); 12 Doing Well (1:09); 13 I'd Never Do It On A Christmas Tree (3:31) Rodney Dangerfield; 14 I'm In Love With The Dog Next Door (1:17) Rodney Dangerfield; 15 Back To Connie (1:50); 16 Rocky's Out (1:40); 17 I Found A Four Leaf Clover When I Met Rover (1:39) Susan Boyd.

Review: Comedian Rodney Dangerfield lent his voice and persona to this animated feature about a Las Vegas dog, with his mannerisms and talent for quick quips. While not a singer in the real sense of the word, Rover (pardon! Rodney) acquits himself very well of the musical numbers (notably the funny "I'd Give Up a Bone for You" and "I'm in Love with the Dog Next Door"), while David Newman's febrile score keeps its musical tongue firmly in cheek in a perfect reflection of the film's whimsical attitude about its subject.

Royal Wedding

1991, Sony Music Special Products; from the screen musical Royal Wedding, M-G-M, 1951.

Album Notes: Music: Burton Lane; Lyrics: Alan Jay Lerner; Orchestrations: Conrad Salinger, Skip Martin; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Johnny Green; Cast:

Fred Astaire (Tom Bowen), Jane Powell (Ellen Bowen); Album Producer: Dan Rivard; Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:27) Orchestra; 2 Ev'ry Night At Seven (4:22) Fred Astaire; 3 Sunday Jumps (3:42) Orchestra; 4 Open Your Eyes (4:47) Jane Powell; 5 An Audition (1:39) Piano solo; 6 The Happiest Day Of My Life (2:24) Jane Powell; 7 How Could You Believe Me When I Said I Loved You When You Know I've Been A Liar All My Life? (6:21) Fred Astaire, Jane Powell; 8 Too Late Now (3:48) Jane Powell; 9 You're All The World To Me (4:40) Fred Astaire; 10 I Left My Hat In Haiti (6:11) Fred Astaire; 11 What A Lovely Day For A Wedding (1:14) Chorus; 12 Finale: The Royal Wedding Day (4:06) Chorus.

Review: The 1947 marriage of Princess Elizabeth and Philip Mountbatten, and the pomp and circumstance that framed the event, suggested to M-G-M producer Arthur Freed the idea for a big screen musical. With Fred Astaire set to star, Alan Jay Lerner provided a script that paralleled Astaire's own life when he and his sister, Adele, broke up their successful Broadway song-and-dance act so that she could marry a British lord. With Burton Lane writing the music to Lerner's playful lyrics, the score added the final touch to what became a regal entertainment. Jane Powell co-starred as Ellen Bowen, who fell in love with Peter Lawford while on a transatlantic trip to London, thereby setting the stage for the end of her professional career with brother Tom, whose own interest was piqued by Sarah Churchill, real-life daughter of Sir Winston. In addition to its delightfully romantic plot, and many great songs, Royal Wedding is also remembered today as the film in which Fred Astaire, in a feat of technical fancy, dances exhilaratingly on the walls and ceiling of a room.

St. Louis Woman

1992, Angel Records; from the Broadway production St. Louis Woman, 1946.

Album Notes: Music: Harold Arlen; Lyrics: Johnny Mercer; Musical Direction: Leon Leonardi; Cast: Harold Nicholas (Little Augie), Fayard Nicholas (Barney), June Hawkins (Lili), Pearl Bailey (Butterfly), Robert Pope (Badfoot), Ruby Hill (Della Green), Rex Ingram (Biglow Brown), Milton J. Williams (Mississippi); CD Engineer: Robert Norberg.

Selections: 1 Li'l Augie Is A Natural Man (1:17) Robert Pope; 2 Any Place I Hang My Hat Is Home (2:55) Ruby Hill; 3 I Had Myself A True Love (3:13) June Hawkins; 4 Legalize My Name (2:48) Pearl Bailey; 5 Cakewalk Your Lady (1:39) Robert Pope, Milton J. Williams; 6 Come Rain Or Come Shine (2:51) Ruby Hill, Harold Nicholas; 7 Lullaby (2:59) Ruby Hill; 8 Sleep Peaceful, Mr. Used-To-Be (2:41) June Hawkins; 9 Leavin' Time (2:48)Chorus; 10 It's A Woman's Prerogative (2:51) Pearl Bailey; 11 Ridin' On The Moon (2:44) Harold Nicholas.

Review: Harold Arlen's most memorable Broadway score—a high point of his partnership with Johnny Mercer—nonetheless failed to make a hit of this tale of St. Louis at the turn of the century, chiefly because black audiences objected to its less-than-attractive portrayal of their community. More than 50 years later, it's the songs that linger, especially the now-standard "Come Rain or Come Shine" (sung by the show's leads, Ruby Hill and Harold Nicholas) and two that made a star of the young Pearl Bailey, "Legalize My Name" and "It's a Woman's Prerogative."

Marc Kirkeby

Seven Brides for Seven Brothers

1996, Rhino Records; from the screen musical, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, M-G-M, 1954.

Review: A western musical, something of a rarity in the genre, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers is a rousing, rambunctious spectacle, which drew its inspiration from Stephen Vincent Benet's story "The Sobbin' Women," itself loosely based on Plutarch's fabled tale about the abduction of the Sabine women. Transposed to the Oregon frontier in the mid-1800s, the story about the kidnapping of six lovely girls by their backwood suitors, is the occasion for a robustly-flavored series of songs and dances, magnificently staged by Michael Kidd, who gives the brothers (all dancers in their own right) two memorable numbers, "Lonesome Polecat," in which the brothers deplore their loneliness in the wilds, and the celebrated "Barn Raising," a sensational dance routine. Starring Howard Keel and Jane Powell, the film received five Academy Awards nominations, and walked away with the Oscar for best score, written by Gene De Paul and Johnny Mercer.

Review: The writing of the Constitution might not seem like a subject for a Broadway musical, yet Sherman Edwards spent some ten years of his life to research and write this compelling Tony Award-winning show which swept Broadway off its feet, when it premiered on March 16, 1969. In broad strokes, befitting its reverent topic, Sherman recounts the struggles, compromises, and backroom deals that eventually led to the document on which the destinies of the new-emerging United States were to be based, using as his main focus John Adams' life and personal miseries in writing the final draft. With its cast almost intact (Howard Da Silva, replaced in this recording by Rex Everhart, returned as Ben Franklin), the show was successfully transferred to the screen in 1972.

She Loves Me

1987, Polydor Records; from the Broadway production She Loves Me, 1963.

Review: A creamy little bonbon based on the Ferenc Molnar story The Shop Around the Corner (it already had inspired the film In The Good Old Summertime, starring Judy Garland and Van Johnson), She Loves Me presents the love affair between two young shy people who fall in love by correspondence, unaware that they are actually co-workers in the same perfume shop. The musical provided another splendid starring vehicle for Barbara Cook, as the young saleslady who loves/hates Daniel Massey, with Jack Cassidy and Barbara Baxley adding the strength of their support in two parts equally well-crafted. The score, by Jerry Bock and Sheldon Harnick, totally delightful, was eventually obscured as too lightweight when they came up, a year later, with their blockbuster, Fiddler on the Roof.

Shenandoah

1988, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Shenandoah, 1975.

Selections: 1 Raise The Flag Of Dixie (4:07)Ensemble; 2 I've Heard It All Before (2:40) John Cullum; 3 Why Am I Me? (2:34) Joseph Shapiro, Chip Ford; 4 Next To Lovin' (I Like Fightin') (3:59) Jordan Suffin, Joel Higgins, Robert Rosen, Ted Agress, David Russell; 5 Over The Hill (1:57) Penelope Milford; 6 The Pickers Are Comin' (3:44) John Cullum; 7 Meditation (5:40) John Cullum; 8 We Make A Beautiful Pair (3:26) Donna Theodore, Penelope Milford; 9 Violets And Silverbells (3:21) Penelope Milford, Gordon Halliday, Charles Welch; 10 It's A Boy! (3:22) John Cullum; 11 Freedom (2:21) Donna Theodore, Chip Ford; 12 Violets And Silverbells (reprise)(2:02) Joel Higgins, Donna Theodore; 13 Papa's Gonna Make It Alright (2:50) John Cullum; 14 The Only Home I Know (2:53) Gary Harger; 15 Meditation II (3:48) John Cullum; 16 Pass The Cross To Me (2:11) Ensemble.

Review: Opening, as it did, during a newspaper strike, Shenandoah ran the risk of passing unnoticed. Yet this inspirational tale of a peace-loving widower and his six sons caught in the Civil War (already the subject of a celebrated film starring James Stewart), not only managed to survive but went on to a long and healthy life on Broadway, racking up a total of 1,000 performances, quite a feat in those days. Though the story (and the score by Gary Geld and Peter Udell) adopt a paternalistic attitude toward Blacks (a number, "Freedom," performed by Donna Theodore, as a Southern belle, and Chip Ford, as the son of a slave, might have seemed politically correct at the time and no doubt made for good theatre, but sounded hopelessly naive and downright phony in the context), it has its share of rousing moments, and John Cullum, as the widower, made sure that his solo numbers hit the right chord in the audience's emotions.

Review: One of the great Broadway musicals, Show Boat deserves a special place in the annals of the American theatre. It's little wonder that 70 years after its creation, it still rings with the same energy and fervor that stirred audiences in 1928. While its extraordinarily rich score brims with many memorable songs, it spawned one unsurpassed hit in "Ol' Man River," probably the most powerful statements about human life ever written. The first true "American" musical, in the best sense of the word, and a pioneering work of imposing magnitude, Show Boat presents a broad diorama about the evolution of this country, from the floating crap games aboard steamers down the Mississippi in the last part of the 19th century, to the industrial revolution that swept the country earlier in the present one. While its book remains hopelessly unbalanced (the first act covers a couple of years, while more than 40 years are collapsed into the second, leading to an uneven spread in the dramatic modus operandi), its diversified score includes romantic duets ("Make Believe," "You Are Love"), torch songs ("Bill"), showbiz anthems ("Life Upon the Wicked Stage"), and rousing choruses ("Cotton Blossom") among its many wonderful highlights.

There are many recordings of that legendary musical available, and collectors might be faced with a real dilemma when trying to decide which one to own. The choice is made even more difficult as there is no definitive recording available.

Among those listed above, the 1966 studio cast album is mentioned here, particularly for Barbara Cook's sensitive portrayal as Magnolia.

The 1994 Broadway revival cast album is also highly recommended, despite the fact that Mark Jacoby sounds a bit too "nice" as the cad Ravenal. But the modern sonics are superb, and the recording also contains many selections not otherwise available.

The soundtrack album is a gorgeous treatment in its own right, with Howard Keel and Kathryn Grayson at the peak of their respective talents as Ravenal and Magnolia, and Ava Gardner (dubbed by Annette Warren) resplendent as Julie. This recording also includes several selections not found elsewhere, and, as is usual with Rhino, it is presented with a lot of extras (both audio and visual) that make it a rare treat.

Review: A clever revue consisting of songs by Stephen Sondheim, Side by Side by Sondheim originated in London, where it opened on May 4, 1976, before moving to Broadway on April 18, 1977, for a run of 390 performances. Since the material is already well-known and accepted, what is important here is the caliber of the performers, with Millicent Martin, one of the bright stars from the British stage, making a remarkable contribution, surrounded by Julia McKenzie and David Kernan, with Ned Sherrin providing the sly comments.

Silk Stockings

1988, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Silk Stockings, 1955.

Album Notes: Music: Cole Porter; Lyrics: Cole Porter; Orchestrations: Don Walker; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Herbert Greene; Cast: Don Ameche (Steve Canfield), Hildegarde Neff (Ninotchka), Gretchen Wyler (Janice Dayton), George Tobias (Commissar Markovitch), Henry Lascoe

(Ivanov), Leon Belasco (Brankov), David Opatoshu (Bibinski); Album Producers: Hugo Winterhalter, Joe Carlton; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:38)Orchestra; 2 Too Bad (1:41) Henry Lasco, Leon Belasco, David Opatoshu; 3 Paris Loves Lovers (3:14) Don Ameche, Hildegarde Neff; 4 Stereophonic Sound (2:21) Gretchen Wyler, Edward Becker, Tony Gardell, Arthur Rubin; 5 It's A Chemical Reaction, That's All/All Of You (4:02) Hildegarde Neff, Don Ameche; 6 Satin And Silk (3:38) Gretchen Wyler; 7 Without Love (3:05) Hildegarde Neff; 8 Hail Bibinski (3:05) David Optaoshu, Henry Lascoe, Leon Belaso; 9 As On Through The Seasons We Sail (2:29) Don Ameche, Hildegarde Neff; 10 Josephine (4:43) Gretchen Wyler; 11 Siberia (2:48) Henry Lascoe, Leon Belasco, David Opatoshu; 12 Silk Stockings (2:07) Don Ameche; 13 The Red Blues (3:51)Chorus; 14 Finale (:48)Company.

Review: East-West relations took a musical turn in this clever adaptation of Melchior Lengyel's amusing play, Ninotchka, with Cole Porter providing the divertissement. Don Ameche is in top form as an American in Paris, a talent agent who seduces a stern Russian envoy, played by Hildegarde Neff, sent to investigate three former Russian colleagues, and converts her to the Western way of life. While the show, which opened on February 4, 1955, had a somewhat disappointing run of 478 performances, it provided another great vehicle for Fred Astaire, playing opposite Cyd Charisse, when it transferred to the screen in 1957, with its score almost intact.

Review: Some things in life are so familiar, and our senses so attuned to them, that we can almost "sense" them without actually seeing or hearing them fully. Certainly, one of life's great "comfort" sounds is the enchanting, mesmerizing opening patter of the raindrops, and Gene Kelly's soft "Ooo-da-loo-doo"-ing from Singin' in the Rain.

Thankfully, the restoration of the soundtrack recording of Singin' in the Rain has been entrusted to the tender, loving care of the folks at Rhino Records, specifically producers Marilee Bradford and Bradley Flanagan, who deserve immeasurable credit for undertaking the preservation of the rich catalog of spectacular M-G-M musicals. Finally, one of the most beloved and important musicals in film history has been given the royal treatment it deserves: this new definitive release brims with extended recordings and previously unreleased outtakes, rare production stills and insightful recollections from the writers of the screenplay, Betty Comden and Adolph Green.

The musical selections are presented in their original order (as they appear in the conductor's score), and wherever possible, have been remixed from the original recording "angles" (tracks recorded with different microphone placements) to create the first true stereo recordings from the score. Although the sound is dated by today's standard (keep in mind the relatively primitive conditions under which film tracks were recorded and mixed, and that they weren't intended for modern "home" hi-fi consumption), it is very enjoyable.

In addition to the extended recordings (notably, Gene Kelly's "All I Do Is Dream of You") and other surprises (the restoration of the instrumental opening to "Singin' in the Rain," and the outtake of "You Are My Lucky Star"), the finishing touch is the inclusion of a 1941 performance of the title song by none other than its lyricist, Arthur Freed!

Review: The first, and by far most memorable full-length animated feature from the Disney Studios, Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs may have been superseded technically by many of the films that followed it. But its simple story of a charming little princess saved from the evil deeds of her mother-in-law by a group of seven adorable dwarfs made history when it was first released in December, 1937, and has since become an incomparable screen classic. With its exquisite score by Frank Churchill, Leigh Harline and Paul J. Smith, Snow White continues to enchant generations of young viewers and their parents, whose earliest memories are forever tied to "With a Smile and a Song," "Whistle While You Work," "Heigh-Ho," and "Someday My Prince Will Come," among the film's many musical highlights. Today, it still stands out as a perfect example of unsurpassed quality in animated filmmaking, made all the more memorable in this compact disc, which includes a lot of incidental music and reprises, available here for the first time.

Review: A celebration of the great Duke Ellington, Sophisticated Ladies, which opened on Broadway on March 1, 1981, benefitted from the presence in the cast of such luminaries of dance, stage and cabaret as Gregory Hines, Phyllis Hyman and Judith Jamison, as well as the Duke's own band, led by Mercer Ellington. Together, they provide the sleek entertainment that makes the show such a joy to watch.

The recording gives a measure of how successful they are, though in this instance their performances, minus the visual flash of the stage presentation, enable the listener to focus on and truly enjoy the songs of Ellington. Seldom did a composer have such classy performers to interpret his songs, and seldom did performers of this caliber have such great catalogue to work with. The two together spell pure magic!

Review: Lovers of Rodgers & Hammerstein's perennial family favorite, The Sound of Music, have two wonderful ways to savor the melodic hits from the wholesomest of all the pair's collaborations: both the original Broadway cast recording (Mary Martin and Theodore Bikel, 1959), and the classic film soundtrack (Julie Andrews and Christopher Plummer, 1965).

While the original cast album has long lived in the imposing shadow of the film soundtrack, it offers a clearer picture of what Richard Rodgers and Oscar Hammerstein II must have intended for this, the last of their shows. What is important about the performances on this disc is that they seem simpler and less complex than the film. One of the finest in a long line of successful cast albums produced for Columbia by Goddard Lieberson, the recently remixed version has been remastered in 20-bit "high definition" sound, and reveals the breadth and clarity of the original recording (made at Columbia's fabled 30th Street studio—Lieberson's pride and joy, chosen specifically for such sessions) with amazing fidelity.

The famous RCA Victor album has, of course, been etched in the American subconscious, and is what most people fondly recollect whenever The Sound of Music is mentioned. And rightfully so. The film was a huge success (and continues to be a strong ratings grabber for television networks): colorful, lavish, and above all, memorable for its breathtaking opening scenes, overall cinematic beauty, and the intriguing, sensitive storyline. But the real ace-in-the-hole here is the young Julie Andrews' enthusiastic, sensitive approach to the songs. This newly remastered version supplants a dull, distorted and sonically inferior early CD, and rectifies former problems with not only the sound but the original running order as well. While one wishes that the producers of this reissue had sought out additional cues and extra musical material (available in a special CD included with the film's rerelease on laserdisc), this disc is an essential part of the venerable R&H catalog.

Review: One of the best Rodgers and Hammerstein musicals, South Pacific received a gorgeous treatment in its first incarnation, with Mary Martin radiant as Nelly Forbush, the American nurse assigned to a Pacific island during World War II, who falls in love with a French planter, Emile de Becque (Ezio Pinza), only to discover that he has two children from a native, something that conflicts with Nelly's small-town values. In a show that makes no bones where its heart is, race relations also play a crucial role in the secondary plot between Lt. Cable and Liat, the daughter of Bloody Mary, the island's wheeler-dealer. This prompted Oscar Hammerstein to write in "You've Got to Be Carefully Taught", an impassioned plea for equal rights, long before it became fashionable.

The magnificent score yields many other memorable moments, among them "Some Enchanted Evening" and "This Nearly Was Mine," powerfully delivered by Pinza, a former basso from the Met making a career comeback in the show; "Bali Ha'i," in which Bloody Mary evokes a mysterious island; "A Wonderful Man" and "A Cockeyed Optimist," in which Nelly shows the exuberant side of her personality; "Younger Than Springtime," which gives Lt. Cable an opportunity to become lyrical in the midst of his personal conflicts; and "There Is Nothin' Like A Dame" and "Bloody Mary," two rousing choruses for the Army and Navy personnel on the atoll. The second musical to be awarded the Pulitzer Prize, South Pacific opened on April 7, 1949, for a long run of 1,925 performances, and won nine Tony Awards, including one each for its principals, one each for its creators, and one for Best Musical.

In its transfer to the screen, however, the show fared less well, with Mitzi Gaynor an apt but ultimately bland substitute for Doris Day, the producers' first choice. Rossano Brazzi (dubbed by Giorgio Tozzi)was somewhat better as Emile, and John Kerr (dubbed by Bill Lee) as Cable. Adding to the negative impression left by the film, shot through monochrome lenses in an ill-advised decision to try and create "an effect," some of the other principals were also dubbed, including of all people Juanita Hall, the only holdover from the Broadway original, whose singing voice was Muriel Smith.

Coward)(1:39) Daniel Massey; 20 Star! (S. Cahn/J. Van Heusen)(2:16).

Review: Julie Andrews, portraying Gertrude Lawrence, is quite fetching in this glossy biographical musical film, in which she performed some of the great hits created by Lawrence. With an abundance of memorable songs, many of them written by the cream of Broadway and London tunesmiths, a glamorous era in the musical theatre as backdrop, and a flamboyant character as its main focus, the film became a veritable showcase for Andrews, who is dazzling in it. The recently-reissued CD includes a couple of previously unreleased numbers.

A Star Is Born

1988, Columbia Records; from the screen musical A Star Is Born, Warner Bros. Pictures, 1954.

Deutsch; Engineer: Tim Geelan.

Selections: 1 Overture (2:04) Orchestra; 2 Gotta Have Me Go With You (3:17) Judy Garland; 3 The Man That Got Away (4:37) Tommy Noonan, Judy Garland; 4 Born In A Trunk (medley): Swanee (G. Gershwin/I. Gershwin)/I'll Get By (R. Turk/F.

Ahlert)/You Took Advantage Of Me (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)/Black Bottom (B.G. DeSylva/L. Brown/R. Henderson)/The Peanut Vendor (M. Sdunshine/L. Gilbert/M. Simon)/My Melancholy Baby (G. Norton/E. Burnett)/Swanee (reprise)(15:07) Judy Garland; 5 Here's What I'm Here For (3:09) Judy Garland; 6 It's A New World (2:27) Judy Garland; 7 Someone At Last (6:41) Judy Garland; 8 Lose That Long Face (3:54) Judy Garland.

Review: In 1988, Ronald Haver wrote one of the most interesting books pertaining to film history. That book, A Star Is Born: The Making of the 1954 Movie and its 1983 Reconstruction deals with the film A Star Is Born, and the trials and tribulations that Judy Garland and then husband Sid Luft created and endured in bringing Moss Hart's bittersweet tale of love and fame to the big screen. The book paints a fascinating picture of all the elements that combine together to create what would become Garland's Hollywood "comeback," and her last true success. One of those elements, the music, is what has propelled this terrific film into the annals of Hollywood history—and what survives as one of the most pleasing and alluring of all film soundtrack recordings.

Until the release of this Columbia CD, there existed no stereo album of these familiar songs, most by Harold Arlen and Ira Gershwin. After an ambitious film restoration made it clear that a true stereo recording existed, a search was conducted, and the result is this disc—the finest release of this soundtrack to date. The sonics, carefully restored, are excellent, despite the limitations of stereo film recording technology in 1954 (and several years before stereo became a standard in recording studios). It is a true revelation to hear Garland classics like "The Man That Got Away," "Gotta Have Me Go With You," and the mammoth "Born in a Trunk" sequence without the sonic murk of the original Columbia/Harmony LPS. The music, and Ray Heindorf's outstanding orchestrations are so appealing, that one wishes there were more musical cues to be heard. (There were, initially, but unfortunately these were removed at the last minute, for contractual reasons). While a complete soundtrack, coinciding with the film restoration, would have made for a spectacular release, this outstanding recording fits a special niche, and leaves us hoping that maybe someday...

(4:04) Scott Wise, Andrea McArdle; 8 You Never Had It So Good (3:31) Donna McKechnie, Ian Knauer, James Patterson, Michael Lee Scott, Scott Willis; 9 It Might As Well Be Spring (reprise)(1:37) Andrea McArdle, Kathryn Crosby; 10 When I Go Out Walking With My Baby (2:00) John Davidson, Kathryn Crosby; 11 So Far (3:34) Ben Wright, Donna McKechnie; 12 It's A Grand Night For Singing (4:53)Company; 13 Entr'acte (2:01) Orchestra; 14 The Man I Used To Be (4:00) Scott Wise, Tina Johnson, Leslie Bell; 15 All I Owe Ioway (5:23) John Davidson; 16 That's The Way It Happens (5:46) Andrea McArdle, Donna McKechnie, Ian Knauer, James Patterson, Michael Lee Scott, Scott Willis; 17 Boys And Girls Like You And Me (3:01) John Davidson, Kathryn Crosby; 18 The Next Time It Happens (2:28) Andrea McArdle; 19 Finale Ultimo (1:04)Company.

Review: The stage presentation of State Fair—a film musical that had previously received two screen versions, in 1946 and 1962—was a rather sad affair which looked like a road company (which it was) out of its league among other Broadway productions. With the exception of Donna McKechnie, thoroughly professional and demure as a singer willing to sacrifice everything on her way to stardom, and Scott Wise, as a smart newspaper reporter who finds love while covering a story, the others in the pedestrian cast were not on the same high quality level in this story of an Iowa farmer and his family attending the State Fair, and their adventures. Mercifully, none of the show's shortcomings are apparent on the cast recording, which focuses on the score by Rodgers and Hammerstein, in which "It's a Grand Night for Singing" and "It Might as Well Be Spring" remain two beautiful highlights.

Selections: 1 Invocation and Instructions To The Audience (5:15) Bob Gunton; 2 Saturday Night (4:18)Company; 3 Isn't It (2:19) Victoria Mallory; 4 Saturday Night (reprise)(1:11) Cris Groenendaal, Bob Gunton, George Hearn, Steven Jacob; 5 Poems (4:11) George Hearn, Bob Gunton; 6 What More Do I Need? (3:00) Liz Callaway; 7 Another Hundred People (2:35) Judy Kaye; 8 With So Little To Be Sure Of (4:17) Victoria Mallory, George Hearn; 9 Pretty Little Picture (3:31) Bob Gunton, Liz Callaway, Steven Jacob; 10 The House Of Marcus Lycus (5:21) George Hearn, Bob Gunton; 11 Echo Song (3:29) Liz Callaway, Steven Jacob; 12 There's Something About A War (4:27) Cris Gronendaal; 13 Being Alive (4:33) Judy Kaye; 14 The Miller's Son (4:23) Liz Callaway; 15 Johanna (1:55) Cris Groenendaal; 16 Not A Day Goes By (2:47) Victoria Mallory; 17 Someone In A Tree (8:57) Bob Gunton, George Hearn, Steven Jacob, Cris Gronendaal; 18 Send In The Clowns (3:20) Angela Lansbury, Stephen Sondheim; 19 Old Friends (2:42) Stephen Sondheim, Angela Lansbury.

Review: The result of a concert presentation of songs by Sondheim, held at the Whitney Museum of American Art, in New York, this collection presents 19 numbers selected from the dozen musicals he had created up to that time. The all-star cast (Liz Callaway, Cris Groenendaal, Bob Gunton, George Hearn, Steven Jacob, Judy Kaye and Victoria Mallory, many of them veterans of Sondheim's Broadway shows), received a curtain call support from Angela Lansbury and Sondheim himself. A rare occasion, thankfully captured on this bright recording.

Stop the World—I Want to Get Off

1962, Polydor Records; from the Broadway production Stop the World – I Want to Get Off, 1962.

Selections: 1 Overture/The A.B.C. Song/I Wanna Be Rich (7:30) Anthony Newley; 2 Typically English (5:15) Anna Quayle; 3 Lumbered (4:22) Anthony Newley; 4 Glorious Russian/Meilinki Meilchick (5:35) Anna Quayle, Anthony Newley; 5 Gonna Build A Mountain (2:42) Anthony Newley; 6 Typische Deutsche (3:15) Anna Quayle; 7 Family Fugue/Nag! Nag! Nag! (4:58) Anthony Newley, Anna Quayle, Jennifer Baker, Susan Baker; 8 Once In A Lifetime (2:07) Anthony Newley; 9 All American (3:40) Anna Quayle; 10 Mumbo Jumbo (2:50) Anthony Newley; 11 Someone Nice Like You (2:33) Anthony Newley, Anna Quayle; 12 What Kind Of Fool Am I? (2:31) Anthony Newley.

Review: Anthony Newley made a mesmerizing Broadway debut in Stop the World – I Want to Get Off, in which he portrayed Littlechap, a character not unlike Charles Chaplin' Little Tramp or Marcel Marceau's Blip, in love with life and its wonders, and forever victimized by those stronger or more influential than him. The overall ingratiating score yielded at least one major hit in "What Kind of Fool Am I?" which was soon covered by cabaret performers all over the world, and still stands out today as one of the most powerful numbers in the standard catalog.

Stormy Weather

1993, Fox Records; from the screen musical Stormy Weather, 20th Century-Fox, 1943.

Album Notes: The 20th Century-Fox Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Emil Newman, Alfred Newman; Cast: Lena Horne, Cab Calloway, Bill Robinson, Fats Waller, The Nicholas Brothers; Album Producer: Nick Redman; Engineers: Vincent Cirilli, Rick Victor, Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare (A. Newman)(:12); 2 Overture/Stormy Weather Ballet (H. Arlen/T. Koehler)(3:54); 3 Walkin' The Dog (S. Brooks) (1:27); 4 There's No Two Ways About Love (J.P. Johnson/T. Koehler/I. Mills) (2:42) Lena Horne; 5 Cakewalk/Camptown Races/At A Georgia Meeting (S.C. Foster/K. Mills)(2:44); 6 Linda Brown (A. Cowans)(3:38) The Tramp Band; 7 Moppin' And Boppin' (T. Waller/B. Carter/E. Kirkeby)(4:21); 8 That Ain't Right (N. Cole/I. Mills)(2:59) Fats Waller, Ada Brown; 9 Ain't Misbehavin' (T. Waller/H. Brooks)(3:57) Fats Waller; 10 Diga Diga Doo (J. McHugh/D. Fields) (3:58) Lena Horne; 11 I Lost My Sugar In Salt Lake City (L. Rene/J. Lange) (1:50) Mae Johnson; 12 Nobody's Sweetheart (G. Kahn/E. Erdman/B. Meyers/E. Schoebel)(:59); 13 I Can't Give You Anything But Love (J. McHugh/D. Fields) (2:57) Lena Horne, Bill ''Bojangles'' Robinson; 14 Geechy Joe (C. Calloway/S. Palmer/A. Gibson)(3:17) Cab Calloway; 15 Stormy Weather (H. Arlen/T. Koehler)(3:57) Lena Horne; 16 There's No Two Ways About Love (reprise)(J.P. Johnson/T. Koehler/I. Mills)(3:01) Cab Calloway, Bill ''Bojangles'' Robinson, Lena Horne; 17 My, My, Ain't That Somethin' (P. Tomlin/H. Tobias)

(2:31) Bill ''Bojangles'' Robinson; 18 Jumpin' Jive (C. Calloway/S. Palmer)(4:33) Cab Calloway; 19 My, My, Ain't That Somethin' (reprise) (P. Tomlin/H. Tobias) (1:12) Bill ''Bojangles'' Robinson, Cab Calloway, Lena Horne; 20 Good For Nothin' Joe (R. Bloom/T. Koehler)(3:07) Lena Horne; 21 Ain't Misbehavin' (alternate ending)(T. Waller/H. Brooks)(1:01) Fats Waller; 22 I Lost My Sugar In Salt Lake City (alternate)(L. Rene/J. Lange)(1:00) Mae Johnson; 23 Body And Soul (J. Green/E. Heyman/R. Sour/F. Eyton)(6:47) Cab Calloway and His Band; 24 Alfred The Moocher (C. Calloway/I. Mills/C. Gaskill)(2:50) Cab Calloway.

Review: The storyline is easily dispensable, but the songs and the performances are the thing, in this entertaining backstage saga in which Lena Horne and Bill Robinson play star-crossed lovers forever separated by their own careers. The sultry Ms. Horne delivers her signature song, "Stormy Weather," and "I Can't Give You Anything But Love," among her better moments, while Bill "Bojangles" Robinson dances up a storm in a couple of show-stopping numbers, and Cab Calloway adds his zany big band sound to some of the musical proceedings; but it is Fats Waller who literally steals the scene, the film and everything else in-between with his rendition of "Ain't Misbehavin'."

Strike Up the Band

Review: Some theatrical shows undergo so many rewritings that it is difficult to keep track of all the changes that went into their production. Such was the case with Strike Up the Band, a 1927 musical by George and Ira Gershwin, with a gloomy book by George S. Kaufman, so rife with anti-militarist ideas that it closed before it even reached Broadway. Revised, updated, and now sporting a lighter libretto—a zany story about the United States and Switzerland at war with each other over Swiss chocolate—the musical continued its way to Broadway, where it finally arrived on January 14, 1930. In its score are many gems that continue to charm today, including "The Man I Love," "Strike Up the Band," "Soon," and "I've Got a Crush on You."

The cast recording listed above, one in a continuing series of great Gershwin musicals produced under the aegis of the composer's estate, is a lavish recreation of both scores, starring Jason Graae, Rebecca Luker, Brent Barrett, Don Chastain, and Beth Fowler, with John Mauceri conducting the orchestra. Stylishly presented, with a booklet replete with information about the show and period pictures, it is an essential recording in any collection.

Summer Stock

1990, CBS Special Products; from the screen musical Summer Stock, M-G-M, 1950.

Album Notes: Music: Harry Warren; Lyrics: Mack Gordon; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Johnny Green; Cast: Judy Garland (Jane Falbury), Gene Kelly (Joe D. Ross), Phil Silvers (Herb Blake), Gloria De Haven (Abigail Falbury); Album Producer: Dan Rivard; Engineer: Ken Robertson.

Selections: 1 Overture (1:38) Orchestra; 2 If You Feel Like Singing, Sing (2:22) Judy Garland; 3 (Howdy Neighbor) Happy Harvest (2:35) Judy Garland; 4 Dig-Dig-Dig For Your Dinner (3:51) Gene Kelly, Phil Silvers; 5 Mem'ry Island (3:51) Gloria De Haven, Pete Roberts; 6 The Portland Fancy (3:18) Ray Collins; 7 You, Wonderful You (H. Warren/S. Chaplin/J. Brooks)(3:09) Gene Kelly, Judy Garland; 8 Friendly Star (3:18) Judy Garland; 9 Newspaper Dance (You Wonderful You) (3:31) Gene Kelly; 10 All For You (S. Chaplin)(1:59) Gene Kelly, Judy Garland; 11 You, Wonderful You (reprise)(1:21) Gene Kelly, Judy Garland; 12 Heavenly Music (S. Chaplin)(3:52) Gene Kelly, Phil Silvers; 13 Get Happy (H. Arlen/T. Koehler)(2:53) Judy Garland; 14 (Howdy Neighbor) Happy Harvest(Finale)(1:10) Judy Garland, Gene Kelly.

Review: For her 27th and last film for M-G-M, the studio where she had spent her entire life as a trouper, Judy Garland teamed again with Gene Kelly for a celebration of show business and the kind of backstage saga that had proved so successful in the past. In this hackneyed story, Judy owns a farm in Connecticut, and Kelly is a hoofer trying out a Broadway-bound show in a barn on the farm, with Judy eventually joining in the musical revelry. There are many attractive moments in the score (including "You Wonderful You," first performed as a duet by the two stars, then reprised by Gene in a mesmerizing "Newspaper Dance"), but the most memorable one, filmed two months after shooting had been completed, was Judy, striking in black leotard and dinner jacket, singing "Get Happy."

1984, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Sunday in the Park with George, 1984.

Album Notes: Music: Stephen Sondheim; Lyrics: Stephen Sondheim; Orchestrations: Michael Starobin; Musical Direction: Paul Gemignani; Cast: Mandy Patinkin (George), Bernadette Peters (Dot/Marie), Charles Kimbrough (Jules/Bob Greenberg), Dana Ivey (Yvonne/Naomi Eisen), Melanie Vaughan (Celeste #1), Mary D'Arcy (Celeste #2), Barbara Bryne (Old Lady/Blair Daniels), Judith Moore (Nurse/Harriet Pawling), William Parry (Boatman/Charles Redmond), Nancy Opel (Frieda/Betty), Brent Spiner (Franz), Robert Westenberg (Soldier/Alex), Cris Gronendaal (Billy Webster), Kurt Knudson (Lee Randolph); Album/CD Producer: Thomas Z. Review: One of the true pinnacles of the American musical theater, and as ambitious a musical as Broadway has seen: Stephen Sondheim and writer/director James Lapine address "the art of making art" through a fictionalized biography of the 19th century French painter Georges Seurat, set against the travails of a modern-day descendant. The score was edited and reconstructed for CD, a collaboration between Sondheim and producer Thomas Z. Shepard that captures the staged musical on disc in an innovative way. A must: apologize to your neighbors in advance, tweak your stereo, and play the choral "Sunday" very, very loud.

Review: Andrew Lloyd Webber's mammoth Gothic take on Billy Wilder's 1950 film has spawned several recordings. All are essentially similar, and distinguished only by the various actresses essaying the role. Originated by Gloria Swanson in the film, it is the story of a silent film star trying desperately to hang on to her past glory and dreams of eternal youth, only to be drawn to murder when her protégé, a playwright she has hired to help her doctor a script, ultimately rejects her advances and threatens to leave her.

Of the two versions proposed here, Patti Lupone, heard in the original London cast, sounds more dramatic and gut-wrenching, though her theatrics tend to be overbearing after a while.

Glenn Close, and the original Broadway cast (with George Hearn totally wasted in a secondary role, as Norma's chauffeur and ex-husband), strike a more positive note, though everything is again very much relative.

Because the singing is continuous throughout the show, identifying the various tracks is somewhat of a problem on some recordings. Highlights have been indicated whenever possible.

Sweeney Todd

1979, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Sweeney Todd, 1979.

(Anthony Hope), Ken Jennings (Tobias Ragg), Merle Louise (Beggar Woman), Jack Eric Williams (The Beadle), Edmund Lyndeck (Judge Turpin), Joaquin Romaguera (Pirelli); Album Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Engineer: Anthony Salvatore.

Selections: CD 1: 1 Prelude/The Ballad Of Sweeney Todd (3:34) Len Cariou; 2 No Place Like London (3:40) Victor Garber, Len Cariou, Merle Louise; 3 The Barber And His Wife (2:41) Len Cariou; 4 The Worst Pies In London (2:25) Angela Lansbury; 5 Poor Thing (3:27) Angela Lansbury; 6 My Friends (2:44) Len Cariou, Angela Lansbury; 7 The Ballad Of Sweeney Todd (:55)Members of the Company; 8 Green Finch And Linnet Bird (2:29) Sarah Rice; 9 Ah, Miss (2:25) Victor Garber, Sarah Rice, Merle Louise; 10 Johanna (1:55) Victor Garber; 11 Pirelli's Miracle Elixir (3:50) Ken Jennings, Len Cariou, Angela Lansbury, Joaquin Romaguera; 12 The Contest (5:12) Joaquin Romaguera; 13 The Ballad Of Sweeney Todd (:31)Members of the Company; 14 Wait (2:16) Angela Lansbury; 15 The Ballad Of Sweeney Todd (:41) Cris Gronendaal, Frank Kopyc, Richard Warren Pugh; 16 Johanna (3:39) Edmund Lyndeck; 17 Kiss Me (1:31) Sarah Rice, Victor Garber; 18 Ladies In Their Sensitivities (3:54) Jack Eric Williams, Edmund Lyndeck; 19 Pretty Women (4:58) Edmund Lyndeck, Len Cariou, Victor Garber; 20 Epiphany (3:17) Len Cariou, Angela Lansbury; 21 A Little Priest (7:15) Angela Lansbury, Len Cariou.

CD 2: 1 God, That's Good (6:23) Ken Jennings, Angela Lansbury, Len Cariou; 2 Johanna (5:29) Victor Garber, Len Cariou, Merle Louise, Sarah Rice; 3 By The Sea (3:32) Angela Lansbury, Len Cariou; 4 Wigmaker Sequence/ The Ballad Of Sweeney Todd (3:36) Len Cariou, Victor Garber/Quintet; 5 Not While I'm Around (3:55) Ken Jennings, Angela Lansbury; 6 Parlor Songs (3:35) Jack Eric Williams, Angela Lansbury, Ken Jennings; 7 Final Sequence (13:26)Company; 8 Epilogue: The Ballad Of Sweeney Todd (2:56) Company.

Review: Stephen Sondheim's Sweeney Todd, a masterful tale about a demon barber set in 19th-century England, will either delight or repulse you. Todd, a victim of society whose wife and young daughter are taken from him by a villainous judge, finds himself imprisoned on trumped-up charges. Returning fifteen years later to seek revenge upon his foe, he commences to shave necks and slit throats in a comedically vengeful way. What ensues is the basis for this fiendishly alluring musical, showcasing some of Sondheim's most brilliant work.

The original cast recording features Len Cariou as Todd, and Angela Lansbury as his meat-pie maker partner in crime, Mrs. Lovett. Approaching grand opera, the show is cleverly written to be almost completely sung, so the cast recording is nearly a mirror image of the original show itself. Produced by Broadway cast and classical music recording veteran Thomas Z. Shepard, the 2 CD set is indispensable listening for any Sondheim aficionado. Recorded at RCA's famed Studio A, Shepard retained all of the original stage positions, and the resulting stereo imaging is a realistic re-creation of the show's original stage movements. This is especially important when Todd slashes a throat, and the unsuspecting victim is rolled down a chute, into the basement of Lovett's meat-pie shop for disposal!

Included are two booklets: one containing a short synopsis of the play, the other a complete libretto. The plot is ghoulish; the songs, lyrics and orchestrations superb. Sweeney Todd is an unusual show and unique cast recording that no theater lover should be without.

Sweet Charity

1966, Columbia Records; from the Broadway production Sweet Charity, 1966.

Selections: 1 Overture (3:27)Orchestra; 2 You Should See Yourself (2:22) Gwen Verdon; 3 Big Spender (3:35) Helen Gallagher, Thelma Oliver; 4 Charity's Soliloquy (4:16) Gwen Verdon; 5 Rich Man's Frug (1:41) Orchestra; 6 If My Friends Could See Me Now (3:27) Gwen Verdon; 7 Too Many Tomorrows (3:04) James Luisi; 8 There's Gotta Be Something Better Than This (4:51) Gwen Verdon, Helen Gallagher, Thelma Oliver; 9 Charity's Theme (1:26) Orchestra; 10 I'm The Bravest Individual (2:18) Gwen Verdon, John McMartin; 11 The Rhythm Of Life (3:56) Arnold Soboloff, Harold Pierson, Eddie Gasper; 12 Baby Dream Your Dream (3:42) Helen Gallagher, Thelma Oliver; 13 Sweet Charity (2:42) John McMartin; 14 Where Am I Going? (3:18) Gwen Verdon; 15 I Love To Cry At Weddings (3:08) John Wheeler, Michael Davis, Helen Gallagher, Thelma Oliver; 16 I'm A Brass Band (2:43) Gwen Verdon; 17 Finale (1:21) Orchestra.

Review: Gwen Verdon, already a Broadway favorite, had her greatest stage hit in Sweet Charity, which opened on January 29, 1966, in which she portrayed a dance hall hostess, forever falling for the wrong men, but always hopeful for better tomorrows. When she meets Oscar, the proverbial tart with a heart of gold is convinced she has finally found the right man for her. However, her hopes of getting married have to be scuttled because Oscar develops cold feet at the last moment. Bravely, Charity picks up the pieces of her broken heart and moves on, supported by her friends Nickie and Helene, two other dancers like her.

The brilliant score by Cy Coleman and Dorothy Fields teemed with many showstopping moments ("If My Friends Could See Me Now," "I'm a Brass Band," "Where Am I Going?," "Big Spender," "The Rhythm of Life") that have lost none of their magic with time.

Transferred to the screen, the musical was another milestone in the career of Shirley MacLaine, playing Charity, with Sammy Davis, Jr. making a much-noticed cameo as "Daddy." The recording, though, has yet to reach the digital domain.

They're Playing Our Song

1979, Casablanca Records; from the Broadway production They're Playing Our Song, 1979.

Album Notes: Music: Marvin Hamlisch; Lyrics: Carol Bayer Sager; Musical Direction: Larry Blank; Featured Musician: Fran Liebergall (piano); Cast: Robert Klein (Vernon Gersch), Lucy Arnaz (Sonia Walsk); Album Producers: Brook Arthur, Carol Bayer Sager, Marvin Hamlisch; Engineer: Bob Merritt; Assistant Engineers: David Lattman, David Bianco; CD Engineer: Greg Calbi.

Review: Essentially a two-character play, They' re Playing Our Song recounts the romance between an Academy Award-winning composer, Vernon (Robert Klein), and the off-beat lyricist he meets and falls in love while writing pop songs with her (any resemblance between these characters and real-life Marvin Hamlisch and Carol Bayer Sager was purely coincidental). Spicing up the proceedings, at least the way Neil Simon, author of the libretto, conceived it, the two main characters share the stage with their "alter egos" who, at judicious times, reveal Vernon and Sonia's inner thoughts.

Ultimately, the show itself might have been a trifle, but propelled by its clever score, it enjoyed a long run and won even the most hardened critics.

Thoroughly Modern Millie

1967, MCA Records; from the screen musical Thoroughly Modern Millie, Universal Pictures, 1968.

Album Notes: Musical Numbers: Andre Previn; Musical Score: Elmer Bernstein; The Universal Studio Orchestra, conducted by Andre Previn; Cast: Julie Andrews (Millie), Mary Tyler Moore, Carol Channing (Muzzy), James Fox (Jimmy), Beatrice Lillie (Mrs. Meers), John Gavin (Trevor Graydon).

Van Heusen)(reprise)(:58) Julie Andrews; 13 Exit Music: Jazz Baby (M. Jerome/B. Merrill)/Jimmy (J. Thompson)/Thoroughly Modern Millie (S. Cahn/J. Van Heusen)(2:36) Orchestra.

Review: The Jazz Age served as an eloquent backdrop for Thoroughly Modern Millie, starring Julie Andrews, Mary Tyler Moore and Carol Channing as flappers in this affectionate sendup of the happy, crazy, fun days of the carefree 1920s. It merrily spoofs silent film techniques, and includes a breezy score consisting primarily of songs from the era. Directed by George Roy Hill, the film cast Andrews as a husband-hunting country girl and Moore as her friend, both residents at the Priscilla Hotel For Single Young Ladies—operated by an off-the-wall white slave trader (Bea Lilliez)—as they fight off the advances of a lively paper clip salesman. Carol Channing also appears as a rich "jazz baby" widow. Though it fails to capture the imagination the way The Boy Friend had done on stage, the film is amusingly entertaining and yielded a soundtrack album recording that is quite enjoyable.

The Threepenny Opera

Review: For me, this is one of the greatest recordings of this truly landmark German musical. The Off-Broadway revival of 1954 sparked a new interest in composer Kurt Weill, in particular his pre-Broadway German years, and led to revivals of his works from that era. While the English lyrics by Marc Blitzstein sanitized the original German of Berthold Brecht, they are poetic and convey the dark and dangerous side of this musical set in the underworld of Queen Victoria's London. The cast is as fine as could be assembled in 1954 and perhaps as fine as any era could produce, and many of its performers went on to reach more public identification in other roles. However, this recording catches everyone at their early maturity. The exception is, of course, Lotte Lenya, and what an exception! During the time of this production and recording, she came to typify for many the jazz-laden age of 1920s Berlin. In this recording, she is a standout and unforgettable, singing her songs with a mixture of toughness, sadness, anger, bitterness, fierce joy and regret. There has never been another performer like her and probably never will.

Review: One of several big screen biographies centering around some of the biggest names in Tin Pan Alley, Till the Clouds Roll By was mostly an excuse to parade M-G-M's roster of singing and dancing performers in a vast display of dazzling musical numbers, all more sensational and more grandiose than the ones preceding. The object of so much film affection this time around, is Jerome Kern, whose enormous influence on the musical theatre is undeniable, but whose highly romanticized screen story bears little resemblance to actual facts.

Lending, if not credibility, at least some excitement to the plot are the imaginative numbers, tailor-made for some of the studio's biggest stars, including Judy Garland (sensational in two numbers directed by Vincente Minnelli), Lena Horne, Kathryn Grayson, June Allyson, Tony Martin, and Dinah Shore. The film, though, reaches unfathomable levels of political-incorrectness with Frank Sinatra, clad in a white tuxedo and perched atop a rotating column, singing a satinized version of "Ol' Man River" made even more ridiculous by its frequent use of colloquialisms that contrast with the lily-white setting the number has been given. In the soundtrack album recording, all that remains are the songs, and they're terrific.

Review: Bob Hope defined grand opera as a guy who gets stabbed in the back, "and instead of bleeding, he starts singing." The same definition could somewhat apply to this monstrous production which takes more than two hours to come to its inevitable, foregone conclusion. If at least the score were interesting, one might endure the ordeal, but with the exception of a couple of numbers that stand out, many of the songs, mercifully pruned down in this cast album recording, are not sufficiently catchy and compelling to keep the audience totally rapt. Considering that the show, which opened April 23, 1997, won several Tony Awards, including best score and best musical, one might be tempted to question where have all the Broadway shows of yesteryear gone.

Taking things progressively, Titanic is a musical account of the sinking of the famed luxury liner on her maiden voyage on April 10, 1912, with the action spread over five days, from the boarding of the ship to her actual sinking after she hit an iceberg (suggested on stage by an increasingly tilting set). In his book, Peter Stone attempts to create flesh and blood characters out of the doomed passengers, the ship's owner and her captain, more concerned about speed over safety, and her designer, eventually painfully aware of her fragile constitution. Matching the lugubrious tone of the theatrical event, Maury Yeston created a profuse score that starts on a splendid high note, only to let his wall-to-wall recitatives, musical bridges, arias, duets, trios and quartets overwhelm the listener for their overall emptiness, and dour aura.

It's not that the score is bad: it's only that the songs can barely conceal the fact that these characters, well intended as they may be, have little to say to each other, before, during or after the collision that'll cost the ship its life. When, for instance, millionaire Isidor Straus, owner of Macy's, and his wife Ida face together their impending death ("Still"), one's only reaction is that a romantic duet seemed to be needed at this time, and Yeston wrote it.

Throughout, one gets the same impression that the songs are included here simply because this is a "musical," and one must have a score in a musical. When one considers that Yeston dazzled Broadway with his adventurous first show, Nine, this new venture seems like a real let-down.

Review: Already a theatrical concept in itself, even though it was first written as a studio recording, the rock musical Tommy made its belated Broadway debut on April 22, 1993, 24 years after it was originally created by The Who's Peter Townshend, John Entwistle and Keith Moon. The story of a four-year-old boy who becomes mute after he witnesses his father kill his mother's lover, Tommy was one of the first full-scale rock operas to be created, in imitation of The Beatles' Sgt. Peppers' Lonely Hearts Club Band, at a time when works of this scope were unheard of. In the ensuing years, however, it enjoyed vibrant, if restricted life as a concert piece performed by The Who, and as a camp 1975 film, remarkable for its cast which consisted of many famous rock'n'roll and film stars, including The Who's Roger Daltrey as Tommy, Eric Clapton, Elton John, and Tina Turner, among the former, and Jack Nicholson, Oliver Reed, and Ann-Margret, among the latter.

Brilliantly staged by Des McAnuff, the Broadway version altered the perception of many in theatrical circles that rock and the stage were definitely not made for each other. The show had a healthy run of 899 performances, and yielded the great cast album listed above, much more conventional than its raw-gut 1969 counterpart or the flashy film soundtrack, but properly flavorful and exciting in its own right.

Two by Two

1992, Sony Broadway; from the Broadway production Two by Two, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: Richard Rodgers; Lyrics: Martin Charnin; Orchestrations: Eddie Sauter; Dance and Vocal Arrangements: Trude Rittman; Musical Direction: Jay Blackton; Cast: Danny Kaye (Noah), Harry Goz (Shem), Joan Copeland (Esther), Madeline Kahn (Goldie), Michael Karm (Ham), Walter Willison (Japheth), Tricia O'Neil (Rachel), Marilyn Cooper (Leah); Album/CD Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Album Engineers: Fred Plaut, John Guerriere; CD Engineers: Buddy Graha, Richard King.

Selections: 1 Why Me? (2:47) Danny Kaye; 2 Put Him Away (2:05) Danny Kaye, Harry Goz, Michael Karm, Marilyn Cooper; 3 The Gitka's Song/Something, Somewhere (3:37) Danny Kaye, Walter Willison; 4 You Have Got To Have A Rudder On The Ark (4:08) Danny Kaye, Harry Goz, Michael Karm, Walter Willison; 5 Something Doesn't Happen (3:29) Tricia O' Neil, Joan Copeland; 6 An Old Man (2:41) Joan Copeland; 7 Ninety Again! (2:51) Danny Kaye; 8 Two By Two (3:52) Danny Kaye; 9 I Do Not Know A Day I Did Not Love You (2:36) Walter Willison; 10 Act 1 Finale (1:05) Danny Kaye; 11 When It Dries (4:47) Danny Kaye; 12 You (2:50) Danny Kaye; 13 The Golden Ram (2:23) Madeline Kahn; 14 Poppa Knows Best (2:33) Danny Kaye, Walter Willison, Harry Goz, Michael Karm; 15 I Do Not Know A Day I Did Not Love You (reprise)(1:50) Tricia O' Neil, Walter Willison; 16 As Far As I'm Concerned (1:52) Harry Goz, Marilyn Cooper; 17 Hey, Girlie (2:28) Danny Kaye; 18 The Covenant (3:17) Danny Kaye.

Review: Clifford Odets' amusing recounting of the Flood, "The Flowering Peach," became the basis for Two by Two, by Richard Rodgers and Martin Charnin, in which Danny Kaye made a belated comeback to Broadway as Noah, the Biblical patriarch chosen by the Almighty to build an ark and save two specimens of the Earth's fauna before the rains come. For Kaye, who had enjoyed considerable success on the screen as one of Hollywood's most gifted comedians but who had not set foot on a stage since 1942 when he first appeared in Up in Arms, the routine weekly performance schedule soon became unbearable, and he took advantage of his star status to turn the musical into a personal showcase, much to the delight of audiences. Rodgers, however, was not amused, but as long as the show was making money, there was little he could do about it, and Two by Two enjoyed a run of 343 performances, despite the fact that Kaye eventually had to play his part in a wheelchair after he sprained his ankle.

To be truthful about it, the musical itself was not really that exciting, and its score, with the exception of the title tune and the lovely "I Didn't Know a Day I Didn't Love You," did not live up to the standards once set by Richard Rodgers.

Review: Following his 1958 Broadway musical, The Music Man, Meredith Willson hit paydirt again with another period work, The Unsinkable Molly Brown, which also gave Tammy Grimes one of her most memorable roles on Broadway. Based at the turn of the century, the show recalled the saga of the real-life Molly Brown, who rose from utter poverty in the Colorado silver mines to a life of wealth and leisure, after marrying a lucky prospector, before becoming the darling of the European elite, and surviving the sinking of the "Titanic," in an incredible streak of good luck and personal heroism.

In much the same way he had breathed great life in the score for his first show, Willson created for Molly Brown songs that were deeply rooted in Americana, with energetic marches ("Belly Up to the Bar," "I Ain't Down Yet"), lovely romantic tunes ("I'll Never Say No," "If I Knew"), and lively ensemble numbers ("Beautiful People of Denver"). Dominating the stage was Tammy Grimes, sensational as Molly, in a performance that won her a Tony Award that year. The show, which opened November 3, 1960, had a run of 532 performances.

> "Film scoring may be very rewarding, but it's also agony. Film composers are not their own masters. They are working for corporations. You accept that as part of the job."

In 1964, it became a rambunctious screen musical, with Debbie Reynolds starring as Molly opposite Harve Presnell, reprising his stage role as Johnny Brown. But with only five songs from the original score kept in the film, and an over-the-top performance by Reynolds that was coarse and less endearing, the screen version is a pale, uninteresting representation.

Review: Initially, Victor/Victoria was conceived as a screen vehicle for Julie Andrews, directed by her husband Blake Edwards, a brilliant musical with songs by Edwards' usual composer, Henry Mancini, and lyricist Leslie Bricusse. Set in Paris in the "gay" 1920s, the plot involved a complicated gender-bending mystification, in which Andrews, as Victoria, an impoverished waif with the voice of an angel, was transformed by impresario Robert Preston into Victor, a man posing as a woman, who became an overnight sensation. Much of the film's great personal charms came from the obvious chemistry between the principals, with Andrews a real delight as the ambiguous Victor/Victoria; Preston sensational as Toddy, an ageing flamboyant gay man with a devastating sense of humor and wit; James Garner, plausibly handsome as an underworld character who falls for Victor while he desperately resists what he thinks are homosexual tendencies; and Leslie Ann Warren a scene-stealer as a droll moll with a tart tongue. Adding tremendous entertainment to the film was Mancini's breezy songs and score, superbly performed by the principals, and Edwards' own light touch which turned everything into a total feast. Much of the soundtrack album retains the flavor of the film, and even adds some reprises and instrumental tracks that were not on the original LP.

Ten years later, Edwards decided that a stage version of the film would again be the ideal vehicle for Andrews' long-awaited return to Broadway. Unfortunately, Mancini died before he could finish work on the new project, and the new songs added to his score are a serious letdown. More detrimental, however, some of the film's best numbers were discarded, and replaced with songs that are stuffy and give a much more somber tone to the ensemble, when they don't seem completely out of place ("Louis Says"). Under the circumstances, Andrews still exudes a winsome charm that pervades the whole show, but Tony Roberts can't erase the memory of Robert Preston, and Michael Nouri, to put it charitably, is bland as King. The only one who strikes a note close to the original, besides Andrews, is Rachel York in the role created by Lesley Ann Warren.

Review: Without a doubt one of the most important and successful musicals to emerge from the post-war Broadway stage, West Side Story is also, unfortunately, the only one that brought together two of the most talented men in the theatre, Leonard Bernstein and Stephen Sondheim. A thoroughly riveting show set in New York's Hell's Kitchen circa late 1950s, it packed a potent statement on the human condition and has retained its social, musical and dramatic relevance for more than forty years.

As a starting point, the original Broadway cast recording is essential, as the performances by Larry Kert, Carol Lawrence and Chita Rivera are chock full of the excitement, passion and energy that make West Side Story so special. If you're looking for outstanding sonics, seek out the 20-bit SBM gold Mastersound edition, which has been remixed from the original three-track session tapes. This version vitally preserves the sensitivity and immediacy of the performances, and is far superior to the standard Columbia CD.

The famous 1961 original soundtrack recording has also been treated to a grand restoration, and while the performances themselves sometime lack the spark of the Original Broadway Cast recording, it is one of the most important soundtracks to come from the CD era. Remastered from the original multi-track, 35 mm film masters, this CD issue restores all of the film's original music, including the previously unreleased "Overture," "Finale" and "End Credit" music. A number of cues have been expanded (notably "Dance at the Gym," and "Tonight"), and all selections have been properly sequenced to reflect the original running order of the songs in the film.

Wildcat

1991, RCA Victor; from the Broadway production Wildcat, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Cy Coleman; Lyrics: Carolyn Leigh; Orchestrations: Robert Ginzler, Sid Ramin; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: John Morris; Cast: Lucille Ball (Wildcat Jackson), Paula Stewart (Jane Jackson), Keith Andes (Joe Dynamite), Don Tomkins (Sookie), Clifford David (Hank), Bill Walker (Tattoo), Swen Swenson (Oney), Ray Mason (Sandy), Charles Braswell (Matt), Edith King (Countess Emily O'Brien), Al Lanti (Cisco); Album Producers: George Avakian, Joe Linhart; Engineer: Ernie Oelrich; CD Producer: Bill Rosenfield; Engineer: Jay Newland.

Selections: 1 Overture (4:16) Orchestra; 2 Oil! (1:20) Ensemble; 3 Hey, Look Me Over! (2:10) Lucille Ball, Paula Stewart; 4 Wildcat (2:20) Lucille Ball; 5 You've Come Home (1:44) Keith Andes; 6 That's What I Want For Janie (2:39) Lucille Ball; 7 What Takes My Fancy (3:19) Lucille Ball, Don Tomkins; 8 You're A Liar! (2:56) Lucille Ball, Keith Andes; 9 One Day We Dance (3:01) Clifford David, Paula Stewart; 10 Give A Little Whistle (4:17) Lucille Ball, Keith Andes; 11 Tall Hope (4:47) Bill Walker, Swen Swenson, Ray Mason, Charles Braswell; 12 Tippy, Tippy Toes (2:15) Lucille Ball, Edith King; 13 El Sombrero (3:35) Lucille Ball, Al Lanti, Swen Swenson; 14 Corduroy Road (3:36) Keith Andes, ; 15 Finale (1:23) Company.

Review: Television's favorite redhead, Lucille Ball, made her Broadway debut on December 16, 1960, in this amusing musical by Cy Coleman and Carolyn Leigh, in which she played Wildcat Jackson, an oil prospector with a lot of chutzpah and nothing else but a dry well. The accomplished comedian kept the musical afloat, as long as she was able to stay in the cast, but when she left after 172 performances, it closed. While not many of the songs in the score were that memorable, one, "Hey, Look Me Over," in which Wildcat summons everyone to give her a fighting chance when she first arrives in the small western outpost, became a hit.

The Will Rogers Follies

1993, Columbia Records; from the Broadway production The Will Rogers Follies, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Cy Coleman; Lyrics: Betty Comden & Adolph Green; Orchestrations: Billy Byers; Vocal and Dance Arrangements: Cy Coleman; Musical Direction: Eric Stern; Cast: Keith Carradine (Will Rogers), Dee Hoty (Betty Blake), Cady Huffman (Ziegfeld's Favorite), Dick Latessa (Clem Rogers), Paul Ukena, Jr. (Wiley Post), Gregory Peck (Ziegfeld's Voice); Album Producers: Cy Coleman, Mike Berniker; Engineer: Ed Rak; Assistant Engineer: Troy Halderson.

Selections: 1 Let's Go Flying (1:49) Ensemble; 2 Willamania (6:14) Cady Huffman; 3 Never Met A Man I Didn't Like (short version)(2:18) Keith Carradine; 4 Give A Man Enough Rope ((3:49) Keith Carradine; 5 It's A Boy (3:46) Dick Latessa, Keith Carradine; 6 So Long Pa (1:34) Keith Carradine; 7 My Unknown Someone (4:19) Dee Hoty; 8 Wild West Show/Dog Act (3:04) Cady Huffman; 9 We're Heading For A Wedding (:52) Keith Carradine, Dee Hoty; 10 The Big Time (4:58) Keith Carradine, Dee Hoty; 11 My Big Mistake (2:39) Dee Hoty; 12 The Ziegfeld Follies (My Big Mistake)(3:25) Ensemble; 13 Marry Me Now/I Got You/First Act Finale (4:43) Keith Carradine, Dee Hoty, Cady Huffman; 14 Entr'acte/Give A Man Enough Rope/Rope Act (3:42) Four Men; 15 Look Around (2:11) Keith Carradine; 16 Our Favorite Son (3:42) Keith Carradine, Cady Huffman; 17 No Man Left For Me (3:19) Dee Hoty; 18 Presents For Mrs. Rogers (5:04) Keith Carradine; 19 Willamania (reprise)/Without You (2:53) Keith Carradine, Dick Latessa, Dee Hoty, Paul Ukena Jr.; 20 Never Met A Man I Didn't Like (5:12) Keith Carradine, Dee Hoty, Paul Ukena Jr.

Review: Will Rogers' easy-going, down-to-earth charm was pleasantly evoked in Keith Carradine's portrayal as the congenial satirist in The Will Rogers Follies, a big, brassy musical by Cy Coleman, Betty Comden and Adolph Green, which opened on Broadway on May 1, 1991, for a run of 983 performances.

While the show took some liberties with historical facts, it presented the salient points in Rogers' career, from his early days in the Oklahoma prairie to his starring role in the Ziegfeld Follies, to his untimely death in 1935 in a plane crash with aviator Wiley Post. Told in flashbacks, and punctuated by many eye-popping production numbers, the show benefitted from Tommy Tune's flavorful staging, in which particular moments involved a line-up of chorus girls performing precision routines that were absolutely dazzling. The Tony Award-winning score, while it did not yield a memorable hit, is solidly rooted in the great Broadway tradition and exhibits a country-style flavor that makes it all the more endearing. High among its better moments were the attractive "Never Met a Man I Didn't Like," borrowed from Rogers' own remark, and the exhilarating "Willamania."

Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory

1996, MCA Records; from the screen musical Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory, Paramount Pictures, 1971.

Album Notes: Music: Leslie Bricusse; Lyrics: Leslie Bricusse, Anthony Newley; Orchestrations: Walter Scharf; The Paramount Studio Orchestra conducted by Walter Scharf; Cast: Gene Wilder (Willy Wonka), Jack Albertson (Grandpa Joe), Peter Ostrum (Charlie); Album Producer: Tom Mack; CD Producer: Andy McKaie; Engineer: Mark Omann.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Golden Ticket/Pure Imagination)(2:07); 2 The Candy Man (2:31); 3 Charlie's Paper Run (1:09); 4 Cheer Up, Charlie (2:39); 5 Lucky Charlie (2:06); 6 (I've Got A) Golden Ticket (3:09); 7 Pure Imagination (4:20); 8 Oompa Loompa (:57); 9 The Wondrous Boat Ride (3:32); 10 Everlasting Gobstoppers/Oompa Loompa (3:17); 11 The Bubble Machine (2:56); 12 I Want It Now/Oompa Loompa (2:49); 13 Wonkamobile, Wonkavision/Oompa Loompa (1:48); 14 Wonkavator/End Title (Pure Imagination)(3:08).

Review: Based on the children's story, Charlie and the Chocolate Factory, by Road Dahl, Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory is a charming little film fantasy that stars Gene Wilder in the title role of a candymaker who puts five golden tickets inside a candy bar run and invites the winners to visit his chocolate factory. Though a mildly pleasant, colorful effort (it was entirely shot in scenic Bavaria) the film didn't have the staying power of other film musicals like Mary Poppins or Chitty Chitty Bang Bang, and was not a big box office hit as a result. However, its score by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley yielded at least two recognizable tunes in "The Candy Man," which Sammy Davis, Jr. later on turned into a personal hit, and "Pure Imagination."

The Wiz

1975, Atlantic Records; from the Broadway production The Wiz, 1975.

Album Notes: Music: Charlie Smalls; Lyrics: Charlie Smalls; Orchestrations: Harold Wheeler; Vocal Arrangements and Musical Direction: Charles H. Coleman; Cast: Stephanie Mills (Dorothy), Tiger Haynes (The Tinman), Ted Ross (The Cowardly Lion), Hinton Battle (The Scarecrow), Mabel King (Wicked Witch Of The West), Tasha Thomas (Aunt Em), Clarice Taylor (Good Witch Of The North), Andre de Shields (The Wiz), Dee Dee Bridgewater (Glinda); Album Producer: Jerry Wexler; Engineer: Phil Ramone.

Selections: 1 Prologue (:20) Orchestra; 2 The Feeling We Once Had (3:36) Tasha Thomas; 3 Tornado (T. Graphenreed/H. Wheeler)(3:25) Orchestra; 4 He's The Wizard (3:19) Clarice Taylor; 5 Soon As I Get Home (3:25) Stephanie Mills; 6 I Was Born On The Day Before Yesterday (3:20) Hinton Battle; 7 Ease On Down The Road (2:26) Hinton Battle, Stephanie Mills; 8 Slide Some Oil To Me (2:21) Tiger Haynes; 9 I'm A Mean Ole Lion (1:41) Ted Ross; 10 Be A Lion (4:03) Stephanie Mills; 11 So You Wanted To See The Wizard (1:53) Andre de Shields; 12 What Would I Do If I Could Feel (2:53) Tiger Haynes; 13 Don't Nobody Bring Me No Bad News (2:30) Mabel King; 14 Everybody Rejoice (L. Vandross)(2:48) Ensemble; 15 Y'all Got It (2:14) Andre de Shields; 16 If You Believe (2:17) Dee Dee Bridgewater; 17 Home (Finale)(3:31) Stephanie Mills.

Review: Pop singer Stephanie Mills portrayed Dorothy, Tiger Haynes the Tinman, Ted Ross the Cowardly Lion, and Hinton Battle the Scarecrow in this modernized, black version of the classic The Wizard of Oz, with a new score by Charlie Smalls. While the show made no attempt to erase the memories left by the 1939 film classic starring Judy Garland, it took the same basic story outline and transformed it into an exuberant, colorful stage display, in which Geoffrey Holder's gorgeous costumes and extravagant staging had as much of a role as did the various principals involved. Leading to the evening's big number, "Ease on Down the Road," the score also included several noteworthy songs, among them "The Feeling We Once Had," performed by Tasha Thomas, as Aunt Em; "Don't Nobody Bring Me No Bad News," roared by Mabel King, as Eveline, the Wicked Witch of The West; "If You Believe," which gave Dee Dee Bridgewater, making her Broadway debut as Glinda the Good Witch of The North, a well-deserved Tony Award; and mostly the enthusiastic "Everybody Rejoice," an ensemble number of kaleidoscopic color and movement. The show, which premiered on January 5, 1975, enjoyed a run of 1,672 performances, and won a total of seven Tony Awards, including one for Best Musical. In 1978, it became an overblown screen musical, with Diana Ross misguidedly cast as Dorothy, a young girl several decades younger than the singer.

Review: The Rhino deluxe edition of the music from M-G-M's cherished adaptation of The Wizard of Oz is so exquisite, one almost doesn't know where to start. In a nutshell, this is one of the most beautiful, and amazing CD packages ever assembled! Who knew that so much great music had been left on the cutting room floor? Did anyone believe that these vintage recordings could ever sound so good?

Undoubtedly, this very special set will strike a tender chord for those who hold fond memories of this classic film dear. From the "Main Title" on, we are treated to a fascinating cornucopia of original and previously unreleased score music (by Herbert Stothart) and songs (by Harold Arlen and "Yip" Harburg), as well as extended sequences and demos. Everything that a true connoisseur of Wizard could possibly wish for is collected here, lovingly remastered from the original recording elements for incredibly rich, detailed sound. There is a certain, unexplainable warmth and charm to the "sound" of the M-G-M films of this period, and it is retained in these new restorations.

Rounding out the package is a lavish, full color book (slipcased into the CD binder), which is chock-full of recording details, color photos, posters and ads, and the most concise synopsis and history ever written for a record issue, about the film, its creators, and the music!

In a word, awesome, and an essential addition to any music collector's library.

Review: Based on the 1940 Broadway comedy My Sister Eileen, and the 1930s autobiographical stories written by Ruth McKenney for "The New Yorker," Wonderful Town became one of the jazziest musicals ever composed by Leonard Bernstein, a delicious companion piece to the 1944 On The Town, which also has lyrics by Betty Comden and Adolph Green. Detailing the misadventures of two sisters from Ohio, Ruth and Eileen Sherwood-one the brains, the other the beauty-as they arrive in New York to find new career outlets, the show opened on February 25, 1953 to rave reviews, and enjoyed a comfortable run of 553 performances.

While the critics singled out almost every aspect of the production, they kept their highest praises for Rosalind Russell, making her debut in a musical (she had previously portrayed Ruth in a 1942 film version of the play); she repeated the role in a 1958 CBS television special, with Jacquelyn McKeever replacing Edie Adams as Eileen, and Sydney Chaplin cast as Robert Baker, the publisher in love with Ruth, played in the original by George Gaynes.

Of the two recordings listed here, the one on MCA Records is the 1953 original cast album. While in mono, it still sounds fresher and more vibrant, with the performers not yet totally settled in their roles find ways to keep the portrayals crackling and energetic.

The second CD, on Sony Broadway, is the recording of the 1958 television special, and it has the great advantage of being in stereo. By then, Rosalind Russell had found the parameters within her character and could comfortably mug her way through it. Sydney Chaplin, however, is remarkably bland, and Jacquelyn McKeever doesn't have the spontaneity so endearing in Edie Adams' portrayal.

Ziegfeld Follies

1995, Rhino Records; from the screen musical Ziegfeld Follies, M-G-M, 1946.

Album Notes: Orchestrations: Conrad Salinger, Wally Heglin; Vocal Arrangements: Kay Thompson; The M-G-M Studio Chorus and Orchestra, conducted by Lennie Hayton; Cast: Fred Astaire, Lucille Ball, Lucielle Bremer, Fanny Brice, Judy Garland, Kathryn Grayson, Lena Horne, Gene Kelly, James Melton, Victor Moore, Red Skelton, Esther Williams, William Powell (Florenz Ziegfeld); Album Producer: George Feltenstein; Engineers: Ted Hall, Doug Schwartz.

Selections: 1 Main Title (R. Edens)(2:18) Orchestra; 2 Here's To The Girls (R. Edens/A. Freed)(5:12) Fred Astaire; 3 Bring On Those Wonderful Men (R. Edens/E. Brent)(2:28) Virginia O'Brien; 4 We Will Meet Again In Honolulu (N.H. Brown/A. Freed)(outtake)(3:26) James Melton; 5 Liza (All The Clouds'll Roll Away)(G. & I. Blane) (3:30) Lena Horne; 9 If Swing Goes, I Go Too (F. Astaire)(outtake) (5:49) Fred Astaire; 10 Limehouse Blues (P. Braham/D. Furber)(7:11) Orchestra; 11 The Interview

(R. Edens/K. Thompson)(5:05) Judy Garland; 12 The Babbitt And The Bromide (G. & I. Gershwin)(5:30) Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly; 13 There's Beauty Everywhere (H. Warren/A. Freed) (outtake)(5:08) Kathryn Grayson; 14 There's Beauty Everywhere (H. Warren/A. Freed)(outtake)(7:41) James Melton.

Review: More a revue than a film musical in the real sense of the word, Ziegfeld Follies was another attempt by the powers-that-be at M-G-M to capitalize on the incredible roster of talent signed to the studio, and showcase them in a big, splashy screen vehicle with skits appropriately designed for each of them. By any measure, the caliber of talent on display was, to say the least, awesome—Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly, Kathryn Grayson, Judy Garland, and Lena Horne were some of the singing and dancing luminaries assembled for the occasion, and heard on the exquisite soundtrack album recording released recently by Rhino. Add to those, comedians like Red Skelton, Victor Moore and Fanny Brice, and siren extraordinaire Esther Williams, and you have an idea of the glittering display on view in the film.

Brilliantly directed by Vincente Minnelli, the musical boasts so many highlights that a mere listing would become tedious after a while. Astaire dazzles, as usual, in a couple of numbers in which his partner is the glamorous Lucille Bremer, and then teams with Gene Kelly (their only appearance together until That's Entertainment, Part 2, in 1976) for a spirited pas-de-deux on the Gerhswins' "The Babbit and the Bromide"; Judy Garland is at her dizziest in "The Great Lady Has an Interview"; and Lena Horne is stunning and statuesque singing "Love." These and the other glorious musical moments from the film can be heard on the Rhino set, in stereo (!), the whole package strikingly augmented with a lavish booklet that details behind-the-scenes doings in words and pictures. It's the next best thing to the film itself, and it's simply sensational!

Zorba

Zorba

1992, Angel Records; from the Broadway production Zorba, 1968.

Selections: 1 Life Is (5:06) Debbie Shapiro; 2 The First Time (4:55) Anthony Quinn; 3 The Top Of The Hill (3:12) Debbie Shapiro; 4 No Boom Boom (4:33) Lila Kedrova, Anthony Quinn, Robert Westenberg, Frank De Sal, John Mineo; 5 Mine Song (2:06) Company; 6 The Butterfly (4:11) Taro Meyer, Debbie Shapiro, Robert Westenberg; 7 Goodbye, Canavaro (2:03) Lila Kedrova, Anthony Quinn, Robert Westenberg; 8 Grandpapa (2:53) Anthony Quinn, Debbie Shapiro; 9 Only Love/The Bend Of The Road/Only Love (reprise)(6:21) Lila Kedrova, Debbie Shapiro; 10 Y'assou (2:38) Company; 11 Woman (3:11) Anthony Quinn; 12 Why Can't I Speak/That's A Beginning (3:54) Taro Meyer, Robert Westenberg, Debbie Shapiro; 13 The Crow (2:37) Debbie Shapiro, Suzanne Costellos, Panchali Null, Angelina Fiordellisi, Theresa Rakov, Rob Marshall, Peter Marinos, Peter Kevoian; 14 Happy Birthday (3:21) Lila Kedrova; 15 I Am Free/Finale: Life Is (reprise)(4:49) Anthony Quinn, Debbie Shapiro.

Review: A triumphant show from Kander and Ebb, Zorba may not have resulted in a long run, but it did result in a score of amazing versatility. Especially during this period, they displayed an almost Rodgers and Hammerstein desire to never repeat an earlier show. As is obvious from the title, this serious, passionate musical based on the novel by Nikos Kazantzakis, already the source for the film Zorba the Greek, does not take place in a Depression-ridden New York, early-Nazi Berlin or in a half-remembered, half-forgotten French Canadian town. Kander and Ebb perfectly captured the unbearable heat, stillness and half-hidden hostility of a poor village in Crete, with the songs just seeming to flow from the soul of the characters and their town.

Of the two versions available here, Herschel Bernardi stands out in the first, the 1968 original cast, as the title character whose craftiness, passion and charms are outlined in each song. Maria Karnilova as his erstwhile love interest, Mme. Hortense, practically vibrates with unfulfilled love and longing. John Cunningham and Carmen Alvarez, along with Lorraine Serabian, are the other standouts on the record. The chorus and orchestra sing and play with deep commitment.

In the second version, the 1983 Broadway revival, the two stars from the original film, Anthony Quinn and Lila Kedrova, recreated their roles, and even though neither Quinn, as Zorba, nor Lila Kedrova, as Mme. Hortense, could sing well, they knew the characters, and the songs served their characterizations. While the 1968 Broadway cast is still the version of choice in almost every instance, one exception here is Debbie Shapiro as The Woman, the role played in the original by Lorraine Serabian. Both are very good, and both are very different. Where Serabian has her own unique voice and is quite good in the role, Shapiro has a big wide Broadway style voice that can sing almost anything. Ultimately, one's preference might go for the original Broadway cast recording, but the 1983 revival has its charms and adherents.

The Addams Family

1965, RCA Records; from the television series The Addams Family, 1964-65.

Album Notes: Music: Vic Mizzy; Orchestra conducted by Vic Mizzy; Album Producer: Joe Reisman; Engineer: Dick Bogert; CD Producer: Chick Crumpacker; CD Engineer: Dick Baxter.

Selections: 1 The Addams Family: Main Theme (1:56); 2 Uncle Fester's Blues (2:13); 3 Gomez (2:00); 4 Morticia's Theme (2:38); 5 Lurch's Theme (2:12); 6 One Little, Two Little, Three Little Tombstones (2:24); 7 Thing (1:57); 8 Laugh? I Thought I'd Die (2:36); 9 On Shroud No. 9 (2:24); 10 The Addams House (1:35); 11 Hide And Shriek (2:38); 12 The Anxiety Tango (2:03); 13 The Addams Family: Main Theme (vocal)(:51).

Review: Vic Mizzy's theme music from "The Addams Family" is one of the most instantly recognizable pieces of music to originate from a film or television program, so it goes without saying that if you like the theme song, you're bound to get a rise out of this infectious soundtrack album, initially issued in 1965 by RCA. Mizzy's music often has a toe-tapping beat, a quirky tone that's frequently brought down to Earth by the composer's distinctive melodies. That quality is totally in evidence here, with clear digital remastering punching up the typically '60s production sheen courtesy of original producer Joe Reisman. A new interview with Mizzy is included in the booklet notes, along with the previously unreleased, opening TV edit of the main theme; the short running time might have been augmented by adding cues from some of Mizzy's excellent unreleased film scores (The Ghost and Mr. Chicken, The Spirit Is Willing), though that will have to wait for another day. The Ghost and Mr. Chicken contains the kind of creepy, kooky music that remains firmly implanted in your mind forever, but you don't mind because it's so much fun. Unfortunately, at this time it can only be enjoyed on the video release from MCA Home Video.

The Adventures of Robinson Crusoe

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the BBC-TV series The Adventures of Robinson Crusoe, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Mellin, Gian-Piero Reverberi; Orchestra conducted by Gian-Piero Reverberi; Album Producers: David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles (:25); 2 Main Theme (2:14); 3 Friday (1:55); 4 Crusoe's Youth Remembered (1:10); 5 Away From Home (2:11); 6 Adrift (3:22); 7 Solitude (2:24); 8 The Shelter (1:56); 9 Scanning The Horizon/Flashback: Escapades In York (1:28); 10 Cannibals! (2:29); 11 Wild Goats (2:22); 12 Palm Trees (:55); 13 In Search Of Rescue (1:44); 14 A Civilized Man (2:02); 15 Distant Shores (:32); 16 Alone (2:54); 17 Catching Dinner (1:47); 18 "Poor Robinson" (1:58); 19 Danger! (1:54); 20 Closing Titles (:46).

Review: The adventures of Robinson Crusoe, as depicted by Daniel Defoe in his 1721 novel, have inspired many filmmakers who have thrived on the tale's universal themes of ingenuity, friendship, and survival in an alien environment. The 1964-1965 13-part series, with a score by Robert Mellin and Gian-Piero Reverberi, is unusual in that it parallels Crusoe's current existence in the wild with flashbacks about his earlier life: his youth in York, his unhappy apprenticeship to a lawyer, his running off to sea, and his capture by and escape from slave traders, all elements found in Defoe's novel but seldom exploited to such an extent beforehand. As a result, the score reflects the greater diversity in the storyline, and in the midst of cues describing Crusoe's precarious existence on the (actually not so) deserted island, can afford to portray other aspects of his life ("Crusoe's Youth Remembered," "Away From Home," "Flashback: Escapades in York," etc.). The music, mostly steeped into the 1960s' style of light pop, makes an occasional detour toward more descriptive, romantic accents, usually to contrast Crusoe's current situation with reminiscences of his earlier life. It's a strange combination, particularly for a story allegedly set in the 18th century, but it's fun to listen to, which is ultimately the goal set by this oddball CD.

Alien Nation

1990, GNP Crescendo; from the television series Alien Nation, 20th Century-Fox TV, 1989-90.

Album Notes: Music: Steve Dorff, Larry Herbstritt, David Kurtz; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineers: Jeff Vaughn, Michael Hartung.

Selections: Alien Nation: 1 Prologue and Main Title (D. Kurtz/K. Johnson) (1:43); Generation To Generation (S. Dorff/L. Herbstritt): 2 Generation To Generation (:40); 3 Return To Tencton (3:54); 4 One Hot Heinrick (:52); Contact (S. Dorff/L. Herbstritt): 5 Tenctonolian Mode Groove (1:39); 6 Astronomical Discovery (1:14); 7 Tailing A Wimp (:43); Partners (S. Dorff/L. Herbstritt/K. Johnson): 8 Howdy Pod (4:03); The Red Room (S. Dorff/L. Herbstritt): 9 Alien Animal Activist (1:31); Contact (S. Dorff/L. Herbstritt): 10 A New Beginning (2:28); Crossing The Line (S. Dorff/L. Herbstritt): 11 In Your Life (2:25); Three To Tango (D. Kurtz): 12 Confrontation (:53); 13 The Monastery Three (D. Kurtz/K. Johnson)(1:05); 14 George Entertains (1:12); 15 The Ceremony (D. Kurtz/K. Johnson)(1:39); 16 Touch Heads (1:25); Real Men (D. Kurtz): 17 Presents (1:32); Gimme, Gimme (D. Kurtz): 18 George Warms Up (3:08); Little Lost Lamb (D. Kurtz): 19 Resolution (1:07); 20 Slag Pop (:55); Chains Of Love (D. Kurtz): 21 Spaced Out Lover; Real Men (D. Kurtz): 22 Sneak Attack (1:05); Chains Of Love (D. Kurtz): 23 Jenny's Story(1:32); Three To Tango (D. Kurtz): 24 Sensuality (:53); The Night Of Screams (D. Kurtz): 25 Cathy's Story (2:35); Fifteen With Wanda (D. Kurtz): 26 The Alley (1:12); Rebirth (D. Kurtz): 27 Memory Of An Old Game (2:16); Take Over (D. Kurtz): 28 George Gets It (:47); 29 Susan: Assassin (2:27); Real Men (D. Kurtz/K. Johnson): 30 Proud Fathers (2:20); Alien Nation (D. Kurtz/K. Johnson): 31 Prologue and Main Title (reprise)(1:43).

Review: One of the most intriguing aspects of this series is its remarkably creative and melodic score, a rarity in a medium that tends to demand subtle and oft-times indiscernible work. Scoring duties for the series were divided between composers Steve Dorf, Larry Herbstritt and David Kurtz, with producer Ken Johnson providing the alien language lyrics for the vocals. The principal characters are members of a civilization of aliens, marooned in central Los Angeles. The composers sought to create a unique musical signature for their society by combining Caribbean and African rhythms with a progression of weird vocal and electronic effects. The album features a variety of intriguing alien "pop" tunes ("Tenctonlian (sic) Mode Groove," "Slag Pop"), but the most stimulating are the religious ceremonial chants. "Howdy Pod," a prayer for childbirth, is one of the most memorable ones with an a Capella vocal that segueways into a gentle, synthesized theme. A superior score because of its unique and delightful mix of vocals with electronic and acoustical instruments.

Anastasia: The Mystery of Anna

1986, Southern Cross Records; from the TV movie, Anastasia: The Mystery of Anna, Telecom Entertainment, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Laurence Rosenthal; Orchestrations: Steve Bramson; Music Editor: Roy Prendergast; The Munich Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Laurence Rosenthal; Album Producer: Laurence Rosenthal; Engineer: Malcolm Luker.

Selections: 1 Main Title (Part 1)(2:02); 2 The Ballroom (2:25); 3 To Siberia (2:06); 4 The Sled/Ekaterinburg (2:50); 5 Family Only (1:46); 6 The Cellar (2:26); 7 Berlin Bridge (2:23); 8 Confronting Sophie (3:03); 9 After The Interview (1:55); 10 The Railroad Car (1:56); 11 Main Title (Part 2)/ Faces From The Past (2:02); 12 The Denial (1:51); 13 Shopping Spree (2:00); 14 The Romanoffs (:39); 15 At The Astor (1:27); 16 Russian Antiques (1:15); 17 Darya Says No (1:57); 18 The Luncheonette (1:15); 19 Back To Europe (2:14); 20 Anna And Erich (7:22).

Review: "Anastasia: The Mystery of Anna," shown in 1986, with Amy Irving in the title role and a cast that included Olivia de Havilland, Elke Sommer, Claire Bloom, Omar Sharif and Rex Harrison, essentially covers the same grounds as the 1956 film of the same name starring Ingrid Bergman and Yul Brynner. But to composer Laurence Rosenthal, the story suggested a totally different approach than the one taken in the film by Alfred Newman. As Rosenthal describes it in his notes, his score is essentially three scores instead of one, each reflecting the locales in which the story unfolds, their specific atmosphere and their distinct cultural milieu. Initially stately and elegant, like the waltz from Tchaikosvky's "Eugene Onegin," from which it borrows its exulted tone, the score turns melancholic as the Tsar and his family are forced to go into exile, a mood reinforced by the "implacable drums and pathetic wisps of woodwind."

The second part of the score depicting Anna's life in Berlin in the 1920s, echoes the atonality that prevailed at the time in imitation of the music written in Vienna. The third influence in the score, underlying Anna's recovery and her romance with a young German aristocrat, finds its accents in the Jazz age music that was beginning to make inroads. The music, in all its diversity, manages to retain a cohesive flavor, and makes an entertaining statement.

Around the World in 80 Days

1989, Cinedisc Records; from the NBC-TV mini-series Around the World in 80 Days, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Billy Goldenberg; Music Editor: Jim Weidman; Orchestra conducted by Billy Goldenberg; Album Producer: Randall Rumage.

Selections: 1 Around The World In 80 Days: Main Theme (4:04); 2 Balloon Over Florence/Crash Italiano (2:34); 3 Elephant Rising/Valente Vendanta (3:38); 4 Celestial Light (4:52); 5 Dolly Day And The Mudgemobile (2:24); 6 Windsor Castle (4:38); 7 Thermometer Reading (4:05); 8 Hong Kong Canopy (3:48); 9 Pretty Little Sarah And Dolly Day (4:08); 10 Around The World In 80 Days: Main Theme (reprise)(2:02); 11 Where The Citrons Bloom (3:03); 12 Oh, Yes!/It's Only Saturday (3:55); 13 Steady Ol' Chap/Prepare For Death (4:11); 14 Monsieur Lenoir/Less Private (3:32); 15 9 O'Clock! (2:50); 16 Richard Bronskill 1872/Fogg And The Indians (3:54); 17 Victor Hugo Brigade (2:40); 18 Propeller (4:05); 19 Around The World In 80 Days: Ending Credits (2:22).

Review: While Billy Goldenberg is best known for his work on Broadway, he revisited the small screen in 1988 with this enjoyable score for the NBC mini-series version of Jules Verne's classic novel, starring Pierce Brosnan, Eric Idle and Peter Ustinov. Goldenberg's music is always listenable and the energetic main theme is particularly infectious; the rest of his score is likewise buoyant, well performed under the composer's direction in Ireland. Trivia buffs take note: this was a relatively early soundtrack release in the CD format, manufactured by Cinedisc in a full digital recording, with a deceptively long running time attributed to the fact that Goldenberg's "Main Theme" is included no less than four times on the album, each time in the same version!

The Astronomers

1991, Intrada Records; from the KCET-TV series The Astronomers, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: J.A.C. Redford; Featured Musicians: Stu Goldberg (synthesizers), George Doering (guitars), Ray Kelly (cello), Jon Clarke (woodwinds), Joel Peskin (saxophones); Album Producer: J.A.C. Redford; Engineers: Stu Goldberg, Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 The Astronomers (1:23); Waves Of The Future: 2 Future I (4:41); 3 Future II (6:27); Prospecting For Planets: 4 Planets (4:09); A Window To Creation: 5 Cosmology I (5:02); 6 Cosmology II (2:45); 7 Cosmology III (3:52); 8 Cosmology IV (3:38); Searching For Black Holes: 9 Quasars (1:48); Where Is The Rest Of The Universe: 10 Dark Matter (2:34); Stardust: 11 Stars I (4:20); 12 Stars II (3:41).

Review: J.A.C. Redford's score for this 1991 PBS documentary is a pleasant enough soundtrack from Intrada Records, with a nice diversity of tracks making for a smooth listening experience. Redford's score is grounded primarily in an expansive melody ("The Astronomers") that recurs throughout the album, which also includes cues that are by turns magical, mystical, dissonant and even disturbing, reflecting all of the various elements that comprise our universe—from the warmth of our own sun to the puzzling phenomena of black holes outside our solar system. Virtually the entire score is performed on synthesizers (with only some tracks featuring a small acoustic ensemble), but to the composer's credit, the score remains as imaginative aurally as the galactic visions it underscores.

The A-Team

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the TV series The A-Team, 1983-84.

Album Notes: Music: Mike Post, Pete Carpenter; Orchestra conducted by Daniel Caine; Music Adapted and Directed for Records by Derek Wadsworth; Album Producer: Michael Jones; Engineers: Keith Grant, Doug Bennett.

Selections: 1 Theme From The A-Team (3:13); 2 Young Cannibal (2:57); 3 B.A.'s Ride (2:34); 4 The A-Team In New York City (2:43); 5 Bandits! (2:08); 6 Taxi Chase (2:13); 7 The A-Team Escape (1:16); 8 The A-Team Prepares For War (2:08); 9 Showtime (3:22); 10 Move, Sucker (1:04); 11 Let's Get Busted (1:06); 12 Murdock's "Face" (3:01); 13 Helicopters (2:36); 14 More Bandits (1:22); 15 Theme From The A-Team (3:27).

Review: A faithful recreation of the themes composed for the 1983-87 series by Mike Post and Pete Carpenter with their team of co-composers (three are credited here). Principally, the album is made up of the splashy action and second unit transitional cues, the music often played as hands are seen building some odd vehicle or weapon from assorted bits and pieces. The show wasn't known for moments of tense interpersonal drama; cars crashed and things just blew up, so many of the music cues were variations of the main theme. The album features a Mexican flavored motif ("Bandits!") and several other location establishing themes ("The A-Team in New York City"), but all too often there's little variety to be found. The main theme is excessively repeated. No fault goes to Derek Wadsworth, who did a fine job adapting the music for the album from the original scores. He also conducts the orchestra under the pseudonym of Daniel Caine.

Babylon 5

1995, Sonic Images; from the television series Babylon 5, Warner Bros., 1995-97.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Franke; The Berlin Symphonic Film Orchestra, conducted by Christopher Franke; Album Producer: Richard E. Roth; Engineer: Richard E. Roth.

Selections: 1-4 Chrysalis (18:22); 5-6 Mind War (6:14); 7-9 Parliament Of Dreams (18:04); 10-12 The Geometry Of Shadows (15:14).

Review: Faced with writing music for a low-budget television space opera with a truly epic scope, composer Christopher Franke (an alumnus of Tangerine Dream) finds an effective middle ground between the broad orchestral music favored by rival sci fi franchise Star Trek and the bleeping, drum-machine hammered sound of some other syndicated genre shows. The music is essentially electronic, but its textures are enhanced by the Munich Symphony Orchestra. The result has some of the atmospheric minimalism of Tangerine Dream, the fanfare-dominated martial pomp of Star Wars and its ilk, and many other, less-obvious influences. The space battles, for example, feature a marvelously kinetic mix of synths and percussion, often evoking the sound of Japanese kodo drummers, while dialogue and suspense sequences favor the moody, drifting synth pads and bluesy jazz atmospherics employed by Vangelis in his Blade Runner score. The result is lacking in memorable themes and motifs but rich in the ambivalent, brooding milieu of J. Michael Straszinski's space epic.

Batman

1966, PolyGram/Casablance Records; from the television series Batman, 20th Century-Fox TV, 1966.

Selections: 1 Batman Theme (N. Hefti)(2:35); 2 Batman Riddles The Riddler! or Hi Diddle Riddle (1:40); 3 Batusi A-Go-Go! or I Shouldn't Wish To Attract Attention (1:37); 4 Two Perfectly Ordinary People or !!! (:44); 5 Holy-Hole-In-The-Doughnut or Robin, You've Done It Again! (1:58); 6 Batman Pows The Penguin or Aha, My Fine Feathered Finks! (1:49); 7 To The Batmobile! (2:16); 8 Batman Blues (1:46); 9 Holy Flypaper (3:03); 10 Batman Thaws Mr. Freeze or That's The Way The Ice-Cube Crumbles! (2:05); 11 Gotham City (2:01); 12 Zelda Tempts Batman or Must He Go It Alone??? (2:27).

Review: It would be tempting to recommend this CD. After all, it is the soundtrack to one of the early 1960s' most popular television shows, with music by the great Nelson Riddle and featuring the voices of cast members Adam West (Batman), Burt Ward (Robin), Burgess Meredith (The Penguin), George Sanders (Mr. Freeze), Anne Baxter (The Great Zelda), and Frank Gorshin (The Riddler). In other words, nothing but the best. But the CD offers less than 25 minutes of actual playing, which at the price of laserlight these days is a bit offensive. So unless you have just inherited a fortune and have money to burn, skip it!

The Beverly Hillbillies

1995, Legace Records; from the TV series The Beverly Hillbillies, Filmways Production.

Album Notes: Music: Zeke Manners; Orchestrations: Zeke Manners; conducted by Zeke Manners; Cast: Buddy Ebsen (Jed Clampett), Irene Ryan (Granny), Max Baer (Jethro), Donna Douglas (Elly May), Nancy Kulp (Jane), Raymond Bailey (Drysdale); Featured Guest: Lester Flatt & Earl Scruggs; Album Producers: Don Law, Irving Townsend.

Selections: 1 The Ballad Of Jed Clampett (P. Henning)(1:33) Lester Flatt, Earl Scruggs; 2 Beverly Hills (3:01) Entire Cast; 3 Vittles (2:04) Irene Ryan; 4 A Long Talk With That Boy (B. Ebsen)(3:38) Buddy Ebsen, Max Baer; 5 Jethro's A Powerful Man (2:29) Buddy Ebsen, Max Baer; 6 Elly's Spring Song (P. Henning)(1:19) Donna Douglas; 7 Back Home U.S.A. (B. Ebsen/Z. Manners)(2:01) Buddy Ebsen; 8 Critters (1:14) Entire Cast; 9 Doctor Granny (2:37) Entire Cast; 10 Lady Lessons (1:57) Donna Douglas, Nancy Kulp; 11 Birds An' Bees (3:33) Donna Douglas; 12 Love Of Money (2:20) Nancy Kulp, Raymond Bailey; 13 The Ballad Of Jed Clampett (P. Henning)(:47) Lester Flatt, Earl Scruggs.

Review: Once you have left behind "The Ballad of Jed Clampett," which by some quirk of fate has become a standard, you can settle down and enjoy the rest of the show... on CD, that is, digital! No one claimed that the participants were singers, so if you expected great songs and great voices, all you'll get is Irene Ryan playing Granny with her croaky voice; Buddy Ebsen as Jed and Max Baer as Jethro, each with his own folk talk; Donna Douglas holding her own as Elly (not a bad voice, either, though not always on pitch); and Nancy Kulp and Raymond Bailey (gasp!) singing. And behind them a country-styled instrumental line to justify the album. It's good for a momentary lull, not much more, but at least you know what you're getting in the bargain.

Beverly Hills 90210

1992, Giant/Reprise Records; from the television series Beverly Hills 90210, 1992.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Elliot Wolff, Howie Tee, Robbie Nevil, Tommy Faragher, Lotti Golden, David Foster, Andre Cymone, Dancin' Danny D, Gerry Brown, Vanessa Williams, Brian McKnight, Jim Dean, Pete Glenister, Russ Titelman, Tuhin Roy, Jake Smith, John Davis; Album Executive Producers: Kenneth Miller, Darren Star, Irving Azoff; Compiled by Cassandra Mills, Jeff Aldrich.

Selections: 1 Bend Time Back Around (E. Wolff)(3:57) Paula Abdul; 2 Got 2 Have U (Color Me Badd/H. Thompson)(3:46) Color Me Badd; 3 The Right Kind Of Love (T. Faragher/L. Golden/R. Nevil)(4:47) Jeremy Jordan; 4 Love Is (Tonio K./J. Keller)(4:45) Vanessa Williams, Brian McKnight; 5 Just Wanna Be Your Friend (Puck/K.Z. Amen)(3:52) Puck & Natty; 6 Let Me Be Your Baby (G. Williams/OP. Glenister)(4:57) Geoffrey Williams; 7 Saving Forever For You (D. Warren)(4:31) Shanice; 8 All The Way To Heaven (D. Warren)(4:12) Jody Watley; 9 Why (C. Dennis/D. Poku)(4:58) Cathy Dennis, D-Mob; 10 Time To Be Lovers (T. Snow/K. Miller)(4:47) Michael McDonald, Chaka Khan; 11 Action Speaks Louder Than Words (T. Snow/K. Miller)(3:56) Tara Kemp; 12 Theme From Beverly Hills 90210 (J. Davis)(3:08) John Davis.

Review: The caliber of talent involved in this compilation is enough to create more than a passing interest. Where else would you find people like Paula Abdul, Vanessa Williams, Shanice, Jody Watley, Michael McDonald, Chaka Khan, and Color Me Badd on the same album? The problem, however, is that the genres in which each expresses themselves don't mix very well. After you jump, without much rhyme nor reason, from ballads to rockers to electronic pop, you feel as if you're on overdrive, and you need some relief that not even John Davis' theme can provide. The beats sound the same, the performances bleed into each other, and the overall effect is trite and disappointingly dry. The show may be hip, but the CD ain't.

The Bourne Identity

1988, Intrada Records; from the movie The Bourne Identity, Warner Bros., 1988.

Album Notes: Music: Laurence Rosenthal; Orchestrations: Steve Bramson, Laurence Rosenthal; The Film Symphony Of Prague, conducted by Laurence Rosenthal; Album Producer: Laurence Rosenthal; Engineer: Malcolm Luker.

Selections: 1 Main Title (6:27); 2 The French Children (1:33); 3 Fishing Village (2:52); 4 Arrival In Zurich (3:19); 5 Incident At The Bank (3:46); 6 Jason And Marie (4:36); 7 The Red Door (3:31); 8 Discovery (:42); 9 Chernak Dead (3:33); 10 Valois Bank (2:56); 11 Wild Goose Chase (2:31); 12 Carlos As Confessor (4:33); 13 The Trocadero (2:30); 14 Treadstone 71 (10:08); 15 Abbott (2:45); 16 Epilogue (1:03).

Review: A political thriller, starring Richard Chamberlain as an amnesiac who finds himself involved in a crime, "The Bourne Identity" benefits from its many European locales and colorful characters, as well as the more mysterious aspects of its screen action, all of which suggest a splendidly evocative score to composer Laurence Rosenthal. As a result, the overall musical fabric is beautifully diversified, most often solidly grounded in orchestral themes that have great impact and melodic content, but with occasional strange electronic sounds that delineate more specifically the psychological aspects of the story. At times attractive, at times disquieting, it's a great score with some excellent moments in it.

The Burning Shore

1991, Mercury Records; from the TV film The Burning Shore, Titanus Films, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Legrand; Orchestrations: Michel Legrand; The Leningrad Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Michel Legrand.

Selections: 1 The Burning Shore (M. Legrand/H. Shaper)(3:25) Rossana Casale; 2 Hunger And Thirst (2:20); 3 Mercy Of Death (1:50); 4 Before The Wedding (4:03); 5 The Mountain At Last (2:38); 6 First Love (2:30); 7 The Final Confrontation (4:15); 8 The Choice Of Life (1:21); 9 Bushmen Have No Friends (2:55); 10 Reunion On The Bridge (1:37); 11 Sarah's Secret Place (3:10); 12 Lothar's Fall (1:46); 13 Deaths Of Owi And Hani (6:30); 14 The Poisoned Well (1:25); 15 When Hell Freezes Over (1:40); 16 The Governor's Party (3:22); 17 The Pursuit (6:15); 18 Hell Has Frozen Over (2:50); 19 The Smell Of Water (4:20); 20 The Lion (2:38); 21 The Burning Shore (2:35).

Review: Composer Michel Legrand, whose bend for lovely thematic music is one of his most endearing traits, created another exquisite score for this adventure film made for television, based on the eponymous novel by Wilbur Smith. The cues, in turns grandiose and romantic, are for the most part very catchy and melodic, weaving a robust musical tapestry that has many charms. Occasionally, a drumbeat suggests the African background against which the story itself unfolds, with the cues describing the action in bold, colorful terms. Performance by the Leningrad Symphony Orchestra is quite enthusiastic.

Cadfael

1996, Angel Records; from the UK Television production Cadfael, 1996-97.

Album Notes: Music: Colin Towns; Arrangements: Colin Towns; Orchestra conducted by Colin Towns; Gregorian Chants: The Clerkes of St. Albans Abbey, directed by Barry Rose; Album Producer: Colin Towns; Engineer: Dave Hunt.

Selections: 1 Cadfael Of Shrewsbury (Opening Title Music)(3:08); 2 O Filii et Filiae (2:17); 3 Turn Thine Eyes To See (3:24); 4 Merry The Dance (1:43); 5 There Is No Rose Of Such Virtue (2:49); 6 The Juggler's Stare (2:55); 7 All Out Of The World By Tomorrow (3:41); 8 Magnificat anima mea Dominum (3:19); 9 Flamed My Heart (3:11); 10 Hidden In The Well (2:17); 11 Sanctus et Benedictus (1:42); 12 Veni Sancte Spiritus (2:44); 13 Lumen ad Revelationem (2:56); 14 Light Off The Father's Light (2:20); 15 Glover Of Shotwick (2:04); 16 High Above The Heavens (3:00); 17 Salve Regina (2:04); 18 Ave Maria (1:14); 19 Cry Aloud (1:51); 20 The Falconer's Secret (1:39); 21 Hail St. Peter's Fair (2:30); 22 Perspice Christicola (1:12); 23 Cadfael Of Shrewsbury (Closing Title Music)(:44).

Review: One of the best murder mystery series to be seen on television these days involves, of all people, a monk, Brother Cadfael (Derek Jacobi), playing detective in the Middle Ages. Handsomely photographed in natural settings, with crisply written stories, the series also boasts a spell-binding score which mixes Gregorian chants with pseudo-Gothic musical cues, composed by Colin Towers. The overall effect is both austere and richly evocative, as this compelling soundtrack album so effectively demonstrates. Culling from various episodes in the series, the CD offers an overview of the musical textures, with many glorious moments to be enjoyed. It may not convert you, but if you are not a viewer it might compel you to look at some episodes and find out for yourself why this medieval monk might soon become as popular as Poirot or Miss Marple on television.

Catwalk

1994, Atlantic Records; from the M-TV television series Catwalk, 1994.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Steve Tyrell; Engineer: Chris Lord-Alge.

Selections: 1 If You Want Me (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(4:12) Barry Coffing; 2 Life Is Sweet (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(4:47) Barry Coffing; 3 I'm Allowed (B. Tom)(4:20) Buffalo Tom; 4 Drive Me (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(4:46) Jamie Walters; 5 Let Me Off Here (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell/M. Landau)(4:11) Barry Coffing; 6 Something To Cry About (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(4:15) Lisa Butler; 7 Ribbon In The Sky (S. Wonder)(4:14) Intro; 8 Reckless (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(4:07) Barry Coffing; 9 It's About Time (E. Dando/T. Morgan)(2:41) The Lemonheads; 10 Love Is A Dream (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(4:43) Vonda Shephard; 11 You Hurt Me (S. Tyrell/K. Savigar/S. Tyrell)(3:21) Barry Coffing.

Review: A collection of urban contemporary songs specifically composed to illustrate this series. Some solid rocking numbers, some flavorful ballads, all of which creates a strong impression. Several songs actually do stand out in the lot, most specifically "Something to Cry About," "Reckless," and "Love Is a Dream," which are quite good. A good CD which aches to be discovered and enjoyed.

A Charlie Brown Christmas

1986, Fantasy Records; from the CBS-TV Television Special, A Charlie Brown Christmas, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Vince Guaraldi; Lyrics: Mendelson; Performed by: The Vince Guaraldi Trio; Album Engineer: George Horn.

Selections: 1 O Tannenbaum (trad.)(5:03); 2 What Child Is This (trad.)(2:20); 3 My Little Drum (3:15); 4 Linus And Lucy (3:03); 5 Christmas Time Is Here (instrumental)(6:06); 6 Christmas Time Is Here (vocal)(2:44); 7 Skating (2:24); 8 Hark, The Herald Angels Sing (trad.)(1:55); 9 Christmas Is Coming (3:22); 10 For Elise (L. Van Beethoven)(1:02); 11 Christmas Song (M. Torme/ V. Wells)(3:15).

Review: However crass the American celebration of Christmas—however stale the notion of pop Christmas music—this little soundtrack from a little TV special continues to improve with the passing years. The late Vince Guaraldi not only created a perfect environment for the animated Peanuts characters, he made what must now be considered a modern jazz classic, in an era when such things have almost ceased to be. Half originals, half piano-trio arrangements of familiar Christmas songs, the CD captures the blend of sadness, nostalgia and beauty that characterize—for many of us—a season that's seldom been altogether jolly.

Citizen X

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the television movie Citizen X, HBO Pictures, 1995.

Album Notes: Music: Randy Edelman; Orchestrations: Ralph Ferraro; Music Editor: John Lasalandra; Orchestra conducted by Randy Edelman; Album Producer: Randy Edelman; Engineer: Elton Ahi.

Selections: 1 A Heavy Burden (2:51); 2 Forrest Of Death (2:38); 3 Leaving The Station (3:35); 4 Two Comrades Embrace (3:44); 5 Crossed Paths (2:59); 6 The Strain Begins To Show (2:43); 7 Tracking Chikatilo (2:26); 8 Arrest (3:01); 9 Finally A Clue (2:27); 10 Finale (3:11).

Review: A television movie, starring Stephen Rea and Donald Sutherland based on the novel "The Killer Department" by Robert Cullen, "Citizen X" prompted Randy Edelman to write a broad, symphonic score, lush and attractive, often dark and brooding, with many catchy themes evolving from the overall texture. Some cues, like "Leaving the Station" or "The Strain Begins to Show," are actually quite compelling, making this more than a mere routine effort. CD alert: music on each track starts a couple of seconds before indexing does, so if you're looking for the start of a specific cue you will have to backtrack to the end of the previous one.

The Civil War

1990, Elektra Records; from the PBS-TV series The Civil War, 1990.

27 Battle Hymn Of The Republic (J.W. Howe)(3:20) The Abyssinian Baptist Church Sanctuary Choir; 28 Ashokan Farewell/ Sullivan Ballou Letter (3:23) Paul Roebling, David McCullough.

Review: An effective selection of traditional period music, authentically recreated to underscore Ken Burns' monumental documentary on the "War Between the States." No original underscore is featured here as the selected cues do a fine job capturing the era. Each track has its own unique presentation, "The Battle Cry of Freedom" is played by solo piano while "We Are Climbing Jacob's Ladder" is sung a Capella, "Angel Band" is performed by a duo of acoustic guitar players and "Dixie" marches to an old fashioned brass band. The album stands well on its own as an artifact to a bygone era, mixing many well known songs with the more esoteric, which do well to educate what was once considered the popular music of it day.

Cult TV Themes

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Arrangers: Mike Townend, Kevin Townend, Henry Mancini, Derek Wadsworth; The Royal Philharmonic Concert Orchestra, conducted by Mike Townend; The Daniel Caine Orchestra, conducted by Daniel Caine; Album Producers: James Fitzpatrick, Kevin Townend; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Ironside (Q. Jones)(2:04); 2 Peter Gunn (H. Mancini)(3:55); 3 Kojak (B. Goldenberg)(3:33); 4 Mission: Impossible: The Plot/Main Theme (L. Schifrin)(3:21); 5 Hawaii Five-O (M. Stevens)(3:16); 6 Perry Mason (F. Steiner) (3:10); 7 The Pink Panther (H. Mancini)(2:09); 8 The Prisoner (R. Grainer) (5:43); 9 Mike Hammer (E. Hagen)(2:02); 10 Barnaby Jones (J. Goldsmith)(3:03).

Review: With a full title like Mission: Impossible & Cult TV Themes Of The Atomic Age And Beyond, this compilation CD has carte blanche to contain just about anything. In addition to Lalo Schifrin's unforgettable "Mission: Impossible" theme music, and with titles like Earl Hagen's bluesy modern noir theme for "Mike Hammer" and Quincy Jones's "Ironside" theme with its distinctive, alarm-like opening, the definition of "cult" gets stretched quite a bit. But regardless of whether shows like "Kojak" and "Barnaby Jones" deserve to be describe as cult programs, their theme music is memorable and exciting, and this newly-recorded mix does a better job than most of recreating the tempos and arrangements of these tight little compositions. Included are Henry Mancini's gritty, rocking "Peter Gunn" music and his sneaky theme for The Pink Panther, Morton Stevens's hard-driving surfer music for "Hawaii 5-0," Fred Steiner's bluesy, evocative "Perry Mason" theme, Ron Grainer's propulsive music for The Prisoner, as well as Billy Goldenberg's oddly sweeping Kojak theme and Jerry Goldsmith's low-key but catchy "Barnaby Jones." The arrangements and performances are mostly dead-on, but some of the pieces suffer from the extended treatments which add some ill-advised improvisational sections to pan the cues out to more than two minutes.

Dark Shadows: The 30th Anniversary Collection

1996, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the television series Dark Shadows, 1966-1970.

Selections: 1 First Episode Voice-Over/Collingwood (:54) Alexandra Moltke; 2 "Dark Shadows" Theme (1:08); 3 Quentin's Theme (2:09); 4 Ode To Angelique (2:43); 5 Missy (2:31); 6 Theme From "Dark Shadows" (2:47); 7 Josette's Music Box (2:01); 8 #1 At The Blue Whale (2:31); 9 Back At The Blue Whale (2:01); 10 Quentin's Theme (2:01); 11 "Dark Shadows" Music Cue Medley I (5:25); 12 I Wanna Dance With You (2:20) David Selby, Nancy Barrett; 13 Pansy's Theme Medley (2:57); 14 Sarah's Theme (London Bridge)(1:35); 15 Joanna (1:44); 16 "Dark Shadows" Music Cue Medley II (8:06); 17 Last Episode Closing Voice-Over/"Dark Shadows" Theme (1:07); 18 Barnabas Theme from "Dark Shadows" (2:50) The First Theremin Era; 19 Quentin's Theme (2:45); 20 "Dark Shadows" 1969 Vampire Fan Club Greeting (2:16) Jonathan Frid; 21 Radio Spots (1:29); 22 Barnabas The Vampire State Building (3:03).

Review: A sleek, elegant vampire show, "Dark Shadows" dominated television nights for three years, starting off as a conventional melodrama with spooky elements, but soon finding its own voice with the arrival of Barnabas Collins. One reason for the success of the show can be attributed to the score devised by Robert Cobert, who purposely ignored the trappings of the genre and developed an orchestral music that is totally indigenous to the show and gives it its unmistakable cachet.

Marking the 30th anniversary of the show, which premiered on June 27, 1966, this clever compilation not only samples many of the cues written by Cobert, but also adds unusual recordings, like "Barnabas Theme," performed by The First Theremin Era, a psychedelic group. Fans of the series will no doubt love this great compilation; others will have to discover for themselves what kept an entire nation riveted to the television for so many thrilling evenings.

The Dinosaurs

1993, Narada Cinema; from the PBS television series The Dinosaurs, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Peter Melnick; Arrangements: Peter Melnick; Featured Musicians: Peter Melnick (piano/synthesizers/acoustic slide guitar), George Doering (electric and nylon-string guitar), Bryce Martin (didjeridu, the screaming pipe), John Yoakum (saxophones/oboe/English horn/clarinet/flutes), David Stone (bass), Brad Dutz (percussion), Charles Judge (keyboards and synthesizer); Album Producer: Peter Melnick; Engineer: Michael Stone.

Selections: 1 Dinosaur Ghosts (4:30); 2 Winged Transformations (7:40); 3 Sauropod Shuffle (3:50); 4 Daniel And The Dinosaur (4:22); 5 Leatherback Turtle (2:32); 6 From Maastricht To Paris (4:35); 7 Dollo's Hadrosaurs (3:04); 8 Age Of Reptiles (5:46); 9 Migration (3:01); 10 Flying Things (3:25); 11 Maurasse (2:14); 12 Sound Shadows (4:42).

Review: Suddenly, dinosaurs are popping up all over the place, in the movies where Jurassic Park and The Lost World present their own version of the terrifying world of 140 million years ago, and on television where various series attempt to recreate that neanderthal time when huge monsters roamed the earth. One such series, "The Dinosaurs!," seen on PBS, took a professoral approach to its subject, and investigated the scientific aspects of the question, as well as its most speculative elements.

Augmenting the presentation is Peter Melnick's score, a deft mixture of acoustic and electronic instruments. Since no music existed at the time, one must assume that Melnick's, contemporary as it may sound, is as valid as anything else, at least where the series is concerned. Taken at face value, it is a pleasant blend of New Age-sounding cues, that has the enormous merit of sounding quite pleasant out of its own environment. For someone who has not seen the four-part series, it is difficult to comprehend what a cue like "From Maastricht to Paris" might be doing in the middle of a program dedicated to dinosaurs, but the music eloquently speaks for itself, so who cares?

Do It A Cappella

Campbell/H. Peretti/L. Creatore/A. Stanton/G. Weiss)(4:33) Ladysmith Black Mambazo, The Mint Juleps.

Review: Director Spike Lee will surely be remembered for many achievements, but this glorious made-for-public-TV salute to a cappella singing groups should not be overlooked. He didn't direct it, merely plays host, but it wouldn't have happened without him. Filmed mainly at an ancient movie palace in Brooklyn, New York, the performances range from the Persuasions' post-doo-wop to Rockapella's greaser-cabaret to Take 6's neo-jazz-gospel, and include a showstopping set by South Africa's Ladysmith Black Mambazo. The video laserdisc includes nearly half an hour of extra music.

Doctor Who: The Curse of Fenric

1991, Silva Screen Records; from the BBC-TV series Doctor Who, 1971-1990.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Ayres; Arrangements: Mark Ayres; Music Performed by: Mark Ayres; Album Producer: Mark Ayres; Engineer: Mark Ayres.

Selections: 1 Introduction: Doctor Who (R. Grainer)(:40); 2 The Boats (:47); 3 Beach-Head and Rat-Trap (2:06); 4 Sealed Orders (1:21); 5 Eyes Watching (1:03); 6 Commander Millington (:47); 7 Viking Graves (:54); 8 Maidens' Point (1:17); 9 The Translations (3:23); 10 Audrey And Millington's Office (2:13); 11 The Curse Of Fenric (3:32); 12 High Stakes (:34); 13 The Crypt (1:21); 14 The Ambush (:42); 15 The Well Of Vergelmir (1:16); 16 The Ultima Machine (2:00); 17 Dangerous Undercurrents (1:02); 18 The Seduction Of Prozorov (1:54); 19 Half-Time Score (:40); 20 Exit Miss Hardaker/The Vicar And The Vampires (2:25); 21 Stop The Machine! (2:25); 22 The Haemovores (1:49); 23 The Battle Of St. Jude's (4:27); 24 The Mineshaft (1:51); 25 Sealing The Hatch (1:55); 26 House Guests (1:35); 27

The Telegram (:50); 28 Evil From The Dawn Of Time (1:10); 29 The Storm Breaks (3:33); 30 Ancient Enemies (3:46); 31 Shadow Dimensions (1:10); 32 Chemical Grenade (1:00); 33 The Great Serpent (:40); 34 Pawns In The Game (3:16); 35 Kathleen's Escape (2:08); 36 The Wolves At Fenric (3:08); 37 Black Wins, Time Lord! (2:22); 38 The Finale Battle (2:48); 39 Epilogue: Doctor Who (R. Grainer)(2:12).

Review: This synthesized score was written and performed by Mark Ayers for one of the final stories for long-running BBC-TV series. Of all the "Doctor Who" scores, this is perhaps one of the more well-developed, in particular its striking themes for the alien presence that pervades a World War II British Naval Camp and the adjacent town. Despite the notoriously short transitional cues that all the composers were often faced with writing, Ayers has developed a work here that on the whole builds nicely towards its climax. This was his second of three "Doctor Who" scores, both "Ghost Light" and "The Greatest Show in the Galaxy" have also been released and this album features additional music he composed for the expanded home video release. The version of the classic "Doctor Who" theme (composed by Ron Grainer) is not the version featured in the final show.

Elizabeth Taylor in London/ Four in the Morning

1992, Play It Again/U.K.; from the television special Elizabeth Taylor in London, 1963; and from the movie Four in the Morning, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestrations: Johnny Spence, John Barry; Orchestra conducted by Johnny Spence, John Barry; CD Producer: Geoff Leonard; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: Elizabeth Taylor In London: 1 Elizabeth In London (3:27); 2 Elizabeth Waltz (4:31); 3 English Garden (4:54); 4 London Theme (3:18); 5 London Waltz (2:54); 6 Lovers (1:35); 7 Fire Of London (4:08); 8 Elizabeth Theme (2:42); 9 London Theme (2:51); Four In The Morning: 10 Four In The Morning (2:02); 11 River Walk (2:43); 12 Lover's Clasp (1:17); 13 Norman's Return (3:14); 14 River Ride (2:40); 15 Four In The Morning (1:57); 16 Lover's Tension (1:01); 17 First Reconciliation (3:18); 18 Norman Leaves (2:35); 19 Moment Of Decision (1:39); 20 Judi Comes Back (2:57).

Review: Written for a television special starring Elizabeth Taylor, "Elizabeth Taylor in London" elicited from Barry a gorgeously romantic score, with many beautiful tracks that have justifiably become favorites among the composer's many fans. Sonics, however, are the problem here, with the early-'60s recording techniques denoting flaws (strident sound, tape hiss) that mar one's total enjoyment, though they could have been corrected for a digital reissue.

The score for "Four in the Morning," a series of short stories tied together around the thin device of the clock marking time, is, in contrast, much more vibrant and jazzy, though sound quality is again somewhat of a problem.

The Endless Game

1989, Virgin Records; from the television serial The Endless Game, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone; Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by Ennio Morricone; Album Producer: Enrico de Melis; Engineer: Sergio Marcotulli.

Selections: 1 The Endless Game (3:43); 2 The Love Game (3:33); 3 Alec's Journey (2:48); 4 Anif (3:10); 5 The Game Goes On (3:20); 6 Silvia's Game (4:15); 7 Summer Solitude (6:06); 8 The Endless Game (3:58); 9 Just A Game (1:00); 10 Caroline's Song (1:43); 11 Alec's Journey (4:28); 12 Chess Game (2:04); 13 From Russia (2:40).

Review: Occasionally, Ennio Morricone has created scores for television shows. In this country, he is best remembered for "Marco Polo," a score that cries out to be reissued on CD, and in Italy, he has been involved with a long series about the Bible. "The Endless Game," a cold war thriller, is another series on which he worked, and in which he indulged many of his signature characteristics (a sharp call of monosyllabic strings here, an ominous theme for low strings there). It all sounds comfortably familiar, yet surprisingly new, with some selections like "The Love Game" and "Caroline's Song" (which sounds as if it had been recycled from the score of "Malamondo") making a stronger impression because of their melodic content. Perhaps more specifically of interest to rabid Morricone fans, but also a nice discovery for those who may not be familiar with it.

ER

1996, Atlantic Records; from the NBC-TV series ER, Amblin Entertainment, 1996.

Selections: 1 Theme From ER (J.N. Howard)(3:02); 2 Dr. Lewis And Renee (M. Davich) (1:58); 3 Canine Blues (M. Davich)

(2:28); 4 Goodbye Baby Susie (M. Davich) (3:11); 5 Doug And Carol (M. Davich/J.N. Howard)(1:59); 6 Healing Hands (M. Cohn)(4:26) Marc Cohn; 7 The Hero (J.N. Howard/M. Davich)(1:55); 8 Carter, See You Next Fall (M. Davich)(1:29); 9 Reasons For Living (D. Sheik) (4:33) Duncan Sheik; 10 Dr. Greene And A Mother's Death (M. Davich)(2:49); 11 Raul Dies (M. Davich)(2:20); 12 Hell And High Water (M. Davich/J.N. Howard) (2:38); 13 Hold On (M. Davich)(2:48); 14 Shep Arrives (M. Davich) (3:38); 15 Shattered Glass (M. Davich)(2:11); 16 Theme From ER (TV version) (J.N. Howard) (1:00); 17 It Came Upon A Midnight Clear (trad.)(2:30) Mike Finnegan.

Review: Last season's big hit (and probably next season's, too), "ER" received its score from composers James Newton Howard and Martin Davich, in which the accent is squarely on contemporary stylings, with lots of synthesized riffs, rhythm tracks, and all the musical trappings usually associated with modern television dramas. The truth is that it does sound a bit dry in the long run, with cues that are written to closely match the action on the screen with little consideration given to a possible soundtrack album. What stands out here are the two songs that have been added, but they are hardly sufficient to compel the listener to return frequently to the album.

Fantastic TV Themes

1991, Prime*time*usa/Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Arrangements: Derek Wadsworth, Geoff Castle, Mike Townend; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra conducted by Daniel Caine; Album Producer: Michael Jones; Engineers: Roger Wake, Austin Ince, Doug Bennett.

Selections: 1 Quantum Leap (M. Post)(3:06); 2 V: The Series (D. McCarthy) (2:43); 3 Freddy's Nightmares (N. Pike)(2:42); 4 Star Trek: The Next Generation (J. Goldsmith/A. Courage)(3:05); 5 Knight Rider (G. Larson/S. Phillips)(2:36); 6 Highway To Heaven (D. Rose)(3:20); 7 Streethawk (Tangerine Dream)(3:11); 8 Battlestar Galactica (G. Larson/S. Phillips)(3:18); 9 Airwolf (S. Levay)(3:00); 10 Buck Rogers In The 25th Century (S. Phillips)(2:24); 11 North Star: The TV Movie (B. Fiedel)(2:43); 12 Bring 'Em Back Alive (A. Rubinstein)(3:05); 13 The Return Of The Man From U.N.C.L.E. (J. Goldsmith) (2:43); 14 Tales Of The Gold Monkey (M. Post/P. Carpenter)(3:06).

Review: Obviously, a lot of money went into recording this album, and it shows in the quality of the arrangements, and the often solid performance by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. But is the music really worth the effort? Sometimes, the answer has to be yes: because the themes were written by composers that are among the best in the business (Jerry Goldsmith, Dennis McCarthy, Stu Phillips), and because some of these cannot be found anywhere else. But let's face it, as a rule, TV themes are often trite little things with melodic ideas that are not too terribly substantial and are only interesting when heard within the context of a show, like a recognizable signature one can immediately forget afterwards. With some notable exceptions ("Star Trek: The Next Generation," in a performance that sounds thin compared to the original, and not too terribly true to it, either), very little here is of major importance. So, with all due respect, what difference does it make if the selection you hear next is the theme from "V: The Series," "Knight Rider," or "Streethawk"? Ultimately, this is the impression left by this CD which is highly recommended to insomniacs, and otherwise highly forgettable.

The Flintstones

1994, Rhino Records; from the television series, The Flintstones, Hanna-Barbera Productions, 1960-65.

Album Notes: Featured Performers: Alan Reed (Fred), Jean Vander Pyl (Wilma), Mel Blanc (Barney), Bea Benaderet (Betty); Album Producer: Earl Kress; Engineers: Bill Inglot, Dan Hersch.

Selections: 1 Meet The Flintstones (Main Title, 1965)(W. Hanna/J. Barbera/ H. Curtin)(1:10); 2 Meet The Flintstones (Original album version, 1961)(W. Hanna/J. Barbera/H. Curtin)(1:55); 3 Rockin' Bird (R. Milburn)(2:08); 4 Car Hop Song (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(3:34); 5 Star Dust (H. Carmichael)(1:27) Hoagy Carmichael; 6 Yabba-Dabba-Doo (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(2:59) Hoagy Carmichael; 7 Happy Anniversary Quartet (G. Rossini)(1:50); 8 Lucia (G. Donizetti)(2:13); 9 Rockenschpeel Jingle (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(1:25); 10 Bedrock Twitch (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(2:22); 11 Old Folks At Home (S. Foster) (:45); 12 Softsoap Jingle (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(1:14); 13 Way Outs (W. Hanna/ J. Barbera)(1:20); 14 Surfin' Craze (P.F. Sloan/ S. Barri)(2:22) James Darren; 15 Open Up Your Heart And Let The Sunshine In (S. Hamblen)(3:03); 16 Laugh, Laugh (R. Elliott)(3:57) The Beau Brummels; 17 Christmas Is My Fav'rite Time Of Year (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(1:54); 18 Dino The Dinosaur (W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(1:33); 19 Meet The Flintstones (End Title, 1962)(W. Hanna/J. Barbera/H. Curtin)(:48); 20 The Man Called Flintstone (J. McCarthy)(1:46); 21 They'll Never Split Us Apart (C. Strouse/L. Adams)(2:44); 22 Rise And Shine (Main Title, 1960)(W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(:44); 23 Rise And Shine (End Title, 1960)(W. Hanna/J. Barbera)(3:34).

Review: Cartoon enthusiasts will adore this delightful collection of familiar tunes from the sophisticated animated sit-com, "The Flintstones." The fun-filled disc includes 23 main and end title themes, soundbites and plot songs from the show's six years of prime time on ABC (1960-1966). Patterned after the ultra successful series "The Honeymooners," "The Flintstones" enjoyed guest appearances by some of the entertainment industry's top talent. Featured on this compilation are "Yabba-Dabba-Doo!," sung by songwriter Hoagy Carmichael (the composers's big hit, "Star Dust" also makes an appearance), "Rockenschpeel Jingle," the twistin' "Bedrock Twitch," and Fred's 'Hi-Fye' version of "Rockin' Bird." A multitude of title songs ("Meet the Flinstones," "The Man Called Flintstone" among them) round out the light-hearted nature of this package.

(:11) Nigel Bennett; 11 Suite From Be My Valentine: The Valentine Murder, Nat's Gift/Nick And Natalie, Lacroix Spins The Web, Nick Flies/Lacroix And Natalie (6:39); 12 Father Figure: Nick's Lullaby To Lisa (2:28); 13 Suite From Dark Knight: Alyce Drives Up, The Siege/Nick Attacks, Lacroix And Nick (6:12); 14 "You would do well to avoid me..." (:14) Nigel Bennett; 15 Touch The Night (F. Mollin/S. Meissner) (4:22) Lori Yates; 16 Avenging Angel: Time Stands Still (3:02); 17 Curiouser And Curiouser: Nick And Janette (1:40); 18 Suite From Undue Process: Natalie Cries/Natalie Sneaks, The Final Face-Off, The Graveside Goodbye (5:04); 19 Suite From A More Permanent Hell: Lacroix's Flashback, To Save Natalie, Vampire Fight (4:14); 20 Baby, Baby: CN Tower Finale (1:34); 21 "Only one thing is truly permanent" (:17) Nigel Bennett; 22 Dark Side Of The Glass (F. Mollin/S. Meissner)(3:22) Lori Yates.

Review: This lengthy, comprehensive packaging of music from the USA Networks vampire cop show offers dialogue excerpts from series heavy Nigel Bennett, Fred Mollin's electronic theme and scoring, and several songs done in a kind of Kate Bush/Tori Amos style by Lori Yates. Mollin's title theme is a deliberately monotone, pulsating suspense motif that conjures up the stalking blood thirst of the vampire hero, an effect that echoes throughout most of the scores along with some subtle period effects that underscore blood-slurping detective Nick Knight's memories of his centuries-old life. Mollin is an old hand at this sort of subject matter and he's adept at creating the impression of many more instrumental effects than would seem possible from his keyboards. The mix is effective and highly recommended to fans of the series, although the all-electronic approach (seemingly necessitated more by budget concerns than aesthetics), with its inevitable drum-machine percussion, wears out the ear well before the end of the material is reached.

Review: Over the series' three year run, Fred Mollin somehow managed to turn out a score for each episode almost always by himself. For each, his music had to have an intricate ambience, not that "made up on the spur of the moment" feel so many synthesizers scores often have, and this album reveals several scores that sound as orchestral as possible. Despite the series' morbid premise involving the recovery of a collection of cursed antiques, it requires a lot of personal character music, instead of the run-of-the-mill horror licks so commonly used in this format. Several of the scores featured as suites (thirteen, naturally) on this album are from episodes where Mollin had to create some of his most inventive musical motifs. One of the best, "Badge of Honor" (naturally involving a cursed police shield) has a hard hitting "Miami Vice" style rock flavor augmented with several live sax solos. More classical in nature is "Symphony in B Sharp," while the theme for the children in "The Playhouse" uses a synth chorus. "Eye of Death," a time travel story set during the civil war, uses sampled period instruments. An excellent collection of some of Mollin's best work for television.

Westberger)(3:02) Paul Westberger; 13 I'll Be There For You (long version)(M. Skloff/A. Willis)(3:10) The Rembrandts.

Review: Despite being bookended by the main title song ("I'll Be There For You" by The Rembrandts, presented in TV and single versions), and the insertion of dialogue after every other song, this compilation has little to do with the popular series. There are a few high powered artists here, Hootie & the Blowfish ("I Go Blind"), k.d. lang ("Sexuality") and R.E.M. ("It's a Free World Baby"), performing some excellent songs. Many of these were previously unreleased, though I can't recall any of these songs actually being used on the show. Only a brief medley of Phoebe's songs ("Snowman/Ashes/Dead Mother") appears after track #10. Where's her famous "Smelly Cat," the song everyone remembers? Bonus track alert: The instrumental TV end title follows after a short break on the tail of track #13.

Gulliver's Travels

1996, RCA Victor; from the TV movie Gulliver's Travels, RHI Entertainment and Channel Four Television, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Trevor Jones; Orchestrations: Trevor Jones, Geoffrey Alexander, Julian Kershaw; Orchestra conducted by Geoffrey Alexander; Album Producer: Trevor Jones; Engineers: Simon Rhodes, Kirsty Whalley.

Selections: 1 Gulliver Returns Home (5:32); 2 Finding A Giant (3:24); 3 The Gates Of Mildendo (:44); 4 An Exploration (:51); 5 The Emperor's Palace (3:07); 6 Creeping And Leaping (1:00); 7 A Hero's Welcome (:53); 8 The Flight From Lilliput (3:41); 9 Journey To Bedlam (1:50); 10 Arrival In Brobdingnag (1:34); 11 Tom Finds The Bag (1:48); 12 The Doll's House (2:07); 13 Gulliver's Big Bang (1:28); 14 Grildrig's Attack (2:03); 15 Battle Of The Wasps (2:36); 16 Glumdalclitch Loses Gulliver (3:330; 17 The Flying Island (2:06); 18 Tom Won't Eat (1:32); 19 Laputa (1:14); 20 The Empress Munodi (1:02); 21 Reverse The Lodestone! (1:51); 22 The Professor Of Sunlight (2:16); 23 The Pit (1:08); 24 There's Going To Be A Storm (1:20); 25 The Sorcerer's Mirror (1:05); 26 Gulliver Calls Up The Dead (1:19); 27 Escape From The Sorcerer (1:24); 28 Mary's Letters (1:32); 29 The Immortal Sturldbruggs (1:25); 30 It's A Start (2:15); 31 Mistress (1:20); 32 The Land Of The Houyhnhnms (1:35); 33 The Yahoos (1:35); 34 Never Going Home (2:47); 35 The Houyhnhnms Cry Out (2:00); 36 Everything Is True (4:30); 37 Gulliver's Travels Closing Theme (3:35).

Review: Trevor Jones' representation on disc has always been hit and miss, his scores often pruned to two or three tracks to make room for pop songs, or worse, spoiled by the inclusion of dialogue. Thus, "Gulliver's Travels" is something of a phenomenon, in that it contains a lengthy representation of exclusively Jones' score. The main theme evokes both an epic sense and a feeling of weariness, expressing the protagonist's endless attempts to return home. "The Emperor's Palace" (perhaps the score's most enjoyable cue) features feisty woodwinds which evoke the arrogance and pettiness of the Lilliputians. A more Eastern sound figures into "Laputa", with primitive percussion and a darbuka-like synthesizer, while "Battle of the Wasps" chillingly depicts the tiny Gulliver's attempts to ward-off a swarm of giant bees.

At a running time of 75:52, the album does become a little static in the last third; the basic thematic material is really not enough to cover the running time and redundancy sets-in. Still, there is much allure to the music, and Jones has a particular knack for scoring fantasy that is matched by few others.

Hercules: The Legendary Journeys

1994, Varese-Sarabande; from the TV series, Hercules: The Legendary Journeys, 1994-95.

Album Notes: Music: Joseph LoDuca; Orchestrations: Tim Simonec, Larry Kenton, Joseph LoDuca; Music Editors: Philip Tallman, Dick Bernstein; Orchestra conducted by Tim Simonec; Album Producer: Joseph LoDuca; Engineer: Glen Neibur.

Selections: Hercules And The Circle Of Fire: 1 Main Title (1:04); 2 Hail Hercules (1:11); 3 Fight In Hera's Temple (1:52); 4 Phaedra (3:04); 5 House Of Prometheus (1:19); 6 More Time/Tickle (2:22); 7 The Circle Of Fire (1:33); 8 Zeus vs. Hercules (1:56); 9 The Cure (3:12); Hercules And The Lost Kingdom: 10 The Runners Part 1 (1:28); 11 The Runners Part 2 (:56); 12 Destiny Theme (3:03); 13 Battle With The Blue Priest (3:15); 14 The Slave Bar (1:26); 15 First You Then Stew (1:32); 16 The Runner Arrives (1:12); 17 The Cowherds Way (1:31); 18 A New Dawn (2:57); Hercules And The Amazon Women: 19 Hercules Fanfare (:32); 20 Prologue (1:48); 21 Preparing For Battle (2:44); 22 Battle With The Beast (1:40); 23 Journey To Gargarencia (1:42); 24 The Escape (1:16); 25 Battle With Hera (2:47); 26 Hyppolyta (2:07); Hercules And The Underworld: 27 Jole (2:32); 28 The Chasm (1:37); 29 Alien Cloak (1:53); 30 Forked Tongues (1:56); 31 The Old Woman (1:50); 32 Cerberus (1:34); 33 Delirious Deianeira (1:17); 34 End Title (1:06).

Review: LoDuca's scores for the pilot movies that started off the popular syndicated Hercules series are assembled here in an expansive 64-minute album that's an enjoyable listen if you can keep your mind off the numerous scores by other composers that LoDuca plunders. Among the victims are Conan the Barbarian, Demolition Man, Clash of the Titans, Willow and just about every score Bernard Herrmann ever did for Ray Harryhausen. LoDuca's optimistic title music comes off as a cross between John Williams' Superman theme and something out of The Ten Commandments exodus scene. The album's most original moments come from LoDuca's ethnic treatment of the "Hercules and the Amazon Women" storyline, which he later developed for "Xena: Warrior Princess" (q.v.). It's a throbbing blend of strident chanting and involving, percussive rhythms.

Hill Street Blues

1990, Silva Screen Records; from the television series Hill Street Blues, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Mike Post; Orchestra conducted by Daniel Caine; Adapted and Directed for Records by Derek Wadsworth; Album Producer: Michael Jones; Engineer: Roger Wake.

Selections: 1 Theme From Hill Street Blues (3:06); 2 Cruising On The Hill (2:11); 3 Field Of Honor (2:13); 4 Blues In The Day (2:07); 5 Wasted (2:15); 6 The City (1:53); 7 No Jive (3:25); 8 Freedom's End (2:03); 9 Night On The Hill (1:59); 10 Forever (1:35); 11 Councellor (2:11); 12 Captain (1:59); 13 A Friend On The Hill (1:51); 14 Officer Down (2:18); 15 Suite From Hill Street Blues (5:07).

Review: The second of two faithfully recreated Mike Post score albums by Derek Wadsworth is by far the better of the pair. Often light on the underscore, this series used music very sparingly. Post often scored the opening or closing montages and occasionally, some of the more highly charged emotional moments. He composed most of the music featured here himself, though Velton Ray Bunch ("Quantum Leap") is credited as co-composer on three of the fifteen tracks. The album alternates between the low key poignant motifs for the character sequences and the more jazzy (or bluesy) rifts that follow the officers as they patrolled "The Hill." Several of Post's shorter themes have also been assembled into a five-minute suite.

In the Line of Duty

1992, Intrada Records; from the television series In the Line of Duty, 1991-92.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Snow; Album Producer: Mark Snow; Engineers: Larold Rebhun, Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 In The Line Of Duty: Mob Justice (19:31); 2 In The Line Of Duty: The Twilight Murders (15:14); 3 In The Line Of Duty: Street War (14:40); 4 In The Line Of Duty: A Cop For The Killing (18:52).

Review: Before he became the "X-Files" composer, Mark Snow had already left his mark on many television shows (the liner notes to this album credit him with being "the most prolific composer in television," which owed him to win the ASCAP Award for the Most Performed Background Music on Television for seven consecutive years after the honor was created). Among his credits, he also scored four segments of the multi-part series "In the Line of Duty," based on real-life FBI and police cases, which enabled him to utilize the many styles at his disposal, from acoustic piano to full-blown synthesizers, with a sturdy complement of varied instruments (French horns, English horns, contrabassoons, Australian aboriginal drums, and Japanese percussion) used in a variety of styles (bebop jazz, hip-hop, bluegrass, salsa, and even Italian opera). For this CD presentation, the cues have been assembled into four long suites, something which has the advantage of giving the music greater cohesiveness. It doesn't, however, mean that it is better because of that. Unfortunately, the music written by Snow sounds quite formulaic and devoid of any real surprises. Even in this suite format, the themes are very trite, unimaginative, cut to the bones in order to fit a standard situation. One of the problems with much music on television is that it fits a single purpose as noise behind action that is usually of little consequence and can be routinely abandoned for a message from the sponsors. Even a higher class series like "In the Line of Duty" had to exist by the tenets of the medium. Snow's music does little to elevate itself above the norm.

Review: In case you don't see the show on your cable television screen, "Inspector Morse" is one of those crime drama shows that come from England, with John Thaw portraying the white-haired, stubborn police inspector who usually gets his man (or woman). What sets Morse aside from other police inspectors (one hesitates to call them "cops") is the fact that he is an erudite, a scholar who loves classical music and operas, and would probably prefer to attend a concert rather than look for a miscreant guilty of some unfathomable criminal act.

As a direct result of Thaw's particular taste in music, the soundtrack to the shows frequently features excerpts from the classical catalogue, something that finds an echo in these CDs in which some selections are drawn from the works of Mozart, Bach, Gluck, Vivaldi, et al., all of which elevate the musical program to quality levels seldom met by standard television soundtracks. In addition, there is the not-so-negligible contribution by Barrington Pheloung, a composer with a classical bend of his own, whose musical cues also display a distinctive style that blends beautifully with the selections from the classical repertoire. Spearheaded with the melancholy "Theme," heard in different versions at the start and at the end of each CD, the cues are often remarkably evocative, sensibly written, and eloquently performed, occasionally by the composer himself, an accomplished instrumentalist. The series has already yielded three CDs, imported from England, and all three are worthwhile additions to any serious collection, whether you are interested in film music or not. Hopefully, there'll be further volumes released down the line.

The Key to Rebecca

1993, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the television mini-series The Key to Rebecca, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: J.A.C. Redford; Orchestrations: Doug Timm, Mark Walters, J.A.C. Redford; Orchestra conducted by J.A.C. Redford; Album Producer: Alan E. Smith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 The Key To Rebecca March (1:11); 2 Main Title/"Be Still My Cousin"/"Ah Yes, Rebecca" (4:10); 3 Herr General (:58); 4 Homecoming (1:45); 5 Cat And Mouse (3:18); 6 Belly Dancing (2:30); 7 "Look At Me!" (1:45); 8 The Briefcase Caper (2:21); 9 Rommel's Plan (1:38); 10 "Smashing, Smashing, Smashed" (1:13); 11 Spy Talk (2:43); 12 Waiting For Change/Wolfe's Escape/Vandam Meets The Knife (3:04); 13 Cab Trick (1:21); 14 "Wash My Hands" (2:07); 15 The Bridge (3:00); 16 Pick Up That Man! (1:00); 17 It's So Wonderful (2:58); 18 Warm Friendships (2:37); 19 Vandam's Story (1:58); 20 Field Marshall Rommel (1:05); 21 "What Have I Done?" (1:07); 22 Strange Conversation (3:20); 23 Menage A Trois (2:45); 24 Battle At The Well (1:24); 25 Elene And The Crystal (3:34); 26 Six Inches Of Steel (1:25); 27 "Fill My Canteens!" (2:07); 28 "I'll Bring Him Home!" (3:18); 29 Assyut Cabbie (1:37); 30 "Dad!"/Wolfe's End (5:19); 31 A Better Man/End Credits (2:45).

Review: Composer J.A.C. Redford deftly mixes numerous middle eastern motifs with a great Patton-like military march into his score for this 1985 four-hour television mini-series. Adapted from Ken Follett's spy-thriller about the chase of a Nazi master of disguise by a British officer, the range the story demands allows for several musical changes of pace, which include a "Belly Dancing" theme and the big band "Spy Talk," to name just a few. Of course, there are also many of the obligatory chase cues. This is a better than average TV score with a lot to offer.

The Late Shift

1996, Silva America; from the HBO movie The Late Shift, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Ira Newborn; Music Editors: Alan K. Rosen, Patty Von Arx; Synthesizer Programming: Stuart Goldberg; Orchestra conducted by Ira Newborn; Featured Musicians: Bob Mann, Ira Newborn (guitars), Joel Peskin (tenor/alto sax), Walt Johnson, Pete Christlieb (tenor sax); Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: James Nelson.

Selections: 1 "Here's Johnny" (The Tonight Show Theme(P. Anka/J. Carson) (1:19); 2 Pitch Montage (1:44); 3 "Let's Steal Him" (1:13); 4 "It's Our Turn Now" (1:27); 5 Conclusions (2:01); 6 Stupid Pets (1:18); 7 A Fat Check (1:53); 8 There Goes Johnny (:53); 9 The Emmy Party (3:13); 10 The NBC Meeting (1:40); 11 Jay Leno, Secret Agent (2:25); 12 The Last Temptation Of David Letterman (2:53); 13 More Pitches (1:42); 14 Letterman's Triumph (1:28); 15 There's No Business Like Show Business (I. Berlin)(3:54).

Review: The selling point of this CD's cover is a line that touts "Here's Johnny" ("The Tonight Show" Theme) as performed by Doc Severinsen and his Band so strongly that score composer Ira Newborn's credit is almost completely overshadowed. And yet, after starting off with that often heard tune, you'll discover that Newborn contributes a breezy pop score that adds just the right amount of absurdity to this film, a recreation of the true story of a war between the networks for late night supremacy that began after Johnny Carson announced his plan to retire from "The Tonight Show." Newborn plays up the on-screen action to achieve a true sense of the preposterous ("Jay Leno, Secret Agent" for example). Agents, network executives and on-air talent prance around each other as if they were cold-war spies on a mission to save all life. Delightfully engaging.

The Legend of Prince Valiant

1991, Mesa Records; from the television animated series The Legend of Prince Valiant, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Steve Sexton, Gerald O'Brien; Album Producers: Exchange; Engineers: Exchange, Kim Bullard, John Goodenough, Patrick Giraudi.

Selections: 1 Where The Truth Lies (Exchange/M. Jordan)(4:00) Marc Jordan; 2 Celebration Dance (1:58); 3 Sir Bryant (3:26); 4 Love Called Out My Name (Exchange/M. Jordan)(4:19) Amy Sky, Marc Jordan; 5 Guinevere (2:24); 6 Search and Journey (2:55); 7 In The Shadows (1:22); 8 Valiant's Theme (3:24); 9 A Monks Evil Drone (1:56); 10 Ending Title Theme (1:00); 11 The Majesty's Feast (2:15); 12 The Serenade (2:18); 13 Valiant And Rolf (1:22); 14 Victory March (1:53); 15 All Alone (2:35); 16 Danger Is Near (1:45); 17 Valiant Leaves Home (1:36); 18 Where The Truth Lies (Exchange/M. Jordan)(reprise)(1:22) Marc Jordan.

Review: The score for this animated feature, not drawn by Hal Foster, was created by Steve Sexton and Gerald O'Brien, two synthesists working under the pseudonym of Exchange. The music they conceived is generally very attractive, with melodic themes that are frequently catchy and enjoyable, though they rely a bit too much on the formula sounds that seem to prevail in television soundtracks these days – repetitive background riffs, with melodic lines that are relatively simple and of one mind, without much invention behind. The apparently mandatory songs that have been included also seem totally out of place in the context.

Masada

1990, Varese-Sarabande; from the TV movie, Masada, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Arthur Morton; Music Editor: Ken Hall; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (5:04); 2 The Old City (3:26); 3 The Planting (2:56); 4 The Road To Masada (6:54); 5 Night Raid (3:30); 6 Our Land (4:41); 7 The Encampment (2:30); 8 No Water (2:30); 9 The Slaves (5:14).

Review: A mini-series that recounted the siege and destruction of Masada, a fortress of Judean rebels, by the Roman army, "Masada" is a rare case of a television show that transcended the medium and actually aimed at a higher level of quality and distinction. That it succeeded was due in large part to the fact that it was treated not like a television series but like a feature film, with considerable financial means put at the service of the project. One smart decision on the part of the producers was to hire Jerry Goldsmith to write the score. As a result, the music, as sampled on this soundtrack album, is of a high quality level seldom experienced on television, with elaborate themes setting the locale, the people, the action. Impressive as the whole score is, it can be said that Goldsmith surpassed himself when he composed "The Road to Masada". The series' main theme, a superb march, is reprised to best effect the advancing Roman legions, then, in a more subdued way, to depict the rebels awaiting with anguish the arrival of the enemy troops. If ever a score could be described as truly exciting, the term perfectly fits here. At times thrilling, at other times profoundly moving, "Masada" remains quite an accomplishment in the composer's body of works.

Miami Vice

Miami Vice

1985, MCA Records; from the television series Miami Vice, 1985.

Album Notes: Music: Jan Hammer; Song Producers: Glen Frey & Allan Blazek, Arif Mardin & Joe Mardin, Phil Collins, Rupert Hine; Album Executive Producers: Danny Goldberg, Michael Mann; Engineer: Stephen Marcussen.

Selections: 1 The Original Miami Vice Theme (J. Hammer)(1:00); 2 Smuggler's Blues (G. Frey/J. Tempchin)(3:48) Glen Frey; 3 Own The Night (F. Golde/M.D. Lauria/M. Sharron)(4:49) Chaka Khan; 4 You Belong To The City (G. Frey/J. Tempchin)(5:49) Glen Frey; 5 In The Air Tonight (P. Collins)(5:27) Phil Collins; 6 Miami Vice (J. Hammer)(2:26); 7 Vice (M. Glover/N. Chinn/H. Knight) (4:59) Grandmaster Melle Mel; 8 Better Be Good To Me (M. Chapman/N. Chinn/H. Knight)(5:08) Tina Turner; 9 Flashback (J. Hammer)(3:20); 10 Chase (J. Hammer)(2:38); 11 Evan (J. Hammer)(3:06).

Miami Vice II

1986, MCA Records; from the television series Miami Vice, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Jan Hammer; Song Producers: Bob Rose, Michael Verdick, Stephen Bray & Howie Rice, Phil Collins & Hugh Padgham, Jay Gradon, Andy Taylor & Steve Jones, Roxy Music & Rhett Davies, Jackson Browne, Jon Kelly; Album Executive Producer: Michael Mann; Engineer: Steve Hall.

Selections: 1 Mercy (4:27) Steve Jones; 2 Send It To Me (4:12) Gladys Knight & The Pips; 3 Take Me Home (5:51) Phil Collins; 4 The Last Unbroken Heart (3:53) Patti LaBelle, Bill Champlin; 5 Crockett's Theme (J. Hammer) (3:25); 6 When The Rain Comes Down (3:52) Andy Taylor; 7 Lover (3:52) Roxy Music; 8 Lives In The Balance (4:13) Jackson Browne; 9 In Dulce Decorum (4:34) The Damned; 10 Miami Vice: New York Theme (J. Hammer)(3:53); 11 The Original Miami Vice Theme (J. Hammer)(:59).

Review: Outside of the fact that this is strictly formulaic music, designed to underscore an action series that was the hippest show on television for a hot minute, two things become immediately apparent on these CDs. The first one, Jan Hammer's music is not really that good: it worked very well within the context of the show itself, but on its own it doesn't withstand close scrutiny. The second is that, because of its success, the series was able to attract some talented performers whose songs made the show even more attractive to the average viewers. In the first CD, for instance, if "Own the Night" by Chaka Khan, or "Smuggler's Blues" by Glen Frey are just okay, "You Belong to the City," also by Frey, and mostly "In the Air Tonight" by Phil Collins, and "Better Be Good to Me," by Tina Turner, are of a high pop caliber; likewise, in disc 2, the combination of Phil Collins ("Take Me Home"), Gladys Knight & The Pips ("Send It to Me"), and Patti LaBelle & Bill Champlin ("The Last Unbroken Heart") is a winner, again as long as you can live with Hammer's trite synthesizer-cum-rhythm-track cues that are only good for a moment.

Mission: Impossible

1996, Hip-O Records; from the television series Mission: Impossible, 1967-68.

Album Notes: Music: Lalo Schifrin; Orchestrations: Lalo Schifrin; Orchestra conducted by Lalo Schifrin; Featured Musicians: Mike Melvoin (piano), Lalo Schifrin (piano, harpsichord), Bill Plummer (sitar), Bud Shank (alto sax), Stu Williamson (trumpet); Album Producer: Tom Mack; Engineer: Hank Cicalo; CD Producer: Andy McKaie; Engineer: Doug Schwartz.

Selections: 1 Mission: Impossible (2:33); 2 Jim On The Move (3:16); 3 Operation Charm (2:58); 4 The Sniper (3:21); 5 Roll In Hand (2:53); 6 The Plot (2:29); 7 Wide Willy (2:05); 8 Cinnamon (The Lady Was Made To Be Loved)(J. Urbont/B. Geller)(2:38); 9 Barney Does It All (2:32); 10 Danger (2:44); 11 Mission: Accomplished (2:43); 12 Intrigue (2:34); 13 Self-Destruct (2:38); 14 More Mission (2:46).

Review: Probably no television theme has had as much impact as the one created by Lalo Schifrin for "Mission: Impossible," with its signature syncopated beat. Just to hear it on this CD brings back many memories about a series that was vibrantly exciting, even if at times the high-tech derring-dos seemed a bit far fetched. The musical cues written by Schifrin, while closely tailored to fit the action on the screen, are also quite enjoyable in a different context, and provide pleasant musical entertainment. Several reliable jazz musicians add their own flavor to the cues, with Schifrin himself heard on piano and harpsichord.

Mr. Lucky

1988, RCA Records; from the CBS-TV series Mr. Lucky, 1960.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; Album Producer: Dick Peirce; Engineer: Al Schmitt; CD Producer: Chick Crumpacker; Engineers: Ed Rich, Dick Baxter.

Selections: 1 Mr. Lucky (2:12); 2 My Friend Andamo (3:31); 3 Softly (2:44); 4 March Of The Cue Balls (3:15); 5 Lightly Latin (2:56); 6 Tipsy (2:31); 7 Floating Pad (2:53); 8 One Eyed Cat (3:15); 9 Night Flower (2:25); 10 Chime Time (3:16); 11 Blue Satin (2:35); 12 That's It And That's All (2:54).

Review: After making much of an impression with his score for the series "Peter Gunn," his first collaboration with Blake Edwards, Henry Mancini contributed the flavorful music to another series, also directed by Edwards, "Mr. Lucky." Different from the previous show, which had its own parameters, the new series suggested to the composer another musical approach, in which Latin rhythms combine with a Hammond organ to depict the specific atmosphere which permeates the series. Typical of Mancini, however, the themes remain solidly melodic and catchy, with the main theme quickly establishing itself as a runaway hit. The CD emphasizes the best moments from the score, with some selections, like "Softly," "Lightly Latin," "March of the Cue Balls," and "Blue Satin" emerging among the most engaging.

Mobil Masterpiece Theatre

1996, Delos Records; from the WGBH Educational TV shows, 1971-96.

Album Notes: Album Executive Producer: Amelia S. Haygood; A&R: Al Lutz; Mastering: Ramiro Belgardt.

Selections: 1 Masterpiece Theatre Series Music (television version)((J.J. Mouret)(:57); 2 Theme One From Upstairs, Downstairs (A. Faris)(1:28); 3 Theme Two From Upstairs, Downstairs (A. Faris)(1:09); 4 Theme From Poldark (K. Emrys-Roberts)(4:57); 5 Theme From I, Claudius (W. Josephs)(1:33); 6 Theme From Love For Lydia (H. Rabinowitz)(3:50); 7 Theme From The Duchess Of Duke Street (A. Faris)(2:09); 8 Theme From The Citadel (M. Stuckey)(2:16); 9 Theme From To Serve Them All My Days (K. Emrys-Roberts)(1:37); 10 Theme From The Irish R.M. (N. Bicat)(2:07); 11 Theme One From The Jewel In The Crown (G. Fenton)(2:32); 12 Theme Two From The Jewel In The Crown (G. Fenton)(1:54); 13 Theme From By The Sword Divided (K. Howard/A. Blaikley (2:19); 14 Theme From On Approval (G. Gershwin)(3:02); 15 Theme From A Town Like Alice (B. Smeaton) (2:00); 16 Theme One From The Flame Trees Of Thika (K. Howard/A. Blaikley) (2:26); 17 Theme Two From The Flame Trees Of Thika (K. Howard/A. Blaikley) (3:22); 18 Theme One From Prime Suspect: The Lost Child (S. Warbeck) (4:11); 19 Theme Two From Prime Suspect: The Lost Child (S. Warbeck)(1:48); 20 Masterpiece Theatre Series Music (complete version)(2:00).

Review: For many years a staple on Public Television, "Masterpiece Theatre" has earned an enviable reputation as one of the most distinguished series on television. Many of the shows that have been presented as part of the series have become landmarks in their own right and are often mentioned with awe and admiration. This CD purports to bring together some of the themes that were created for some of the shows in the series, including "Upstairs, Downstairs," "The Jewel in the Crown," "I, Claudius," "A Town Like Alice," and "The Flame Trees of Thika." The themes are presented here in their original versions, with the composers usually conducting their own works, and the CD introduced by Mouret's celebrated theme. They simply can't get any better than that!

The Music from U.N.C.L.E. (The Original Soundtrack Affair)

1997, Razor & Tie Records; from the television series The Man From U.N.C.L.E., 1964.

Album Notes: Music: Robert Drasnin, Gerald Fried, Jerry Goldsmith, Walter Scharf, Lalo Schifrin, Morton Stevens; Arrangements: Hugo Montenegro; Orchestra conducted by Hugo Montenegro; Album Producers: Mike Ragogna, David Richman, Lisa Sutton; Engineer: Elliott Federman.

Selections: 1 (Theme From) The Man From U.N.C.L.E. (J. Goldsmith)(2:02); 2 The Invaders (J. Goldsmith)(2:29); 3 Wild Bike (M. Stevens)(2:32); 4 Illya (L. Schifrin)(2:10); 5 Off And Running (R. Drasnin)(2:29); 6 Boo-Bam-Boo, Baby (G. Fried)(1:53); 7 Run Spy Run (G. Fried)(2:15); 8 Solo On A Raft (W. Scharf) (1:53); 9 Jungle Beat (G. Fried)(2:01); 10 There They Go (R. Drasnin)(2:11); 11 Lament For A Trapped Spy (G. Fried)(2:22); 12 The Man From T.H.R.U.S.H. (L. Schifrin)(2:10); 13 Slink (G. Fried)(2:13); 14 Solo Busanova (R. Drasnin) (2:11); 15 Dance Of The Flaming Swords (G. Fried)(2:36).

Review: The "(Theme From) The Man From U.N.C.L.E.," with its pounding rhythm beat, organ obbligato and electric guitar strumming, brings back fond memories of a series that had many great moments in it. Soon, however, the overall stridency in the sound itself makes one wish that a little more control had been exerted in the transfer of these excerpts. Much of this comes from the fact that the music was brash to begin with, having a relentless beat that properly defined the action in the series, but also from the fact that Hugo Montenegro's orchestrations emphasize the very brassy elements that now seem to be somewhat annoying when you have to listen to them in an isolated environment. This comment set aside, one cannot deny the fact that "The Man From U.N.C.L.E." attracted many composers who went on to do much bigger and better things (Jerry Goldsmith, Gerald Fried, and Lalo Schifrin, among them), something that also gives the music a greater importance than it probably had initially.

Review: This eclectic mix of musical styles, ranging from down home blues to African rhythms to Frederica Von Stade singing opera, is very appropriate to the series' closet intellectual nature. The album is assembled as if it represented a day in the programmed life of the local radio station, K-BEAR. An expanded version of David Schwartz' droll main title (using Jamaican kettle drums for a show set in Alaska!) starts off the listener's journey, which then migrates from familiar artists such as Booker T. & The MG's ("Hip Hug-Her"), Etta James ("At Last"), and Nat "King" Cole ("When I Grow Too Old to Dream") to the more bizarre works by the likes of Magazine 60 ("Don Quichotte"). Six minutes of underscore is included and a second volume followed. It is an acquired taste that not all will find interesting after the first experience.

The soundtrack for "Northern Exposure" has rightfully been described in GQ as "the weirdest – and the best – music on prime time," an assessment that needs no explanation. David Schwartz's instrumental cues have a flavor all their own, which is distinguished and quite enjoyable. Bringing a totally different flavor to the two CDs are performances by a wide array of frontline performers like Booker T. & The Mgs, Etta James, Nat "King" Cole, Miriam Makeba, and (gasp!) Frederica von Stade, in the first volume; and Johnny Nash, Ruth Brown, Brian Eno and John Cale, and Les Paul and Mary Ford, in the second. How much more eclectic than that can you get? Taken together, on their individual merits, both CDs are quite engaging.

O Pioneers!

1991, Intrada Records; from the Hallmark Hall of Fame presentation O Pioneers!, Lorimar Television, 1991.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Don Nemitz; Music Editor: Patricia Peck; Orchestra conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Robert Fernandez.

Selections: 1 The Land (3:49); 2 Carl And Alexandra (2:21); 3 The Promise (3:11); 4 The Seagull (:40); 5 Carl's Goodbye (1:40); 6 Alexandra's Trip (2:45); 7 Meet Marie (2:24); 8 Carl Returns (3:28); 9 A Conversation (1:36); 10 Only One Thing Left (1:31); 11 Carl Leaves Again (1:55); 12 Alexandra's Fantasy (2:17); 13 Bishop's Cavalcade (3:47); 14 Suspicion, Sin And Death (5:13); 15 Graveside (:42); 16 When Friends Marry (4:27); 17 O Pioneers (:53).

Review: In one of his early efforts, composer Bruce Broughton wrote a distinctive Americana-styled score for this Hallmark Hall Of Fame show, a faithful adaptation of the Willa Cather novel, starring Jessica Lange as Alexandra. The score is anchored by three basic motifs: one for the main character and her passion for the land; the second, romantically delineated, for Carl and the relationship that exists between him and Alexandra; and the third, light and jaunty, for the Bohemian girl Marie, whose illicit love affair with Alexandra's brother Emil is doomed from the start. A connective theme links these motifs together. Richly evocative and strikingly beautiful, the score is greatly appealling and an instant classic.

The Old Man and the Sea

1989, Intrada Records; from the television special The Old Man and the Sea, Yorkshire Television, 1989.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Broughton; Orchestrations: Mark McKenzie, Albert Olsen; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Bruce Broughton; Album Producer: Bruce Broughton; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:09); 2 Santiago (1:41); 3 Picking Up Manolo (1:21); 4 Angela And Santiago (1:51); 5 Santiago Sets Off (1:46); 6 Bonita (1:04); 7 The Fish (2:04); 8 The Couple (2:25); 9 First Blood (2:38); 10 I Would Stay (2:36); 11 The Fish Sounds (7:03); 12 Manolo In The Shack (:55); 13 The Shark (1:38); 14 Angela And Manolo (1:05); 15 Second Attack (3:27); 16 A Tired Old Man (3:04); 17 Santiago Returns (6:27); 18 What A Fish (1:12); 19 End Credits (1:15).

Review: Unfortunately, Bruce Broughton's score for this television remake of "The Old Man and the Sea" cannot escape comparisons with the music written by Dimitri Tiomkin for the 1958 film of the same name starring Spencer Tracy. Fortunately, Broughton happens to be a very creative composer, who rose to the challenge in ways that command admiration. Much of his music has an appealling Spanish flavor that's indigenous to the locale and the main characters of the Old Man and the boy he befriends. With a guitar strumming the themes to a subtle accompaniment of strings and maracas, or in duets with a flute, the score develops into a suite with an identity all its own that owes nothing to its illustrious predecessor. It's quite effective and quite affecting, and it stands out as a superb listening experience that invites frequent returns. Now, about Anthony Quinn as the Old Man...

Oldest Living Confederate Widow Tells All

1994, Milan Records; from the television mini-series Oldest Living Confederate Widow Tells All, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Snow; Music Editor: Marty Wereski; Featured Musician: Kelly Parkinson (violin); Album Producer: David Franco; Engineers: Glen Neibaur, Larold Rebhun, Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: 1 Main Title (1:31); 2 Resolution (1:04); 3 Captain Marsden Looks Back (3:47); 4 The New Life (2:58); 5 Archie's Burning Up (3:29); 6 Having The Baby/All About Ned (3:13); 7 Something's Burning/Voodoo/White Folk (2:32); 8 Lucy Is Pregnant/Lucy Sneaks Off (3:11); 9 Lucy Remembers (2:10); 10 Swimming Hole Incident (1:24); 11 The Midwife/Talking About The Past (2:25); 12 The Marsden Mansion/No More Guns (5:47); 13 We're Married Again (3:25); 14 Castalia's Home (1:03); 15 Dead Ducks (3:35); 16 Lucy In The Mirror (2:26); 17 End Credits (1:04).

Review: One of the most popular television mini-series of the 1993-94 season, "Oldest Living Confederate Widow Tells All" enabled "X-Files" composer Mark Snow to contribute a largely orchestral score that's as far separated from the adventures of Fox Mulder and Dana Scully as one could imagine. Highlighted by a lyrical main theme, the tone of Snow's music is alternately pleasant or melodramatic throughout, nicely punctuating the drama of a virtual century in the life of a Southern woman (Diane Lane), who changes with the times and attitudes of various generations. Snow's music is genteel but forgettable, but it's still a nice album that will be of particular interest to those who think that the composer's works only consist of droning synthesizers and atonal chords.

Party of Five

1996, Reprise Records; from the television series Party of Five, Columbia Pictures, 1996.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Scotty Morris, Russ Castillo, Russ Titelman, Brian Transeau, David Gamson, Chaka Khan, Joe Jackson, Ed Roynesdal, Syd Straw, Michael Campbell, Holly Palmer, Kenny White, Howard Jones, Andy Ross, Rickie Lee Jones, Glyn Johns, Bill Bottrell, John Leventhal, Larry Klein, Greg Goldman; Engineers: Russ Castillo, Danny Bernini, Brian Transeau, Rail Rogut, Larry Alexander, Lou Whitney, Mark Linnett, Roger Moutenot, Avril MacIntosh, David Cole, Jack Joseph Puig, Blair Lamb, Dan Marnien Greg Goldman.

Selections: 1 Closer To Free (Llanas/Neumann)(3:09) Bodeans; 2 Cruel Spell (S. Morris/J. Mandel)(5:18) Big Bad Voodoo Daddy; 3 Without Letting Go (L. Sargent)(3:20) Laurie Sargent; 4 Blue Skies (B. Transeau)(5:04) BT, Tori Amos; Amos, Tori,5 Love Me Still (C. Khan/B. Hornsby)(3:26) Chaka Khan; 6 Stranger Than Fiction (J. Jackson)(3:40) Joe Jackson; 7 People Of Earth (S. Straw)(4:20) Syd Straw; 8 Free Fallin' (T. Petty/J. Lynne)(5:33) Stevie Nicks; 9 All I Really Wanna Do (B. Dylan)(4:59) Holly Palmer; 10 If You Love Me (H. Jones)(4:32) Howard Jones; 11 Sunshine Superman (D. Leitch) (3:15) Rickie Lee Jones; 12 It's A Hard Life Wherever You Go (N. Griffith) (4:01) Nanci Griffith; 13 Send Me On My Way (R. Root)(4:19) Rusted Root; 14 Climb On (A Back That's Strong)(S. Colvin/J. Leventhal)(4:12) Shawn Colvin; 15 Heart Of A Miracle (Llanas/Neumann)(4:11) Bodeans.

Review: This modern rock friendly TV series gave BoDeans a much-deserved hit with the peppy theme song, "Closer to Free." The rest of the set feels like a cash-in, particularly on some oddball covers—Stevie Nicks doing Tom Petty's "Free Fallin'" and Rickie Lee Jones' singing Donovan's "Sunshine Superman." Joe Jackson's "Stranger Than Fiction" is always worth a listen, though, and it's a good chance to catch some up-and-comers such as Holly Palmer and Laurie Sargent.

Peter Gunn

1986, RCA Records; from the NBC-TV series Peter Gunn, 1959.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra conducted by Henry Mancini; CD Producer: Susan Ruskin; Engineer: Rick Rowe.

Selections: 1 Peter Gunn (2:04); 2 Sorta Blue (2:56); 3 The Brothers Go To Mother's (2:55); 4 Dreamsville (3:54); 5 Session At Pete's Pad (3:58); 6 Soft Sounds (3:34); 7 Fallout! (3:08); 8 The Floater (3:16); 9 Slow And Easy (3:03); 10 A Profound Gass (3:18); 11 Brief And Breezy (3:30); 12 Not From Dixie (4:08).

Review: In a rare foray into television, Henry Mancini scored this series for Blake Edwards, the first time both men worked together. As Mancini recalled in later years, Edwards was looking for a score that would be contemporary and rooted in jazz for the mystery adventure series about a big city police detective whose investigations often took him to various jazz clubs. So strong and evocative is Mancini's score that it won the composer an Emmy Award, while the soundtrack album became a million-seller and received two Grammys. In fact, the success of the album spawned a second volume, "More Music From Peter Gunn," which was reissued in Europe but not in this country.

Several tunes from "Peter Gunn" became pop favorites, "Sorta Blue," "Dreamsville," and "Slow and Easy," among them, but the score in its entirety is quite enticing and powerful enough to stand on its own musical merits. The mastering, however, leaves a lot to be desired, and could stand a thorough overhaul.

Peter the Great

1986, Southern Cross Records; from the NBC TV presentation Peter the Great, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Laurence Rosenthal; Orchestrations: Steve Bramson; Music Editor: Dan Carlin; The Bavarian State Orchestra of Munich, and the Choir of l'Eglise Russe Saint-Serge of Paris, conducted by Laurence Rosenthal; Album Producer: Laurence Rosenthal; Engineer: Malcolm Laker.

Selections: 1 Main Title (2:04); 2 Cathedral (1:03); 3 Alexander (3:15); 4 The Tartars (2:01); 5 Two Living Tsars (4:25); 6 His First Sail/The Foreign Colony (5:42); 7 Eudoxia (4:19); 8 Peter's Wedding (:55); 9 Tsar And Tsaritsa (:37); 10 The New Tsarevich (1:14); 11 Death Of Natalia/The Slap (3:26); 12 Ivan Is Dead (3:10); 13 The Great Embassy (3:10); 14 Gopak (1:14); 15 Moscow Is Burning (3:25); 16 Alexis And Danilo (1:51); 17 Bells Into Cannons (1:59); 18 The Torch (1:20); 19 Battle Of Poltava (4:21); 20 Sophia And Alexis/Ordeal/ Martyrdom (3:10); 21 Requiem (2:12); 22 Peter's Theme (End Credits)(1:03).

Review: Laurence Rosenthal's flavorful score for this sweeping epic gets its inspiration and strength from two widely different sources—the incomparable liturgy of the Russian Orthodox Church, and the profoundly human world of Russian folksongs. The first finds its expression in the court rituals (coronations, weddings, funerals), in which the presence of the Church was a dominating factor. The second is expertly interwoven in the colorful tapestry of characters that peopled the brutal tale of one of Russia's most powerful tsars, with the most important players in the story getting a specific leitmotif, as well as the locales where the action took place. All these elements combine to create a set of cues that are strongly reflective of the action, yet succeed in having a different, albeit compelling appeal once removed from their primary purpose. Some selections, like "The Tartars," "Moscow Is Burning," and "Battle of Poltava" are noticeably impressive.

Phantom of the Forest

1994, Narada Cinema; from the WNET-TV series Nature, Survival Anglia Ltd., 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Whalen; Orchestrations: Michael Whalen; Orchestra conducted by Michael Whalen; Featured Musicians: Michael Whalen (synclavier/percussion/synthesizers), Harvey Estrin (recorders/flute/Pan flutes), Carolyn Pollak (oboe/ English horn), Russ Rizner (French horn), Emily Mitchell (harp), Mitch Estrin (clarinet/bass clarinet), Marti Sweet (violin), Pat Rebillot (piano); Album Producer: Michael Whalen; Engineer: Roy Hendrickson.

Selections: 1 Spirits (1:49); 2 Sea Of Trees (1:31); 3 The Hawk Appears (:52); 4 Killing To Survive (:57); 5 The Wood Cock (1:18); 6 Open Spaces (1:23); 7 New Forests (:57); 8 Building A Nest (1:10); 9 The Feather (1:25); 10 Life In The Nest (1:46); 11 Cathedral Of The Woods (8:26); 12 Sunrise Dance (3:35) Valerie Wilson; 13 Night Creatures (1:32); 14 The Forest Edge (1:33); 15 Brink Of Extinction (1:32); 16 Quiet Beauty (1:57); 17 Winter Rain (1:32); 18 Predators Of The Predators (:49); 19 Phantom Of The Forest (6:03); 20 Woodland Lullaby (3:41) Valerie Wilson; 21 Soliloquy (4:15).

Review: Michael Whalen, one of a generation of new composers, makes a striking impression with this score created for an episode in the series "Nature," seen on PBS, surveying a mysterious forest in the Scottish countryside inhabited by a spirit-like presence, the Goshawk. Utilizing the full palette offered to him by various acoustic instruments and synthesizers, Whalen wrote a series of minimalist cues that display a New Age feel without some of the excesses often encountered in recordings of this kind. And while one could have lived without the bird chirping heard occasionally, the simple musical thread he devised is quite attractive to the ear, and provides a soothing listening experience. Two longer cues, "Cathedral of the Woods" and "Phantom of the Forest" are particularly effective in conjuring up images that are not simply confined to the medium for which the music was written. As Whalen mentions in his notes, he attempted to "capture a sense of the fragile beauty of the forest, while not takin away from its enduring heroic majesty, dark mysteries or magical splendor." His music evokes all of that, and much more!

1990, Colossal Records; from the television presentation The Phantom of the Opera, Saban/Scherick Productions, 1990.

Album Notes: Music: John Addison; Orchestrations: Fred Paroutaud; The Hungarian State Opera Orchestra, conducted by John Addison; Featured Vocalists: Michele LaGrange (Marguerite), Gerard Garino (Phantom), Jean DuPouy (Faust), Jacques Mars (Mephitopheles); Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 Main Title (3:17); 2 Young Christine (1:13); 3 Costume Lesson (:41); 4 Drive To The Woods (1:30); 5 Chasing Games (2:27); 6 Maestro (:56); 7 "Faust" Overture (C. Gounod)(1:46); 8 Chandelier Falls (:43); 9 Magic Kingdom (3:21); 10 Cops Killed (:54); 11 Christine Explores (4:47); 12 Picnic (2:03); 13 Phantom's Face (1:53); 14 Theme And Variations (2:03); 15 Christine's Escape (1:20); 16 Destruction (1:30); 17 He Wouldn't Hurt Me (:53); 18 The Phantom Dies (5:17); 19 End Title (1:04); 20 Christine And The Phantom (excerpts from "Faust")(C. Gounod)(6:01).

Review: Forget Lloyd Webber and his ruminations borrowed from Puccini; John Addison, having to deal with a similar theme, wrote a score that's original, romantic in the right places, and scary where it matters. The television film, made in Europe, stars Burt Lancaster, Ian Richardson, Andrea Ferreol, and Charles Dance as The Phantom. While anchoring his score around two excerpts from Gounod's "Faust," Addison created a music that seems to perfectly reflect the various aspects of the story—the giddy attitude of the operagoers; the loveliness of the heroine, Christine; the somber designs of the deranged madman who haunts the Opera; and the deeply romantic undertones of the tale itself. Richly decorative and eloquently manipulative without seeming to be, the cues follow the action, underlining it here, commenting on it there, always making a musical statement that attracts the attention and keeps the listener riveted.

Poirot

1992, Virgin Records/U.K.; from the LWT series Agatha Christie's Poirot, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Christopher Gunning; Orchestra conducted by Christopher Gunning; Featured Soloists: Leslie Pearson (piano), Stan Sulzmann (saxophones), David Emanuel (viola), Anthony Pleeth (cello); Album Producer: Christopher Gunning; Engineer: Chris Dibble.

Selections: 1 Hercule Poirot—The Belgian Detective(2:30); 2 One-Two, Buckle-My-Shoe (2:01); 3 The Double Clue (5:05); 4

The A-B-C Murders (4:36); 5 Grey Cells (4:22); 6 War (2:31); 7 A Country Retreat (4:53); 8 Death Of Mrs. Inglethorpe (2:30); 9 The Height Of Fashion (2:09); 10 How Does Your Garden Grow (9:06); 11 Death In The Clouds (3:55); 12 To The Lakes (2:20); 13 The Victory Ball (4:56); 14 The Plymouth Express (9:30).

Review: The CD regroups musical selections heard in "The Mysterious Affair at Styles," "Wasps Nest," "The Clapham Cook," and other cases, maddeningly solved by the insufferable Belgian sleuth, supremely and definitively portrayed by David Suchet. The music by Christopher Gunning has the right flavor for this type of show, with the main theme, probably one of the most recognizable tunes on television today, beautifully capturing the art deco feel of the series.

Pride and Prejudice

1995, Angel Records; from the BBC/A&E-TV serial Pride and Prejudice, 1995.

Selections: 1 Pride And Prejudice (opening title music)(3:30); 2 Dance Montage (:48); 3 Elizabeth Observed (1:11); 4 Piano Summary (episode one)(2:01); 5 Canon Collins (2:12); 6 Piano Summary (episode two)(2:02); 7 The Gardiners (1:03); 8 Winter Into Spring (3:29); 9 Parting (1:37); 10 Rosings (1:20); 11 Piano Summary (episode three)(2:13); 12 Telling The Truth (4:29); 13 Farewell To The Regiment (2:21); 14 Pemberley (2:10); 15 Darcy Returns (3:08); 16 Piano Summary (episode four)(2:10); 17 Thinking About Lizzy (1:29); 18 Lydia's Elopement (2:52); 19 Piano Summary (episode five)(2:40); 20 Lydia's Wedding (2:40); 21 Return Of Bingley (2:58); 22 Darcy's Second Proposal (1:55); 23 Double Wedding (2:36); 24 Finale (1:38).

Review: This elegant score, written for fortepiano and small ensemble, is a delight. Created for an A&E series based on Jane Austen's novel, the music echoes the moods and reflects the various aspects of this compelling and witty love story. In fact, wit and vitality are traits that recur throughout the score, in which two themes are developed, the first concerns Elizabeth Bennet and her family's hunt for a proper husband; the second, stresses the felicity of marriage and affairs of the heart. Occasionally pausing to reflect on the events that have occurred, Davis composed "Piano Summaries" that open each episode, and link the various cues together in this soundtrack album. It's a somewhat audacious device that is quite effective within the context of the series, and works quite well here as a break between the cues.

The Prisoner

1989, Siva Screen/U.K.; from the ITC series The Prisoner, 1966-67.

Album Notes: Music: Ron Grainer, Wilfred Josephs, Albert Elms; Album Producers: David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick.

Selections: Arrival: 1 Main Title Theme (R. Grainer)(2:21); 2 No. 6 Attempts Helicopter Escape (W. Josephs)(1:57); 3 Band Marches Into Main Village Square: Radetski March (J. Strauss)(1:45); 4 Chimes (W. Josephs) (2:18); A, B & C: 5 Engadine's Dramy Party (A. Elms)(1:23); Free For All: 6 Mini Moke And Speedboat Escape (A. Elms)(2:53); 7 Cat And Mouse Nightclub Mechanical Band (A. Elms)(1:36); 8 No. 6 Wins Village Election (A. Elms) (1:28); 9 Violent Capture Of No. 6 In Rover Cave (A. Elms)(1:46); The General: 10 Professor's Wife's Outdoor Art Class (A. Elms)(:39); 11 Security Clearance For Board Members (A. Elms)(:50); 12 Villagers' Examination Results Celebration (A. Elms)(2:03); 13 No. 6 Encounters The General (A. Elms)(:38); 14 Destruction And Final Report (A. Elms)(2:36); Fall Out: 15 Main Title Theme (Full Version)(R. Grainer)(3:34); Many Happy Returns: 16 No. 6 Aboard Gunrunners' Boat (A. Elms)(1:58); Dance Of The Dead: 17 Village Square Carnival (A. Elms)(2:20); 18 No. 6 Steals A Lifebelt (A. Elms)(1:45); Checkmate: 19 Escapers Attack Searchlight Tower (A. Elms)(1:56); Hammer Into Anvil: 20 No. 2 Has No. 6 Followed To The Stone Boat (G. Bizet)(2:28); 21 Farandelle Played By Village Band (G. Bizet)(:48); 22 Fight Between No. 6 And Jo. 14 (A. Vivaldi)(3:59); The Girl Who Was Death: 23 Village Green Cricket Match (A. Elms)(2:00); Once Upon A Time: 24 No. 6's Regression To Childhood (A. Elms)(2:11); 25 No. 6's Schooldays Revisited (A. Elms)(:43); 26 Main Title Theme (reprise)(R. Grainer)(1:09).

Review: Originally a seven-inch record distributed by the show's British fan club Six-of-One, as a membership premium in the early 1980's, this CD launched Silva Screen's trilogy of albums featuring music from the popular series. This first album contains selections from eleven of the episodes that feature original music. Ron Grainer composed the series' main theme, replacing one by Wilfred Josephs (which is also included here). While Josephs scored the pilot, much of the series was done by Albert Elms, whose work makes up the bulk of this first volume. He also cleverly adapted classical pieces composed by Vivaldi and Bizet for one episode score, "Hammer Into Anvil." On the whole, Elms' work maintains the flavor of a typical British spy thriller; it has long been suspected that the main character was John Drake from the British series "Secret Agent (Dangerman)." However, Elms throws several musical curves now and then to remain faithfully on target to creator/star Patrick McGoohan's on-screen cat and mouse psychological drama. Both remind us often that nothing is as it seems. The two subsequent volumes were assembled from the "tracked" music licensed for use in the series from the Chappel Recorded Music Library.

QB VII

1995, Intrada Records; from the TV movie QB VII, Columbia Pictures,

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; Orchestrations: Alexander Courage; Orchestra conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Federico Savina.

Selections: 1 QB VII Main Title (1:53); 2 Journey Into The Desert (3:39); 3 I Cannot See My Love (3:50); 4 The Wailing Wall (3:15); 5 The Escape (1:35); 6 The Holocaust (2:48); 7 Rekindling The Flame Of Jehovah (2:16); 8 Jadwiga Relived (4:36); 9 Free To Love Again (2:48); 10 A New Life (3:20); 11 A Sorrow Of Two Fathers (2:05); 12 The Theme From "QB VII" (A Kaddish For The Six Million)(2:28).

Review: Goldsmith won an Emmy for this score to one of the first major television miniseries', an adaptation of Leon Uris' novel about a libel trial that points back to the Holocaust. It's Goldsmith's Schindler's List in a way, giving the composer the opportunity to deal with one of the most difficult and powerful issues in our history. But it's also a somewhat glossy television treatment, and Goldsmith's score sometimes shows the effort of having to paint on such a broad canvas. There are so many different themes and treatments that the album sometimes seems like highlights from different movies: there are evocations of the Middle Eastern desert, a martial fanfare for the courtroom, not one but two different love themes, and various treatments of traditional Jewish musical material. But when Goldsmith sinks his teeth into the actual Holocaust memory scenes the score captures an authenticity and power that rivals any work ever done on the subject, particularly in his disturbing mix of percussive effects and ghostly voices for memories of a concentration camp evidenced in his soaring and deeply moving "Kadish for Six Million" which ends the album.

Quantum Leap

1993, GNP Crescendo; from the television series Quantum Leap, Universal Television, 1989-1993.

Album Notes: Music: Velton Ray Bunch; Album Producers: Velton Ray Bunch, Mark Banning; Engineers: Bruce Frazier, Doug Rider, Liz Magro, Charlie Sydnor, Greg Townley.

Selections: 1 Prologue (Saga Sell) (M. Post/V.R. Bunch) (1:05) Deborah Patt; 2 Main Title (M. Post) (1:15); Piano Man: 3 Somewhere In The Night (V.R. Bunch/S. Pakula) (3:31) Scott Bakula; The Leap Home, Part 1: 4 Suite (3:36); 5 Imagine (J. Lennon) (3:05) Scott Bakula; A Single Drop Of Rain: 6 Sam's Prayer (1:52); Memphis Melody: 7 Blue Moon Of Kentucky (B. Monroe) (1:40) Scott Bakula; 8 Baby Let's Play House (A. Ginter) (2:13) Scott Bakula; The Last Gunfighter: 9 Shoot Out (3:03); Catch A Falling Star: 10 Man Of La Mancha (medley) (M. Leigh/J. Darion) (6:18) Scott Bakula; Blood Moon: 11 Bite Me (3:29); Shock Theatre: 12 Alphabet Rap (D. Pratt) (2:05) Dean Stockwell & The Pratt Pack; Leaping On A String: 13 Lee Harvey Oswald (suite) (14:55); Glitter Rock: 14 Fate's Wide Wheel (M. Post/V.R. Bunch/C. Ruppenthal/M. Leggett) (3:02) Scott Bakula; 15 A Conversation With Scott Bakula (12:00); 16 Quantum Leap: Main Title and Main Title (M. Post/V.R. Bunch) (2:20).

Review: This show's time travel format not only offered composer Velton Ray Bunch the chance to create some uniquely flavored scores for each episode, but series star Scott Bakula, a veteran Broadway performer, was also allowed to showcase his vocal talent. His character, Sam Beckett, would land in some past time taking the form of a piano player, a rock singer, maybe Elvis or an off-Broadway actor performing in some home town production of Man of La Mancha. When Beckett returns to the home of his youth ("The Leap Home Part 1"), Bunch develops a lovely Midwestern motif featuring a harmonic solo to represent the farm and its surrounding expanse of wheat fields. The transformation into reputed Kennedy assassin Lee Harvey Oswald for "Leaping on a String," required the use of a large scale orchestral score to rival John Williams' work on JFK as film series creator Donald Bellasario wanted to debunk the Oliver Stone film because he knew Oswald personally. The album also features a twelve minute interview with Bakula and two versions of Mike Post's main title theme with, and without, the opening narration.

Rich Man, Poor Man

1993, Varese-Sarabande; from the ABC-TV production Rich Man, Poor Man, 1976.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; Orchestra conducted by Alex North, Harold Mooney; Album Producer: Sonny Burke; Engineer: Met Melcalf, Jr.; CD Producers: Robert Townson, Dub Taylor.

Selections: 1 Main Title Rich Man, Poor Man (1:32); 2 Julie (2:58); 3 Rudy (1:34); 4 Julie's First Affair (2:24); 5 Axel And Tom (4:26); 6 Tom And Clothilde (2:46); 7 Rudy And Ginny

(3:34); 8 Julie And Rudy (3:16); 9 Rudy And Tom (2:40); 10 Tom's Desperation (2:56); 11 Julie's Remorse (2:44); 12 Tom, Dwyer And Falconetti (2:22); 13 Denouement (3:19); 14 End Title/End Cast (1:34).

Review: In a rare foray into television, Alex North wrote the score for this 12-hour television version of Irwin Shaw's inspired novel, which spans 20 years in the life of a family. To keep things under control, he devised various leitmotifs for the various characters in the complex story. These essentially form the texture of the score, as sampled in this soundtrack album, with each cue detailing the central characters, their relations to each other, and their individual modus operandi. The themes are robustly defined, with each cue using a different approach, from jazz to blues, from a dramatic outburst to a sophisticated waltz, the whole thing bathed in an Americana flavor that pervades the entire score. It's a richly rewarding experience, that invites repeated listenings.

The Ring

1996, Silva America Records; from the NBC-TV miniseries The Ring, 1996.

Album Notes: Music: Michel Legrand; The City Of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Michel Legrand; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Gregg Nestor.

Selections: 1 Love Theme From The Ring (4:31); 2 Tristan And Isolde (R. Wagner)(3:22); 3 Two Waltzes (2:48); 4 Ariana And Gerhard Leave With Max (2:59); 5 Gerhard And Walmar Escape (2:41); 6 Arrival In Switzerland (3:14); 7 Walmar Gets Shot (3:44); 8 Ariana Arrives At Manfred's (2:26); 9 Ariana And Manfred (2:04); 10 Ariana Finds Manfred (5:18); 11 Ariana Flees Berlin (6:57); 12 It's Best Not To Hope Too Much (3:26); 13 The Sabbath Dinner (2:31); 14 Painting (1:36); 15 Paul And Ariana (1:51); 16 Ariana Tells Paul (2:29); 17 Max And Ariana Reunite (1:13); 18 Family Plot (4:25); 19 This Is For Tammy (2:06); 20 Ariana Has A Bad Dream (1:32); 21 Finale: Ariana And Gerhard (3:53); 22 Moonlight Over Vermont (J. Blackburn/K. Suessdorf)(1:31) Michel Legrand; 23 Amapola (A. Gamse/J. LaCalle)(2:16) Michel Legrand; 24 Giselle And Gerhard (M. Legrand)(1:23).

Review: An epic four-hour miniseries based on Danielle Steel's poignant novel about a young woman's search for her family, from whom she has been separated at the onset of World War II, The Ring compelled Michel Legrand to write a score that's quietly understated at times, elegant and attractive at others, with some compelling and some disturbing moments thrown in the mix, as the story unfolds. Though perfectly adequate, and no doubt fitting the script to a tee, the one thing that seems to be missing here is a sense of excitement, as if the composer had done his job routinely without getting much involved in the project itself. Occasionally, a theme tries to belie this impression ("Ariana Flees Berlin"), but that's only a fleeting moment in a score that's luxuriously musical and surprisingly lifeless.

Saved by the Bell

1995, Kid Rhino Records; from the NBC-TV series Saved by the Bell, 1989-95.

Album Notes: Songs: Scott Gale, Rich Eames; Album Producers: Scott Gale, Rich Eames, Tom Weir, Larry Weir, Michael Damian; Engineers: Rick Riccio, Rich Eames, Scott Gale.

Selections: 1 Saved By The Bell (S. Gale)(1:53); 2 Don't Leave With Your Love (4:00); 3 Go For It! (2:13); 4 Love Me Now (2:50); 5 Make My Day (1:56); 6 Friends Forever (2:08); 7 Did We Ever Have A Chance? (1:56); 8 Deep Within My Heart (1:36); 9 Surfer Dude (2:27); 10 Gone Hawaiian (1:05); 11 School Song (S. Gale/R. Eames/B. Tramer)(1:21); 12 Saved By The Bell (S. Gale)(2:37) Michael Damian.

Review: A rock compilation for the kids who, presumably, watched this show designed for them on NBC-TV. The various actors, shown inside the tray card, look healthy and squeaky clean. So do the songs in which you'd be hard put to find an offensive lyric. The rhythms are pleasant enough, but not too terribly earth-shaking; as for the melodies they are, to say the least, primeval. Your 10-year-old might love them, and feel quite adult listening to this CD; your 12-year-old will probably yawn. The CD, by the way, is 26 minutes long: just enough to make it tolerable.

Scarlett

1994, Polydor Records (Canada); from the television mini-series Scarlett, RHI Entertainment, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: John Morris; Orchestrations: Evan Morris; The City Of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by John Morris; Album Producer: John Morris; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: 1 (1:27); 2 (2:26); 3 (1:45); 4 (2:22); 5 (3:57); 6 (1:41); 7 :38); 8 (1:23); 9 (3:10); 10 2:01); 11 (2:07); 12 (2:27); 13 (3:08); 14 (2:58); 15 (1:33); 16 (1:41); 17 (1:55); 18 (1:56); 19 (4:41); 20 (1:20); 21 (2:06); 22 (2:09); 23 (1:05); 24 (1:16); 25 (1:34); 26 (1:59); 27 (1:40); 28 (2:33); 29 (:40); 30 (3:11); 31 (4:08); 32 (4:07).

Review: Though he sports a mustache that looks quite manly, Timothy Dalton ain't Clark Gable; nor for that matter is John Morris another Max Steiner. So why did they bother making a sequel to Gone With The Wind, when they knew they had no real chances to succeed on any count? It's not that Morris' score for this sequel is bad, in fact it's very attractive for the most part, and the City Of Prague Philharmonic plays it to the hilt. If it had been written for any other movie, on television or on the big screen, it probably would have filled the bill more than adequately. What undoes it is that it applies to a movie that should not have been. Even more maddening is the fact that the cues aren't even titled, though this was perhaps done on purpose so that the listener would not try to identify a theme with a given moment in the action. Alright, so taken at face value, John Morris' music is very attractive, which shouldn't come as any surprise since the composer is known to always create excellent scores. Here he has cleverly used a wide range of solo instruments to paint vivid themes, some of which are achingly beautiful. There are period waltzes, romantic ballads, folk dances and an occasional action cue in the mix, in other words something for everybody. There's even a track, "Love Hurts," performed by the rock group Nazareth, with the Munich Philharmonic Orchestra playing backup. A rock instrumental? In a sequel to GWTW?

Shaka Zulu

1986, Cinedisc Records; from the television mini-series Shaka Zulu, 1986.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Pollecutt.

Selections: 1 Opening Titles/We Are Growing (P. Van Blerk/J. Laxton/M. Singana/D. Pollecutt)(2:05) Margaret Singana & The Baragwanath Choir; 2 One Of Those Rare Men (1:20); 3 Shipwreck (2:25); 4 First Sight Of Kwa-Bulawayo (3:30); 5 The Horse Race (1:45); 6 Nandi's Theme (2:50) Mallie Kelly; 7 Nandi In Forest/Attack/Prophecy (3:12); 8 Birth Of Shaka (2:20); 9 Shaka's Escape (4:30); 10 Pampata (Wemsheli Wami) (2:55) Stella Khumalo; 11 The Making Of The Spear (3:40); 12 The Coronation (1:55); 13 Death Of Dingiswayo (2:50); 14 Elizabeth's Theme (1:15); 15 Nandi's Funeral (2:20); 16 How Do You Catch A Monkey (5:30); 17 The Death Of Shaka (3:50).

Review: The saga of the legendary African chief who rose to head the entire Zulu nation, but was eventually defeated when he tried to repel the white invaders, Shaka Zulu is a forceful television drama that is bold and colorful. Surprisingly, the show elicited a score that only uses scant elements of African chants, and remaines solidly rooted in the European thematic tradition. This is particularly evident in tracks like "Shaka's Escape," in which the drumming and chanting are recreations of African sounds, rather than the real thing. Adding insult to injury, the songs that are included are also often performed in English, which seems even less plausible for a story that takes place in dark Africa. The overall effect is that it deprives the score itself from sounding realistic and true, and removes from it any element of authenticity. This is a serious letdown, particularly given the fact that the cues are otherwise intelligently written and attractive.

Sherlock Holmes

1987, Varese-Sarabande; from the Granada Television series Sherlock Holmes, 1987.

Album Notes: Music: Patrick Gowers; Orchestrations: Patrick Gowers; The St. Paul's Cathedral Choir, The Gabriele String Quartet, The Wren Orchestra of London, conducted by Patrick Gowers; Featured Soloists: Kenneth Sillito (violin), Neil Black (cor anglais), Leslie Pearson (piano); Album Producer: John Yap; Engineer: John Kurlander.

Selections: 1 221 B Baker Street (Opening Theme)(:49); 2 Elsie Cubitt (3:56); 3 Libera Me (4:13); 4 North By Ten And By Ten (2:45); 5 Old Sherman's Dog Toby (1:25); 6 Sutton's Nightmare (3:36); 7 River Chase (5:54); 8 The Death Of Sherlock Holmes (5:25); 9 Irene Adler (4:47); 10 Holmes In Europe (1:25); 11 John Hector McFarlane And His Mother (2:02); 12 Setting Out (2:08); 13 Lucretia Venucci And Her Family (3:45); 14 Mr. Henry Baker's Christmas (2:10); 15 The Illustrious Lord Bellinger (2:14); 16 On The Trail (1:20); 17 Neville St. Clair's Nostalgia (2:14); 18 The Bar Of Gold, Upper Swandam Lane (4:08); 19 Baker Street Reunion (1:49).

Review: Granada Television's "Sherlock Holmes" series, starring Jeremy Brett, contained some of the most memorable music ever written for television, composed by Patrick Gowers. The listener is instantly captivated by Gowers' title music, whose solo violin brings one instantly into the criminal world of Victorian London. Gowers' music is mostly in the 19th-century style, the solo violin appearing often to depict the character of Holmes, as in the mournful lament "The Death of Sherlock Holmes" and the beautifully romantic "Irene Adler." Gower's main theme is heard in many variations throughout the album, but the various settings are so eclectic that the theme never becomes stale or tired. "Libera Me" sets the theme as a hymn for a boys choir, while "The Illustrious Lord Bellinger" features the theme in an Elgar-like arrangement. Conan Doyle's Christmas mystery "The Blue Carbuncle" calls upon Gowers to create an arrangement of Christmas carols, while "North By Ten and By Ten" has a wonderfully archaic flavor with its harpsichord and string quartet. This album will appeal to both fans of the TV series as a souvenir, as well as to listeners, as a very fine example of fine British television music.

COLE PORTER

The urbane and sophisticated Cole Porter was one of the most influential and popular of American songwriters.

Porter was born in Peru, Indiana, on June 9, 1891. His mother, the daughter of a self-made millionaire, encouraged him to compose, self-publishing "Bobolink Waltz," which Porter wrote when he was 11.

In 1915 and 1916 he contributed songs to two Broadway shows, Hand Up and Miss Information, and wrote another, See America First. The shows were all failures.

Porter continued to write songs and hone his style. Finally, with 1928's Paris, Porter landed a hit song in a show that was also a hit. That song, titled "Let's Do It," was characteristic of the style that had been delighting his friends for years—intelligent, urbane, and highly suggestive of the sexual. Following Paris were the very successful Wake Up and Dream and Fifty Million Frenchmen. Whereas at one time Porter's songs may have been too cosmopolitan for Broadway audiences, by then, popular taste had begun to change. In this more accepting climate, the list of Cole Porter hits grew: "Love for Sale," "Night and Day," "Anything Goes," "You're the Top," "Begin the Beguine," "Just One of Those Things," and "It's De-lovely" were only a few.

Porter remained a prolific songwriter throughout the next few decades. In 1948 he created what many consider his masterpiece, the musical Kiss Me, Kate. Based on William Shakespeare's "The Taming of the Shrew," "Kate" was a huge success and generated a string of hits.

Porter died of pneumonia on October 15, 1964, in Santa Monica, California, and was buried back home in Peru, Indiana. Yet the end of Porter's life was hardly the end of his prominence; many of his songs became standards, performed by artists as disparate as cabaret singer Michael Feinstein and punk rocker Iggy

Sketch Artist

1992, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the television movie Sketch Artist, Motion Picture Corporation of America, 1992.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; Album Producer: Mark Isham; Engineer: Stephen Krause.

Selections: 1 Jack And Ray (3:55); 2 Start With Fashion (1:09); 3 The Sketch Artist (2:10); 4 The River And The Earring (3:27); 5 The Sketch (4:54); 6 A Drive To The Finish (3:09); 7 Claire (1:19); 8 Hanging By A Thread (3:49); 9 You Saw Me (1:56); 10 Face To Face (2:14); 11 On Dallas Time (2:05); 12 Bring It Tonight (1:19); 13 Breakfast With Mrs. Silver (1:01); 14 Warehouse (5:38); 15 One Of A Kind (1:48); 16 Physical Evidence (4:08); 17 A New Day (4:33).

Review: In a somewhat typical way, Mark Isham wrote a flavorful score for this television film starring Jeff Fahey and Sean Young. With a predominance of steel guitar sounds and synthesizer effects, over a rhythm line, the composer creates moods that are gently evocative, and harmonious. "The River and the Earring," "The Sketch," "Claire," and "Warehouse" are particularly evocative, but the whole score is well defined and enjoyable.

Soap Opera's Greatest Love Themes: volume II

1992, Scotti Bros. Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Catherine Farley; Engineer: Arnie Acosta.

Selections: Guiding Light: 1 Love Like This (A.J. Gundell)(4:08) A.J. Gundell; 2 Simply Love (J.C. Feld/K. Wesley)(3:42) Kassie Wesley; Another World: 3 For Just One Moment (J. Leffler/R. Schuckett)(3:45) Kyle Gordon, Rachele Cappelli; Guiding Light: 4 Eve's Romance (J. Henry/W. Boatman)(2:25); 5 I Knew That I'd Fall (A.J. Gundell)(4:12) A.J. Gundell, Leah Kunkel; Another World: 6 One Step Closer (G. Sklerov/L. Macaluso)(3:29) Anne Marie Radel; As The World Turns: 7 I Think Of You (J.P. Dunne/A. McBroom)(4:01) Gene Miller; 8 Together, Forever With You (F. Eckert/J. Southworth)(4:51) Fran Eckert, Jeff Southworth; 9 Kim And Bob's Song (F. Hand)(2:01) Fred Hand; 10 Heart Don't Fail Me Now (G. Sklerov/H. Lloyd)(3:28) David Morgan, Terry Wood; Another World: 11 Another World (J. Leffler/R. Schuckett)(3:27) Angela Cappelli, John Leffler; 12 Lady Killer Ballad (J. Leffler/J. Siegler) (3:51) Ricky Paull Goldin, Rascal.

Review: Only a rabid fan of the soaps would want this collection of themes written for some of the most popular daytime television shows, and occasionally featuring the actors who appear in them. But when you have your daily ration of suds, do you really need to get additional servings on a CD that only offers small snippets of music and questionable performances? As the world turns, let another world be your guiding light...

The Sounds of Murphy Brown

1990, MCA Records; from the CBS-TV series Murphy Brown.

Album Notes: Song Producers: Jerry Wexler, Stevie Wonder, Brian Holland, Lamont Dozier, William "Smokey" Robinson, Berry Gordy, Clay McMurray, Marvin Gaye, George Goldner, Norman Whitfield, Steve Dorff, John Bettis; Album Producr: Artie Ripp.

Selections: 1 You Keep Me Hangin' On (B. Holland/L. Dozier/E. Holland)(:38) Candice Bergen; 2 Respect (O. Redding)(2:24) Aretha Franklin; 3 Superstition (S. Wonder)(4:24) Stevie Wonder; 4 Nowhere To Run (B. Holland/ L. Dozier/E. Holland)(2:56) Martha Reeves & The Vandellas; 5 Tracks Of My Tears (W. Robinson/Moore/Tarpin)(2:54) Smokey Robinson; 6 Love Child (Wilson/Richards/Sawyer/Taylor)(2:55) Diana Ross & The Supremes; 7 Raisins And Motown (D. English)(:07) Candice Bergen; 8 Get Ready (W. Robinson)(2:36) The Temptations; 9 If I Were Your Woman (Sawyer/Jones/C. McMurray)(3:15) Gladys Knight & The Pips; 10 Mercy, Mercy Me (The Ecology)(M. Gaye)(3:12) Marvin Gaye; 11 Why Do Fools Fall In Love? (F. Lymon/M. Levy)(2:17) Frankie Lymon & The Teenagers; 12 I Can't Help Myself (Sugar Pie, Honey Bunch)(B. Holland/L. Dozier/E. Holland)(2:40) The Four Tops; 13 I Heard It Through The Grapevine (N. Whitfield/Strong)(2:44) Gladys Knight & The Pips; 14 This Old Heart Of Mine (Is Weak For You)(B. Holland/L. Dozier/E. Holland)(2:51) The Isley Brothers; 15 Like The Whole World's Watching (S. Dorff/J. Bettis)(2:51) Take 6.

Review: Once upon a time, when TV shows actually had lengthy main title themes, this show bucked the trend by exploiting Murphy's love of Motown by choosing an appropriate song for each episode's opening credits montage. The song most associated with the series is perhaps Aretha Franklin's "Respect" but, if you've been a fan of the earlier shows, this album will certainly remind you of many of them. If not, then this album is also an impressive collection of some of Motown's greatest hits. Artists include Stevie Wonder ("Superstition"), Smokey Robinson ("Tracks of My Tears") and The Temptations, whose song "Get Ready" also became the network's anthem one season. Two brief dialog cuts by Candice Bergen are also included as is the rarely used original series theme by Steve Dorf and John Bettis, "Like the Whole World's Watching," which is performed by the a cappella group Take 6.

Star Trek

Star Trek volume 1 "The Cage"/"Where No Man Has Gone Before"

1985, GNP Crescendo Records; from the television series Star Trek, Paramount Pictures,1965.

Album Notes: Music: Alexander Courage; Orchestra conducted by Alexander Courage; Album Producer: Neil Norman; Album Coordination and Sequencing: Ford A. Thaxton, Mark Banning, David Hirsch; Engineers: Bob Margouleff, Jim McMahon

Selections: The Cage: 1 Star Trek Theme (Main Title)(:50); 2 Doctor Bartender (1:16); 3 Survivors (:45); 4 Prime Specimen (3:08); 5 Bottled (1:46); 6 Probed (:45); 7 Monster Illusion (1:13); 8 Monster Fight (1:37); 9 The Kibitzers (:36); 10 Vena's Punishment (1:44); 11 Pike's Punishment (:33); 12 Picnic (2:09); 13 True Love (1:17); 14 Vena's Dance (1:49); 15 Torchy Girl (:12); 16 Under The Spell (:26); 17 Primitive Thoughts (:24); 18 Wrong Think (:40); 19 To Catch A T. (1:19); 20 Going Up (1:06); 21 Max's Factor (2:04); 22 Star Trek Theme (End Title)(1:29); Where No Man Has Gone Before: 23 Main Title (:14); 24 Star Date (:34); 25 Episode Titles (1:18); 26 Force Field (2:17); 27 Silvery Orbs (1:49); 28 Crippled Ship (:53); 29 Speedy Reader (:50); 30 Hit The Button (:03); 31 On Delta-Vega (:37); 32 When Your Eyes Have Turned To Silver (:58); 33 Instant Paradise (2:50); 34 End Title and Credits (:21); 35 Additional Credits (:28).

Review: This album presents the first music ever written for "Star Trek," Alexander Courage's title themes and underscores for the original series' pilots "The Cage" and "Where No Man Has Gone Before." Gene Roddenberry's "The Cage" about telepathic, big-headed aliens who can project illusions, was reportedly rejected by NBC as "too cerebral," a description that might also be applied to Courage's score. His bongo-driven siren song title music is indelible, so utterly inappropriate that it's perfect. The "Cage" underscore is all moody, intellectualized eerieness, with the telepathic Talosians characterized by plucked electric guitar notes and their illusions by a dreamy, soprano wailing. There's also an exotic, Easternized dance for the green-skinned slave girl Vina. "Where No Man Has Gone Before" is more typical of the series, with a brassier sound (and a title march theme that was never used on the show) and some glittering, mysterious 'outer space' orchestral textures. The sound on these ancient recordings is pretty pinched, and all in all this is more of an important archival document than a thrill-packed album.

Star Trek volume 2 "The Doomsday Machine"/ "Amok Time"

1991, GNP Crescendo Records; from the television series Star Trek, Paramount Pictures, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: Sol Kaplan, Gerald Fried; Album Producer: Neil Norman; Album Coordination and Sequencing: Ford A. Thaxton, Mark Banning, David Hirsch; Engineers: Alan Howarth, Brian Risner.

Selections: 1 Star Trek Main Title (A. Courage)(1:00); The Doomsday Machine (S. Kaplan): 2 Approach Of Enterprise/The Constellation (1:08); 3 Going Aboard (1:38); 4 Commander Matt Decker/The Crew That Was (1:58); 5 What Is Doomsday Machine/The Planet Killer (1:58); 6 Strange Boom/Decker Takes Over (2:49); 7 The New Commander/Light Beams/Tractor Beam (4:09); 8 Violent Shakes (2:45); 9 Spock Takes Command/Decker's Foil/Sneaky Commodore (2:28); 10 Goodbye Mr. Decker (3:10); 11 Condolences/Power Drain (1:09); 12 Kirk Does It Again (3:45); 13 One's Enough (:22); Amok Time (G. Fried): 14 Vulcan Fanfare/Prying (:48); 15 Mr. Spock (1:22); 16 Contrary Order (2:58); 17 T Pring (:47); 18 Marriage Council (1:51); 19 Vulcan (1:03); 20 The Processional (1:38); 21 The Challenge (3:02); 22 The Ritual/Ancient Battle/2nd Kroykah (5:25); 23 Remorse/ Marriage Council II (1:12); 24 Resignation/ Lazarus Return/Pig's Eye (:42); 25 Star Trek End Title (A. Courage)(:47).

Review: GNP's second "Star Trek" album is the perfect representation of music from the series: Sol Kaplan's spectacular, brassy score for "The Doomsday Machine" is a masterpiece with its crushing, alarmist motif for the episode's "planet killer" and some of the richest dramatic writing in the history of the series. It also emphasizes repeated piano textures, muted trumpet fanfares and moving, low string passages, with a heart-pounding, pulsating climactic cue that's one of the great suspense set pieces of the series. Gerald Fried's "Amok Time" is even more memorable, with its melancholy electric bass guitar theme for Spock and a fascinating, highly original evocation of the alien Vulcan culture. Everything climaxes in "The Ritual Ancient Battle," the all-time classic "Star Trek" fight music that has been parodied on everything from "The Simpsons" to the Jim Carrey movie The Cable Guy. Fans of more recent "Trek" TV music may find this music too over the top, but that's exactly why it's great.

Star Trek volume 3 "Shore Leave"/"The Naked Time"

1992, GNP Crescendo Records; from the television series Star Trek, Paramount Pictures, 1966.

Album Notes: Music: Gerald Fried, Alexander Courage; Album Producer: Neil Norman; Album Coordination and Sequencing: Ford A. Thaxton, Mark Banning, David Hirsch; Engineers: Alan Howarth, Brian Risner.

Selections: 1 Main Title (A. Courage)(:51); Shore Leave (G. Fried): 2 New Planet Rabbit/School Chum (4:07); 3 Old English (2:09); 4 Ruth (2:37); 5 Knight/Joust (1:28); 6 A Clue/Finnigan's Return/Leg Trick/Dirt Trick/Tiger Thoughts/2nd Samurai (4:36); 7 Caretaker/Lazarus (2:01); 8 2nd Ruth (:49); The Naked Time (A. Courage): 9 Trailer (1:02); 10 Brass Monkeys (1:28); 11 Joe Berserk (3:03); 12 Sulu Finks Out (:43); 13 D'Artagnan/Banana Farm (3:18); 14 Out Of Control/Lurch Time/Punchy Kid (1:48); 15 Party Time (1:34); 16 Medicine Girl (4:29); 17 Hot Sun/Off The Cloud (1:05); 18 Captain's Wig (6:43); 19 The Big Go (1:43); 20 Time Reverse/Future Risk (:46); 21 Star Trek End Credit (:48).

Review: This third volume in the original "Star Trek" series offers a jarring shift in tone between its two scores: Courage's "The Naked Time" is a bleak, downbeat effort emphasizing the hidden dangers and isolation of outer space as the crew of the Enterprise falls victim to a virus that unleashes their subconscious drives. Percussive and eclectic, the score offers take-offs of Korngold and an Irish tune as well as more large-scale cues involving the starship's efforts to avoid crashing into planet Psi 2000. It's Courage's best score for the series, varied and enjoyable, but almost too convincing in its evocations of the crew's depressions. At the other end of the spectrum is Gerald Fried's airy, "Shore Leave," one of the series' most enjoyable and good-natured scores, marked by a beautiful pastoral melody and the famous irresistible Irish jig Fried wrote to underscore Kirk's encounter with his old Academy tormentor Finnegan. Recommended for anyone in need of violent mood swings.

Star Trek: Deep Space Nine

1993, GNP Crescendo Records; from the television series Star Trek: Deep Space Nine, Paramount Pictures, 1993.

Album Notes: Music: Dennis McCarthy; Album Producer: Dennis McCarthy; Engineer: Armin Steiner.

Selections: 1 Star Trek: Deep Space Nine Main Title (1:55); 2 Wolf 359 (4:51); 3 The Enterprise Departs/A New Home (1:11); 4 Trashed And Thrashed (1:59); 5 Bajor/Jake/Saying Goodbye (1:44); 6 Cucumbers In Space (1:44); 7 New Personality (2:18); 8 Into The Wormhole (3:41); 9 Time Stood Still (4:13); 10 Searching For Relatives (1:13); 11 Painful Memories (4:21); 12 Passage Terminated (3:43); 13 Back To The Saratoga/What Shields? (2:00); 14 Reconciliation (3:19); 15 The Sisko Kid (4:41); 16 A New Beginning (1:48); 17 Theme From Star Trek: Deep Space Nine (single version)(4:17); 18 Passage Terminated (Love Theme)(single version)(3:33).

Review: "Star Trek TNG" uber-composer Dennis McCarthy expanded his empire with this score for the first "Next Generation" spin-off, the more complex and elaborate "Deep Space Nine," which set its stories on an immense alien space station perched on the edge of a galactic wormhole. McCarthy's lonely horn fanfare title music immediately sets the tone for the series: not the strident heroism of Jerry Goldsmith's victorious "Star Trek: The Motion Picture" march as used in TNG, but the more realistic, world-weary heroism of people who have to clean up after themselves and others. Although some of the musical tenets of "The Next Generation" (extended tonal pads and smooth, string-and-horn dominated orchestrations) hold sway here, there's some interesting experimentation in the jarring atonality of cues like "Time Stood Still" and the funky alien source music heard in "Quark's Bar". It's still as far as you can get from the broad, motif-heavy music of the original series, but McCarthy has elevated this approach to an art form, writing scores of remarkable complexity and subtlety.

Review: Dennis McCarthy's score for "The Next Generation's" pilot episode "Encounter at Farpoint" is primarily interesting as an illustration of how different the TNG composing style is early in the series compared to its eventual smooth, understated style that ensued after the first couple of years. The album features the show's familiar title music (adapted from Alexander Courage's opening fanfare from the original series and Jerry Goldsmith's title march from Star Trek: The Motion Picture) and McCarthy's ambitious underscore for "Farpoint," featuring a noble brass theme for Captain Picard, some heavy duty action writing for the episode's various space confrontations, and a use of violins and electronic effects that's diametrically opposed to the style McCarthy later adopted for the show.

Review: GNP's second offering from "The Next Generation" features Ron Jones' powerful score to the two part cliffhanger

"The Best of Both Worlds," a spectacular story about the Federation's first major confrontation with the insidious Borg race. Jones wrote a percussive, driving score that took the Borg threat very seriously, even introducing a frightening synthesized choir to herald the Borg's arrival as a kind of pseudoreligious death knell for humanity. The score is filled with rhythmically inventive, slam-bang action cues, especially the exciting 'Intervention' which underscores a technically complex, well-edited battle between the Enterprise and the Borg cube. There's an enjoyable and appropriate intermingling of orchestral and electronic effects and a nice heroic motif for Commander Riker. Written during the heyday of the third and fourth season , when the series was really hitting its stride both dramatically and musically, Jones' score is one of the best ever produced for the show.

Review: Dennis McCarthy returns with three TNG offerings, beginning with his superb score for the great "Yesterday's Enterprise" episode about the Enterprise's encounter with a starship from the past and its effect on the crew and history. McCarthy pulled out the stops on this one, effectively underscoring the episode's strong dramatic themes and providing some thrilling battle music, particularly for the final showdown with a trio of Klingon vessels, scored with a battle fanfare that would be at home in a Star Wars movie. After that high point McCarthy's silky, subdued effort for the two-part Spock episode "Unification" is something of a letdown, although some of the fun is recaptured in the amusing tale of holodeck addiction, "Hollow Pursuits." The album is a textbook primer on how McCarthy had to change his style to the dictates of the show's producers, moving from the energetic, dramatic scoring of "Yesterday's Enterprise" to the more atmospheric, understated style of the latter two stories.

Star Trek: Voyager "Caretaker"

1995, GNP Crescendo; from the television series Star Trek: Voyager, Paramount Pictures, 1995.

Goldsmith)(1:16); 13 The Caretaker's Hoedown (2:35).

Review: Jay Chattaway charted the course for this latest "Star Trek" series with a heavily rhythmic, percussive score for the pilot episode "The Caretaker" that helped to begin a movement away from the low-key atmospheric scoring that had dominated the franchise since the latter days of "Star Trek: The Next Generation." A key element of the show is the sweeping, majestic French horn melody written by film composer and "Star Trek" veteran Jerry Goldsmith for the show's title music, and adapted very effectively by Chattaway during the score's last few cues (which also feature an ingeniously subtle quotation of Alexander Courage's original Star Trek fanfare). The rest of the score features hard-hitting, brassy action cues for some furious space dogfight sequences, a series of shifting, undulating orchestral and synthesized chords for the spacial phenomenon that flings the U.S.S. Voyager across the galaxy, and even some banjo picking for an illusory meeting with the Caretaker in human form.

Review: Veteran composer Fred Steiner created some of the most memorable music in television history with his work on "Perry Mason," "The Twilight Zone" and especially the original Star Trek. For this beautifully produced two volume set of albums, Steiner conducted the National Symphony Orchestra in some magnificent recreations of his powerful scores for episodes like "The Corbomite Maneuver," "Charlie X," "Mudd's Women" on Volume One and "Mirror, Mirror" and "By Any Other Name" on Volume Two. Volume One also features a brief suite of pounding "planet killer" music from Sol Kaplan's "The Doomsday Machine" (better represented in its original form on GNP/ Crescendo's Star Trek Volume Two), while Volume Two presents a suite from Jerry Fielding's quirky "The Trouble With Tribbles" (again given a more complete presentation on GNP/Crescendo's Star Trek 30 Year Anniversary Album) and the bulk of George Duning's silkily sentimental effort for the third season's "The Empath." Volume One is a classic representation of music from the series, with Steiner's "Corbomite Maneuver" and "Charlie X" representing the show's scoring at its operatic and dramatic heights. Volume Two is somewhat less successful, with Steiner's "Mirror, Mirror" and "By Any Other Name" scores proving uncharacteristically repetitive; Duning's "The Empath" comes off better, although it doesn't represent the composer's best work for the series. Both albums are marked by Steiner's accomplished conducting and rich, deep sound, and should be of great value to fans of the series.

Matlovsky): 4 Alice In Wonderland, Mudd's Series, Tired Of Happiness, Stella, The Last Straw, Stella 500 (8:38).

Review: Produced simultaneously with Varese's "Star Trek" music re-recordings, Label X's albums arranged the show's scores into continuous suites, beginning on Volume One with Gerald Fried's beautifully lyrical, pastoral "The Paradise Syndrome" and George Duning's alternately romantic and agitated "Is There In Truth No Beauty?" Completing the Trek canon of composers on Volume Two is Joseph Mullendore's classically old-fashioned romance music for "The Conscience of the King," Sol Kaplan's dark and furious "The Enemy Within," Jerry Fielding's unusual, percussive "Spectre of the Gun" and Samuel Matlovsky's Brechtian, satirical "I, Mudd." Kaplan's "Enemy Within" is the score to beat in this group, an oft-repeated, quintessential distillation of the original series hyper-dramatic, rich orchestral style. Fielding's "Spectre of the Gun" is an aberration, a tonally inventive piece of modernism closely related to the composer's Oscar-nominated score and to Sam Pekinpah's The Wild Bunch, written the same year. Much of the score arrangements were recreated by ear with great fidelity by Clyde Allen, but the suite approach leads to some jarring alterations, and Tony Bremner's conducting sometimes fails to recapture the tempos and accents of the original works, particularly Duning's music, which slips into an aggravating formlessness under Lasher's baton. This still qualifies as a superbly realized preservation of some of television's most memorable music.

Review: This anthology series, originally made for cable television, first gained notoriety because several movie directors and actors, many who never did TV, were willing to work on individual episodes. Consequently, many film composers were also willing to take on scoring assignments. The album features suites from eleven episodes including "The Thing from the Grave" (David Newman), "Cutting Cards" (James Horner), and "The Reluctant Vampire" (Cliff Eidelman). Bruce Broughton's uncharacteristicly dark "Carrion Death," is included. It is a score for an episode that had almost no dialogue. Steve Bartek, Danny Elfman's long time collaborator, contributes the delightful solo effort of a jazzy film noir music for "Deadline." The long version of Elfman's main theme leads off the CD and John Kassir, who voiced the Crypt Keeper, performs on "The Crypt Jam." A really nice body of work.

Review: This musical collection inspired by the TV epic brings together several well-known C&W artists in renditions of songs that all have something to do with Texas, neatly bookended by Lee Holdridge's opening and closing themes [amateurs of soundtrack music will have to dig out the promotional CD released around the same time, and containing all the cues composed by Holdridge for the film]. One's acceptance of this compilation will be strictly limited by one's tolerance for this type of material. Taken at face value, and despite the wide variations in sound quality, it has its many moments of fun and entertainment, though it offers little that is new or rare. Strictly for fans.

Review: Whoever W.G. Snuffy Walden, Jay Gruska and Stewart Levin are, the music they have created for "thirtysomething," at least as represented in this soundtrack CD, is very enjoyable. Pleasantly rhythmic, in a style that happily mixes various genres around melodic material that is usually quite attractive, it relies on acoustic instruments to make a flavorful statement, often without overstating its case. Supplementing the instrumental cues, some vocals add their own color to the mix, whether it's Rickie Lee Jones swooning her way through "It Must Be Love," Karla Bonoff warbling the traditional "The Water Is Wide," or Ray Charles doing a surprisingly effective version of the old standard "Come Rain or Come Shine."

Selections: 1 Symphonic Suite #1 (21:53); 2 Symphonic Suite #2 (25:04).

Review: A six-part dramatization of The Legacy, Nevil Shute's best-selling novel, "A Town Like Alice" centers around two prisoners of war whose romance begins during the Japanese invasion of Malaya in World War II, and concludes in the vast Australian outback. The story inspired Bruce Smeaton to write a score that's filled with gorgeous melodies, attractive themes, and compelling cues. For the purpose of this CD (and presumably a soundtrack LP before that), they are strung together into two suites, probably fitting both sides of an LP, and are heard in little snippets that are not otherwise identified, making it difficult to follow the dramatic progression of the score in relation to the story.

Review: Few television series afforded the major film composers the opportunity to make meaningful contributions to the small-screen medium, and utilize their talent in a way that would equal their comparatively larger theatrical efforts. Rod Serling's "The Twilight Zone" was such a show, and its success is not only rooted in the superior quality of the storylines and visual production, but in Serling's careful choice of music as well. Among the noted composers that created original themes and long-form compositions for the program were Bernard Herrmann, Jerry Goldsmith, Leonard Rosenman and Fred Steiner—all well represented on Varese Sarabande's two-volume The Best of the Twilight Zone.

Bewitching to any fan of the sci-fi classic will be the familiar opening and closing themes (by Marius Constant and Bernard Herrmann), ten thematic scores for specific episodes ("The Passerby," "The Lonely," "I Sing the Body Electric," "Nervous Man in a Four Dollar Room" and "Walking Distance" among them), and two underscore jazz themes. Each melody is sure to stir vague feelings of recognition, that like the show itself, will leave you asking "Haven't I heard this somewhere?"

Review: If you had to single out one soundtrack as being an "atmosphere score," Angelo Badalamenti's catchy music from the David Lynch series "Twin Peaks" would undoubtedly fit such a distinction. Lynch's program started off as a refreshingly different program for network TV, with bizarre plots, off-the-wall humor, quirky characters and intense dramatic situations making for an enjoyable entertainment that drew critical praise and big audiences when it debuted in the Spring of 1990. Just as important to the show's success as the program's talented cast and offbeat tone was Badalamenti's brooding, deliberately paced musical accompaniment, which ranges from the memorable, electric guitar-performed theme song (also heard in a vocal version by Lynch favorite Julee Cruise) to cues that are alternately characterized by spacey, almost droning electronic music or even jazz-like in their most unconventional moments. Badalamenti defined the show's oddball approach through his music, and did his best to maintain the show's initial promise even as Lynch and co-creator Mark Frost decidedly lost their way when the program floundered during its second and final season on the air.

Review: A splendid jazz influenced score by "Star Trek Generations" composer Dennis McCarthy for the Sci-Fi Channel cable movie concerning a wish-granting machine that comes with a terrible price. Based on the short story "Something for Nothing," the main theme has a nice laid back feel, it's solo trumpet providing just the right amount of pathos for the central character and his sterile, boring life. As he quickly gets in over his head, the music becomes darker with McCarthy drawing on some of the more non-melodic sound designs he frequently used to great effect on the mid-1980's alien invasion series "V."

Review: In 1952, Broadway composer Richard Rodgers took a sabbatical from his theatrical ventures to create the score for the popular television series "Victory at Sea," a documentary of World War II emphasizing the naval battles waged between 1939 and 1945. The score, lush, inordinately musical and attractive, yet powerfully suggestive, won an Emmy Award for best score in 1953, and elicited rapturous reviews from most reviewers who described it as a work of "compelling beauty and vigor that adds incalculably to the emotional intensity of the series" (Jack Gould, New York Times). Eventually, the series was adapted for the big screen and a theatrical feature was released by United Artists in 1954.

Three years later, Robert Russell Bennett, Rodgers' regular arranger, went to the recording studio and prepared three albums containing many of the best cues from the score for release by RCA. The two CDs regroup most of these selections into a sweeping, panoramic musical display of great intensity and originality, with sound effects added for greater realism.

As a melodist, Rodgers was particularly proficient, and his score enables him to unleash the raw emotional power he so often was compelled to curb in his Broadway shows. Today, the impact of his music is as great as it was 45 years ago, with some selections ("Guadalcanal March," "Theme of the Fast Carriers," "The Song of the High Seas") revealing his uncanny talent for ear-grabbing tunes.

Review: A skillful blend of synthesizers, acoustics and voice by John Frizzell for the short lived television series. A solo female vocal was applied to the main theme for Sidney, a young woman who discovered a means of getting into people's psyche through virtual reality. Frizzell had to be creative to match the oddly designed virtual landscapes of Sidney's encounters, while creating more realistic motifs for her pursuit by shadowy government agents who want the technology. Some of the themes are very harmonious, while others, like "Family Drowning," have unsettling dissonant melodies. Although a spellbinding piece of work by virtue of Frizzell's creativity, this exists only when the tracks are listened to as separate elements. The album's sequencing is, however, somewhat disjointed, and that's the weakest part. The music is assembled in bits and pieces and makes no attempt to establish any kind of symphonic flow.

Review: This infantile television series actually spawned a great soundtrack album that attracted a lot of frontliners, including Joe Cocker, Was (Not Was), Julian Lennon, Carole King, Richie Havens, and Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, among others. Of course, many of these performances have been available elsewhere, but who can resist Cocker's rendition of "With A Little Help From My Friends," Was (Not Was)' version of "Baby I Need Your Loving," or Judson Spence's take on "Drift Away"? And that's only for a start. Other goodies in the CD also include Buffalo Springfield's "For What It's Worth," Van Morrison's "Brown-Eyed Girl," Carole King's "Will You Love Me Tomorrow," and Debbie Gibson's tribute to the show, "Come Home." Alright, it's not great, but it's good fun.

Review: After the nonsense of the pop album Music in the Key of X, we have an original soundtrack to the hit TV series "The X-Files," featuring Mark Snow's moody and evocative score. Unfortunately, what we have isn't so much a recording of the film's excellent music, but an audio "event" merging the music with random snippets of faint dialog and spooky electronic sound effects. While this sound design may occasionally evoke the mood of the TV series, it goes on way too long and the continual intrusion of dialog ruins any possibility of an enjoyable listening of Snow's music. Perhaps die-hard *X-File*ophiles may get off on reliving the episodes recalled by the dialog excerpts, what purports to be "Music from the X-Files" becomes only annoying.

Review: A "Hercules" spin-off that's eclipsed its predecessor in popularity, "Xena" inspired composer Joe LoDuca to improve on his derivative Hercules music and create a far more passionate and original theme for the vigilante, indomitable Amazon warrior Xena that mixes a pounding brass line with the chanting of a female chorus. The percussive, ethnic Amazon music intersperses itself throughout this lengthy album, balanced with some more traditional but no less energetic orchestral action cues and some surprisingly effective and rich moments of sentimentality. There are ripely melodramatic horror cues and a few pop-oriented treatments of dances and market sequences that fit comfortably into this epic canvas, making this one of the most enjoyable TV score albums around.

Review: Based on a real-life story, "A Year in Provence" began when Peter and Annie Mayle decided to quit the London rat race and move to rustic Provence to savor the French way of life—good food, fine wines and seductive climate. The hilarious account of their first year there, trying to adjust to the idiosyncracies of the natives and the quaint traditions of the region, provided the basis for a book, and for the series of the same name which starred John Thaw and Lindsay Duncan. Taking a cue from the story, Carl Davis delivered a multifaceted score, rife with amusing asides, and supremely exhilarating musical jokes that anyone can instantly appreciate. The themes throughout do not so much evoke Provence as they do any number of locales and situations that may be relevant to the story, but often don't seem to be ("Learning the Language," for instance, quotes the theme from The Magnificent Seven, while the main theme in "The Tony Awards" recalls a saloon scene in a western). If any real evocation of southern France can be found in the score, it is provided by three selections from Canteloube's "Songs of the Auvergne," gorgeously performed by Lesley Garrett, which, as any red-blooded Frenchman will tell you, have as much to do with Provence as the accordion that sometimes plays a lilting valse musette in Carl Davis' score. The cues, neatly divided one each to a month, are a tongue-in-cheek delight that faintly echo a foreigner's idea of the type of music one might hear in France; they prove fresh and inventive, and irresistibly enjoyable, whether in Provence or anywhere else.

Review: There are many things to like intensely in these four volumes. The first is, of course, the abundance of music, and the fact that two excellent composers, Laurence Rosenthal and Joel McNeely, were each asked to write selected episodes in the series, a task they did with flying colors. The other is the diversity in each composer's approach, reflected in their different styles, but also in the fact that each episode is set in a different locale gave them an opportunity to be even more creative.

And then, as if all of it were not enough, the remarkable thing is that the music gets better as the listener proceeds from volume one to volume four.

Adding to the overall impact of the music, each composer has been given an opportunity to explain in the liner notes his approach to the episode he had been asked to score, thus giving the listener an extra dimension into the creative process.

Review: With only two film scores, the Academy Award-winning The Bridge on the River Kwai in 1957, and The Inn of the Sixth Happiness the following year, Malcolm Arnold gained international fame, though few, outside of inner circles, know his name. One of the most prolific modern British composers, he came to film music when he scored The Sound Barrier, a film about jet planes and their attempts to fly faster than sound, made by David Lean, in 1952. The following year, Hobson's Choice, Lean's adaptation of the Harold Brighouse play, gave him an opportunity to echo in his score the elements of humor and romance that characterized this delighful film.

But it was with The Bridge on the River Kwai that Arnold came into his own. In his music, he magistrally evoked the power struggle between a fierce British officer and his Japanese captor in a war camp lost in the jungle, as well as the building of a bridge by the British prisoners and its destruction by an Allied commando. While the score called for some serial effects, much of it was a sensational display of action-driven rousing themes that paralleled the construction of the bridge across an escarpment and the progress of the commando through the jungle.

Another war drama, The Inn of the Sixth Happiness is the real-life story of an English woman who became a missionary in China, just as the Japanese invaded the country at the onset of World War II, and who manages to lead a large group of children to safety over the mountains. The tune "This Old Man," which permeated the film, became a runaway hit.

As for Whistle Down the Wind, written in 1961, it details a story of three children mistaking a dangerous murderer for Jesus, with the composer writing a pared-down chamber-like score that was particularly effective in the context.

With four out of the five scores making their first appearance on compact disc, in breathtaking digital sound, this CD is highly recommended, if only because it focuses on a film composer who deserves to be better known. With a few minor exceptions (the kettle drums in the opening bars of The Bridge on the River Kwai are much too loud and overbearing), performance by the London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Richard Hickox, is superlative.

Selections: 1 Goldfinger (2:25); 2 Sail The Summer Winds (from The Dove) (3:41); 3 Love Among The Ruins (3:21); 4 Lolita (from the stage musical Lolita, My Love)(3:00); 5 A Doll's House (2:50); 6 Follow, Follow (from Follow Me)(2:30); 7 Diamonds Are Forever (3:01); 8 Boom! Review: Initially issued on LP in the early 1970s, this anthology of themes composed by John Barry for the screen and the stage offers many tracks that are not available anywhere else, in itself a boon for collectors. While it includes Barry's most famous tunes ("Goldfinger," "Thunderball," "We Have All the Time in the World," "Diamonds Are Forever"), often in reorchestrated versions that differ somewhat from the original, the set is of particular interest for the other tracks, like the lovely "Sail the Summer Winds," from The Dove, which takes the counterpoint of the main melody to create a new variation on the theme; "Follow, Follow," from Follow Me, a 1972 film with Mia Farrow; "This Way Mary," from Mary, Queen of Scots; "The Good Times Are Coming," from Monte Walsh, a western which stars Lee Marvin; and the main theme from The Whisperers, a drama starring Dame Edith Evans.

At the same time, Barry also worked on musicals, with three selections reflecting this particular side of his creativity, "Lolita," from the failed Broadway show Lolita, My Love, based on Valdimir Nabokov's novel; "Billy," the main song from the stage show of the same name, starring Michael Crawford; and "Curiouser and Curiouser," from the screen musical The Adventures of Alice in Wonderland.

Unlike his compilations of more recent vintage, this set presents the composer at his most creative, in renditions that are lively, strikingly original, and that plainly justify the unfading loyalty Barry commands among his fans.

1988, Columbia Records.

Album Notes: conducted by John Barry; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Mark Wilder.

Selections: 1 The James Bond Theme (from Dr. No)(2:53); 2 Born Free (2:46); 3 Fun City (from Midnight Cowboy)(3:19); 4 The Lion In Winter (2:45); 5 We Have All The Time In The World (from On Her Majesty's Secret Service)(3:30); 6 Wednesday's Child (from The Quiller Memorandum)(2:01) Matt Monro; 7 From Russia With Love (2:35); 8 Space March (from You Only Live Twice) (2:55); 9 The Wrong Box (2:31); 10 The Ipcress File (3:53); 11 Thunderball (3:13); 12 The Chase (3:05); 13 The Knack And How To Get It (2:48); 14 The Whisperers (2:37); 15 King Rat (4:15); 16 Next Time (from The Appointment)(2:34); 17 Goldfinger (4:23).

Review: There are numerous compilations of John Barry's film music available, but this relatively early CD release ought to be of interest to both the serious soundtrack aficionado as well as the casual listener. Comprised of session recordings made by Barry with full orchestra in the late 1960s, the album contains the usual, trademark themes associated with the composer, from a particularly jazzy rendition of "The James Bond Theme" (as well as selections from a number of other Bond adventures) to the soothing melodies of Born Free and The Wrong Box. While these particular selections may be no-brainers for incorporation into a Barry retrospective, this particular release is notable for its inclusion of the composer's more offbeat, innovative dramatic music from The Chase, The Ipcress File and The Lion in Winter. With this diversity of material included, the album adeptly spotlights all aspects of Barry's compositional skills and paints a more versatile musical portrait of the composer than many of the other, more routine Barry compilations out there.

Moviola: volume two

1995, Epic Soundtrax/Sony.

Album Notes: The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Barry; Album Producer: John Barry; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: The James Bond Suite: (1-9) 1 Goldfinger (2:41); 2 The James Bond Theme (2:01); 3 From Russia With Love (2:54); 4 Thunderball (2:33); 5 007 (1:48); 6 You Only Live Twice (2:22); 7 On Her Majesty's Secret Service (2:03); 8 Diamond Are Forever (2:26); 9 All Time High (from Octopussy)(3:56); 10 Until September (4:25); 11 King Kong (2:37); 12 Zulu (2:45); Dances With Wolves Suite: (13-17) 13 Pawnee Attack, Part I & II (4:05); 14 Kicking Bird's Gift (2:06); 15 Journey To Fort Sedgewick (2:40); 16 Two Socks/The Wolf Theme (1:32); 17 Farewell And Finale, Part I & II (9:52); 18 Did You Call Me (from The Specialist)(5:24); 19 The Specialist (5:39).

Review: These two albums provide an impressive cross-section of, and introduction to the work of John Barry. Moviola opens with Out of Africa and Midnight Cowboy—both popular works by the composer, but these prove to be among the less interesting offerings. Body Heat, a sultry, legato theme for jazz saxophone, is one of the best tracks, a sensual and seductive piece which lives up to its name. The deservedly popular Somewhere in Time is also presented in a rapturous performance. Walkabout, Mary, Queen of Scots and Born Free are less satisfying here than in Barry's original scoring (the replacement of Mary's harpsichord with solo violin deflates much of the theme's original effect). Chaplin however is a beautiful, melancholy theme, while The Cotton Club evokes a "film noir" feeling similar to Body Heat, but with a slightly more sinister flavor. The album closes with "Moviola", a work derived from Barry's unused music for Prince of Tides (a film assignment from which Barry resigned).

Moviola II contains a lengthy suite from the James Bond films, which arranges the title themes into a powerful, large-orchestral setting. Zulu features a more dynamic, less legato side of Barry (which he really has not shown since the '60s). However, the Dances With Wolves suite is unsatisfying: the performance is anemic compared to the original soundtrack. The same is true of the two themes from The Specialist which are also featured.

The first Moviola CD is undoubtedly the more successful of the two. However, despite some quirks in the second volume, both remain valuable and worthy representations of one the finest film composers ever, and are well-worth a place in one's collection.

When a composer, particularly one of John Barry's caliber, decides to revisit the themes he has created over the years, one has the right to expect a challenging vision of these themes. Unfortunately, the approach taken in these two CDs is much too reverential and solemn, and where some of the selections, notably the James Bond themes in the second volume, should have elicited crackling renditions to echo the originals, the ponderous tone adopted here, with long symphonic digressions and expanded musical lines, sounds too much like what Barry writes these days, in imitation of Dances With Wolves. In other words gorgeous, but ultimately less inspiring than the works he used to create when he was still struggling to establish his reputation.

The Classic Film Music of John Barry: volume two

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: John Barry; Orchestrations: Nic Raine; The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Nic Raine; Featured Soloists: Josef Kroft (violin), Jaroslava Eliasova (piano, harpsichord), Jiri Bousek (flute, alto flute), Michal Horsa'k (cymbalum), Jan Burian (trumpet), Milan Zelenka (guitar); Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: John L. Timperley.

Selections: 1 High Road To China (suite)(8:10); 2 The Wrong Box (2:46); 3 A Man Alone (from The Ipcress File)(3:59); 4 The Black Hole (suite)(4:54); 5 The Appointment (2:18); 6 Love Theme (from The Scarlet Letter)(3:03); 7 Monte Walsh (suite)(11:10); 8 The Knack (1:46); 9 Cry The Beloved Country (4:32); 10 The Dove (suite)(6:28); 11 Walkabout (3:47); Mary Queen Of Scots (suite): (12-14) 12 Vivre et mourir (2:11); 13 But Not Through My Realm (4:47); 14 This Way Mary (4:15); 15 Wednesday's Child (from The Quiller Memorandum)(2:31); 16 Romance For Guitar And Orchesta (from Deadfall)(10:52).

Review: The main interest of these two volumes resides in the selections, and particularly the longer suites, that are not otherwise available. And there are quite a few: "The Last Valley," "Eleanor and Franklin," "Hanover Street," "Born Free," "Raise the Titanic," and "Robin and Marian" in the first CD; "The Black Hole," "The Appointment," "Monte Walsh," "The Dove," and "Mary Queen Of Scots," in the second. One particular joy in the last CD is also the "Romance for guitar and orchestra," written for the 1968 thriller Deadfall, which gave Barry a rare opportunity to compose a long and eloquent concerto for solo instrument, removed from the James Bond action films he was primarily known for at the time.

Throughout, the Prague Philharmonic gives accurate readings of the various themes, and if some of the selections might seem superfluous, the overall concept of "classic" John Barry music plainly justifies their inclusion here.

Elmer Bernstein: A Man and His Movies

1991, Mainstream Records.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; Orchestrations: Jack Hayes, Leo Shuken, Ruby Raskin; Orchestra conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Album Producers: Jackie Mills, Tommy Wolf; Engineer: "Bones" Howe.

Selections: 1 Rat Race (2:15); 2 Three Times Blusier (from the TV show Take Five)(3:10); 3 Radio Hysteria (from Sudden Fear)(2:08); 4 Anna Lucasta (3:50); 5 Hop, Skip But Jump (3:18); 6 Big Top (2:01); 7 Sweet Smell Of Success (3:19); 8 The Man With The Golden Arm (2:52); 9 Jubilation (4:21); 10 Walk On The Wild Side (3:40); 11 Birdman Of Alcatraz (2:27); 12 Tree Treasure (from To Kill A Mockingbird)(3:50); 13 Main Title Theme (from Baby The Rain Must Fall) (2:30); 14 Main Title Theme (from To Kill A Mockingbird)(2:28) The Pete Jolly Trio.

Review: These early compilations bring together several themes composed by Elmer Bernstein between 1955, when he first appeared on the scene with the striking jazz score for The Man With the Golden Arm, and 1965, when he scored Baby the Rain Must Fall for Steve McQueen. By then, Bernstein had already created the score that would make him a household name, The Magnificent Seven, but since it was on another label, it couldn't be included here. While some selections differ from one CD to the other, both are essentially the same and, more tellingly, both use the same source material, which is of inferior quality. Despite Mobile Fidelity's remastering, which eliminates some of the most flagrant flaws in the original recording, the sound quality is not much better than the Mainstream recording, which makes no pretense at correcting it. If you care for the music, you might want to get both, as the Mainstream CD contains more selections. Otherwise, you might decide to pass this one out, until a better version is made available.

Elmer Bernstein by Elmer Bernstein

1993, Denon Records.

Album Notes: Music: Elmer Bernstein; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Soloists: Kenny Baker (trumpet), Jack Parnell (drums), Cynthia Millar (Ondes Martinot/Synthesizers); Album Producers: Elmer Bernstein, Christopher Palmer; Engineer: Keith Grant.

Selections: 1 The Magnificent Seven (4:59); 2 To Kill A Mockingbird (8:19); 3 The Man With The Golden Arm (4:00); 4 The Grifters (8:15); 5 Walk On The Wild Side (4:00); 6 Hawaii (4:59); 7 The Great Escape (2:19); 8 Ghostbusters (2:47); 9 Hollywood And The Stars (2:59); 10 Rambling Rose (2:58); 11 Heavy Metal (4:56); 12 My Left Foot (7:10); 13 The Ten Commandments (7:49).

Review: Whether setting the musical stage for westerns, small town tales, or personal turmoil, few modern film composers have been as able to capture the essence of the American spirit as Elmer Bernstein. Elmer Bernstein by Elmer Bernstein showcases 13 of the composer's classic themes, including To Kill a Mockingbird, The Man With the Golden Arm, Walk on the Wild Side, The Ten Commandments, Ghostbusters and The Magnificent Seven.

With the composer himself conducting the Royal Philharmonic Pops Orchestra, these familiar strains take on a new dimension. Repeated listening to these works proves that Bernstein's genius is on a par with that of Aaron Copland, whose influence on the direction of Bernstein's approach to music cannot be denied.

If you are a fan of film music, or just plain great music, this disc is required listening!

Claude Bolling (1930-

Bolling Films

1992, DRG Records.

Album Notes: Music: Claude Bolling; Orchestras conducted by Claude Bolling; Album Producer: Van-John Sfiridis.

Selections: 1 Borsalino: Main Theme (2:18); Lucky Luke: 2 I'm A Poor Lonesome Cowboy (1:35) Pat Woods; 3 Traversee de l'Ouest (Crossing The West)(4:48); Les brigades du Tigre: 4 Theme de Valentin (2:09); L'annee sainte: 5 En cavale (On The Lam)(2:12); Le Magnifique: 6 La Plaza (2:20); 7 Tatiana (2:57); 8 Concerto pour piano tueurs et orchestra (Concerto For Killer Piano and Orchestra)(2:45); Qui: 9 Who Are You? (3:30); 10 Full Speed (2:15); 11 Flic Story: Theme (3:30); 12 Trois hommes a abattre (Three Men To Kill): Main Title (2:44); 13 Main Title: On ne meurt que deux fois (2:44); 14 L'etrange Monsieur Duvallier: Main Theme (1:30); The Awakening: 15 Last Judgment (2:54); 16 Catch Me A Spy: Main Title (3:52); Louisiane: 17 Old New Orleans (2:21); 18 Louisiana Waltz (3:50) Dee Dee Bridgewater; 19 Dixieland (1:44); Race For The Bomb: 20 Graphic Title (:40); 21 Joliot Curie(1:51); 22 Szilard-Teller And The Japanese (4:58); California Suite: 23 California (2:50); 24 Love Theme (2:50); La Gitane (The Gypsy Girl): 25 Caramba (Main Title)(:58); 26 Mona (1:10); La ballade des Daltons: 27 Dalton Musical (with vocal and chorus)(5:20).

Review: In the U.S., Claude Bolling is primarily known for his semi-classical collaborations with artists like Jean-Pierre Rampal or Yo Yo Ma, and for an occasional soundtrack (Louisiane, California Suite). In his native France, he is held in great admiration, and a Gallic equivalent to Henry Mancini, whose many scores rank among the best ever written in a light jazz-pop vein.

This excellent compilation actually surveys several of the French and American films which Bolling has scored, and provides a casual coverage of his career. There is enough here to satisfy the most demanding customers, with the composer expressing himself in various genres, from thrillers to comedies, from musicals to... westerns! It all amounts to a great deal of fun, in a CD that should enable many collectors to better appreciate Bolling as an all-around film composer.

Scott Bradley

Tex Avery Cartoons

1992, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Scott Bradley; The M-G-M Studio Orchestra, conducted by Scott Bradley; Album Produced: David Franco; Engineer: Bob Norberg.

Selections: 1 Cell Bound (#291) (5:04); 2 Little Johnny Jet (#267) (7:18); 3 TV Of Tomorrow (#274) (6:32); 4 Three Little Pups (#269) (2:58); 5 Deputy Droopy (#288) (5:32); 6 Dragalong Droopy (#271) (7:31).

Review: Composer Scott Bradley did some stunningly effective work on Tex Avery's manic one-reelers for M.G.M. and he certainly deserves an album of his work, but this CD surely will only appeal to hardcore fans. The album suffers greatly from the fact that each of the six musical suites featured here are filled with dialogue and sound effects. Why would anyone not want to just buy a video tape and enjoy the animation, too? Bradley's contribution to the art of animation scoring was without a doubt just as important as Carl Stalling's, but at least some of the recordings on Stalling's albums were dialogue free. Bradley certainly followed the practice of incorporating familiar and popular songs of the time into his ever changing musical landscape. His work still remains a delight, but without the distractions please.

Geoffrey Burgon

Brideshead Revisited

1992, Silva Screen Records; from the Granada-TV series Brideshead Revisited, 1981.

Album Notes: Music: Geoffrey Burgon; The Philharmonia Orchestra conducted by Geoffrey Burgon; Featured Soloist: Lesley Garrett, soprano; Album Producers: Geoffrey Burgon, James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor; Assistant Engineer: Marc Williams.

Selections: Brideshead Revisited (1981): 1 Brideshead Revisited (2:01); 2 Julia (3:44); 3 Julia's Theme (4:02); 4 The Hunt (2:21); 5 Fading Light (3:53); 6 Farewell To Brideshead (2:52); Testament Of Youth (1979): 7 Testament Of Youth (1:32); 8 Intimations Of War (3:30); 9 Elegy (2:25); 10 Finale (2:10); Bleak House (1985): 11 Bleak House (1:40); 12 The Streets Of London (3:57); 13 Dedlock vs. Boythorn (1:18); 14 Lady Dedlock's Quest (2:53); 15 Finale (2:31); Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy (1979): 16 Opening Music (1:33); 17 Nunc Dimittis (Closing Music)(2:15) Lesley Garrett; The Chronicles Of Narnia (1991): 18 Aslan's Theme (1:30); 19 The Great Battle (2:45); 20 Mr. Tumnus' Tune (1:11); 21 The Storm At Sea (1:33); 22 Aslan Sacrificed (2:31); 23 The Journey To Harfang (2:21); 24 Farewell To Narnia (1:41).

Review: The elegant score heard behind the scenes in "Brideshead Revisited" was composed by a little known British composer, who began his career writing music for some "Dr. Who" episodes, and promptly imposed himself with his impressive score for the 1981 Granada-TV television series. This anthology covers four other series which all bear his unmistakable musical style, "Testament of Youth" and "Tinker, Tailor, Soldier, Spy," both from 1979; "Bleak House," from 1985; and "The Chronicles of Narnia." Among those, "Tinker...," an adaptation of a John Le Carre's novel, starring Alec Guinness as the dour George Smiley, is probably the best known. It's also the one that elicited the strongest statement from the composer, a dark, brooding theme that set the tone for the whole series. A war drama, "Testament of Youth" suggested a score which contrasted the bombast of the war effort and the serenity of happier times. An adaptation of Charles Dicken's novel, "Bleak House" found Burgon writing in a different mood, an evocation of the Victorian time, at once exhilarating and bitter sweet. As for "The Chronicles of Narnia," an adaptation of C.S. Lewis' allegorical novels, its magical narrative about children escaping to the mythical kingdom of Nardia prompted Burgon to create a score that's wonderfully lyrical and mischievously exciting.

Charles Chaplin (1889-1977)

Charlie!

1993, Silva America.

Album Notes: Music: Charles Chaplin; Orchestrations: Francis Shaw; The Munich Symphony Orchestra conducted by Francis Shaw; Featured Musicians: George Schwenk (accordion), Monique Billick (mandolin), Leonora Hall (piano); Album Producer: Christopher Landor; Engineer: Alan Snelling.

Selections: Limelight: 1 Eternally (4:57); The Idle Class: 2 Foxtrot (1:22); A King In New York: 3 Mandolin Serenade (4:10); 4 Weeping Willows (3:26); 5 Peace Patrol (2:30); The Freak: 6 Love Song (4:34); Monsieur Verdoux: 7 Rumba (2:24); 8 Tango "Bitterness" (2:49); 9 Cancan "A Paris Boulevard" (2:20); Modern Times (medley): 10 Smile/Charlie's Dance/Toy Waltz/In The City (8:14); 11 There's Always One You Can't Forget (4:07); The Great Dictator: 12 Napoli March (2:37); City Lights: 13 Beautiful Wonderful Eyes (3:06); A Countess From Hong Kong: 14 This Is My Song (5:45).

Review: While Charles Chaplin will always remain in the minds of most people as the greatest of the silent artistes, few remember that he was also an accomplished composer, who scored his own films with some delightfully beguiling melodies. In the days when film actors couldn't talk, Chaplin's music was his voice and, whether he was The Little Tramp or a Hitler wanna-be, he always spoke in the most eloquent tones. The characters exuded more emotion and drew more compassion from the audience because the music had laid their feelings bare. Perhaps more than anyone else, Chaplin defined the true power of the leitmotif underscore. Conductor Francis Shaw lovingly guides The Munich Symphony through his own orchestrations of 17 classic themes from eleven Chaplin films. Each is reproduced with all of the composer's power intact. Included in this anthology is "Beautiful Wonderful Eyes" from City Lights, several comedic dance numbers from Monsieur Verdoux, "This is My Song" from The Countess from Hong Kong, and a medley from Modern Times that featured Chaplin's biggest hit, "Smile."

Review: As a film composer, Charles Chaplin had a schmaltzy streak in him. His best known compositions ("Smile," "Eternally") today sound a bit sugar-coated and from another era. Yet, there was a winsome charm to his music that subtly matched the comic undertones of his films in which he often portrayed a simple, romantic, impoverished innocent, forever assailed by modern life and the powerful ones, and hopelessly in love with the simple girl next door.

Both the Silva Screen and the BMG sets complement each other, by presenting large extracts from these films, the Silva set focusing on the latter day films, while the BMG set covers the earlier ones. Both reveal in Chaplin a composer who may not rank among the great Hollywood film scorers of his era, but whose music is an important addition to the flickering black and white images of his films.

While the Silva Screen CD is readily available, the "powers-that-be" at BMG/U.S.A., in their infinite wisdom, decided not to release in this country the series of wonderful recordings prepared by their German company to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the movies, including this set. Finding it will probably take some doing, but it's well worth the effort.

Clinton)(1:37); 15 Train To Florida (Hoon-Hortoon/R.C. Nakai/J. Benally)(9:28); Paris, Texas: 16 Houston In Two Seconds (2:02).

Review: This is an agreeable double-album set from Warner Bros. that serves as a selective overview of the blues guitarist's infrequent forays into the world of film music composition. Cooder's music is often like musical glue in a movie, usually working strictly as an atmospheric backdrop to the drama on-screen. Predictably, this results in some positive and negative attributes in his film scores. While Cooder's music is often gritty and "down home" acoustic, often times his music is only a mood – not a piece of fleshed out music. Of course, this services the needs of the films he's working on, but more often than not, it makes for rather tedious listening apart from its source. Listeners will want to note the presence here of previously unavailable music from Southern Comfort and Streets of Fire, along with released cues from many of his most popular scores, including The Long Riders, Crossroads, Trespass, and Paris, Texas. Packaging is unusually slim for a set like this, comprised only of brief notes from the composer and frequent collaborator Walter Hill. In all, a must for fans of Cooder though not an essential purchase by any means for others.

1990, IRS Records.

Album Notes: Music: Stewart Copeland; Album Producer: Jeff Seitz; Engineer: Jeff Seitz.

Selections: 1 Lurking Solo (5:02); 2 Music Box (2:19); 3 Screaming Lord Cole And The Comanches (4:52); 4 The Equalizer Busy Equalising (3:17); 5 Green Fingers (Ten Thumbs) (3:34); 6 Archie David In Overtime (4:00); 7 Tancred Ballet (3:20); 8 Dark Ships (5:33); 9 Flowershop Quintet (3:42); 10 Rag Pole Dance (4:25).

Review: Best known for his role as drummer of the rock group Police, one of the major rock acts of the 1980s, Copeland turned his talents to writing soundtracks for film and TV. The Equalizer and Other Cliff Hangers is a selection of themes and cues, some of which were created for the television series The Equalizer, starring Edward Woodward. While some of the themes heard in this collection have a quirky feel to them ("Music Box," "Green Fingers," "Tancred Ballet"), most rely on the type of electronic drum so prevalent in television today, and fail to make much of an impression, unless you groove on TV themes that all sound the same and are interchangeable from one series to the next.

Catalani)(3:27) Wilhelmina Fernandez; 16 Sentimental Walk (3:37).

CD 2: Michel Strogoff: 1 Nadia's Theme (2:43); The Goat: 2 La cabra (3:42); The Super Ace: 3 The Super Ace (3:20); My Father's Glory: 4 My Father's Glory (3:20); The Ladies' Chamber: 5 For Love (2:37); Le bal: 6 Le bal (3:07); The Secret Drawer: 7 A Happy Memory (2:53); The Viper: 8 The Viper (4:57); The Great Families: 9 The Farewell Waltz (3:22); The Young Girls: 10 The Young Girls (2:01); My Mother's Castle: 11 My Mother's Castle (2:32); The Mad Adventures Of Rabbi Jacob: 12 The Grand Rabbi (2:39); The Beautiful English Woman: 13 The Beautiful English Woman (2:54); The Man From Suez: 14 The Man From Suez (2:37); 15 Next Year If Everything's All Right (2:45); The Seventh Target: 16 The Berlin Concerto (7:01).

Review: One of the most popular film composers in France, Vladimir Cosma is virtually unknown in this country. A musician of considerable talent and versatility, he has distinguished himself in light comedies, a genre in which he particularly excels, as well as in action films and serious dramas, and won the Cesar, the French equivalent of the Oscar, for his scores for Le bal, in 1982, and the international hit, Diva, in 1984.

This 2-CD anthology collects together many of the themes he wrote over the past 25 years, including those for films that were shown in this country, like Mistral's Daughter, The Tall Blond With a Black Shoe, Diva, My Father's Glory, My Mother's Castle, and The Mad Adventures of Rabbi Jacob. The composer's creative characteristics—unusual instrumentations, strongly melodic themes—are all in evidence here, with several vocals in English that should make his work more accessible and enjoyable to a larger audience.

Mychael Danna

The Adjuster: Music for the Films of Atom Egoyan

1997, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Music: Mychael Danna; The Adjuster: Featured Musicians: Djivan Gasparian (duduk), Eve Egoyan (piano), Mark Fewer (violin); Speaking Parts/Family Viewing: The Espirit Orchestra, conducted by Alex Pauk; Album Producer: Mychael Danna; Engineers: Hayward Parrot, Gary Gray.

Selections: The Adjuster: 1 Flashlight (3:36); 2 Dinner At Home (2:44); 3 Archery (2:58); 4 House Tour (3:32); 5 Fire (4:43); Speaking Parts: 6 Speaking Parts (5:10); 7 Piano Concerto (slow movement)(3:00); 8 Clara's Story (2:25); 9 Talk Show (6:48); 10 Touch (3:23); Family Viewing: 11 The Great White Bear (2:01); 12 Unmarked Grave (1:41); 13 A Natural Death (3:38); 14 Memories, These Things Possess You (2:29); 15 North Wing (3:37); 16 Family Reunion (3:26).

Review: This set surveys the scores written by Mychael Danna, a leading Canadian composer, for the films of Atom Egoyan, Family Viewing (1987), Speaking Parts (1989), and The Adjuster (1991), all of them expressing a similar central theme about the encroaching influence of technology in modern society and the disintegration of family life. Often brooding and detached, oppressive and emotionless, the music matches the moods in the films, subliminally reinforcing the message on the screen. Removed from its primary reason, it proves remarkably compelling, though it requires close attention to really make an impression. Some cues, however, are particularly attractive, notably the slow movement from the "Piano Concerto" composed for Speaking Parts, which suggests that Danna can also write in a lyrical vein, and be quite effective at it.

Carl Davis (1936-

The Silents

1988, Virgin Classics.

Album Notes: Music: Carl Davis; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Carl Davis; Featured Soloists: David Nolan (violin), Robert Truman (cello); Album Producer: Paul Wing; Engineer: Tony Faulkner.

Selections: Napoleon: 1 Eagle Of Destiny/Bal des Victimes (6:01); The Crowd: 2 The Announcement (6:05); Flesh And The Devil: 3 The Ball/The Garden Scene (8:13); Show People: 4 The Preview (2:20); Broken Blossoms: 5 Moonbeams (8:20); The Wind: 6 The Cyclone/The Wedding Night/Finale (10:08); The Thief Of Bagdad: 7 The Winged Horse/The Flying Carpet (3:53); The Big Parade: 8 March/ Rookies/Night Battle (6:59); Greed: 9 Wedding Night/Biting The Hand (5:48); Old Heidelberg: 10 Reunion/Finale (7:17).

Review: Throughout much of the 1980s, composer Carl Davis has been busy recreating a lost art. He has composed and recorded brand new scores for several classic pre-sound films for the "Thames Silents" television series. Unlike the majority of people scoring these films, limited to the use of solo piano, organ or synthesizers, Davis has been working with a full symphonic orchestra. He began with Abel Gance's monumental 235-minute epic, Napoleon, a film he often conducts to on live tours (the film was also rescored by Carmine Coppola). This album contains highlights from Napoleon (1927) and nine other scores to such legendary films as The Thief of Bagdad (1924), D.W. Griffith's Broken Blossoms (1919) and Eric von Stroheim's Greed (1924). Davis has managed to tap into that long disused and unique style of film scoring. He creates words where there is none, capturing the emotional moments depicted on film in a lyrical manner. The music can also stand alone as a magnificent performance piece. A beautiful tribute to a bygone era.

CD 2: 1 Suite (from Steel Magnolias)(8:01); 2 Theme (from Interlude)(3:20); 3 Suite (from The Escape Artist)(7:19); 4 Theme (from The Pick-Up Artist) (3:08); 5 Hommage a Francois Truffaut: (a) Shoot The Piano Player, (b) Love At 20, (c) Jules and Jim, (d) The Soft Skin, (e) Two English Girls, (f) Such A Gorgeous Girl Like Me, (g) Vivement Dimanche!, (h) Day For Night, (i) The Woman Next Door, (j) The Last Metro (12:15) Georges Delerue; 6 End Title (from Maxie)(4:03); 7 Suite (from An Almost Perfect Affair)(5:35); 8 Suite (from Salvador) (8:01).

CD 3: 1 Suite (from Something Wicked This Way Comes)(11:48); 2 Theme (from House On Carrol Street)(3:10); 3 Suite (from A Little Sex)(9:25); 4 Theme (from Maid To Order)(2:12); 5 Theme (from Man Woman And Child)(3:18); 6 Suite (from Memories Of Me)(6:48); 7 Suite (from Agnes Of God)(9:38) 8 Suite (from True Confessions)(11:50).

Review: This compilation series—a must-have in any soundtrack collection—superbly demonstrates Georges Delerue's talent and versatility at creating emotive music through fragile, intimate melodies that have a tender poignancy. The series also presents a lot of selections that had never been recorded before.

Central to the three CDs are the rejected adagio from Platoon, a passionate composition for strings; a glorious symphonic suite from Rich and Famous; selections from Steel Magnolias; the pretty piano, flute, and violin romance from The Escape Artist; the gentle jauntiness of strings and marimba in The Pick-Up Artist; the breezy music from A Little Sex; a wistful, melancholy suite from Memories of Me; the evocatively brooding violin and oboe melody from the Hitchcockian thriller The House on Carroll Street; the baroque theme from Maid to Order; the jazzy saxophone theme from Man, Woman and Child; and a 12-minute suite of themes written for the films of Francois Truffaut.

Of particular interest is a nearly 12-minute suite from Delerue's rejected music for Something Wicked This Way Comes in the final volume. The score, one of Delerue's most dramatic efforts, contrasts quiet interludes with harsh, crashing winds; typical of its overall effect, an oscillating chordal theme for strings and woodwinds over rhythmic, rumbling percussion evokes an effective mood of mystery. This orchestral suite actually represents only half the score's musical texture—it does not include the choir or calliope that were featured prominently in the original recording, nor does it use the synthesizer as part of the orchestra. Nonetheless, it stands out as one of Delerue's most interesting scores, and its rarity makes it something to be eagerly sought.

Review: The great French composer Georges Delerue first came to prominence when he scored the films of New Wave directors like Alain Resnais, Jean-Luc Godard, Francois Reichenbach, Alain Robbe-Grillet, and Louis Malle. It is, however, with Francois Truffaut that Delerue earned his stripes, writing the music for many of the director's films, including Shoot the Piano Player, Jules and Jim, The Two English Girls, and The Story of Adele H. Of the five films documented in this CD, two (Confidentially Yours and The Last Metro) are often mentioned as being among the most important in Truffaut and Delerue's body of works, with The Last Metro, a World War II drama, particularly effective in its depiction of occupied Paris and the struggle of a Jewish theatre director to keep his plays running. Both scores and the short cues from A Beautiful Girl Like Me, Day for Night (a film documenting the shooting of a film), and The Woman Next Door, show Delerue in a wide variety of styles, from vernacular to baroque, from jazz to romantic, in a great demonstration of his enormous talent.

Pino Donaggio (1941-

Brian de Palma/ Pino Donaggio

1995, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Pino Donaggio.

Selections: Carrie: 1 Contest Winners (2:32); 2 Bucket Of Blood (2:21); 3 For The Last Time We'll Pay (2:48); Home Movies: 4 Main Title Theme (2:28); Dressed To Kill: 5 The Shower (3:39); 6 The Transformation/The Storm/The Revelation (3:59); Blow Out: 7 Blow Out (2:27); 8 Sally's Death (3:43); Body Double: 9 Claustrophoby (3:18); 10 Love And Menace (4:45); 11 Drill Of Death (2:53); 12 Body Double (3:46); Raising Cain: 13 Cain Takes Over (4:45); 14 Love Memories (3:10).

Review: Intriguing, excellent anthology of the collaboration between director Brian De Palma and composer Pino Donaggio on six of their most notable psychological dramas. Donaggio replaced De Palma's former musical collaborator, Bernard Herrmann, after the composer's passing. It's interesting to listen to Donaggio's work here with that fact in mind. His music certainly redefined De Palma's films particularly through Body Double's electronic "Claustrophoby" and, in particular, the climactic cue from Dressed to Kill, which has a more overt sexual quality than would have been expected from Herrmann.

Pino Donaggio: Symphonic Suites

1989, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Music: Pino Donaggio; Orchestra conducted by Natale Massara; Album Producer: Scot W. Holton; Engineer: Michele Stone.

Selections: 1 The Howling (15:11); 2 Tourist Trap (21:26); 3 Piranha (11:22); 4 Home Movies (16:24).

Review: Part of Varese Sarabande's first batch of limited edition "CD Club" soundtrack releases, Symphonic Suites may be the most undesirable entry of the bunch (with the possible exception of the 17-minute "mini-classic" made-for-TV soundtrack, "Those Secrets"). A collection of four edited "suites" culled from the original soundtracks to The Howling (1981), Piranha (1978), Tourist Trap (1979) and Home Movies (1979), Donaggio's music in these four films consists by and large of hackneyed horror/ suspense cues (Tourist Trap, The Howling, Piranha) that are tired at best and obnoxious at worst, as well as forgettable comic cues (Home Movies) that don't mesh well with the preceding three selections. The suites themselves play fairly effectively, although the cues that comprise them are somewhat questionable in selection (The Howling doesn't even include Donaggio's goofy end title!). Varese would have been better off re-issuing the albums individually than pasting this rather odd collection of tracks together and offering it to the public. As a sign of its unpopularity, it's one of the only "CD Club" issues that's still relatively easy to get your hands on.

Cliff Eidelman (1964-

Blood & Thunder: Parades, Processionals and Attacks from Hollywood's Most Epic Films

1995, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: The Seattle Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Cliff Eidelman; Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Al Swanson.

Selections: 1 Ben Hur (M. Rozsa): Parade Of The Charioteers (3:34); 2 Captain From Castile (A. Newman): Conquest (3:17); Cleopatra (A. North): 3 Caesar And Cleopatra (3:33); 4 Cleopatra Enters Rome (3:41); 5 Antony And Cleopatra (2:42); 6 The Wind And The Lion (J. Goldsmith): Raisuli Attacks (3:29); 7 North By Northwest (B. Herrmann): Overture (2:58); 8 The Ten Commandments (E. Bernstein): Suite (7:28); Taras Bulba (F. Waxman): 9 The Ride Of The Cossacks (4:50); 10 Mutiny On The Bounty (B. Kaper): Overture (3:19).

Review: The title says it all: music of pomp and circumstance as devised by some of the great Hollywood composers in a widescreen program that blares out of the stereo system. There is no real subtlety here, just themes that are broad, grandiloquent, and are played to the hilt by an orchestra that seems to know the stuff by heart. It's fun, it's exhilarating and most of all it's thoroughly entertaining.

Review: Danny Elfman led the rock band Oingo Boingo and "didn't know nothin' about film music." Then he joined Tim Burton on several films—Pee-Wee's Big Adventure, Beetlejuice and Batman—and film music quickly learned about him. Elfman's self-taught orchestral style is kind of Nino Rota meets Bernard Herrmann meets Arrested Development meets a highly creative, filmic sense. Elfman has virtually defined the sound of "wacky" film music in the '80s and '90s—ditto for "gothic" film music—and charted the course for composers without a symphonic background to make use of the orchestra in an increasingly frenetic, bombastic way.

The first of MCA's excellent Music for a Darkened Theatre compilations covers Elfman from Pee-Wee in 1986 through Darkman in 1990: Beetlejuice, Scrooged, Nightbreed, Midnight Run, Dick Tracy, TV themes to "Tales from the Crypt" and "The Simpsons," and others. The second, 2-CD volume picks up with Elfman's magnum opus to date, the beautiful, lyrical Edward Scissorhands (1991) and continues through Batman Returns, Sommersby, The Nightmare Before Christmas, Black Beauty, Dolores Claiborne, To Die For, Dead Presidents, Mission: Impossible, and additional selected TV work.

While the first volume features the signature Elfman hits, it is the second album that showcases his vast growth since the days of the Bat. With Sommersby, Black Beauty and Dolores Claiborne, he took on an ambitiously lyrical and elegiac sound miles apart from the oompah-oompah Pee-Wee shenanigans. With Dead Presidents and Mission: Impossible he mixed sampled percussion and orchestra in exciting new ways to update his more action-oriented sound into something more sophisticated and intricate. Taken together the Music for a Darkened Theatre suites present too much of a good thing, but as a sort of Readers Digest collection they present an impressive catalog of a highly individual, and still growing, voice.

Review: Each title in this trilogy contains two scores Allyn Ferguson composed for several made-for-television adaptions of classic literature. Not one of the more well-known score artistes, he has in fact labored in film and TV for many years from his native Britain, creating some exceptionally fine pieces of work. It was a daring move by this record company to produce not one, but three titles, which will certainly, and deservedly so, save this composer's work from obscurity. Each score is frequently imbued with that long forgotten lavish quality that Erich Wolfgang Korngold and Franz Waxman often infused into their own work for similar costume dramas. Ferguson also relies on several period inspired arrangements (string quartets and the like) to reinforce the time frame. The first volume contains "The Count of Monte Cristo" and "The Man in the Iron Mask," the second, "Ivanhoe" and "Camille," "The Ironclads" and "April Morning" complete the third. Of the three, volume two is perhaps the best of the lot with it's sweeping and romantic melodies. Some of the masters used were of less than ideal quality, but these flaws are minor as Ferguson's music just sweeps you away.

1994, Bay Cities Records.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Fielding; Orchestrations: Lennie Niehaus, Greig McRitchie; Engineer: Richard Lewzey; CD Producer: Nick Redman; CD Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: Chato's Land: 1 Part 1: Chato Pursued (20:05); 2 Part 2: Chato Takes His Toll (20:55); Mr. Horn: 3 Suite (14:46).

Review: Jerry Fielding is the greatest film composer nobody knows about. Blacklisted for what should have been the prime of his career in the 1950s, he arranged music for Vegas nightclub acts until finally arriving in Hollywood in the late '60s and '70s. There he scored six pictures for British director Michael Winner, as well as three for star/director Clint Eastwood (including The Outlaw Josey Wales), and was legendary director Sam Peckinpah's (The Wild Bunch) close friend and composer of choice. He died of a heart attack in 1980 and was virtually unrepresented on CD until producer Nick Redman of the late soundtrack label Bay Cities put together four limited-edition CD compilations of his best work.

Jerry Fielding Film Music is a 2-CD set featuring the western Lawman (1970), the Charles Bronson hit-man film The Mechanic (1972), the remake of The Big Sleep (1978), Peckinpah's masterful Straw Dogs (1971), two cuts from the Bronson revenge western Chato's Land (1972), and Winner's Turn of the Screw "prequel" The Nightcomers (1972).

Film Music 2 features the Winner spy film Scorpio (1973) and short suites from Johnny Got His Gun (1971) and A War of Children (1972).

The third volume features Peckinpah's Bring Me the Head of Alfredo Garcia (1974), the rejected music for The Getaway (1972), also Peckinpah, and Fielding's adaptation of Mahler for The Gambler (1974).

The fourth disc features the complete, original album configuration of Chato's Land coupled with Fielding's music for the 1979 TV miniseries, Mr. Horn.

Musically, Fielding is an acquired taste. He was intrigued by post-tonal 20th-century orchestral music but was also a self-taught and highly accomplished big band arranger. His film music is deeply individual. His melodies are usually fragmented and transitory but the overall textures and rhythms are intense and unmistakable. On these discs his music ranges from the English flavor of The Nightcomers, to the devastating Mexicana of Bring Me the Head of Alfredo Garcia, to the atonal, black-on-black portrait of an assassin of The Mechanic, to the quiet reflection of Straw Dogs, to the jazzy stylings of The Big Sleep. But wherever Fielding goes, he brings a delicate sense of disquiet, poignancy, and barely capped violence. He and '70s cinema were a perfect match.

David Michael Frank (1948-

Music from the Films of Steven Seagal

1996, GNP Crescendo.

Album Notes: Music: David Michael Frank; Orchestrations: David Michael Frank; Orchestra conducted by David Michael Frank; Album Producer: David Michael Frank; Engineers: Mick Guzauski, Bobby Fernandez.

Selections: Hard To Kill: 1 Main Title (4:38); 2 Seven Year Storm (2:19); 3 Just Passing By (2:57); 4 Workout (:58); 5 Meditation And Training (2:12); 6 New Beginning (:41); 7 Escape From Ojai (2:05); Above The Law: 8 Nico In Japan (3:38); 9 Chicago Heat (1:47); 10 Nico's Lament (2:03); 11 South Side (2:11); 12 Armageddon II (1:21); 13 Joy Ride (2:57); 14 Nico's Theme, Part 1 (5:30); Out For Justice: 15 House Call (1:45); 16 Searching For Richie (1:08); 17 Roxanne (1:03); 18 In Loving Memory (2:27); 19 Steven Seagal Interview (21:04).

Review: This compilation features selections from David Michael Frank's scores for three of Steven Seagal's first four movies, Above the Law, Out for Justice and Hard To Kill. The music is an eclectic mix of guitar driven motifs, electronics and contemporary orchestral scoring techniques that is certainly, if anything, never boring. Frank has a good knack for creating some terrific jazz flavored emotional moments and some intriguing orchestrations. In particular is "Joy Ride" from Above the Law, which has a fascinating synth effect that sounds like an impossible-to-perform vocal scat. The album features an exclusive 21-minute interview with Seagal, who highly praises Frank's contribution to his films, though the actor has never used him since these three.

Review: A pioneer in film music and a representative of that select group that gave the genre its basic tenets, Friedhofer never achieved the popularity of his peers in Hollywood. Born in San Francisco on May 3, 1902, he studied the cello and was so proficient that he became a regular player in silent movie theaters as early as 1925. Eventually he began arranging and orchestrating, and revealed great skills at it. In fact, he started his career in Hollywood, where he arrived in 1929, as an arranger, orchestrating the scores of composers like Max Steiner, Alfred Newman and Erich Wolfgang Korngold.

Eventually, Friedhofer wrote his first film score, The Adventures of Marco Polo, in 1938, but it wasn't until 1943, when Alfred Newman signed him to a full contract, that he became recognized as a composer. In 1946, he finally made a name for himself when he won the Oscar for The Best Years of Our Lives. Subsequently, he scored Joan of Arc (1948), Broken Arrow

(1950), Vera Cruz (1954), Boy on a Dolphin (1957), An Affair To Remember (1957), The Sun Also Rises (1958), The Young Lions (1958), and One-Eyed Jacks (1960). He died on May 17, 1981.

The four scores here present him in four varied settings that called upon his vast resources as a composer and orchestrator. After working on several scores by Korngold and Steiner, The Adventures of Marco Polo gave Friedhofer his first opportunity to show his own mettle in a score that was appropriately epic in the right places, and romantic where needed. Typically flavorsome, in the grand Hollywood style of the day, it didn't disappoint. Made in 1944, The Lodger is a horror story about Jack The Ripper, set in London in the late 1800s; Friedhofer's score was an important contributing factor in setting the chilling atmosphere of the film.

Both made in 1955, The Rains of Ranchipur and Seven Cities of Gold could not have been more different in tone. The former, set in India, stars Richard Burton and Lana Turner in a tragic love story that is all but upstaged by a catastrophic monsoon and earthquake, with Friedhofer writing a lush exotic score that took its cues from the story and its locale. The latter, set in 18th-century California, is a colorful adventure film which enabled the composer to display his particular fondness for Latin American accents in his music.

The scores, carefully reconstructed by William Stromberg and John Morgan, receive thoughtful readings from The Moscow Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Stromberg, in another superlative album on the independent label Marco Polo.

The Film Music of Hugo Friedhofer

1987, Facet Records.

Album Notes: Music: Hugo Friedhofer; The Graunke Symphony Orchestra Of Munich, conducted by Kurt Graunke; Album Producer: Tony Thomas.

Selections: 1 Richthofen And Brown (symphonic suite)(22:58); 2 Private Parts (an orchestral fantasy)(15:39).

Review: Two scores by Friedhofer that are a little better than the films for which they were composed: Richthofen and Brown was created in 1971 for a World War I film by Roger Corman, which aimed to celebrate the airborne heroes, their tragic heroism and faded sense of romanticism; as for Private Parts, also written in 1971, it is an almost forgotten horror film which deals with a young runaway girl in a rundown Los Angeles hotel, and the strange characters she meets there. Friedhofer rose above the pedestrian topics in both films, and delivered scores that at least soundly interesting, though not of a best vintage. The Graunke Symphony Orchestra, conducted by its founder Kurt Graunke, does a creditable job but this is obviously a second-rate CD, only recommended because of Friedhofer's name.

Review: As we reach the millenium, we might as well ask who was the most influential 20th-century composer. The jury may still be out, but to this writer, none surpassed George Gershwin. Born two years before the century, Gershwin exerted himself in so many areas (pop songs, stage, screen, opera house, concert hall), and in ways that were so profoundly important that his influence can still be felt some 60-odd years after his untimely death. Today, we almost take him for granted, and we have solidly embraced his more serious works, like Rhapsody in Blue, An American in Paris, or the Concerto in F. But his achievements in the concert hall should not becloud his other contributions, particularly to the great American pop song catalogue for which he wrote with his brother Ira many evergreens that are still as thrilling today as they were when they were first created. While his legacy has been perpetuated by various singers like Frank Sinatra, Tony Bennett and Michael Feinstein, the many films in which his songs crept up probably have gained him a much broader audience over the years.

This elegant 2-CD set from Rhino stresses the enormous contributions from the Gershwin brothers, while they worked in Hollywood, and after. A listing of the songs the set contains looks like a greatest hits compilation, with so many great tunes that it almost becomes an embarrassment of riches: "Somebody Loves Me," "They Can't Take That Away From Me," "Fascinating Rhythm," "Love Is Here to Stay," "They All Laughed," "Embraceable You," "Summertime," "But Not For Me," "Strike Up the Band," "The Man I Love," "A Foggy Day," "Oh Lady, Be Good," "Love Walked In," "'S Wonderful," "Shall We Dance," "I Got Rhythm." Not a single weak number among them, and the list goes on and on.

Scouring the many films that featured songs by the Gershwin brothers, producers Michael Feinstein, George Feltenstein and Bradley Flanagan have not only gone to the M-G-M vaults, the source of many Rhino sets, but to RKO, Warner Bros., Paramount and 20th Century-Fox, to present as complete a survey as possible. Commendable as their efforts are, the set is not without its flaws: there is an overabundance of tracks by Fred Astaire—arguably the one performer for whom the Gershwins wrote intensively and their best interpreter—most of them from the early RKO films, Shall We Dance and A Damsel in Distress. But since the set producers decided to include a song from Funny Face, the 1957 film in which Astaire also starred with Audrey Hepburn, it would have made sense to include the title tune from that film, as well as "How Long Has This Been Going On?," performed by Hepburn.

Similarly, rather than use a couple of songs with limited appeal, like "Delishious," "By Strauss" from An American in Paris, would have seemed an apter choice. And since they decided to use songs with lyrics by Ira Gershwin with music by other composers, one glaring omission seems "The Man That Got Away," performed by Judy Garland in A Star Is Born, which would have been a much better choice than, say, the more obscure "In Our United State."

Evidently, these are minor points that can easily be dismissed and in no way lessen the importance of the set or its overall impact. A wonderful primer and a great collection of songs, many of them in their definitive versions, George and Ira Gershwin in Hollywood is a total joy.

Goblin

The Goblin Collection 1975-1989

1995, DRG Records.

Album Notes: Music: Goblin; Goblin: Massimo Morante (guitars, bass, mandolin), Claudio Simonetti (electric keyboards, synthesizers, organ, violin), Fabio Pignatelli (bass, acoustic guitar), Agostino Marangolo (percussion, piano), Mauro Lusini (guitars, keyboards), Marco Rinalduzzi (guitars), Derek Wilson (drums), Maurizio Guarini (synthesizers); Album Producer: Claudio Fuiano.

Selections: Profondo rosso: 1 Main Title (3:45); 2 Death Dies (original film version)(2:40); 3 Profondo rosso (:38); 4 Profondo rosso (1:00); Wampyr: 5 Finale (1:38); Chi?: 6 Chi?, Part 1 (3:15); 7 Chi?, Part 2 (3:20); Patrick: 8 Patrick (2:57); 9 Patrick (:55); 10 Patrick (:44); Suspiria: 11 Main Title (5:58); La via della droga: 12 La via della droga (2:04); 13 La via della droga (2:00); 14 La via della droga (2:00); 15 La via della droga (4:26); Zombi: 16 L'alba dei morti viventi (6:01); Buio Omega: 17 Buio Omega (2:30); 18 Buio Omega (4:00); 19 Main Title (2:45); St. Helens: 20 Love Theme (2:05); Contamination: 21 Contamination (1:39); 22 Contamination (:53); Tenebre: 23 Main Title (4:31); Notturno: 24 Bass Theme (3:16); Phenomena: 25 Phenomena (1:09); 26 Phenomena (alternate version)(3:05); La Chiesa: 27 La Chiesa (5:20).

Review: A seminal Italian rock group, Goblin made an important contribution to horror films through its scores, a richly textured blend of electronic and acoustic elements that often prove an effective complement to the suggestive power of the images on the screen. The group first came into being in 1975, and almost immediately emerged as a vital musical entity with its score for the cult thriller Profondo Rosso (Deep Red), directed by Dario Argento. Subsequently, they scored Suspiria, also for Argento, and went on to write the music for Wampyr, Patrick, Dawn of the Dead, and many other celebrated horror films. This compilation, the first of its kind to present a broad overview of the group's involvement with the movies, will be of primary interest to fans of the genre, but may prove less seductive to others with little or no interest in this kind of music.

Jerry Goldsmith (1929-

The Soundtracks of Jerry Goldsmith with the Philharmonia

1989, Deram Records.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith; The Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Jerry Goldsmith; Album Producer: Jerry Goldsmith; Engineer: Mike Ross.

Selections: 1 The Blue Max Suite (16:29); 2 Television Themes (medley): The Man From U.N.C.L.E., Doctor Kildare, Room 22, The Waltons, Barnaby Jones (9:45); 3 Masada (5:37); 4 Gremlins (suite)(7:35); 5 Motion Picture Themes (medley): The Sand Pebbles, Chinatown, A Patch Of Blue, Poltergeist, Papillon, The Widn And The Lion (15:24); 6 The Generals (suite): MacArthur, Patton (5:12); 7 Lionheart—The Children's Crusade (4:03).

Review: Anyone who's never been to a Jerry Goldsmith concert can recreate essentially the same experience with this CD (but without the composer's running commentary). It's a representative sampling of Goldsmith's most familiar and honored music for film and television, opening with a lengthy suite from the composer's soaring score to the WWI aerial drama The Blue Max and moving on with an exciting medley of Goldsmith's television themes, including "The Man from UNCLE," "Dr. Kildare," "Room 222," the crowd-pleasing theme from "The Waltons," and "Barnaby Jones." Other highlights include The Motion Picture Suite, with music from Goldsmith's Oscar-nominated scores to The Sand Pebbles, A Patch of Blue, Papillon, Chinatown and The Wind and the Lion; and The Generals Suite, combining Goldsmith's music for the military biographical films MacArthur and Patton. The end title music from Franklin Schaffner's Lionheart closes the album. There are also suites from Masada and Gremlins, the latter of which includes the opening "Chinatown" music that was missing from that film's soundtrack album. A curious omission is any music from Goldsmith's only Oscar-winning score, The Omen. It has to be said that some of Goldsmith's compositions lose something in the translation to concert hall aesthetic: the television themes, although exciting in their own right, bear little resemblance to their original arrangements and the raucous Gremlins rag mutates from a mischievous techno-funk satire to a somewhat awkward big band romp without its electronic underpinnings. Nevertheless, this is a fun overview of Goldsmith's career that's well-performed by the Philharmonia Orchestra.

Ron Goodwin: Drake 400

1989, Chandos Records.

Album Notes: The Bournemouth Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Ron Goodwin; Featured Soloists: Brendan O'Brien (violin), Terry Thompson (bagpipe); Album Producer: Brian Couzens; Engineer: Ralph Couzens; Assistant Engineer: Richard Lee.

Selections: Drake 400 Suite: 1 The Eddystone Seascape/ Song Of The Mewstone/ Hornpipe/ The Barbican/The Hoe On A Summer Night/ March: Plymouth Hoe/ The Eddystone Seascape (reprise)(14:19); 2 Love Theme From Beauty And The Beast (2:09); 3 Festival Time (3:01); 4 Candleshoe (4:04); 5 Amazing Grace (3:23); 6 Force 10 From Navarone (3:24); 7 Minuet In Blue (2:35); 8 The Spaceman And King Arthur (4:29); 9 The Girl With The Misty Eyes (2:54); 10 Auld Lang Syne (trad.)(3:01).

Review: Ron Goodwin has sadly never received sufficient attention in America, but he has long been one of Britain's finest and most successful composers. This anthology contains a number of film themes and light concert works by the composer. Goodwin's excellent march from Force Ten From Navarone (one of his best scores) is featured in a stirring performance. Goodwin's theme from a forgotten film version of Beauty and the Beast is a beautifully romantic work featuring a solo violin. The theme from Candleshoe (a forgettable Disney comedy starring Jodie Foster) is a less memorable '70s pop effort, but The Spaceman and King Arthur has a nicely triumphant pomp to it.

The concert works are of less interest to the soundtrack collector. Goodwin offers arrangements of "Auld Lang Syne" and "Amazing Grace" (featuring a Scottish piper). "Drake 400" however is a magnificent piece, commissioned to celebrate the 400th anniversary of Sir Francis Drake's circumnavigation of the globe. A majestic and triumphant evocation of sea, it is in the style of Goodwin's most exciting adventure scores. Though perhaps not the best representation of Ron Goodwin's film music, there is much here which is well worth a listen.

Selections: 1 Theme From 633 Squadron (2:57); Drake 400 Suite: 2 The Eddystone Seascape (1:46); 3 Song Of The Mewstone (3:00); 4 The Barbican (1:31); 5 The Hoe On A Summer Night (4:09); 6 March: Plymouth Hoe (2:22); 7 The Eddystone Seascape (reprise)(2:15); 8 Puppet Serenade (2:43); New Zealand Suite: 9 Aeotearoa (The Land Of The Long White Cloud)(2:55); 10 Milford Sound (4:50); 11 Picnic At Rotorua (1:55); 12 The Earnslaw Steam Theme (3:46); 13 The A&P Show (2:19); 14 Po Atarau (3:26); 15 Arabian Celebration; 16 The Venus Waltz (3:16); 17 Prisoners Of War March (The Kriegie)(3:15); 18 Minuet In Blue (2:48); 19 Theme From The Trap (3:43); 20 Girl With A Dream (2:33); 21 Theme From Lancelot And Guinevere (5:03).

Review: Though he has composed many great scores during his illustrious career, Ron Goodwin is a virtual unknown in this country. But anyone who has been exposed to his music will remember some of the most famous themes he composed, for films like the uproarious 1965 comedy Those Magnificent Men in Their Flying Machines, the Kim Novak-starrer Of Human Bondage, the Hitchcock film Frenzy, or the series of delirious detective adventures featuring Agatha Christie's Miss Marple (see below). This collection, in which he conducts the New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, is an ideal introduction to his music. Kicking off with the stirring march from 633 Squadron, the set also offers the main themes from The Trap, a 1966 film starring Oliver Reed and Rita Tushingham, and Lancelot and Guinevere, made in 1962, with Cornel Wilde and Jean Wallace as the star-crossed lovers in King Arthur's court, and several non-film related small compositions.

But the plum of this recording are the two long suites, Drake 400 and New Zealand, both of which gave the composer an opportunity to "stretch" and create works of impressive magnitude. Commissioned by the City Fathers of Plymouth in 1979, Drake 400 evoked the life of Sir Francis Drake, and his round-the-world voyage, with striking evocations of seafaring adventure in the 16th century. Composed in 1983, the New Zealand Suite sought to paint a picture of that country, its amazing beauty, its glorious history, with Goodwin blending in his music elements of Maori songs. Both works are superb examples of Ron Goodwin's feel for suggestive musical images, something that has also made his film scores so distinctive.

Ron Goodwin: Three Symphonic Suites

1990, Label X.

Album Notes: Music: Ron Goodwin; The Odense Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Ron Goodwin; Album Producer: Ron Goodwin; Assistant Producers: Ron Shillingford, Soren Hyldgaard Larsen; Engineer: Hans Nielsen.

Selections: 1 The Miss Marple Films: Murder She Said, Murder At The Gallop, Murder Most Foul, Murder Ahoy (19:19); 2 The Miss Marple Theme (2:13); 3 Lancelot And Guinevere (25:05); 4 Force 10 From Navarone (26:09).

Review: The jaunty "Miss Marple Theme" will no doubt bring back fond memories to anyone who has ever watched the four films that starred the indomitable Margaret Rutherford as the famous sleuth. But even more attractive is the suite composed of cues from the films themselves, Murder She Said, Murder at the Gallop, Murder Most Foul, and Murder Ahoy. Ron Goodwin, one of the better light pop film composers of the 1960s and '70s, gave the films their musical signature, and provided the various themes that enhanced the delicious screen adventures of the lady (who bore no resemblance whatsoever to the TV Miss Marple, portrayed by Joan Hickson).

In contrast, Lancelot and Guinevere, a historical drama that dealt with the well-known events at the court of Camelot, and Force 10 From Navarone, a sequel to the Carl Foreman World War II film, The Guns of Navarone, enabled Goodwin to reach out and create scores that are widely different in tone and nature. At times stately and regal, at times achingly romantic in a pseudo medieval way, Lancelot and Guinevere explores the different aspects of its subject matter, from the courtly behavior of its knights and ladies, to the all consuming love between the proud Lancelot and the lovely Guinevere, portrayed by Cornel Wilde and Jean Wallace.

In Force 10 From Navarone, Goodwin shifted to a string of martial cues, with lots of brassy effects, well-suited for this war drama, in which the main theme, a sensational march, rivals the one written by Tiomkin for The Guns of Navarone. While the film itself was a disaster, the score is simply magnificent.

Dave Grusin (1934-

Cinemagic

1987, GRP Records.

Album Notes: Music: Dave Grusin; Orchestrations: Dave Grusin, Jorge Calandrelli; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Dave Grusin, Harry Rabinowitz; Featured Soloists: Dave Grusin (piano, synthesizers), Don Grusin (synthesizers), Lee Ritenour (acoustic and electric guitars), Abraham Laboriel (electric bass), Harvey Mason (drums), Mike Fisher (percussion), Emil Richards (cymbalon, percussion), Chuck Findley (trumpet), Charley Loper (trombone), Tom Scott (soprano sax, tenor sax), Ernie Watts (tenor sax), Eddie Daniels (clarinet); Album Producer: Dave Grusin; Engineers: Don Murray, Keith Grant, Larry Rosen; Assistant Engineers: Jim Preziosi, Gerry O'Riordan, Ollie Cotton, Jim Singer.

Selections: On Golden Pond: 1 Main Theme (3:37); 2 New Hampshire Hornpipe (2:23); Heaven Can Wait: 3 Main Theme (4:35); Tootsie: 4 An Actor's Life (5:06); 5 It Might Be You (5:14); The Goonies: 6 Fratelli Chase (3:19); The Heart Is A Lonely Hunter: 7 Main Theme (4:44); Falling In Love: 8 Mountain Dance (6:16); The Champ: 9 Letting Go — T.J.'s Theme (2:51); 10 Main Theme (3:28); Three Days Of The Condor: 11 Condor (4:43); 12 Goodbye For Kathy (3:59); Little Drummer Girl: 13 PLO Camp Entrance (2:50); 14 Epilogue (3:24).

Review: Dave Grusin is one of the most reliable film composers in the business when he turns his attention away from his successful recording career as a jazz artist to the silver screen, and this superb album from GRP showcases many of his most memorable soundtrack compositions. From the expressive lyricism of On Golden Pond and The Heart Is a Lonely Hunter to exciting percussive tracks from Three Days of the Condor and The Goonies, this album illustrates Grusin's penchant for writing strong thematic material, working with both jazz-based rhythms and full orchestral composition to great effect, creating solid film music that functions flawlessly on its own in the process. The performances consist of all-new recordings featuring Grusin and a collection of talented artists (including Tom Scott, Lee Ritenour and Eddie Daniels) performing with the London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Grusin and Harry Rabinowitz. As far as composer retrospectives go, this cohesive, expertly-produced recording of Grusin's film music is one of the best, with something to appeal to listeners of any kind of musical persuasion.

The Great Hitchcock Movie Thrillers

1996, London Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Album Producer: Tony D'Amato.

Selections: 1 Psycho (a narrative for orchestra)(14:31); 2 Marnie (10:08); 3 North By Northwest (3:06); 4 Vertigo: Prelude, The Nightmare, Scene d'amour (10:35); 5 A Portrait Of "Hitch" (from The Trouble With Harry)(8:19).

Review: Fans of the great Bernard Herrmann, will find a treasure trove of worthwhile CDs that serve to keep his music and his memory alive, including the three listed here. As might be expected, many of these Herrmann compilations feature his compositions for the classic Alfred Hitchcock films, but a few do contain other important film works. Alfred Hitchcock's Film Music (Milan) offers two "extended" suites: Suite for Psycho (nearly 30 minutes), which features Herrmann conducting the National Philharmonic Orchestra, and North By Northwest (19 minutes), performed by the London Studio Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Laurie Johnson. Both the interpretations and the sonics are uniformly excellent.

Bernard Herrmann: The Film Scores (Sony Classical) features Esa-Pekka Salonen conducting the Los Angeles Philharmonic. In addition to offering Psycho: A Suite for String (similar in theme to the one in the Milan CD, but utilizing different cues and orchestrations), the recording includes selections from The Man Who Knew Too Much, Marnie, North By Northwest, Vertigo and Torn Curtain (the pair's final collaboration). Two post-Hitch efforts emerge as essential pieces: Fahrenheit 451: Suite for Strings, Harps and Percussion (composed for the Francois Truffaut film), and the all too short A Night Piece for Orchestra with Alto Saxophone Obbligato, from Taxi Driver, the score that Herrmann completed on the very day that he died. The superior orchestrations and sparkling recording make one hope that Salonen will address more Herrmann, and the works of other notable film composers, in the future.

Psycho: Great Hitchcock Movie Thrillers (London) contains yet another distillation from Psycho (14 minutes), and most of the usual Herrmann-Hitchcock suspects, in abbreviated form. Three unusual pieces are Herrmann's A Portrait of Hitch (from The Trouble With Harry), and two non-Herrmann compositions: Theme From Spellbound (Miklos Rozsa) and the Alfred Hitchcock TV theme, Gounod's Funeral March of a Marionette. All of the Herrmann pieces feature the London Philharmonic orchestra and are conducted by the composer himself.

Classic Fantasy Film Scores

1988, Cloud Nine Records/U.K.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestras conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Album Producer: David Wishart; Engineer: Gavin Millar.

Selections: The Three Worlds Of Gulliver: 1 Overture (1:55); 2 The Storm (1:20); 3 The Lilliputians (2:42); 4 The Stakes/The Emperor's March (1:47); 5 A Hatful Of Fish (:55); 6 Trees (1:19); 7 Fanfares/The Tightrope (3:10); 8 War March/The Naval Battle (2:17); 9 Reunion (Love Theme)(2:31); 10 The Giant Crocodile (3:01); 11 Pursuit/Escape (3:20); 12 Finale (1:27); Mysterious Island: 13 Prelude (1:27); 14 Escape/The Balloon (2:58); 15 The Giant Crab (2:46); 16 The Cave (2:05); 17 The Giant Bird (2:37); 18 Pipeline/The Ship Raising (2:18); 19 Pirates/The Doomed

Ship (3:12); The Seventh Voyage Of Sinbad: 20 Overture (1:07); 21 The Cyclops' Fury/The Capture (1:35); 22 The Fight (1:56); 23 The Shell/The Genie's Home (1:21); 24 Fight With The Cyclops/ Cyclops' Death (3:00); 25 The Egg (:46); 26 The Dragon (1:10); 27 Duel With The Skeleton (2:52); 28 The Dragon And The Second Cyclops/Death Of The Second Cyclops/The Crossbow/Death Of The Dragon (4:51); 29 Finale (2:16); Jason And The Argonauts: 30 Prelude (1:48); 31 The Skeletons/Battle With The Skeletons/ Finale (5:00).

Review: Visual effects master Ray Harryhausen, producer Charles H. Schneer and composer Bernard Herrmann combined to create four masterworks of the fantasy genre, each of which are included on this outstanding compilation from Cloud Nine. Herrmann's majestic music from The Three Worlds of Gulliver sets the regal tone for this release, which also includes selections from his thundering score from Mysterious Island, the exotic tone of The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad, and a pair of tracks from the rousing Jason and the Argonauts. Comprehensive liner notes and a nicely designed booklet complement this archival album, which features often ragged monaural sound and unfortunate "chilling sound effects" from Jason on the last track, which may disappoint audiophiles but nevertheless helps to preserve some truly classic film music from one of the original masters of the craft.

Bernard Herrmann: Great Film Music

1996, London Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Album Producer: Tony D'Amato.

Selections: Journey To The Center Of The Earth: (1-7) 1 Mountain Top And Sunrise; 2 Prelude; 3 The Grotto Salt Sides; 4 Atlantic; 5 The Giant Chameleon and The Fight; 6 The Shaft; 7 Finale (14:59); The Seventh Voyage Of Sinbad: (8-10) 8 Overture; 9 The Duel With The Skeleton; 10 Baghdad (8:22); The Day The Earth Stood Still: (11-17) 11 Outer Space; 12 Radar; 13 Gort; 14 The Robot; 15 Space Control; 16 Terror; 17 Farewell and Finale (11:39); Farenheit 451: (18-22) 18 Prelude; 19 Fire Engine; 20 The Bedroom; 21 Flowers Of Fire; 22 The Road and Finale (10:42); Gulliver's Travels: (23-35) 23 Overture (Minuetto); 24 Wapping; 25 Hornpipe; 26 Lilliputians 1 & 2; 27 Victory 1 & 2; 28 Escape; 29 The King's March; 30 Trees; 31 The Tightrope; 32 Lovers; 33 The Chess Game; 34 Pursuit; 35 Finale (25:58).

Review: If nothing else, this great-sounding album of Bernard Herrmann's music for five different fantasy films should settle the question of where Danny Elfman got his inspiration for his original Batman score: the opening, fifteen minute suite from Journey to the Center of the Earth could have easily been used as a temp track for the Caped Crusader with its ominous five-note brass theme, oppressive orchestral chords and ethereal harp and organ textures (as well as the unearthly sounds of the medieval serpent). After the disturbing sounds of the Jules Verne story, Herrmann's music for the bright Ray Harryhausen adventure The Seventh Voyage of Sinbad is almost frivolous, but Herrmann inevitably returns to the dark side with the heavy tread of "Gort" robot music for the classic The Day the Earth Stood Still. The latter score is beautifully recreated in its opening titles, the busy "Radar" music and the eerie "Terror" cue, but the cues involving Gort suffer from the lack of a real theremin in the performance and are no match for the original recordings. Fahrenheit 451 comes off much better, from the relentless destructiveness of the fire engine music to the achingly beautiful, haunting finale. A bonus is 25 minutes of Herrmann's music for the 1961 live action Gulliver's Travels, but in this case Herrmann's music so authentically captures the pomposity of its satirized British Empire that listening to its endless minuets and marches quickly becomes a chore. Herrmann's handling of the orchestra in all cases is typically brilliant.

Review: When he felt he had become redundant in Hollywood, Bernard Herrmann exiled himself to Europe and began recording intensively some of the best scores he had written for the movies. These two sets both present some of his most significant contributions to the screen, in thorough readings by the London Philharmonic and the National Philharmonic, two orchestras with which Herrmann enjoyed a long relationship in the 1960s and '70s. Some cues, in fact, appear in both CDs, but the first is notably significant for the suite from Jane Eyre, while the second includes the complete score for Brian de Palma's Obsession, a throbbing, lusty effort that ranks among the composer's finest works. It's not often that a composer has an occasion to revisit some of his scores and to rerecord them with great orchestras. Both CDs are remarkable in that respect, and definitive recordings no one should be without.

Bernard Herrmann Conducts Great British Film Music

1996, London Records.

Album Notes: The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Bernard Herrmann; Album Producers: Tony D'Amato, Raymond Few; Engineers: Arthur Bannister, Arthur Lilley.

Selections: Richard III (W. Walton): 1 Prelude (9:48); Anna Karenina (C. Lambert): 2 Overture (1:43); 3 Forlane (2:39); 4 Love Scene (2:11); 5 Finale (4:25); Oliver Twist (A. Bax): 6 Fagin's Romp (2:21); 7 Finale (4:36); An Ideal Husband (A. Benjamin): 8 Waltz (4:47); 9 Galop (1:36); Escape Me Never (W. Walton): 10 Theme (3:15); The Invaders (R. Vaughan Williams): 11 49th Parallel (3:22); Things To Come (A. Bliss): 12 Prologue (2:36); 13 March (4:54); 14 Building Of The New World (2:10); 15 Attack On The Moon Gun (1:36); 16 Epilogue (3:32).

Review: When he moved to Europe, Herrmann, in addition to addressing his own works, also surveyed the scores written by other important classic composers. This album, recorded for London in 1974, focuses on music written for English films by William Walton, Arnold Bax, Ralph Vaughan Williams, and Arthur Bliss, whose Things to Come is a particular highlight here. Also included is a series of cues composed by Constant Lambert for Anna Karenina, another score, notably attractive, that's seldom heard. The Phase 4 Stereo recording transfers very well to the digital domain.

Bernard Herrmann Film Scores: From Citizen Kane to Taxi Driver

1993, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Artists: The Ambrosia Singers (John McCarthy, director), David Roach (alto sax); Album Producer: Christopher Palmer; Engineers: Keith Grant, Tim Handley.

Selections: Citizen Kane (suite): 1 Prelude (2:42), The Inquirer (polka) (2:44), Finale (3:02), End Cast (arr.: Conrad Salinger)(2:25); The Devil And Daniel Webster: 2 The Devil's Concerto (1:39); The Man Who Knew Too Much: 3 Cantata: The Storm Clouds (9:15) Claire Henry; Psycho (suite): 4 Prelude (3:28), The Murder (1:02), Finale (1:56); The Wrong Man: 5 Prelude (2:05); Vertigo: 6 Scene d'amour (6:41); North By Northwest: 7 Prelude (3:02); The Bride Wore Black: 8 A Musical Scenario (arr.: Christopher Palmer): Prelude, Femme Fatale, The Accident, Love And Death, Funeral, Finale (11:27); Farenheit 451: 9 Finale (The Book People)(4:34); Taxi Driver: A Night Piece For Orchestra (arr.: Christopher Palmer): 10 Prelude, Blues, Night Prowl, Bloodbath, Finale (8:32); 11 Bernard Herrmann On Film Music (4:42).

Review: This is an album whose conception and recording do not appear to have been adequately thought-out or prepared. The performance is passive, failing to serve Herrmann's surging, visceral style. The musicians trip and stumble through Citizen Kane's "Inquirer Polka" with a number of glaring clams. The inclusion of the Xavier Cugat-like main title from The Wrong Man is puzzling; the piece is at best a curiosity. The "Finale" from Fahrenheit 451 is absolutely enraging—the harp, vibraphone and glockenspiel parts are missing! A Taxi Driver suite is an inviting prospect, but it is ruined by Christopher Palmer's presumptuous alteration of Herrmann's original orchestration. Arthur Benjamin's "Storm Cloud Cantata" (from The Man Who Knew Too Much), is exciting and the best performed track on the album. But while Herrmann made his cameo in that film conducting this work, its inclusion on a Herrmann anthology makes no sense—Herrmann did not write it. Included at the end of the CD is an interesting excerpt from a recorded interview with Herrmann, where he expresses his thoughts on film scoring. Since many of the scores here are more truly represented elsewhere, this CD is at best a flawed oddity.

Citizen Kane: The Classic Film Scores of Bernard Herrmann

1989, RCA Victor Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: On Dangerous Ground: 1 The Death Hunt (2:23); Citizen Kane: 2 Prelude: Xanadu, Snow Picture (3:17); 3 Themes And Variations (Breakfast Montage)(3:26); 4 Aria From Salammbo (4:16) Kiri Te Kanawa; 5 Rosebud and Finale (2:41); Beneath The 12-Mile Reef: 6 The Sea, The Lagoon (4:41); 7 Descending (1:51); 8 The Octopus, Homecoming (4:54); Hangover Square: 9 Concerto Macabre For Piano And Orchestra (11:57) Joaquin Achuccaro; White Witch Doctor: 10 Talking Drums, Prelude: The Riverboat, Petticoat Dance, The Safari (3:57); 11 Tarantula, The Lion (1:28); 12 Nocturne (3:47); 13 Abduction Of The Bakuba Boy, The Skulls (1:56); 14 Lonni Bound By Ropes, Departure (2:28).

Review: This album, part of the Classic Film Music series Charles Gerhardt recorded in the '70s, remains one of the best Herrmann compilations ever. Although a great deal of Herrmann's work has been recorded since this collection's initial release, much of the music offered here is still not available elsewhere.

Other recordings of Citizen Kane have since been made, but Gerhardt's remains the best. The 13-minute suite removes the extraneous, programmatic material, thus retaining the most potent essence of Herrmann's score. The aria for the fictitious opera "Salome", is included, and given dramatic performance by renowned soprano Kiri Te Kanawa. Also included is "Death Hunt," a surging, pummeling, brassy cue from On Dangerous Ground, and Beneath the Twelve Mile Reef, a stirring score, whose use of nine harps creates an effervescent evocation of the sea. Herrmann's "Concerto Macabre" for piano and orchestra (from Hangover Square) is driving and intense, while White Witch Doctor is an exotic and rhythmic evocation of Africa.

Engineer K.E. Wilkinson extracts a clear, full sound from the orchestra, and despite the advances in recording technology since this album was made, few later recordings can approach the resonant, crystalline sound of this 1974 album.

Farenheit 451

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; The Seattle Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Joel McNeely; Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Al Swanson.

Selections: Farenheit 451: 1 Prelude (1:32); 2 Fire Engine (1:07); 3 The Bedroom (1:47); 4 The Reading (2:03); 5 The Garden (1:26); 6 The Nightmare (1:55); 7 Flowers Of Fire (1:18); 8 Flamethrower (:38); 9 Captain's Death (1:01); 10 The Road (3:42); The Main In The Gray Flannel Suit: 11 Main Title (2:11); Tender Is The Night: 12 The Embrace (1:51); The Ghost And Mrs. Muir: 13 Andante Cantabile (3:33); Anna And The King Of Siam: 14 Prelude (1:43); 15 Montage (1:15); 16 Elegy (4:23); 17 Coronation (2:23).

Review: One of Bernard Herrmann's finest scores, Fahrenheit 451 is a passionate romantic score, employing an ensemble of strings, harps and modest percussion (but no brass or woodwinds). The music evokes emotions ranging from poetic longing to raging dementia, externalizing the suppressed passions of the film's characters, all locked into a conformist society of the future. Although this 17-minute suite from Fahrenheit 451 was originally arranged by Herrmann himself, it is a pity that Varese took the trouble to make this recording, but did not present a more complete representation of the score (Herrmann rashly omitted a number of important cues from his suite). The remainder of the CD is filled-out with brief excerpts from four other Herrmann scores, The Man in the Grey Flannel Suit, Anna and the King of Siam, Tender Is the Night and The Ghost and Mrs. Muir—fine scores all, but with each so briefly represented, the listener can never quite become involved in any of them. The performance and recording quality, however, are first-rate, and even in brief suite form, Fahrenheit 451 remains a masterpiece of invention and one of Herrmann's best works.

Herrmann/Hitchcock: A Partnership in Terror

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann; Orchestrations: Bernard Herrmann, Mike Townsend; The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Paul Bateman; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Associate Producers: David Wishart, Robin White; Engineers: John Tamperley, Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: The Man Who Knew Too Much: 1 Prelude (2:21); The Trouble With Harry: 2 A Portrait Of Hitch (8:52); Vertigo: 3 Prelude (2:57); 4 Nightmare (5:12); 5 Scene d'amour (5:12); North By Northwest: 6 Overture (3:21); 7 Conversation Piece (4:44); Psycho: 8 Prelude, The City, The Drive, The Shower, Finale (7:27); Marnie: 9 Prelude (3:02); Torn Curtain: 10 Main Title (2:00); 11 Gromek (1:58); 12 The Killing (2:07).

> "If you told me to write a love song tonight, I'd have a lot of trouble. But if you tell me to write a love song about a girl with a red dress who goes into a bar and is on her fifth martini and is falling off her chair, that's a lot easier and it makes me free to say anything I want."

> (New York Times Magazine, April, 1984)

Review: Both of these collections of Bernard Herrmann's film music are based around the same set of recordings of Hitchcock thriller scores: A Partnership in Terror features Herrmann's throbbing, stormy opening to The Man Who Knew Too Much (conducted by Herrmann himself as an orchestra performance at the opening of the film), the droll The Trouble With Harry, the swirling titles, tarantella nightmare sequence and rhapsodic love music of Vertigo, the supercharged fandango opening of North By Northwest, the knitting strings of Psycho and the urgent prelude music from Marnie. The Torn Curtain also features The Man Who Knew Too Much, Psycho and Vertigo as well as the aggressive (and rejected) music to Torn Curtain, but this longer album also features suites from Herrmann's brutal Cape Fear (reused by Martin Scorsese in his remake), newspaper music from Citizen Kane and a somewhat less-than-satisfactory take on the composer's amazingly powerful score to On Dangerous Ground. More satisfying are the lyrical waltzes from Obsession and The Snows of Kilimanjaro, as well as the hauntingly romantic The Ghost and Mrs. Muir. There's a lively ten minute suite from Herrmann's indelible Ray Harryhausen fantasy scores, but the suite from Taxi Driver seems overly glib and romanticized, with a saxophone solo by Ivan Myslikovjan that just gets out of hand. Still, conductor Paul Bateman brings far more power and polish to these performances than are obtained on some of Silva's other compilations.

Lee Holdridge (1944-

Film Music of Lee Holdridge

1994, Citadel Records.

Album Notes: Music: Lee Holdridge; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Charles Stanley.

Selections: The Beastmaster: 1 Suite (7:33); Jonathan Livingston Seagull: 2 Music For Strings (5:05); Going Home: 3 The Journey (5:52); Splash: 4 Love Theme (3:29); Wizards And Warriors: 5 Overture (5:02); East Of Eden: 6 Main Title (1:58); 7 The Brothers/Cathy/Leaving Connecticut (2:49); 8 The Father (2:18); 9 The Well/The Naming (3:55)p; 10 The Secret Of Monterey/Abra's Theme (3:29); 11 Finale (3:23); The Hemingway Play: 12 Parisian Sketch (2:44); The Great Whales: 13 Introduction and Theme (5:00).

Review: One of the most unsung of the modern-day film composers, Lee Holdridge's often romantic, expressive compositions are given their chance to shine on this great-sounding recording with Charles Gerhardt conducting the London Symphony Orchestra. From the Korngold-influenced Wizards and Warriors and The Beastmaster to the beautiful lyricism of The Great Whales and Splash, this superior effort nicely illustrates Holdridge's melodious musical style, featuring well-written, memorable themes and often soaring orchestral passages. The album also includes selections from the television program "The Hemingway Play," the features Going Home and Jonathan Livingston Seagull, concluding with an 18-minute suite from the mini-series "East of Eden." With Gerhardt's baton leading the way, the album has a great deal of replay value due to its varied and consistently high level of musical quality.

Arthur Honegger: Mayerling/Regain

1993, Marco Polo Records.

Album Notes: The Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra of Bratislava and The Slovak Philharmonic Choir, conducted by Adriano; Featured Musician: Jacques Tchamkerten (Ondes Mertenot); Album Producers: Emil Niznansky, Peter Zagar; Engineer: Hubert Geschwandtner.

Selections: Mayerling: 1 Main Title (1:37); 2 Garden (1:32); 3 The Horse Carriage/In The Hallways (2:05); 4 Final Scene (6:09); Regain (suite I): 5 Le Panturle (3:37); 6 Winter (3:13); 7 Spring (2:47); 8 Gedemus The Knife-Sharpener (:56); 9 Regain (1:56); Regain (suite II): 10 Introduction/Song Of Aubignane (2:36); 11 Nocturne (4:40); 12 Night In The Barn/Summer (3:48); 13 The Ploughshare (2:09); Le demon de l'Himalaya: 14 Snow Storm (12:18); 15 Ascension And Fall/Vision (9:35).

Review: One of the great classical composers of this century, Arthur Honegger wrote many scores for the movies (it was at his suggestion that Miklos Rozsa became a film composer as a way to turn his talent into a lucrative proposition). These recordings, superbly assembled by Marco Polo Records, feature Adriano and the Slovak Radio Symphony Orchestra of Bratislava in reconstructed performances of Honegger's most important scores, particularly Les Miserables, made in 1934, and Napoleon, directed by Abel Gance in 1926-27. The breathtaking scope and diversity of these scores show that film music, in its early days, was not confined to Hollywood and its great composers, but developed in other countries as well and attracted a lot of serious exponents. It also makes the strongest case yet for film music as a serious medium and as a close parent to classical music.

Mark Isham (1951-

Mark Isham Film Music

1990, Windham Hill Records.

Album Notes: Music: Mark Isham; conducted by Mark Adler; Featured Musicians: Mrs. Soffel: Lyle Mayes (piano), Peter Maunu (violin), Mark Isham (synthesizers, pennywhistle, piano); The Times Of Harvey Milk: Mark Isham (trumpet, synthesizers); Never Cry Wolf: Rufus Olivier (bassoon), Bill Douglass (bamboo flutes), George Marsh (percussion), Tucky Bailey (glass), Natalie Cox (harp), Mark Isham (synthesizers), Annie Stocking, Stephanie Douglass, Kathy Hudnall, Jeanette Spartaine (voices); Album Producers: Mark Isham, Todd Boekelheide; Engineers: Todd Boekhelheide, Mark Isham.

Selections: 1 Mrs. Soffel (13:59); 2 The Times Of Harvey Milk (8:32); 3 Never Cry Wolf (24:48).

Review: Under the title Film Music, this set presents the original soundtrack of Mrs. Soffel, a 1985 film that stars Mel Gibson and Diane Keaton, coupled with rerecordings of Never Cry Wolf, from 1983, and cues from The Times of Harvey Milk. Isham, an eclectic composer and musician, is a borderline case between film music and New Age music, who creates often compelling scores. The music for Mrs. Soffel, a moving love story based on real life turn-of-the-century facts, is a combination of attractive cues that rely on the deft use of the pennywhistle, coupled with piano, violin and synthesizers, to create its own aura. A semi-documentary/adventure film, Never Cry Wolf, made by Disney, follows a lone biologist working in the Arctic wasteland to learn more about wolves. The long suite offers themes that are suitably soft and attractive, though the lack of true melodic material sometimes works to the detriment of the music.

Maurice Jarre (1924-

Jarre by Jarre: Film Themes of Maurice Jarre

1987, CBS Records.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: David Mottley; Engineer: Paul Hulme.

Selections: Lawrence Of Arabia: 1 Overture part 2 (4:26); 2 Main Titles (2:02); 3 Arrival At Auda's Camp (1:19); Ryan's Daughter: 4 Rosy's Theme (2:13); Doctor Zhivago: 5 Prelude and Lara's Theme (5:15); A Passage To India: 6 Adela's Theme (2:43); Witness: 7 Building The Barn (4:28); 8 Is Paris Burning? (3:38); 9 The Damned (11:08); Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome: 10 Fanfare and Thunderdome Music (4:38); 11 Villa Rides! (3:42)

Review: Although Maurice Jarre has recorded a number of anthologies of his own music, Jarre by Jarre is by far the best. Vibrantly performed, and recorded with full, resonant sound, this album contains the best available recordings of some of these scores. Lawrence of Arabia is performed with majesty, precision and grace (with the strings appropriately dominant). Ryan's Daughter is presented in an extremely enjoyable and graceful arrangement, which is far more attractive than the original soundtrack. Is Paris Burning is a vibrant waltz featuring accordion, and shows a lyrical side of Jarre which is rarely heard. Jarre's "Barn Raising" music from Witness, originally scored for synthesizers, is given a beautiful, full-orchestral rendition, while The Damned exposes a darker side of the composer. The suite from Mad Max Beyond Thunderdome contains a large, brassy fanfare (which is especially welcome since it was not included on the original soundtrack). Villa Rides concludes the album, a pleasantly rhythmic piece with an exotic Mexican flavor. Engineer Paul Hulme deserves special mention for extracting a large concert hall sound from CTS studios. In terms of both performance and sound, this is one of the best recordings I have ever heard.

Paul Andrew MacLean

Lean by Jarre: Musical Tribute to David Lean

1992, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producers: Maurice Jarre, L.A. Johnson; Engineer: Shawn Murphy.

Selections: 1 Remembrance (3:51); 2 Ryan's Daughter Suite (8:46); 3 A Passage To India Suite (10:06); 4 Doctor Zhivago Suite (9:52); 5 Offering (3:15); 6 Lawrence Of Arabia Suite (12:47).

Review: Maurice Jarre's most celebrated collaboration was with director David Lean, and the composer pays the director homage in this recording. Jarre's four scores for Lean, Lawrence of Arabia, Doctor Zhivago, Ryan's Daughter and A Passage to India are all represented, along with two original pieces, "Remembrance" and "Offering". "Remembrance," a thunderous, large orchestral piece which evokes the kind of large-scale epic for which David Lean was best known, introduces the album. Where the particular film scores are concerned however, the limitations of a concert setting unfortunately impose compromising alterations. Much of the more exotic (and inventive) instrumentation in Jarre's original scores is missing. The Fujara and Indian instruments are sorely missed in Passage to India, as are the various exotic instruments in Doctor Zhivago. The orchestration of Lawrence of Arabia is also altered for smaller orchestra and as such proves unsatisfying. While a nice souvenir of the highly memorable Lean/ Jarre collaborations (this recording is also available on VHS and laserdisc as a concert video), I would sooner recommend the original soundtracks as a more true representation of these scores.

Maurice Jarre at Abbey Road

1992, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and the Sun Valley Choral Society (C. Paul Erb, director), conducted by Maurice Jarre; Featured Musician: Ralph Grierson (synthesizers); Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Shawn Murphy; Assistant Engineers: Sue McLean, Ethan Chase, Bill Talbot, Greg Denon.

Selections: 1 Georges Franju Suite: La tete contre les murs (The Keepers), Therese Desqueyroux, Les yeux sans visage (The Horror Chamber Of Doctor Faustus), Judex (16:31); 2 Behold A Pale Horse (2:49); 3 Ghost (4:11); 4 Witness (4:59); 5 Jacob's Ladder (3:20); 6 Prancer (6:15); 7 Gorillas In The Mist (2:36); 8 Fatal Attraction (5:09); 9 Moon Over Parador (4:31); 10 Dead Poets Society (5:13); 11 Bombay March (from A Passage To India)(1:17).

Review: Always his own best interpreter, Maurice Jarre positively shines when he is fronting a great orchestra. Such is the case here, with the composer revisiting some of the scores he wrote throughout his career, including some rare ones seldom heard elsewhere. The Georges Franju Suite introduces themes he created for the films of Georges Franju, with whom he developed an early artistic relationship, long before Jarre became internationally renowned. They already evidence some of the traits for which Jarre would eventually become famous, notably his uncanny flair for strange instrumentations, and his knack for attractive, melodic tunes. Following Behold A Pale Horse, a sadly neglected score for a 1964 partisan film, set in post-Civil War Spain, starring Gregory Peck and Omar Sharif, the set moves on to latter day creations, like the themes for Ghost, Witness, Gorillas in the Mist, and Fatal Attraction, in which synthesizers play an increasingly important role. Interestingly, it offers the rarely heard theme for Prancer, before going to the delicious Moon Over Parador, in which Jarre spoofs his own epic style. The "Bombay March" from A Passage to India concludes the set on a positive, exhilarating note that reminds us that Maurice Jarre always was at his best when he wrote epic themes. Throughout, the playing is never less than superlative.

Maurice Jarre at the Royal Festival Hall

1997, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The BBC Concert Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Album Producer: Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: Grand Prix: 1 Suite (4:49); Witness: 2 Theme (4:54); The Man Who Would Be King: 3 Theme (5:23); Villa Rides: 4 Theme (3:45); 5 Concerto For EVI (19:50); The Year Of Living Dangerously: 6 Suite (7:11); The Tin Drum: 7 Suite (7:28); Is Paris Burning: 8 The Paris Waltz (3:33); Lawrence Of Arabia: 9 Suite (12:52).

Review: Recorded live during a concert with the BBC Concert Orchestra, this recording features an eclectic array of Jarre's music. A suite from Grand Prix opens the album, Jarre's lighthearted music conveying the excitement of high-speed racing (the sound effect of cars whizzing by adding to the fun). The Man Who Would Be King is given a jaunty arrangement, though the very foreground use of percussion is perhaps a little overbearing. The theme from Villa Rides (one of Jarre's few western scores) is a beautiful, Mexican-flavored piece with some of Jarre's most consonant orchestration.

Originally conceived as an electronic score, The Year of Living Dangerously appears in an intriguing orchestral transcription. While interesting, it remains a more successful work in its original form. On the other hand, Jarre's Americana-flavored music from Witness—also originally conceived for electronics—translates to an orchestral setting far more successfully. A non-film work, Jarre's "Concerto for EVI" (electronic wind instrument) is a four-movement work, vibrant and stylistically eclectic. A solid performance of the oft-recorded Lawrence of Arabia brings the album to its conclusion.

Because it was recorded at a live performance, the sound balance and fidelity are not as good as they might be in a studio setting, but engineer Mike Ross-Trevor does an excellent job, and there are some highly attractive moments in this album.

Doctor Zhivago: The Classic Film Music of Maurice Jarre

1995, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Paul Bateman; The Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Tony Bremner; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Associate Producers: David Wishart, Philip Lane; Engineers: John Timperley, Eric Tomlinson, Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Suite (from Doctor Zhivago)(9:11); 2 Adela's Theme (from A Passage To India)(2:23); 3 Suite (from Jesus Of Nazareth) (8:14); 4 End Credits (from Ghost)(4:25); 5 The Man Who Would Be King (4:25); 6 Building The Barn (from Witness)(4:40); 7 Is Paris Burning? (3:50); 8 Suite (from The Fixer)(7:10); 9 Main Title (from El Condor)(3:21); 10 Suite (from Ryan's Daughter)(8:52); 11 The Night Of The Generals (3:53); 12 Fatal Attraction (5:00); 13 Villa Rides (3:28); 14 Lara's Theme (from Doctor Zhivago)(3:16); 15 Overture (from Lawrence Of Arabia)(4:23).

Review: Excellent compilation of suites and themes from Maurice Jarre's monumental career. Paul Bateman conducts The City of Prague Philharmonic in their performance on both the David Lean film standards Doctor Zhivago and Passage to India, as well as "Building the Barn" from Witness, and the finale from Ghost. This anthology also features lesser known Jarre efforts for such films as The Fixer, El Condor and Villa Rides. The Prague orchestra handles the material well with solid, respectable performances that are faithful to the original work. There is also a bonus track included from Silva's Lawrence of Arabia rerecording by The Philharmonia Orchestra under the direction of Tony Bremmer.

A Maurice Jarre Trilogy

1995, DRG Records.

Album Notes: Music: Maurice Jarre; Orchestrations: Maurice Jarre; The Unione Musicisti di Roma Orchestra, conducted by Maurice Jarre; Engineer: Sandro Marcotulli; CD Producer: Claudio Fuiano.

Selections: CD 1: The Damned: 1 Theme and Main Title (2:09); 2 Lullaby For Lisa (3:20); 3 The Death Of Joachim (2:40); 4 Obsession (5:30); 5 Sophie Awaits (3:50); 6 Martin's Theme (3:24); 7 Incest (4:25); 8 The Return Of Herbert (3:27); 9 Sophie's Torment (3:40); 10 Finale (2:00); A Season In Hell: 11 A Season In Hell (2:00); 12 Impossible Thing (2:32); 13 Canoe On The Tana (2:39); 14 Difficult Love (3:02); 15 The Commune (3:04); 16 Battle At Tchelenko (2:08); 17 To My Best Loved Friend (3:33); 18 Yearning For Africa (1:50); 19 Words And Syllables (3:19); 20 The Caravan (3:13); 21 Arabian Coffee (1:08); 22 A Season In Hel (3:06).

CD 2: For Those I Loved: 1 Survival (2:33); 2 Zofia's Waltz (2:21); 3 Insurrection (3:35); 4 Solitude (2:45); 5 The Grandmother (2:15); 6 Resistance/For Those I Loved (2:20); 7 America (2:12); 8 Happy Time (2:27); 9 Destruction/The Fire (2:28); 10 After Mother's Death (2:16); 11 Martin And Zofia/For Those I Loved (1:56); 12 Ghetto's Cafe (3:34); 13 Souvenir (4:00); 14 First Love (3:10); 15 Insurrection March (2:40); 16 The Past (1:55); 17 Melody Mansion (3:15); 18 Treblinka (1:50); 19 Escape (1:35); 20 Zofia (2:28); 21 Deportation (3:55); 22 Cafe Sztuka (3:20); 23 The Ghetto Uprising (2:40); 24 Hope And The Future/For Those I Loved (2:50).

Review: A most intriguing concept for a collection of rarer material composed by Maurice Jarre. All three of these films have one thing in common, their central characters are living in their own hellish dark side of life. The controversial classic The Damned leads off this 2-CD set with some of Jarre's darkest work. The nucleus of this score is a shadowy waltz that represents one family's descent into perversity. A Season in Hell displays the disintegrating friendship between two brilliant writers in 19th-century Paris. While there is the typical warm emotional themes ("To My Best Loved Friend") that Jarre is noted for, the score is peppered with blood boiling African rhythms. By far the longest presentation of the three, For Those I Loved is an awareness of the hopes and dreams of the survivors of the Holocaust, as seen through the eyes of one Polish survivor. No doubt because the subject matter offered more motivation to Jarre, this is the most captivating of the three scores. It is powerfully moving, evoking unsettling emotions from the darkest period of human existence.

The Rose and the Gun

1992, Unicorn-Kanchana Records.

Album Notes: Music: Laurie Johnson; The London Studio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Laurie Johnson.

Selections: The Lady And The Highway Man: 1 Theme (2:33); A Hazard Of Hearts: 2 Serena (2:42); A Duel Of Hearts: 3 Theme (2:35); A Ghost In Monte Carlo: 4 Grand Waltz (2:12); The Avengers: 5 Theme (2:07); 6 Tag Scene (1:57); The New Avengers: 7 Theme (2:12); Tiger Bay: 8 Theme (2:08); When The Kissing Had To Stop: 9 Theme (2:10); Hot Millions: 10 Caesar Smith (Theme)(2:11); 11 There Is Another Song (2:22); 12 This Time (2:01); Shirley's World: 13 Shirley's Theme (1:55); 14 Rickshaw Ride (2:17); I Aim At The Stars: 15 Theme (2:30); This Is Your Life: 16 This Is Your Life (2:26); Jason King: 17 Theme (2:03); First Men In The Moon: 18 Romance (2:24); The Professionals: 19 Theme (1:52).

Review: Laurie Johnson's real claim to fame is the vigorous theme he wrote in the early 1960s for the English television series, "The Avengers." But his enormous body of works, which encompasses more than 400 scores for films and television, single him out as one of the most prolific and successful British composers today. Both CDs offer selections from several of the most prominent films and TV shows with which he has been associated, with Johnson himself conducting the London Studio (Symphony) Orchestra.

Unsurprisingly, both sets contain the main themes from "The Avengers" and its sequel, "The New Avengers," with the Varese CD including in addition some other themes written for individual episodes. Of the two, that CD is also more interesting in that it covers at greater length other scores written by Johnson, for the science fiction film, First Men in the Moon, made in 1964, and Captain Kronos, Vampire Hunter, a cult horror movie, as well as a suite from the screen adaptation of Ibsen's Hedda Gabler. Rounding up the selections in the set is a theme from the Stanley Kubrick anti-war drama, Dr. Strangelove, also a popular favorite.

The Unicorn-Kanchana set may not have as much of a widespread appeal, given the fact that many of the themes found in it relate to films or television shows that are not very well known outside of England. However, collectors should notice that the CD includes a collection of themes for TV films based on the novels by Barbara Cartland ("The Lady and the Highwayman," "A Hazard of Hearts," "A Duel of Hearts" and "A Ghost in Monte Carlo"), as well as from the film Hot Millions, and the TV special "Shirley's World," starring Shirley MacLaine. Always elegant and catchy, Johnson's music makes for great listening.

CD 2: The Sea Wolf: 1 Main Title (1:04); 2 The Ghost (1:09); 3 Love Theme (1:26); 4 Fight In The Dark (1:42); 5 Finale (1:11); Kings Row: 6 Main Title (1:21); 7 Parris And Cassie (1:58); 8 Ice House (:44); 9 Grandmother (2:35); 10 Randy And Drake (2:01); 11 Parris Comes Home (1:40); 12 Finale (1:20); The Constant Nymph: 13 Main Title (3:10); 14 Farewell (1:44); 15 Finale (2:29); Devotion: 16 Branwell In The Tavern (3:50); Between Two Worlds: 17 Mysterious Voyage (2:58); 18 Love Theme (2:52); Of Human Bondage: 19 Main Title (1:05); 20 Mildred (4:00); 21 Jealousy (2:17); 22 Finale (2:09); Escape Me Never: 23 Crossing The Dolomites (6:10); Deception: 24 Main Title, Theme and End Title (3:24).

Review: Epic compilation of the original recordings of Erich-Wolfgang Korngold's ground-breaking work in the early days of Hollywood from 1935 to 1946. Korngold, a child prodigy who was composing operas in his teens, set the standards for the great costumed dramas (Anthony Adverse, King's Row), the Errol Flynn swashbuckers (Captain Blood, The Sea Hawk and The Adventures of Robin Hood) and the romantic sagas (Escape Me Never), all with a lavishly orchestrated style. Key selections from 16 of his Warner Bros. scores are featured here, each conducted personally by the composer. The one drawback to this two hour-plus collection is that many of the recordings have a lot of surface noise. Not surprising when considering that they have survived the last 50 to 60 years this well. While much of this music has been digitally rerecorded over the last few years, none of it can ever match the power of the original sessions. The orchestra size, or the pace of the performance, is never quite the same and Korngold here has the orchestra play it as he wrote it, full of fire and emotion. The 2-CD set also contains a lavish 44-page booklet with insightful historical notes by noted Korngold authority Tony Thomas.

The Sea Hawk: The Classic Film Scores of Erich-Wolfgang Korngold

1989, RCA Victor.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Featured Artist: Sidney Sax (violin); Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: The Sea Hawk: 1 Main Title, Reunion, Finale (6:53); Of Human Bondage: 2 Nora's Theme (4:21); The Adventures Of Robin Hood: 3 March Of The Merry Men, Battle (4:01); Juarez: 4 Love Theme (1:48); Kings Row: 5 Main Title (1:39); The Constant Nymph: 6 Tomorrow (tone poem for contralto, women's chorus and orchestra)(6:02) Norma Proctor, Ambrosian Singers; Captain Blood: 7 Overture (2:58); Anthony Adverse: 8 No Father, No Mother, No Name (2:39); Between Two Worlds: 9 Main Title, Mother And Son (5:30); Deception: 10 Main Title (1:33); Devotion: 11 The Death Of Emily Bronte (4:05); Escape Me Never: 12 Main Title, Venice, March, Love Scene, Finale (8:14).

Review: Originally recorded and released in 1972, this is the album largely credited with igniting the revival of symphonic film music, after years of dreariness when rock scores had become the norm and below-par standard. The million-selling album, which was produced by George Korngold, son of the composer, spawned a prestigious series that eventually explored the works of well-known Hollywood composers, like Max Steiner, Bernard Herrmann, Miklos Rozsa, Dimitri Tiomkin, David Raksin, all of whom had fallen into sad neglect. Also as a result of the series' success, Star Wars, released in 1977, was able to feature a symphonic score by John Williams that not only paid homage to the composer's illustrious predecessors, but opened wide the gates of the studios to an entire generation of new composers, like James Horner, Cliff Eidelman, Randy Edelman and George Fenton, all of whom benefitted from the incredible resurgence of symphonic music in films.

Elizabeth and Essex: The Classic Film Scores of Erich-Wolfgang Korngold

1989, RCA Victor.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Featured Artist: Francisco Garbarro (cello); Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: The Privates Lives Of Elizabeth And Essex: 1 Overture (7:18); The Prince And The Pauper: 2 Main Title, The Boys Go To Play, Epilogue (4:45); Anthony Adverse: 3 In The Forest (2:14); The Sea Wolf: 4 Main Title, Escape In The Fog, Love Scene, Finale (7:28); Deception: 5 Cello Concerto in C, op. 37 (11:50); Another Dawn: 6 Night Scene (5:48); Of Human Bondage: 7 Main Title, Christmas, Sally, Lullaby, Finale (8:07).

Review: A follow-up to The Sea Hawk, this splendid recording again teamed the National Philharmonic with conductor Charles Gerhardt and producer George Korngold for a further exploration of composer Erich-Wolfgang Korngold's film music. Like its predecessor, it is a sumptuous tribute to one of the great Hollywood composers of the 1940s.

Music by Erich-Wolfgang Korngold

1991, Stanyan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Erich-Wolfgang Korngold; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, conducted by Lionel Newman; CD Producer: Rod McKuen; Engineer: Steve Hoffman; Assistant Engineer: Kevin Gray.

Selections: Kings Row: 1 Main Title (1:35); 2 The Children (2:25); 3 Randy And Drake (3:05); 4 Grandmother (2:25); Anthony Adverse: 5 Anthony Is Born; 6 Love Scene (2:19); 7 Anthony Comes Home (1:39); The Private Lives Of Elizabeth And Essex: 8 Main Title and Essex' Victory March (1:32); 9 Love Scene and Finale (2:34); The Sea Hawk: 10 Main Title (2:12); 11 The Reunion (4:11); The Prince And The Pauper: 12 The Boys Go To Play (:58); The Constant Nymph: 13 Main Title (1:28); 14 Farewell (1:39); The Adventures Of Robin Hood: 15 March Of The Merry Men and Battle (3:47); 16 Robin And Maid Marian (4:13); 17 Epilogue (1:19).

Review: For many years, the LP version of this album, initially released by Warner Bros. Records in 1962, and almost immediately deleted, was high on the list of ardent fans and collectors of serious film music. Its availability on compact disc brings it back to the catalogue, and while it may not sound as outstanding today as it did once, particularly when compared with recordings of more recent vintage, it still stands as a great tribute to the music composed by Korngold for the Warner Bros. films.

Joel McNeely

Hollywood '94

1994, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: The Seattle Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Joel McNeely; Featured Soloist: Margaret Batjer (violin); Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Al Swanson.

Selections: 1 Jurassic Park (J. Williams)(6:14); 2 The Shadow (J. Goldsmith)(2:36); 3 Forrest Gump (A. Silvestri)(9:13); 4 The Age Of Innocence (E. Bernstein)(4:52); 5 Squanto (J. McNeely)(4:10); 6 Maverick (R. Newman) (4:00); 7 Schindler's List (J. Williams)(3:40); 8 True Lies (B. Fiedel)(4:57); 9 The Shawshank Redemption (T. Newman)(4:27).

Review: See entry below.

Hollywood '95

1995, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: The Royal Scottish National Orchestra, conducted by Joel McNeely; Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Geoff Foster.

Selections: Batman Forever (E. Goldenthal): 1 Main Title (1:43); 2 Chase Noir (1:54); 3 Nygma Variations (2:38); 4 Mouth To Mouth Nocturne (2:18); 5 Victory (2:28); Apollo 13 (J. Horner): 6 The Launch (9:53); Judge Dredd (A. Silvestri): 7 Suite (4:57); Judge Dredd (J. Goldsmith): 8 Trailer (:49); Casper (J. Horner): 9 Casper's Lullaby (5:52); Waterworld (J. Newton Howard): 10 Main Theme (2:16); First Knight (J. Goldsmith): 11 Arthur's Fanfare (:46); 12 End Credits (4:12); Braveheart (J. Horner): 13 End Title (7:42); That Hamilton Woman (M. Rozsa): 14 Love Theme (4:25).

Review: See entry below.

Hollywood '96

1996, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: The Royal Scottish National Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Joel McNeely; Featured Soloists: Lynda

Cochrane (piano), Edwin Paling (fiddle); Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Geoff Foster; Assistant Engineer: Graham Kirkby.

Selections: 1 Mission: Impossible (L. Schifrin)(1:31); 2 Twister (M. Mancina)(4:40); 3 Fargo (C. Burwell)(3:00); 4 A Time To Kill (E. Goldenthal) (4:19); 5 Sabrina (J. Williams)(5:42); 6 Phenomenon (T. Newman)(2:54); 7 Flipper (J. McNeely)(2:50); 8 Emma (R. Portman)(2:56); 9 Tin Cup (W. Ross) (4:44); 10 Courage Under Fire (J. Horner)(3:43); 11 Vertigo (B. Herrmann) (5:07); 12 The Hunchback Of Notre Dame (A. Menken)(3:43); 13 Independence Day (D. Arnold)(5:45).

Review: The concept behind these albums is actually quite valid and interesting: each gives an overview of the most prominent films released during the year, illustrated with an excerpt from each score. The combined effect is much like a "pops" concert which includes favorite themes, and little of the added wear and tear usually found on soundtrack albums that may turn off many casual listeners. One may quibble endlessly with the choices, but the performances are remarkably faithful to the originals, with McNeely extracting superb ensemble playing and polish from the orchestras under his baton.

Henry Mancini (1924-1994)

Mancini's Classic Movie Scores/The Pink Panther And Other Hits

1987, RCA Records and 1992, RCA Records (re-issue).

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Performed by: Henry Mancini, His Orchestra and Chorus; Album Producer: Joe Reisman; Engineer: Dick Bogert.

Selections: The Pink Panther: 1 The Pink Panther Theme (2:35); 2 Royal Blue (3:10); 3 Champagne And Quail (2:45); 4 The Lonely Princess (2:26); 5 It Had Better Be Tonight (Meglio sta sera)(H. Mancini/J. Mercer/F. Migliacci)(1:56); Charade: 6 Charade (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:35); 7 Megeve (2:58); 8 Latin Snowfall (2:33); 9 Bateau Mouche (2:52); 10 Bistro (1:49); Hatari!: 11 Theme From Hatari! (2:54); 12 Baby Elephant Walk (2:42); 13 Night Side (3:25); 14 Your Father's Feathers (3:32); 15 The Sounds Of Hatari (6:43); Breakfast At Tiffany's: 16 Breakfast At Tiffany's (2:45); 17 Something For Cat (3:08); 18 Sally's Tomato (3:06); 19 Holly (3:19); 20 Latin Golightly (2:58); 21 Moon River (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:43).

Review: For a composer who spent most of his career with RCA, and gave it some of its million-selling albums, the label has not done very well by Henry Mancini. Outside of a few selected titles like this compilation, hastily put together with little thinking behind it, or selected individual soundtrack albums, usually poorly remastered, Mancini's impressive body of works still remains to be addressed with the kind of thoroughness and dedication RCA is now beginning to lavish on Elvis Presley. Even a 3-CD boxed set, The Days of Wine And Roses (see below), released a couple of years ago, failed to address his contribution with the kind of seriousness it really commanded.

Which is not to say this collection of themes from four important scores (The Pink Panther, Charade, Hatari!, and Breakfast at Tiffany's) is bad—it simply is incomplete and insufficient.

Mancini had a special flair for writing themes that were instantly catchy, flavorful, and attractive. Even his most complex scores were always thoroughly accessible to people with little interest in film music, because the composer was, first and foremost, a pop melodist. The selections collected here present a good case for this specific talent of his, with enjoyable tunes that are as vibrant and exciting on their own as they were behind the action on the screen. Needless to say, the rating here applies to the music, not the packaging.

Henry Mancini: Premier Pops

1988, Denon Records.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; The Royal Philharmonic Pops Orchestra, conducted by Henry Mancini; Album Producers: Henry Mancini, John McClure, Shigekazu Tanaka; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Overture To A Pops Concert (4:01); The Thorn Birds: 2 The Thorn Birds Theme (2:41); 3 Arrival At The Vatican (2:14); 4 Meggie's Theme (2:48); 5 It's Shearing You're Hearing (3:08); Movie Song Medley: 6 Life In A Looking Glass (2:10); 7 Crazy World (2:13); 8 Song From "10" (2:00); 9 Hong Kong Fireworks (from Revenge Of The Pink Panther)(2:31); 10 Sunflower (from Sunflower)(2:27); 11 The Inspector Clouseau Theme (from The Pink Panther Strikes Again) (2:40); 12 Charade (from Charade)(3:29); The Glass Menagerie: 13 Tom's Theme (3:13); 14 Blue Roses/Laura's Theme (2:22); Three TV Themes: 15 Hotel (2:00); 16 Newhart (2:15); 17 Remington Steel (2:37); 18 The Sons Of Italy (from Beaver Valley '37)(4:30); 19 Ohio Riverboat; 20 Main Title (from The Great Mouse Detective)(3:48); 21 Moon River (from Breakfast At Tiffany's) (2:37).

Review: One of the earliest CD releases, this out-of-print Henry Mancini album has audiophile sound and a number of outstanding concert arrangements. Comprised entirely of Mancini-composed selections, Premiere Pops includes a wealth of material not available anywhere else, from the composer's rousing "Overture to a 'Pops' Concert" to a gorgeous extended suite from The Thorn Birds; a lovely "Movie Song Medley" comprised of Life in a Looking Glass, Crazy World and 10; a "Three TV Themes" suite consisting of "Hotel," "Newhart" and "Remington Steele;" plus the concert pieces "Ohio Riverboat" and "Sunflower." There are also cues from The Great Mouse Detective, the Pink Panther sequels, Charade, Paul Newman's adaptation of The Glass Menagerie, and—of course—"Moon River." The album is notable not only for its relative obscurity but also the way in which Mancini structures the music for solo piano (with the composer himself on the keyboard) and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, a collaboration that was supposed to result in a number of "Mancini-RPO Pops" albums for the Denon label before the project (and the label) fell through. Regardless, this is still one of the best Mancini retrospectives released on CD, and certainly the best-sounding album of the bunch.

Henry Mancini: Music from the Films of Blake Edwards

1991, RCA Records.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestra and Chorus conducted by Henry Mancini; Original Recording Producers: Simon Rady, Dick Pierce, Steve Sholes, Joe Reisman; Original Recording Engineers: Jim Malloy, Mickey Crofford, Dick Bogert; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: 1 Peter Gunn (2:04); 2 Mr. Lucky (2:11); 3 Breakfast At Tiffany's (2:46); 4 Moon River (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(from Breakfast at Tiffany's)(2:43); 5 Days Of Wine And Roses (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:07); 6 The Good Old Days (from Experiment In Terror)(2:01); 7 Experiment In Terror (2:18); 8 Soldier In The Rain (2:56); 9 The Pink Panther Theme (2:36); 10 It Had Better Be Tonight (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(from The Pink Panther)(1:57); 11 The Sweetheart Tree (from The Great Race)(H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(1:56); 12 Pie-In-The-Face Polka (from The Great Race)(2:24); 13 In The Arms Of Love (H. Mancini/R. Evans/J. Livingston)(from What Did You Do In The War, Daddy?) (2:36); 14 The Swing March (from What Did You Do In The War, Daddy?)(2:07); 15 A Quiet Happening (from Gunn)(3:07); 16 Theme For Sam (from Gunn)(3:12); 17 Candlelight On Crystal (from The Party)(3:04); 18 Nothing To Lose (from The Party)(2:23); 19 Darling Lili (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:48); 20 Whistling Away The Dark (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(from Darling Lili)(3:43); 21 The Inspector Clouseau Theme (from The Pink Panther Strikes Again)(2:58); 22 It's Easy To Say (H. Mancini/R. Wells)(from ''10'')(3:25); 23 Victor/Victoria (medley): The Shady Dame From Seville, Crazy World, You And Me, Le Jazz Hot (H. Mancini/L. Bricusse)(4:53).

Review: Throughout his career, Mancini enjoyed a special creative relationship with film director Blake Edwards. They began working together on the television series Peter Gunn, with the relationship eventually covering many of Edwards' comedies, including the Pink Panther series, as well as other celebrated films like Breakfast at Tiffany's, Experiment in Terror, The Great Race, ''10'', Darling Lily and Victor/Victoria. The compilation surveys some of these films, presenting selections from the various scores, in a compilation that could not be all-encompassing.

The Music of Henry Mancini

1994, Sony Legacy.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; CD Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Thomas Ruff.

Selections: 1 Moon River (from Breakfast at Tiffany's)(H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:45) Andy Williams; 2 The Sweetheart Tree (from The Great Race)(H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:12) Johnny Mathis; 3 Dreamsville (from Peter Gunn)(H. Mancini/J. Livingston/R. Evans)(3:21) Lola Albright; 4 Theme From Peter Gunn (3:12) Bobby Hackett; 5 It Had Better Be Tonight (Meglio sta sera) (from The Pink Panther)(H. Mancini/J. Mercer/F. Migliacci)(1:59) Buddy Greco; 6 Dear Heart (H. Mancini/J. Livingston/R. Evans)(2:54) Andy Williams; 7 Baby Elephant Walk (from Hatari!)(2:53) Don Costa and His Orchestra; 8 Two For The Road (2:54) Charlie Byrd; 9 Days Of Wine And Roses (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:50) Patti Page; 10 Whistling Away The Dark (from Darling Lili)(H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(3:20) Johnny Mathis; 11 Charade (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:31) Andy Williams; 12 NBC Mystery Movie Theme (2:42) Ray Conniff and His Orchestra; 13 Theme From Mr. Lucky (2:33) Bobby Hackett; 14 Natasha's Theme (from Who Is Killing The Great Chefs Of Europe?) (2:14) Henry Mancini and His Orchestra; 15 Darling Lili (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:49) Johnny Mathis; 16 In The Arms

Of Love (from What Did You Do In The War, Daddy?)(H. Mancini/J. Livingston/R. Evans)(2:54) Andy Williams.

Review: During his lifetime, some of Mancini's most popular themes found their way into the pop catalogues at labels other than RCA, giving performers like Andy Williams, for instance, some of their million-selling hits. When the composer died, in 1994, Sony Legacy put together this compilation which covers several tunes popularized by Johnny Mathis, Buddy Greco, Patti Page, and Andy Williams (whose renditions of "Moon River," "Dear Heart," and "In the Arms of Love" are included). Mancini, who had also released a couple of albums on Columbia, is represented with his recording of a theme from Who Is Killing the Great Chefs of Europe?.

Mancini in Surround: Mostly Monsters, Murders & Mystery

1990, RCA Records.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; Orchestrations: Henry Mancini, Jack Hayes; The Mancini Pops Orchestra, conducted by Henry Mancini; Featured Soloists: Sidney Sax (violin, concertmaster), Edward Beckett (flute), Richard Morgan (oboe), Graham Salter (English horn), Neil Levesley (bassoon), Cynthia Millar (Ondes Marthinot), Adrian Brett (ocarina), Leslie Pearson (harpsichord, organ); Album Producer: John McClure; Engineer: Dick Lewzey.

Selections: 1 Surround Fantastique (:54); 2 Arctic Whale Hunt (from The White Dawn)(4:00); 3 Theme (from Mommie Dearest)(2:35); 4 Main Title (from Frenzy)(2:15); Monster Movie Music Suite:(5-7) 5 The Monster Gets Mark (from Creature From The Black Lagoon)(6:47); 6 The Thing Strikes/Desert Rendez-Vous (from It Came From Outer Space)(4:45); 7 Terror Strikes (from Tarantula)(3:15); 8 Casey's Theme (from Fear)(2:40); 9 Little Boys (from The Man Who Loved Women)(3:33); Suite From The Prisoner Of Zenda: (10-12) 10 Main Title (4:49); 11 Coronation Waltz (3:11); 12 Croquette (2:54); 13 Main Title (from Nightwing) (3:18); Music From Without A Clue: (14-15) 14 Super Sleuth (2:29); 15 Without A Clue (End Title)(2:47); Music From Sunset: (16-18) 16 Sunset Theme (2:01); 17 Cheryl's Theme (4:05); 18 The Cowboys (3:56).

Review: Subtitled "Mostly Monsters, Murders, and Mysteries," this likable collection is a far cry from the light-hearted melodies Henry Mancini has been most known for. It's an excellent compilation of his dramatic orchestral filmscoring, featuring splendid renditions of his musical contributions to such 1950s horror films as It Came From Outer Space and The Creature From the Black Lagoon, to the 1990 thriller, Fear. Also included is a gorgeous, lyrical four-minute suite from The White Dawn, Mancini's rejected title theme from Hitchcock's Frenzy, and cues from Mommie Dearest, Nightwing, The Prisoner of Zenda, and Sunset. The CD was recorded with the Dolby Surround system, from which comes its title, and sound quality is uniformly high. Extensive historical notes by Tony Thomas abound in a 16-page booklet. The CD is an important collection of Mancini's oft-overlooked dramatic film music, and a unique musical gallery of one composer's work in the "genre macabre" over a 30-year span.

Mancini's Greatest Hits

1989, Telarc Records.

Album Notes: Music: Henry Mancini; The Cincinnati Pops Orchestra and The Henry Mancini Chorus, conducted by Erich Kunzel; Album Producer: Robert Woods; Engineer: Jack Renner.

Selections: 1 Theme (from The Pink Panther)(2:26); 2 Moon River (from Breakfast at Tiffany' s)(2:50); 3 Days Of Wine And Roses (1:59); 4 It Had Better Be Tonight (H. Mancini/J. Mercer/F. Migliacci)(from The Pink Panther) (1:58); 5 Arctic Whale Hunt (from The White Dawn)(3:56); 6 Theme (from Mr. Lucky)(2:13); 7 Theme (from Hatari!)(3:19); 8 Theme (from The Thorn Birds) (3:05); 9 Charade (2:17); 10 Moment to Moment (2:37); 11 Symphonic Soul (2:21); 12 Drummer's Delight (3:11); 13 March (from The Great Waldo Pepper)(2:20); 14 Two For The Road (3:02); 15 Theme (from The Molly Maguires)(3:01); 16 Dear Heart (2:30); 17 Theme (from Breakfast at Tiffany' s)(2:37); 18 Speedy Gonzales (from Mr. Lucky) (1:41); 19 Punch And Judy (from Charade)(1:58); 20 March With Mancini: Timothy (1:01), March Of The Cue Balls (1:11), The Swing March (1:14), March from The Great Race (1:37); 21 Baby Elephant Walk (from Hatari!)(2:23); 22 Theme (from Peter Gunn)(2:22); 23 Strings On Fire (2:02); 24 Finale from Victor/Victoria (H. Mancini/L. Bricusse): The Shady Dame From Seville (1:00), Crazy World (1:33), You And Me (1:06), Le Jazz Hot! (1:11).

Review: Another fine collection of Henry Mancini standards, this release boasts a typically solid performance by the Cincinnati Pops Orchestra under the direction of maestro Erich Kunzel, with smooth vocals provided by the Henry Mancini Chorus. This 68-minute album is comprised strictly of Mancini compositions, which range from the usual staples (Pink Panther, Days of Wine and Roses, Peter Gunn) to some brief examples of Mancini's strong sense of dramatic film scoring

(The White Dawn, The Molly Maguires), concert arrangements of the Victor/Victoria finale, various Mancini marches, and a pair of pieces written exclusively for the concert hall ("Symphonic Soul," "Drummers' Delight"). The packaging includes ample but not overwhelming liner notes, the acoustics are fine, and the release itself a strong choice for the casual listener due to its wide selection of material culled from Mancini's vast discography.

Review: While it marked a step in the right direction, this boxed set is too much a case of "let's-put-together-a-collection-of-CDs-by-whatshisname" to be taken with any kind of seriousness. It does indeed cover some of the right grounds, but almost by default, because in the case of Mancini there was so much material to begin with that any compilation would have succeeded regardless.

But rather than take the normal approach, which would have been to focus on Mancini's career as a film composer, the set wastes too much precious playing time on other recordings he did, like cover versions of Claude Thornhill's "Snowfall" or Louis Prima's "Sing, Sing, Sing," in the first CD; Antonio Carlos Jobim's "Quiet Nights of Quiet Stars" or Ray Noble's "Cherokee," in the second; and Johnny Mandel's "The Shadow of Your Smile" and Nino Rota's "Romeo and Juliet," in the third. Evidently, these tracks belonged in another compilation.

With the vast resources at their disposal, the producers would have been better advised to give the composer his real due, and present a thorough compilation of scores written by Mancini, supplementing what was not in the RCA vaults with selections on other labels. Unfortunately "The Days of Wine and Roses" doesn't come without some thorns.

Work If You Can Get It (G. & I. Gershwin)/I'm Building Up To An Awful Letdown (J. Mercer/ F. Astaire)/Who Cares (G. & I. Gershwin)(11:59).

Review: It's an interesting concept, Mancini doing themes from other composers, but one that only works halfway: first, because Mancini was much better at covering his own material, and because his own versions often pale in comparison with the originals. But one can sense the corporate sense at work behind these titles. Signed to RCA, Mancini had to deliver a certain number of albums under his contract, and if Erich Kunzel could successfully do it for Telarc, Mancini could do it for RCA. What the powers-that-be failed to realize is that no one said Kunzel did a great job: he just happens to be a good hack! And frankly speaking, Mancini was way above that.

Cinema Italiano, in particular, suffers from the fact that all the scores covered by Mancini already exist in far superior, original versions, some of them, as a matter of fact, on RCA. The composer, conducting the Mancini Pops Orchestra, is proficient and effective, but one senses that there is less enthusiasm here than there might have been had the themes been written by him.

The impression is confirmed in The Godfather set, in which Mancini goes back to some scores already explored in Cinema Italiano as well as others by other composers (John Williams, Michel Legrand, Francis Lai), but adds to the mix a suite from The White Dawn and Beaver Valley Suite, as well as other selections he penned, in which he leads the London Symphony Orchestra and the Philadelphia Orchestra Pops in spirited, crackling versions.

As for the Top Hat CD, an obvious concept tailored after the Telarc sets, it is an obvious scene-stealer, and one in which Mancini, again, proves superior to Kunzel in every respect. It's only unfortunate that he was not given a chance to focus on some of his own scores.

Jerome Moross (1913-1983)

The Valley of Gwangi: The Classic Film Music of Jerome Moross

1995, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Jerome Moross; Orchestrations: Jerome Moross, Christopher Palmer, Mike Townend, James Fitzpatrick, Nic Raine; The City Of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Paul Bateman; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: John L. Timperley.

Selections: The Adventures Of Huckleberry Finn: 1 Prelude (3:59); 2 Huck's Escape (3:10); 3 The Mississippi (3:15); 4 Flight and Finale (3:58); 5 Five Finger Exercise Romanza (from the concert suite Music For The Flicks)(5:27); 6 Theme (from Wagon Train)(3:08); The War Lord: 7 Prelude and Main Title (4:18); 8 What Of The Future?/Vengeance and Death/Finale (7:22); 9 Overture (from The Sharkfighters)(11:22); Rachel, Rachel (Americana miniature): 10 Japonica Street/Shadow Pictures/A Walk In The Country/End Titles (6:02); 11 Overture (from The Mountain Road): Main Title/The Men/The Airplane/ Destroying The Airbase (6:22); The Valley Of Gwangi: 12 The Landscape/The Forbidden Valley/ Pterodactyl Attack (5:15); 13 Capture Of Gwangi/Gwangi Enchained (5:58); 14 Night In The Valley/Gwangi At The Cathedral/Death Of Gwangi/Finale (7:31).

Review: This long-overdue compilation showcases the dynamic and often melodically gorgeous work of composer Jerome Moross, who has for too long been known simply as the man who scored The Big Country. Valley of Gwangi amply demonstrates Moross' range, which covered everything from action films (the epic The Mountain Road and the percussive, ethnic-flavored The Sharkfighters) to dramas (Five Finger Exercise and the gentle "Americana" of Rachel, Rachel) to medieval epics (the beautifully evocative The War Lord). Moross was best known for his western music, and this collection includes both a well-known example (his theme for the television series "Wagon Train") and a spectacular, overlooked effort for the 1969 Ray Harryhausen thriller about cowboys and dinosaurs, The Valley of Gwangi, which combined Moross' thrilling western style with a percussive, ferociously rhythmic style for Harryhausen's animated dinosaurs that's as vibrant and memorable as anything Bernard Herrman ever wrote in the genre. Gwangi is represented by an 18-minute suite that's one of the most exciting film music experiences in recent memory, and Nic Raine's conducting of the entire album is flawless.

Selections: CD 1: 1 The Good, The Bad And The Ugly (2:37); 2 Come Maddalena (4:18); 3 The Sicilian Clan (3:58); 4 Chi mai (5:06); 5 Investigation Of A Citizen Above Suspicion (3:25); 6 Mosca addio (4:46); 7 Marche en la (3:01); 8 La califfa (2:37); 9 The Battle Of Algiers (1:40); 10 The Infernal Trio (4:13); 11 Dedicace (3:34); 12 For Love One Can Die (3:49); 13 Sacco And Vanzetti (2:45); 14 La tragedia di un uomo ridicolo (2:12); 15 Romanze quartiere (3:35); 16 Once Upon A Time In The West (Main Title)(5:05); 17 The Mission (remix)(2:54).

CD 2: 1 Once Upon A Time In America: Cockey's Song (4:17); 2 Gabriel's Oboe (2:12); 3 Atto di dolore (2:22); 4 Baci dopo il Tramonto (3:41); 5 Le marginal (3:55); 6 Estate (3:59); 7 The Falls (2:12); 8 Moses Theme (4:03); 9 Buona fortuna, Jack (5:05); 10 The Man With The Harmonica (3:27); 11 A Fistful Of Dynamite (4:36); 12 Lontano (3:51); 13 My Name Is Nobody (3:09); 14 Peur sur la ville (3:54); 15 Le vent, le cri (5:18); 16 Once Upon A Time In The America: Deborah's Theme (4:24)

Review: As these various compilations clearly evidence, there is a lot of material available about Ennio Morricone, a composer whose incredible output includes films in his native Italy, in France, and of course in the U.S. Many of the most important scores are represented in one form or another in these compilations, and even though some of the same tracks appear in several of them, the duplications are often kept to a minimum, with the various albums complementing each other to give a very complete overview of Morricone's many contributions to the movies.

Given the abundance of material, however, a selection seems in order, and with this in mind, here are a few suggestions: collectors interested in the Italian western scores (a genre in which Morricone particularly excelled, and in which he pretty much established the criteria by which hundreds of other scores were composed) should pick up the RCA compilation, which offers many selections that are not available elsewhere; those interested in a broader overview might want to acquire the Rhino set, which is pretty thorough, or the two individual Virgin CDs, which contain many of the essential tracks.

For a closer view of Morricone's contributions to French and Italian films, any of the DRG sets should do, though one should be aware of the fact that "Anthology" and "Main Titles" frequently duplicate each other.

Cinema Paradiso: The Classic Ennio Morricone

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Ennio Morricone, Rachel Berlin, Karl-Heinz Loges, Daniel Walker, Derek Wadsworth, Victoria Dolceamore, Steve Edwards, Volker Rippe, Dennis Smith, Brian Gascoigne, William Motzing, Geoff Castle; Mark Ayres, Richard Bronskill; The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by William Motzing, Derek Wadsworth; Album Producers: Thomas Karban, Derek Wadsworth, Mike Ross-Trevor; Engineers: Malcolm Luker, Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Cinema Paradiso (3:22); 2 The Mission: Gabriel's Oboe (2:25); 3 The Good, The Band And The Ugly (2:54); 4 Once Upon A Time In America: Deborah's Theme (5:20); 5 Two Mules For Sister Sara (5:18); 6 Marco Polo (2:34); 7 Once Upon A Time In The West (suite)(8:05); 8 The Mission: Main Theme (2:15); 9 1900: Romanze (3:51); 10 In The Line Of Fire (4:03); 11 The Untouchables: Death Theme (2:25); 12 Red Sonja (2:25); 13 Casualties Of War: Elegy For Brown (3:34); 14 A Fistful Of Dollars (3:36); 15 For A Few Dollars More (3:33); 16 Hamlet (2:47); 17 A Fistful Of Dynamite (Duck You Sucker) (3:55); 18 The Thing (4:27); 19 The Good, The Bad And The Ugly: The Ecstasy Of Gold (3:00); 20 The Mission: On Earth As It Is In Heaven (3:45).

Cinema Paradiso: The Classic Film Music of Ennio Morricone

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Mark Ayres, Mark McGurty, Henry Mancini, Steve Edwards, Dennis Smith, Derek Wadsworth, Victoria Dolceamore, Mike Townend, Brian Gascoigne, Karl-Heinz Loges, Rachel Berlin; The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Paul Bateman; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineers: John L. Timperley, Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Suite for Orchestra and Choir from The Mission: The Mission, Gabriel's Oboe, Ave Maria (Guarini), On Earth As It Is In Heaven, Epilogue/The Falls (13:04) Members of the Crouch End Festival Choir, David Temple; 2 The Untouchables: Main Theme (2:21); 3 Once Upon A Time In America: Deborah's Theme (4:13) Jill Washington; 4 1900: Romanza (3:30); 5 Casualties Of War: Elegy For Brown (3:53); 6 Two Mules For Sister Sara (5:19); 7 In The Line Of Fire (4:02); 8 The Thing (4:28) Daniel Caine; 9 Chi mai (5:36); 10 Marco Polo (2:41); Sergio Leone Western Film Suite: 11 Once Upon A Time In The West: Main With The Harmonica (3:51); 12 The Good, The Bad And The Ugly (2:53); 13 A Fistful Of Dollars (3:26); 14 For A Few Dollars More (3:23); 15 Once Upon A Time In The West (6:03) Jill Washington; 16 The Good, The Bad And The Ugly: The Ecstasy Of Gold (3:00) Anna Thomas; 17 Cinema Paradiso (3:34).

Review: While they cover much of the same scores and sometimes the same selections, the two Silva Screen compilations are somewhat different. The earliest, The Classic Ennio Morricone, is less interesting, because playing by the City of Prague Philharmonic is at times spotty, with uninspired renditions that add really nothing to the Morricone canon. The second, The Classic Film Music of Ennio Morricone, conducted by Paul Bateman, is somewhat better and truer to the spirit of the original scores, with an exciting reading of selections from The Mission. But with so much Morricone music already available, were either of these sets really necessary, let alone both?

Ennio Morricone: Once Upon a Time in the Cinema

1996, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: Music: Ennio Morricone; Orchestrations: Lanny Meyers; Orchestra conducted by Lanny Meyers; Featured Musicians: Lanny Meyers (piano, keyboards), Bob Mair (bass), Ed Smith (drums), Paul Viapiano (guitar); Album Producer: Bruce Kimmel; Engineer: Vincent Cirilli; Assistant Engineer: Mark Agostino.

Selections: 1 In The Line Of Fire (3:44); 2 Cinema Paradiso (3:33); 3 The Mission (3:30); 4 La Cage Aux Folles (3:28); 5 Once Upon A Time In America (5:07); 6 Duck, You Sucker (4:02); 7 Gabriel's Oboe (from The Mission)(6:34); 8 Hamlet (7:06); 9 Tie Me Up, Tie Me Down (7:15); 10 Frantic (5:02); 11 A Fistful Of Leone (A Fistful Of Dollars/For A Few Dollars More/The Good, The Bad And The Ugly)(5:59); 12 Disclosure (4:01); 13 Wolf (5:23); 14 Once Upon A Time In The West (5:12).

Review: A jazz treatment of well-known Morricone themes, strictly for collectors and fans, and not even made interesting in the tepid playing of the somewhat undistinguished musicians, or in the routine orchestrations by Lanny Meyers. Anything wrong with more original ideas?

Stanley Myers (1930-

Music from the Films

Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Stanley Myers, Hans Zimmer; Album Producer: Emmanuel Chamboredon; Engineers: Chris Dibble, Alan Snelling.

Selections: My Beautiful Landrette: 1 My Beautiful Laundrette (H. Zimmer/S. Myers/D. Bugatti)(4:00) Rita Wolf; 2 120 Days And Nights In A Laundrette (8:30); 3 My Beautiful Laundrette (dance mix)(3:30) Rita Wolf; Sammy And Rosie Get Laid: 4 Sammy And Rosie (1:35); 5 The Prodigal Father (2:15); 6 The Ghost At The Feast (1:53); 7 I've Seen War You Know (S. Myers/S. Lawrence/S. Lawrence/C. Scarlett)(2:22) Samantha & Sandra Lawrence, Charles Scarlett; Wish You Were Here: 8 The Return Of Linda (2:23); 9 Linda Alone (2:43); 10 Lost In A Dream (S. Myers/D. Leland)(1:40) Nicole Tibbets.

Review: Three scores by Stanley Myers, a composer whose output is little known outside of a selected circle of fans and admirers. My Beautiful Laundrette, directed by Stephen Frears in 1985, is set in the Pakistani community in South London, and stars Gordon Warnecke and Daniel Day Lewis, respectively as a Pakistani boy and his British friend who run a small laundrette; Sammy and Rosie Get Laid, also directed by Frears in 1987, is an affectionate romantic comedy that stars Frances Barber and Ayub Khan Din in the title roles; as for Wish You Were Here, written and directed by David Leland, and set in the 1950s, it deals with the sexual awakening of a young British girl in a South Coast town. The scores are widely divergent in approach, and while the first has a rock feel that is contemporary in tone and relatively lackluster, both Sammy and Rosie Get Laid and Wish You Were are quite diversified and attractive, each reflecting with accuracy the times and moods evoked by the films. The pop vocals, though, are dispensable.

Mario Nascimbene (1913-

A Mario Nascimbene Anthology

1996, DRG Records.

Album Notes: Music: Mario Nascimbene; Album Producers: Mario Nascimbene, Claudio Fuiano; Engineer: Gianni Mazzarini.

Selections: CD 1: The Prehistoric Films: One Million Years B.C.: 1 Cosmic Sequence (3:46); 2 The Pteraxodon Carries Loana To Its Nest (4:37); When Dinosaurs Ruled The Earth: 3 Main Titles (2:27); 4 Storm On The Sea (3:18); 5 End Titles (1:07); Creatures The World Forgot: 6 Main Titles (1:48); 7 Eruption Of The Volcano (2:38); 8 Finale: End Titles (1:53); The Historic Films: Solomon And Sheba: 9 Death Of David (2:42); 10 Orgiastic Dance (4:58); Joseph And His Brethren: 11 Pastorale (2:00); 12 Finale (2:21); Barabbas: 13 Main Titles (2:06); 14 Eclipse (3:21); 15 Empty Tomb (2:51); Francis Of Assisi: 16 Building The Church (2:33); 17 Dressing Of Clara (3:25); Alexander The Great: 18 Main Titles (2:04); 19 Battle Of Granicus (2:38); The Vikings: 20 Regnar Returns (2:59); 21 Love Scene (4:00); The Classic Film: Doctor Faustus: 22 Main Titles (2:10); 23 Catacombs (2:58) Richard Burton; 24 The Garden Of Delight (1:49); 25 Helen's Theme (1:26).

CD 2: The Modern Films: A Farewell To Arms: 1 Main Titles (2:29); 2 Finale (2:48); The Barefoot Contessa: 3 Main Titles

(1:47); 4 Nocturne Bolero (2:55); Sons And Lovers: 5 Main Titles (1:34); 6 Love Scene/End Titles (4:07); The Quiet American: 7 Main Titles (1:26); 8 City Streets (2:21); Room At The Top: 9 Main Titles (3:08); 10 Joe And The Prostitute (3:35); The Siege Of Leningrad: 11 The Final Battle (3:32); The Vengeance Of She: 12 Carol In The Sea (4:06); 13 Love Scene (1:33); Where The Spies Are: 14 Main Titles (1:47); 15 Fight/Vikki (3:00); The Scent Of Mystery: 16 The Chase (2:46); 17 The Chase (2:50) Eddie Fisher; Light In The Piazza: 18 Main Titles (3:02); 19 For The Streets Of Florence (3:10); Jessica: 20 The Vespa Song (2:33) Maurice Chevalier; 21 Funny Folk Dance (3:07); Romanoff And Juliet: 22 Walking In The Park (2:14); 23 Fox Trot (1:18).

Review: Nicely assembled compilation of themes and cues from 22 of the Hollywood produced films scored by one of Italy's most resourceful composers. Nascimbene, who personally supervised this release, frequently went outside the normal boundaries of a standard orchestra to incorporate usual sounds into his scores, though the bulk of his work was still acoustic in nature. The first CD starts off with two intriguing cues from One Million Years B.C., the first in a trilogy of prehistoric tales (the other two are also included). The composer incorporated natural sounds, such as wind and rain, with what he perceived was the tribal music for early man. These "ethnic" effects were achieved through a variety of inventive, non-electronic means. Several of Nascimbene's historical costume dramas are featured, including The Vikings, Solomon and Sheba, and Barabbas (which features some blood curdling screams). The second CD contains music from his more contemporary films, many released here for the first time. Titles include The Barefoot Contessa, The Vengeance of She (with the superb jazz theme "Carol at Sea"), and light comedy fare such as Where the Spies Are (Morse Code is used in the "Main Title") and Romanoff and Juliet (a really odd flute-like instrument is used in "Fox Trot"). A well assembled overview of an artist whose work should not be forgotten.

Captain from Castile: The Classic Film Scores of Alfred Newman

1989, RCA Victor.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: 1 20th Century-Fox Fanfare with the CinemaScope Extension/How To Marry A Millionaire: Street Scene (4:22); Captain From Castile: 2 Pedro And Catana/Conquest (6:22) Band Of The Grenadier Guards; Wuthering Heights: 3 Cathy's Theme (2:51); Down To The Sea In Ships: 4 Hornpipe (1:51); The Song Of Bernadette: 5 Prelude/The Vision (7:49) The Ambrosian Singers; The Bravados: 6 Main Title (The Hunters)(3:04); Anastasia: 7 Main Title (2:45); The Best Of Everything: 8 London Calling (2:51); Airport: 9 Main Title (3:13); The Robe: 10 Main Title/Elegy/Caligula's March/The Map Of Jerusalem (8:32) Ambrosian Singers, Band Of The Grenadier Guards.

Review: The quintessential Hollywood composer, Alfred Newman had a profound influence on the film community: as the head of the music department at 20th Century-Fox for more than 20 years, his position enabled him to nurture and develop young talent, some of which followed in his footsteps.

Born in 1901, in New Haven, Connecticut, he began his career in the theatre, becoming one of the Broadway's youngest pianists and conductors, before moving to the West Coast in 1929. The advent of sound in the film industry gave him a tremendous opportunity to turn his knowledge as a composer and as a conductor to good use, particularly after he joined Fox.

While at that studio, he wrote the scores for many classic films such as How Green Was My Valley (1941), The Song of Bernadette (1943), All About Eve (1950), and The Diary of Anne

Frank (1959), and contributed the celebrated fanfare still heard today at the start of every 20th Century-Fox film.

One of the most popular composers in Hollywood throughout his career, Alfred Newman displayed in his scores a strongly neo-romantic style. In the words of his long-time collaborator and friend, Ken Darby, "His primary purpose was to enlarge the scene, make it more real, add to it without engaging the audience's attention away from its involvement with the plot and the characters..."

The two compilations listed here regroup themes he wrote during his tenure at Fox. Of the two, the RCA set, in the wonderful Classic Film Scores series, finds Charles Gerhardt and The National Philharmonic Orchestra in sensational readings of some of Newman's best remembered themes, including selections from Captain From Castile, which gave the album its title, Wuthering Heights, The Robe, Airport and Anastasia. Performance throughout is satisfactory, with the brilliant sound quality adding a cinematic flavor to the whole album.

In comparison, the Varese-Sarabande CD does not fare as well. Though conducted by Newman himself, it was compiled from archival material, and sonic quality is frequently subpar, particularly in the digital domain. But the Captain From Castile suite, not available anywhere else, is well worth listening to.

The Movies Go to the Hollywood Bowl

1990, Angel Records.

Album Notes: Music: Alfred Newman, Miklos Rozsa; The Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Alfred Newman, Miklos Rozsa; Album Producer: Ralph O'Connor; Engineer: Carson Taylor; Digital Remastering: Robert Norberg.

Selections: Captain From Castile: 1 Conquest (A. Newman)(3:23); 2 Second Rhapsody (G. Gershwin)(14:16) Leonard Pennario; David And Bathsheba: 3 23rd Psalm (A. Newman)(3:24); The Robe (A. Newman): 4 Palm Sunday (2:14); 5 Hallelujah (2:52); 6 The Dream Of Olwen (C. Williams)(3:59) Leonard Pennario; King Of Kings (M. Rozsa): 7 Nativity (2:10); 8 The Way Of The Cross (3:00); 9 Pieta (2:34); 10 King Of Kings Theme (2:48); Spellbound: 11 Spellbound Concerto (M. Rozsa)(12:09) Leonard Pennario; El Cid (M. Rozsa): 12 Overture (3:25); 13 Love Theme (4:15); 14 El Cid March (3:27).

Review: In the 1960s, both Alfred Newman and Miklos Rozsa conducted the Hollywood Bowl Symphony Orchestra in recordings of their own music and other works for Capitol Records. This compilation presents several excerpts from these recordings, with Newman leading the orchestra in selections from Captain From Castile, The Robe and David and Bathsheba, while Rozsa's selections include King of Kings, El Cid, and a forceful rendition of the Spellbound Concerto, with Leonard Pennario as soloist. Nothing truly earthshaking, simply some good selections, appropriately conducted by the composers themselves, always a plus.

David Newman (1954-

It's a Wonderful Life: Sundance Film Music Series, vol. 1

1988, Telarc Records.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin, Richard Addinsell, Cyril J. Mockridge; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra and the Ambrosian Singers (John McCarthy, chorus master), conducted by David Newman; Album Producers: Robert Woods, Willard Carroll; Engineer: Jack Renner.

Selections: 1 Sundance Fanfare (D. Newman)(:40); It's A Wonderful Life (D. Tiomkin): 2 Main Title/Heaven/Ski Run (5:32); 3 Death Telegram/Gower's Deliverance (3:44); 4 George And Dad/Father's Death (2:45); 5 Love Sequence (2:26); 6 Wedding Cigars/George Lassoes Stork (2:44); 7 Dilemma/Bank Crisis/ Search For Money/Potter's Threat (4:13); 8 Clarence's Arrival (2:25); 9 George Is Unborn/Haunted House (5:09); 10 Pottersville Cemetery/Wrong Ma Bailey/Wrong May Hatch/ The Prayer (5:49); 11 It's A Wonderful Life (3:45); A Christmas Carol (suite)(R. Addinsell): 12 Main Title/Toy Shop/Cratchit And Scrooge/ Christmas Past/Christmas Present/Cratchit And Tiny Tim/Christmas Future/ Graveyard/Christmas Day/Finale (14:08); Miracle On 34th Street (C. Mockridge): 13 20th Century Fox Fanfare (A. Newman)/Main Title (1:25); 14 The House/Book Montage (3:51); 15 Newspaper Montage/Susan's Letter (1:26); 16 X-ray Machine/ Susan's Disappointment/Finale (4:18).

Review: One of the best albums of its kind. Recorded under the aegis of the Sundance Institute, in what was supposed to be a series unfortunately apparently abandoned after this initial volume, the CD presents the first recording of the scores for three Yuletide classics, played to perfection by the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by David Newman. All three suites are highlights in their own right, but It's a Wonderful Life literally steals the show, with totally faithful reproductions of Tiomkin's difficult music style.

Alex North (1910-1991)

Alex North: North of Hollywood

1989, RCA Records.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; Orchestra conducted by Alex North; Album Producer: Dennis Farnon; CD Producer: Chick Crumpacker; Engineers: Ed Rich, Dick Baxter.

Selections: A Streetcar Named Desire: 1 Stud Poker (1:29); A Streetcar Named Desire: 2 Four Deuces (3:09); Wall Street Ballet: 3 Trick Or Treat (2:33); A Streetcar Named Desire: 4 French Quarter (2:19); Hot Spell: 5 Hot Spell (2:22); American Road: 6 Ode To A Western (2:08); Unchained: 7 Unchained Jazz (3:57); The Racers: 8 Monte Carlo (1:34); The Rose Tattoo: 9 Floozie (2:26); The Rose Tattoo: 10 Mardi Gras Bump (1:37); Member Of The Wedding: 11 Magnolia (2:29); Wall Street Ballet: 12 Ticker Tape (2:25); Member Of The Wedding: 13 Jody's Lament (3:18); The Racers: 14 Blackjack (2:46).

Unchained Melody: The Film Themes of Alex North

1991, Bay Cities Records.

Album Notes: Music: Alex North; Orchestra conducted by Alex North; Album Producer: Nick Redman; Engineer: Daniel Hersch.

Selections: 1 Unchained (3:37); 2 The Racers (3:43); 3 Viva Zapata! (3:31); 4 The Bad Seed (3:05); 5 A Streetcar Named Desire (2:51); 6 The Bachelor Party (4:10); 7 The 13th Letter (2:55); 8 Stage Struck (3:14); 9 I'll Cry Tomorrow (2:42); 10 Les Miserables (2:51); 11 The Rose Tattoo (3:13); 12 Desiree (2:52).

Review: Some film composers often find themselves out of the mainstream, and while thoroughly respected (and often lionized) by their peers, fail to become as widely admired by a larger audience. Such is the case of Alex North, a revered musician whose scores have always elicited much admiration, but who is hardly a household name today. Born in 1910 in Chester, Pa., of Russian emigres, North studied at the Curtis Institute of Music and at Juilliard.

His skills enabled him to impose himself in the New York theatre and ballet communities, leading Elia Kazan to ask him to write the incidental music for the stage presentation of Arthur Miller's Death of a Salesman, in 1949. When Kazan filmed A Streetcar Named Desire two years later, he again called on North to provide the score, an unusual blend of New Orleans jazz that reflected the story and its locale. That score, and Death of a Salesman released that same year, earned Oscar nominations and promptly established the young composer. In short order, North began to deliver scores that were uncharacteristic for Hollywood, yet thoroughly cinematographic in their approach, something that further singled him out in the film community.

Among his many contributions for the screen, the most important include Unchained (1955), which yielded the popular song "Unchained Melody," The Rose Tattoo (1955), The Rainmaker (1956), Spartacus (1960), The Misfits (1961), Cleopatra (1964), The Agony and the Ecstasy (1965), Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf? (1966), and Dragonslayer (1981).

The two compilations listed here present several themes from these and other films North also scored, unfortunately in often dubious sonic quality. The RCA set is interesting for its inclusion of themes not otherwise available (Wall Street Ballet), but the haphazard, disjointed presentation of the cues is a real disservice to the music and its composer.

Even worse, sonically, is the set from the now-defunct label Bay Cities, whose only merits is that it also includes some rare themes (Viva Zapata!, The Bad Seed, The 13th Letter, Desiree). A definitive North tribute has yet to be recorded.

Michael Nyman (1944-

The Essential Michael Nyman Band

1991, Argo Records.

Album Notes: Music: Michael Nyman; The Essential Michael Nyman Band: Alexander Balanescu, Clare Connors, Ann Morphy (violin), Kate Musker (viola), Tony Hinnigan, Justin Pearson (cello), Martin Elliott (bass guitar), John Harle, David Roach (soprano/ alto saxophone), Andrew Findon (baritone sax/flute/piccolo), Steve Sidwell (trumpet), Marjorie Dunn (horn), Nigel Barr (bass trombone/euphonium), John Lenahan, Michael Nyman (piano), Sarah Leonard (soprano), Linda Hirst (mezzo soprano); Engineer: Michael J. Dutton.

Selections: The Draughtsman's Contract: 1 Chasing Sheep Is Best Left To Shepherds (5:04); 2 An Eye For Optical Theory (4:16); 3 The Garden Is Becoming A Robe Room (6:08); A Zed And Two Noughts: 4 Prawn-Watching (2:20); 5 Time Lapse (3:52); Drowning By Numbers: 6 Fish Beach (2:53); 7 Wheelbarrow Walk (2:32); 8 Knowing The Ropes (5:44); The Cook, The Thief, His Wife And Her Lover: 9 Miserere Paraphrase

(7:06); 10 Memorial (11:18); Water Dances: 11 Stroking (5:11); 12 Synchronising (5:33); Prospero's Books: 13 Miranda (4:16).

Review: Writing in a minimalist way that some might enjoy while others might find it painfully boring, Nyman continues to score films with great empathy, sometimes, as in The Draughtsman's Contract or Prospero's Books, mixing genres and periods with delicious abandon, at other times sticking to more conventional strictures, though always with the same deliberately individualistic style that's his stock in trade. Short of trying to listen to several of his soundtracks and form an opinion, this set provides an interesting overview, regrouping the themes from various recent films, including the weird The Cook, The Thief, His Wife and Her Lover. It may not be to everyone's taste, but it's the kind of music that seldom leaves one indifferent—you either love it, or hate it!

Rachel Portman (1960-

A Pyromaniac's Love Story

1995, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Music: Rachel Portman; Orchestrations: Rachel Portman; Album Producer: Rachel Portman.

Selections: A Pyromaniac's Love Story: 1 Tango (2:50); 2 The Favor (1:02); 3 Garet Kisses Hattie (1:35); 4 Mr. Linzer's Troubles (1:03); 5 Aspiration (1:05); 6 Garet (1:39); 7 Off To See The World (2:55); 8 End Titles (3:26); Great Moments In Aviation: 9 End Titles (3:49); 10 Gabriel Explores Ship (2:01); 11 Safe Walls Are Falling (3:16); 12 Montage (1:24); 13 The Hope Is In Me (2:08); 14 Icarus (1:46); 15 We Both Killed Her (:53); 16 Vesuvia's Feast (4:36); 17 Nothing To Hide (2:51); Smoke: 18 Brooklyn (1:31); 19 Peter Rabbit (1:04); 20 Broken TV (1:21); 21 End Titles (2:42); Ethan Frome: 22 Fox Here Again (2:03); 23 The Sermon (2:32); 24 Coasting (3:07); 25 Mattie Arrives (1:27); 26 Walking Home (1:15); 27 Ethan Clears His Room (1:04); 28 End Titles (3:03).

Review: The featured work, A Pyromaniac's Love Story is not particularly attention-grabbing, being a light score dominated by tango-like motif. More striking however is Portman's Great Moments in Aviation, which contrasts soaring passages for operatic soprano and orchestra with '20s-style jazz. Portman reconciles and combines these disparate elements into an ethereal and deeply moving tapestry, and the result is one of the most offbeat and unique scores of the past 20 years. Smoke, a small ensemble, somewhat minimalist score, is also included but its four brief cues do not arouse great interest. The concluding score however, Ethan Frome (an excellent, though not widely seen Liam Neeson film from 1992) is one of Portman's finest efforts. An impressionistic, melancholy score, Ethan Frome is at once brooding and pastoral, somewhat reminiscent of Herrmann in its atmospheric evocation of 19th-century New England. Rachel Portman's fondness for playing character eccentricities and a unique gift for orchestration (she always orchestrates her scores herself) makes her the most unique film composer to emerge in the '90s. Her music has great depth yet soars weightlessly. There is little doubt she has a very bright future ahead of her.

Laura: The Classic Film Scores of David Raksin

1989, RCA Victor Records.

Album Notes: Music: David Raksin; The New Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by David Raksin; Album Producer: Charles Gerhardt; Engineer: Philip Wade.

Selections: Laura: 1 Main Title (5:52); Forever Amber (suite): 2 Main Title: Amber (3:57); 3 The King's Mistress (3:25); 4 Whitefriars (9:14); 5 The Great Fire (3:59); 6 End Title: Forever Amber (4:06); The Bad And The Beautiful (suite): 7 Main Title Theme: Love Is For The Very Young (2:56); 8 The Acting Lesson (2:46); 9 The Quickies and The Sneak Preview (2:26); 10 Nocturne and Theme (7:04).

Review: With only one film, Laura, in 1944, David Raksin managed the almost impossible and became one of Hollywood's great composers. Not bad for someone who, in a brilliant career that has spanned more than 60 years (so far!), also wrote the music for many other important films, as well as countless television series.

Born in 1912, in Philadelphia, Raksin came to Hollywood in 1935 to work with Charles Chaplin on the music for Modern Times. But because he often argued with the famous comedian, one of the co-founders of United Artists, the studio where both were working, Raksin was fired. He was immediately rehired by Alfred Newman, head of the music department, with the understanding that he could continue to argue only as long as it was about the music.

Then Raksin wrote Laura, and became known as an innovative film composer, a reputation that never left him after that. In contrast to the style of mittel-European composers like Steiner, Rozsa or Korngold, Raksin's approach to music was refreshingly American in spirit, something that singled out another one of his memorable contributions, the score for The Bad and the Beautiful. In an early assessment, Andre Previn once commented, "[Raksin's] sense of orchestral color was always unbeatable, his harmonic twists very clearly his own, and he thought nothing of setting himself some problems to make studio composing a little livelier."

This recording, another great title in the Classic Film Scores series, has an extra ounce of authenticity because it is conducted by the composer himself. The suite from Forever Amber alone is worth the price of admission, but don't dismiss Raksin's revisiting of his score for The Bad and the Beautiful, or his reinterpretation of the celebrated theme for Laura. In fact, the recording's only flaw is its brevity. One would have joyfully settled for more of the same.

Nino Rota (1911-1979)

Nino Rota: Film Music

1992, EMI Classics.

Album Notes: Music: Nino Rota; The Orchestre Philharmonique de Monte-Carlo, conducted by Gianluigi Gelmetti; Album Producer: David R. Murray; Engineer: Simon Rhodes.

Selections: War And Peace: 1 Introduction/Waltz (2:57); 2 The Rose Of Novgorod (2:04); 3 Finale (2:23); The Leopard: 4 Allegro maestoso (2:57); 5 Allegro impetuoso (5:15); 6 Sostenuto appasionato/Finale (3:48); La strada (suite from the ballet): 7 Country Wedding (3:33); 8 The Three Musicians And The "Madman" On The Tightrope (3:36); 9 Rhumba (2:24); 10 The Circus (Zampano's Number/The Jugglers/The "Madman's" Violin)(4:50); 11 Zampano's Anger (3:44); 12 Zampano Kills The "Madman"/Gelsomina Goes Mad With Grief (2:35); 13 The Last Show In The Snow (3:01); 14 Intermezzo: Zampano Alone And In Tears (4:20); Waterloo: 15 Andante eroico (3:20); 16 Andante alla marcia (4:22); 17 Andante con moto (3:54).

The Symphonic Fellini/Rota: La dolce vita

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Nino Rota; Orchestrations: Derek Wadsworth; The Czech Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Derek Wadsworth; Album Producer: Nic Raine; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 The White Sheik (2:46); 2 I vitelloni (3:01); 3 La strada (6:38); 4 Il bidone (4:48); 5 Le notte di Cabiria (6:08); 6 La dolce vita (7:08); 7 Boccacio '70 (1:27); 8 8½ (5:14); 9 Juliet Of The Spirits (7:17); 10 Fellini Satyricon (3:05); 11 The Clowns (4:20); 12 Roma (3:50); 13 Amarcord (5:09); 14 Il Casanova (3:25); 15 Orchestra Rehearsal (4:04).

Review: There are several collections of Rota's film themes available, notably one of dubious sonic quality that has been released at various times by CAM, the Italian label. These CDs, and particularly the first two, are interesting for several reasons. First, because both EMI and Sony are classical labels, marking a notable change among the major record companies which are beginning to view film music with the seriousness it truly deserves. And also because both offer selections from films which had wider release in this country than the Fellini films, for which Rota is notably famous. War and Peace, directed in 1956 by King Vidor, stars Audrey Hepburn, Mel Ferrer and Henry Fonda, and is a magnificent screen reconstruction of the epic Tolstoy novel; The Leopard, filmed by Luchino Visconti in 1963, and starring Burt Lancaster and Claudia Cardinale, is a powerful account of 19th-century life in Sicily, at a time when social values disintegrated rapidly in the face of rising revolutionary ideas; as for Waterloo, made in 1971 by Sergei Bondarchuk, it stars Rod Steiger as Napoleon, confronted with his last battle and most devastating defeats.

Adding a different touch to both sets is the ballet from La Strada, which Rota reorchestrated from the cues he had composed for his original 1954 score. Both Gianluigi Gelmetti and Riccardo Muti, respectively conducting the Orchestre Philharmonique de Monte-Carlo and the Orchestra Filarmonica della Scala, do the ballet and the selections from the score full justice, with bright, imaginative sonics to complement the music.

The third CD is a decent rendition of themes written by Rota for the films of Federico Fellini, performed by the Czech Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Derek Wadsworth. The performance is sometimes lackluster, and some of the tempi are a bit wild, but overall it's a good set, and a good representation of Rota's most popular themes.

Bruce Rowland (1942-

Bruce Rowland: The Film and Television Themes

1990, ABC Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bruce Rowland; The Melbourne Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Bruce Rowland; Featured Musicians: Bruce Rowland, Joe Chindamo (synthesizers), Rod Stone, Don Stevenson (guitars), Mike Grabowsky (electric bass), Ron Sawdilands (drums), John Barratt (didgeridoo/flute/alto sax), Rod Campbell (bagpipes); Album Producer: Chris Boniface; Engineers: Gerry McKechnie, Ross Smith.

Selections: 1 Opening (from The Man From Snowy River)(1:28); 2 Tom's Theme (from All The Rivers Run)(2:13); 3 Phar Lap Learns To Run (from Phar Lap) (2:25); 4 Jessica's Theme (from The Man From Snowy River)(3:09); 5 Main Theme (from All The Rivers Run)(1:35); 6 Jessie Has A Cry (from Now And Forever) (1:55); 7 Hero To A Nation (from Phar Lap)(2:21); 8 Ray Burn's Theme (from All The Rivers Run)(1:58); 9 Sandhills (from Phar Lap)(2:35); 10 The Chase (from The Man From Snowy River)(4:58); 11 River Theme (from All The Rivers Run) (1:54); 12 Phar Lap's Arrival (from Phar Lap)(2:20); 13 Love Theme (from All The Rivers Run)(1:31); 14 Olympic Opening (4:46); 15 Olympic Ballet (3:06); 16 Taurus I (2:28); 17 Mountain Theme (from The Man From Snowy River)(1:49); 18 Main Theme (from Whale Savers)(1:07); 19 Closing (from The Man From Snowy River)(3:59).

Review: Australia's best kept secret, Bruce Rowland is a composer of great talent who has scored several films that have received a release in this country, notably The Man From Snowy River and its sequel, Return to Snowy River, All the Rivers Run, and Phar Lap. This 1984 compilation, with the composer conducting the Melbourne Symphony Orchestra, is a flavorful presentation of some of the beautifully elegiac themes Rowland wrote for the screen and television, played with great gusto by the orchestra and some featured musicians. Man From Snowy River, in particular, which also yielded a highly recommended soundtrack album, is terrific in its evocation of the wide open Australian spaces, in terms that compare favorably with the best western scores ever written in Hollywood, with just a hint of its actual source that makes it even more attractive.

Miklos Rozsa: Epic Suites for Orchestra, Chorus and Organ

1986, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Hamburg Concert Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Richard Mueller-Lampertz; Album Producer: D.L. Miller; Engineer: W. Wille.

Selections: El Cid: 1 Overture (3:34); 2 Palace Music (1:16); 3 Legend and Epilogue (5:06); Ben-Hur: 4 Prelude (3:39); 5 Love Theme (2:52); 6 Victory Parade (2:24); 7 Miracle and Finale (3:34); King Of Kings: 8 Main Title (2:41); 9 Nativity (2:50); 10 Miracles Of Christ (3:09); 11 Salome's Dance (2:48); 12 Way Of The Cross (1:45); 13 Resurrection and Finale (3:31).

Review: The title actually says it all: beginning with Quo Vadis, in 1951, and Ivanhoe, in 1952, Miklos Rozsa acquired a solid reputation as a composer who could write better than most in the epic style for which Hollywood was coming to be known throughout the world. As a result, Rozsa scored many films set in Roman and medieval times, every time bringing a distinctive color to his music, frequently rooted in instruments and themes from the period reconstructed for the occasion. Some of the invention seems to be lost in most evocations of his scores, as in this presentation of cues from his scores for El Cid, Ben-Hur and King of Kings. While the performance here is perfectly adequate and acceptable, it misses the special quality the original scores derived from the research and care the composer invested in them. Other than that, the recording also displays a shrillness that is not always very flattering to the ear.

The Music of Miklos Rozsa

1985, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Utah Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Musicians: Joshua Pierce, Dorothy Jonas, pianos; Album Producers: Jeffrey Kaufman, George Korngold; Engineer: Bruce Leek.

Selections: 1 The World, The Flesh And The Devil: Overture (3:31); 2 New England Concerto (14:57); 3 Because Of Him: Overture (3:20); 4 Spellbound Concerto (22:42).

Review: An interesting album, conducted by Elmer Bernstein, which doesn't take the usual beaten path but seeks, instead, to be original. The meat of the CD is the two major works found here, the "New England Concerto" and the "Spellbound Concerto," both played with great drive and intensity by Joshua Pierce and Dorothy Jonas in two-piano versions apparently endorsed by the composer himself. As a filler, Bernstein and the Utah Symphony perform the "Overture" to The World, The Flesh and the Devil, a 1959 drama starring Harry Belafonte, Inger Stevens and Mel Ferrer, and the "Overture" to Because of Him, written in 1946 for a comedy in which the leads were held by Deanna Durbin, Franchot Tone and Charles Laughton. The excellent dynamics add to the pleasure of discovering these versions.

Miklos Rozsa: Hollywood Legend

1989, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Nuremberg Symphony Orchestra, and The Palestrina Choir Of Nuremberg, conducted by Elmer Bernstein; Featured Musicians: Cynthia Millar (Ondes Marthinot), Kalus Leob (violin); Album Producers: George Korngold, Wolfgang Konrad; Engineer: Peter Collmann.

Selections: El Cid: 1 Fanfare/Burgos/Entry Of The Nobles (3:33); 2 The Coronation (2:18); The Story Of Three Loves: 3 Paganiniana/The Eternal City/Boccaccio March and Finale (12:46); Quo Vadis: 4 Quo Vadis Domine (5:25); The Lost Weekend: 5 Prelude/New York Skyline/Alcohol/Love Theme (5:31); Plymouth Adventure: 6 The Mayflower (Symphonic Picture)(11:58); The Private Life Of Sherlock Holmes: 7 English Waltz (Vienna In Scotland)(2:27); Ben-Hur: 8 Overture (8:45); The Strange Love Of Martha Ivers: 9 Prelude and Love Themes (6:15); King Of Kings: 10 Entr'acte (7:19); Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid: 11 Finale (4:29).

Review: Elmer Bernstein and the Nuremberg Symphony Orchestra provide a rousing tribute to the great Miklos Rozsa in this excellent 1989 recording, produced by George Korngold and Wolfgang Konrad. Many of Rozsa's most romantic works are included here, with the composer's sweeping "Golden Age" sound permeating selections from The Story of Three Loves, The Strange Love of Martha Ivers and Dead Men Don't Wear Plaid, while Rozsa's bold, majestic sense of dramatic film scoring is on full display in El Cid, Quo Vadis?, King of Kings and Ben-Hur. This particular album is noteworthy for its premiere recording of a 12-minute suite from The Plymouth Adventure, as well as an alternate, unused piece from The Private Life of Sherlock Holmes. The music is given a competent symphonic performance under Bernstein's direction, and though the liner notes are fairly sparse for a project like this, that should not keep any true film music fan away from picking up this highly recommended release.

Film Scores of Miklos Rozsa

1996, Angel Records.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Orchestras conducted by Miklos Rozsa; CD Producer: Robert LaPorta; Engineer: Jay Ranellucci, Wayne Hileman.

Selections: Ben Hur: 1 Prelude (3:30); 2 Love Theme (3:06); 3 Parade Of The Charioteers (3:28); 4 Mother's Love (2:50); El Cid: 5 Overture (3:28); 6 Love Theme (4:19); 7 El Cid March (3:27); King Of Kings: 8 Nativity (2:13); 9 Way Of The Cross (3:04); 10 Pieta (2:39); 11 King Of Kings (Theme)(2:49); The Red House: 12 Prelude (3:07); 13 Screams In The Night (2:44); 14 The Oxhead Woods (3:00); 15 Retribution (3:06); Quo Vadis: 16 Ave Caesar (4:32); 17 Romanza (7:22); 18 Quo Vadis Domine? (4:59); Spellbound: 19 Part 1 (5:43); 20 Part 2 (4:44).

Review: Culled from recordings made by Rozsa in the 1950s and 1960s, this set includes selections that are in stereo (Ben-

Hur, El Cid, King of Kings) and in mono (The Red House, Quo Vadis, Spellbound) with the cues mercifully arranged together and not at random, as is sometimes the case in compilations. The authoritative conducting here is the key to these selections recorded in Europe in 1967 and in Hollywood in 1952, respectively.

Spellbound: The Classic Film Scores of Miklos Rozsa

1989, RCA Victor.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: The Red House: 1 Prelude (1:30); 2 The Morgan Farm, The New Hired Hand, Swimming Scene (3:23); 3 Meg Finds The Red House (1:55); 4 Teller Shoots At Meg (4:16); 5 Pete's Death and Finale (1:19) Ambrosian Singers; The Thief Of Bagdad: 6 The Love Of The Princess (4:45); The Lost Weekend: 7 The Bottle, First Meeting (2:07); 8 The Mouse And The Bat, Nightmare (5:09); 9 Love Scene and Finale (2:30); The Four Feathers: 10 Sunstroke, River Journey (7:52); Double Indemnity: 11 Mrs. Dietrichson, The Conspiracy (3:18); Knights Of The Round Table: 12 Scherzo: Hawks In Flight (1:17); The Jungle Book: 13 Song Of The Jungle (3:28) Ambrosian Singers; Spellbound: 14 The Dream Sequence, The Mountain Lodge (5:25); Ivanhoe: 15 Overture (5:27).

Review: Another title in RCA's Classic Film Scores series, this sensational recording, produced with great flair by George Korngold, again finds Charles Gerhardt and the National Philharmonic Orchestra in superlative readings of selections from the scores of Dr. Rozsa. Mercifully avoiding Ben-Hur, King of Kings or even El Cid, the program focuses on other works, equally deserving of coverage, yet not as frequently performed. The Red House, in particular, is a real winner, as are the selections from The Four Feathers, Double Indemnity, The Lost Weekend and Spellbound. But the album as a whole is a wonderful, exciting presentation of some of the best music composed by Rozsa.

Miklos Rozsa: Hollywood Spectacular

1985, Bay Cities Records.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Rainer Padberg; Featured Musician: Christophe Bowers-Broadbent (organ); Album Producer: Christopher Palmer; Engineer: Bob Auger.

Selections: 1 Festive Flourish (1:07); 2 Fantasy On Themes From Young Bess (16:32); King Of Kings: 3 Via Dolorosa (5:22); Ben-Hur: 4 Parade Of The Charioteers (3:47); The Story Of Three Loves: 5 Java de la Seine (2:46); Sodom And Gomorrah: 6 Triumph March and Wedding (2:39); Young Bess: 7 Danish Dance (3:08); Julius Caesar: 8 Caesar's Procession (4:32); El Cid: 9 Palace Music (2:03); King Of Kings: 10 Jugglers And Tumblers (1:03); Ben-Hur: 11 Victory Parade (3:15).

Review: This adequate collection of themes, mostly from Miklos Rozsa's Hollywood costume epics, is assembled into a delightful concerto of pomp and circumstance. The album leads off with the previously unrecorded "Festival Flourish," the album's only non-film composition, written in honor of the 1976 American Bicentennial. A 16½-minute "Fantasy on Themes from Young Bess" follows, which precedes an assortment of music from King of Kings, Ben-Hur and El-Cid. A personal favorite of Rosza's, "Java de la Seine" from The Story of Three Lovers, is also included, making a welcome change of pace in the presentation. Christopher Palmer, who was a close personal friend of the composer, produced this album with another Rosza admirer, Rainer Padberg conducting the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. Unfortunately, the recording appears to make the orchestra sound surprisingly small. Ben-Hur's "Parade of the Charioteers" is incredibly impotent, lacking in the majesty of Rosza's original, or later recordings that gave the work a more commanding atmosphere.

The Epic Film Music of Miklos Rozsa

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Orchestrations: Nic Raine, Kevin Townend, Christopher Palmer; The City of Prague Philharmonic and The Crouch End Festival Chorus, conducted by Kenneth Alwyn; Featured Soloist: Josef Kroft (violin); Album Producers: David Wishart, Nic Raine; Engineers: John L. Timperley, Mark Ayres.

Selections: The Golden Voyage Of Sinbad: 1 Prelude/Sinbad Battles Kali/ Finale (4:53); King Of King: 2 Prelude (2:48); El Cid: 3 Overture (3:34); 4 Love Scene (4:14); 5 Sodom And Gomorrah: Overture (5:03); Quo Vadis: 6 Prelude (1:54); 7 Arabesque (5:21); 8 Romanza (6:39); 9 Ave Caesar (4:49); King Of Kings: 10 The Lord's Prayer (2:44); Beau Brummell: 11 Prelude/The King's Visit and Farewell (6:46); Ben-Hur: 12 Prelude (3:41); 13 Love Theme (2:56); 14 Parade Of The Charioteers (3:37); Madame Bovary: 16 Waltz (4:44); All the Brothers

Were Valient: 15 Main Tile/Finale (5:05);— King Of Kings: 17 Theme (orchestral version)(2:56).

Review: This superbly performed and energetic collection of Miklos Rozsa's period and sword-and-sandal epics is one of Silva's best, opening with a rousing take on the Harryhausen fantasy The Golden Voyage of Sinbad, and moving through the Roman Empire settings of Ben Hur and Quo Vadis, the Biblical sagas King of Kings and Sodom and Gomorrah, and the period trappings of Beau Brummell, All The Brothers Were Valiant and Madame Bovary, with its ingenious "madness waltz." A highlight of the album is the superb incorporation of choral sections into King of Kings (in its gorgeous opening and Rozsa's sublime setting of The Lord's Prayer) and Quo Vadis, bringing a new luster to musical cues that may have been performed on one too many Rozsa compilations of the past. Rozsa practically invented this genre, bristling with martial fanfares and sweeping romantic melodies, and this is a fitting tribute to his indelible style, with impeccable sound and performances.

Miklos Rozsa: Double Indemnity

1997, Koch International.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa; Orchestrations: Patrick Russ, Jon Kull; The New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Sedares; Album Producer: Michael Fine; Engineer: Keith Warren; Assistant Engineer: David Merrill.

Selections: The Lost Weekend: 1 The Weekend Begins (9:19); 2 The First Meeting/The Walk (10:21); 3 Nightmare/Finale (13:52); Double Indemnity: 4 Prelude (9:17); 5 The Conspiracy (6:47); 6 Finale (10:14); The Killers: 7 Main Title (2:10); 8 Prison Stars (5:47); 9 Exit The Killers (3:32).

Review: Far from the bombast of his epic film scores, Rozsa also wrote some powerful cues heard in psychological dramas and contemporary thrillers like The Lost Weekend, Double Indemnity and The Killers, heard here. The first, about a man, Ray Milland, trying to overcome his alcoholism, ends in a terrifying, nightmarish scene in which Rozsa's music, as memorable in its own way as the music Bernard Herrmann wrote for the shower scene in Psycho, serves as an extraordinary complement to the action.

More than any other, Double Indemnity may be considered the classic film noir, in which a relentless cynicism pervades the action, embodied here by Barbara Stanwyck, a Los Angeles femme fatale, trapped into a loveless marriage, who coerces an insurance salesman (Fred MacMurray) into murdering her husband in order to collect the money of his life policy.

As for The Killers, starring Burt Lancaster making his film debut, it deals with a former boxer hunted down and killed by two hoodlums sent after him by an underworld boss. James Sedares and the New Zealand Symphony do wonders with Rozsa's explosive cues.

Review: This delightful set of classic Universal Studios monster music was spearheaded by the release of Hans J. Salter's music for House of Frankenstein and Ghost of Frankenstein, on the 1993 album Music for Frankenstein. As one of Universal Studios' most prolific in-house composers, Salter churned out an extraordinarily large amount of wonderfully creepy music for the studios' monster films, adding some much needed realism to Universal's ever growing stable of ghouls. But, as was the practice of the studios at the time, several composers were assigned to work on sections of a single film, which made the task for musical historians like John Morgan all the more difficult. Nonetheless, Morgan did an amazing job reconstructing the original scores, which were lost or destroyed years ago, and the music was well performed by the RTE Concert Orchestra under the direction of Andrew Penny on the first album.

However, just two years later, Morgan and William T. Stromberg were able to return to the House of Frankenstein and add in more music, cues mainly by Paul Dessau, to recreate the complete 55 minute film score. Stromberg conducts the Moscow Symphony Orchestra with great flair on the second CD. Both albums are digitally recorded with detailed liner notes.

Creature from The Black Lagoon: A Symphony of Film Music by Hans J. Salter

1994, Intrada Records.

Album Notes: Music: Hans J. Salter; Album Producer: Tony Thomas; Engineer: Joe Tarantino.

Selections: 1 Creature From The Black Lagoon (14:57); 2 The Black Shield Of Falworth (19:36); 3 Hitler (19:47); 4 The Incredible Shrinking Man (18:05).

Review: Hans J. Salter was the undisputed king of horror film music throughout the Forties and Fifties, supplying brash and moody musical cues for every shambling beast that emerged from Universal studios, from the Frankenstein monster to the creature from the Black Lagoon. This collection shows the composer tackling a wide range of subject matter, yet except for The Black Shield of Falworth Salter is still depicted as largely trapped in the horror genre. The Creature from the Black Lagoon is the quintessential 1950s horror opus, with its shrill, three-note brass stinger for the monster one of the most instantly recognizable and effective pieces of "scary" music ever heard in the movies. Salter's score moves seamlessly from impressionistic repose to outright chaos as the monster alternately hides in its swampy natural surroundings and launches its attacks to the tune of Salter's snarling brass trills. The Black Shield of Falworth is closely related to Salter's supplemental music for Jerome Moross' score to The War Lord, although Salter's questing English horn theme was far more traditional than Moross' efforts. The Incredible Shrinking Man featured a brazen, jazzy title theme that wailed out the tragic fate of its shrinking hero with some hair-raising trumpet and vocal solos, although the rest of the score was Salter at his most exciting, thrillingly scoring Grant Williams' battles with giant cats and spiders as he shrinks to the size of an atom. Ironically, movie monster expert Salter was ultimately called on to write music for the ultimate monster, Adolf Hitler, for a 1964 film treatment starring Richard Basehart. Salter, who actually lived through some of the Nazi regime, summons up the martial hysteria of pre-WWII Germany with plenty of bustle in some authentic-sounding marches.

Romancing the Film

1992, Pro-Arte Records.

Album Notes: The Rochester Pops, conducted by Lalo Schifrin; Album Producer: Anton Kwiatkowski; Engineer: Anton Kwiatkowski; Assistant Engineers: Paul Kwiatkowski, Gary Rice.

Selections: Gone With The Wind: 1 Tara's Theme (M. Steiner)(4:03); The Wizard Of Oz: 2 Over The Rainbow (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg)(3:59); Casablanca: 3 As Time Goes By (H. Hupfeld)(4:21); Around The World In Eighty Days: 4 Main Theme (V. Young)(3:13); Breakfast At Tiffany's: 5 Moon River (H. Mancini/J. Mercer) (3:33); Lawrence Of Arabia: 6 Main Theme (M. Jarre)(3:56); Doctor Zhivago: 7 Lara's Theme (M. Jarre)(6:00); Cool Hand Luke: 8 Symphonic Sketches (L. Schifrin)(6:55); The Godfather: 9 Love Theme (N. Rota)(2:47); Space Medley: 10 2001: A Space Odyssey (R. Strauss)/Star Wars (J. Williams)(9:22); Dirty Dancing: 11 (I've Had) The Time Of My Life (F. Previte/D. Markowitz/J. DeNicola) (3:36); The Little Mermaid: 12 Medley (A. Menken/H. Ashman)(6:51).

Review: Another reaction to the "Kunzel syndrome," these two CDs gave Lalo Schifrin the opportunity to step in front of fledging symphony orchestras, in this case The San Diego Symphony Pops and The Rochester Pops, whip them into shape and record some selections from the movies, in the hope of emulating the success achieved by Telarc and the Cincinnati Pops. The thematic approach suits the composer of Mission: Impossible to a tee, particularly in the first album in which his own flamboyance finds a suitable echo in the martial airs written by John Williams, Alfred Newman, Henry Mancini, Morton Gould, and, while-we're-at-it-why-not-add John Philip Sousa and Richard Wagner (they did compose marches, didn't they?). Of course, the title Those Fabulous Hollywood Marches is a trifle misleading, but after all who cares when the music is that spirited and that enjoyable.

Romancing the Film is a bit more of a hodgepodge concept, with (almost) everything thrown in to satisfy the most demanding customer, from "Tara's Theme," "Over the Rainbow" and "As Time Goes By," to "Moon River," "Love Theme from The Godfather," and a medley from The Little Mermaid. And if you think that last one is an odd choice, how about the "Space Medley" which combines together "Also Sprach Zarathustra" (from 2001: A Space Odyssey, in case you needed to be reminded) and the theme from Star Wars. Romance indeed takes a flight in this one!

Gerard Schurmann

Horrors of the Black Museum: The Film Music of Gerard Schurmann

1993, Cloud Nine Records.

Album Notes: Music: Gerard Schurmann; Album Producer: David Wishart; Engineer: Gus Shaw.

Selections: Horrors Of The Black Museum: 1 Prelude/Streets Of London (2:05); 2 Spiked Binoculars/Investigation (1:05); 3 Headline News (1:43); 4 Tunnel Of Death/Bancroft's Demise/End Credits (3:07); Cone Of Silence: 5 Overture (4:05); The Bedford Incident: 6 Atlantic Encounters (7:46); Smugglers' Rhapsody: 7 Fantasy For Orchestra (9:02); Konga: 8 Konga Unchained and End Titles (7:55); Lost Continent: 9 Sargasso Sea/Romanza (3:57); 10 Action Stations (2:27); The Ceremony: 11 Main Theme (2:48); 12 Memories Of Tangier (2:45); 13 Freedom (2:34); The Long Arm: 14 Prelude/Safecracking/ Dawn/Investigations/Tailing The Suspect/Finale (6:45); Attack On The Iron Coast: 15 Prelude (2:11); 16 Celebration (2:20); 17 The Mission (3:42); Claretta: 18 The Drama Of Claretta (4:54); 19 Waltz (2:26); 20 Claretta's Theme and Finale (4:05).

Review: Under this strange title actually can be found some very interesting scores that are far from your run-of-the-mill. The CD, of course, gets its name from the music Gerard Schurmann, a wonderful British composer who gains at being discovered, wrote for the 1959 film of the same name, a "literate but lurid tale of dastardly murders," to quote the often humorous liner notes. American audiences, however, will probably be better acquainted with The Bedford Incident, a Cold War underwater drama starring Richard Widmark and Sydney Poitier; and The Ceremony, a "forgotten" film which stars Laurence Harvey and Sarah Miles.

Fans and collectors will probably enjoy listening to other themes composed by Schurmann, including those he wrote for Konga, a 1961 King Kong-clone; The Lost Continent, another pseudo monster movie made in 1968 and set in the Sargasso Sea; and the World War II drama, Attack on the Iron Coast. Source material here, from Schurmann's own archives, leaves a lot to be desired, with overall sonic quality suffering from distortion, surface noise and other problems usually associated with recordings that have been mistreated over the years. But the music, vibrantly alive and exotic, is pure delight.

John Scott (1930-

John Scott Conducts His Own Favorite Film Scores

1991, JOS Records.

Album Notes: The Berlin Radio Concert Orchestra, The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Music Editor: John Strother; Album Producer: John Scott; Engineers: Werner Holke, Richard Lewsey.

Selections: The Final Countdown: 1 Main Title (4:15); The Shooting Party: 2 Main Title (3:12); North Dallas Forty: 3 Suite: a. Buddies, b. The Girl, c. The Game, d. Main Titles (8:24); England Made Me: 4 Suite: a. Main Titles, b. All On The Radio, c. Reichswehr March (9:16); People That Time Forgot: 5 March Of The Nagas (4:00); Cousteau/Amazon: 6 Cousteau/Amazon (3:36); Outback: 7 Suite: a. The Desert, b. The Trek, c. Madness, d. End Titles (7:50); Greystoke: 8 Suite: a. Child Of The Apes, b. Law Of The Jungle, c. Dancing Lesson, d. Return To The Jungle (8:50); Antony And Cleopatra: 9 Suite: a. Main Title, b. Confrontation With Pompey, c. Pretty Worm Of Nilus, d. She Shall Be Buried By Her Antony (8:53).

Review: John Scott is unquestionably the most underrated talent in film scoring today. This anthology shows off his ability to write in an astounding array of styles (which is especially impressive considering he is one of the few film composers who orchestrates his own music). Opening the album is the brassy title music from The Final Countdown, a soaring and triumphant piece. The pastoral mode of The Shooting Party is a lovely (yet bittersweet) evocation of Edwardian England. An English pastoral mood returns in England Made Me, which also features an original song "All on the Radio" written in a jazzy '30s style. Moving into yet another different direction is Scott's strident and propulsive "March of the Nagas" from The People That Time Forgot.

His exhilarating music from the TV series Cousteau Amazon blends orchestral grandeur with rhythm section, in a style which might be described as "epic travelogue." Scott's two undeniable masterpieces, Antony and Cleopatra and Greystoke, are saved for last, each in nine-minute suites, which depict the composer in his most grandly epic mode. John Scott Conducts His Own Favorite Film Themes is, simply stated, a first-rate collection.

Screen Themes

1988, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Featured Soloists: Cynthia Millar (ondes Marthenot), Jack Emblow (accordion), Mitch Dalton (guitar), Guy Barber (trumpet), Chris Laurence (bass), Duncan Lamont (saxophone), Harold Fisher (drums), Dave Hartley (piano); Album Producers: John Scott, Richard Kraft; Engineers: Adrian Kerridge, Martin Edwards, Henry Edwards, Steve Price.

Selections: Beetlejuice: 1 Main Title (D. Elfman) (2:30); Big: 2 Goodbye (H. Shore) (3:51); Shoot To Kill: 3 End Title (J. Scott) (2:45); Crossing Delancey: 4 Portrait Of Izzy (P. Chihara) (3:10); Cocoon: The Return: 5 Basketball Swing (J. Horner) (7:00); Coming To America: 6 King's Motorcade (N. Rodgers) (1:30); Madame Sousatzka: 7 The River (G. Gouriet) (2:10); Criminal Law: 8 The Garden Pavilion(J. Goldsmith) (3:10); Nightmare On Elm Street 4: 9 Corpus Kruger (C. Safan) (3:10); Betrayed: 10 The Way (B. Conti) (2:10); Masquerade: 11 End Title (J. Barry) (2:45); Da: 12 Theme (E. Bernstein) (3:28); Die Hard: 13 Terrorists (M. Kamen) (4:34); Milagro Beanfield War: 14 End Title (D. Grusin) (3:57); Who Framed Roger Rabbit?: 15 End Title (suite) (A. Silvestri) (11:18).

Review: Excellent mix of original soundtrack and newly recorded material by John Scott and the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra. This is a "best of" compilation of 1987-88 films, with much of the original material culled from Varese Sarabande releases like Cocoon: The Return, Crossing Delancy and Madame Sousatzka. The real gems, however, are Scott's outstanding recreations of the unreleased themes from Howard Shore's Big, John Barry's Masquerade, Michael Kamen's Die Hard, and his own Shoot to Kill. Scott's version of The Milagro Bean Field War "End Title" is actually more faithful than the recording that appears on one of composer Dave Grusin's own albums. Also included is the full eleven-minute end title suite from Who Framed Roger Rabbit. Only a truncated five-minute version appeared on the original soundtrack. This is a really superior produced anthology, a guide for what all others should be.

Europe Goes to Hollywood

1993, Denon Records.

Album Notes: The Royal Philharmonic Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Scott; Arranger: Mike Townend; Album Producers: Ian Maclay, Mike Townend; Engineer: Gary Thomas.

Selections: The Adventures Of Robin Hood (E.W. Korngold): 1 Old England (2:24); 2 Robin Hood And His Merry Men (4:26); 3 Love Theme (7:14); 4 The Fight, Victory and Epilogue (4:09); The Alamo (D. Tiomkin): 5 The Green Leaves Of Summer (4:03); The Godfather (N. Rota): 6 Love Theme (2:54); Casablanca (M. Steiner): 7 Suite (9:03); Ben Hur (M. Rozsa): 8 Prelude (4:03); 9 Parade Of The Charioteers (3:44); Gone With The Wind (M. Steiner): 10 Tara's Theme (3:54); Rebecca (F. Waxman): 11 Suite (7:37); Citizen Kane (B. Herrmann): 12 Prelude (2:24); 13 Finale (2:47).

Review: John Scott conducts the Royal Philharmonic Pops Orchestra in this well recorded and performed tribute to Hollywood's classic European composers. Erich Wolfgang Korngold's The Adventures of Robin Hood gets the star treatment in a lively 18-minute suite that leads off the album, faithfully capturing the essence of the composer's original film score. Other suites include Max Steiner's Casablanca, Miklos Rozsa's Ben-Hur (with a really laudable version of "Parade of the Charioteers") and Franz Waxman's enchanting Rebecca. Oddly, American born Bernard Herrmann is included (possibly perhaps because he lived his last years in England?) with a suite from Citizen Kane that captures some of the original's brooding power. Scott's compilation albums are always superior in sound and performance. thanks in part to his more than evident love of film music.

The Raymond Scott Project volume one: Powerhouse

1991, Stash Records.

Album Notes: Music: Raymond Scott; Album Producers: Irwin Chusid, Will Friedwald; Engineers: Steve Lasker, Wally Herman.

Selections: 1 Powerhouse (3:18); 2 Girl At The Typewriter (2:52); 3 Dinner Music For A Pack Of Hungry Cannibals (3:45); 4 Boy Scout In Switzerland (3:34); 5 New Year's Eve In A Haunted House (2:24); 6 War Dance For Wooden Indians (2:17); 7 In An 18th Century Drawing Room (3:01); 8 Twilight In Turkey (2:20); 9 Devil Drums (3:39); 10 Sleepwalker (2:44); 11 Oil Gusher (2:33); 12 Steeplechase (2:29); 13 Reckless Night On Board An Ocean Liner (3:31); 14 Celebration On The Planet Mars (2:41); 15 The Penguin (2:41); 16 Bumpy Weather Over Newark (2:38); 17 Serenade To A Lonesome Railroad Station (2:56); 18 Siberian Sleighride (2:47); 19 The Tobacco Auctioneer (2:37); 20 Moment Whimsical (2:13); 21 The Toy Trumpet (2:39); 22 Christmas Night In Harlem (2:25); 23 Confusion Among A Fleet Of Taxicabs Upon Meeting With A Fare (2:56); 24 Peter Tambourine (2:35).

Review: With a few minor exceptions, both sets pretty much cover the same selections and, in fact, were essentially produced by the same individuals. Since the source material is also the same, the only thing that might attract the casual listener to the Stash release is the attractive cartoonish cover, bolder graphics, and the fact it has 24 selections as opposed to 22 for the Columbia set. Whichever you pick, your perception of music will be hopelessly warped after you have listened to Raymond Scott's zany inventions. Once you have enjoyed it, you might also want to check out the works of Scott Bradley for the cartoons of Tex Avery at M-G-M, or the two Carl Stalling Projects on Warner Bros.

Richard M. Sherman & Robert B. Sherman

1992, Walt Disney Records.

Album Notes: Music: Richard M. Sherman, Robert B. Sherman; Lyrics: Richard M. Sherman, Robert B. Sherman; Compilation Producers: Michael Leon, Randy Thornton; Engineer: Ted Hall.

Selections: 1 Supercalifragilisticexpialidocious (2:00) Julie Andrews, Dick Van Dyke; 2 It's A Small World (After All)(1:52) Chorus; 3 Winnie The Pooh (2:22) Chorus; 4 I Wan'na Be Like You (4:01) Louis Prima, Phil Harris; 5 A Spoonful Of Sugar (4:06) Julie Andrews; 6 The Tiki, Tiki, Tiki Room (2:38) Wally Boag, Fulton Burley, Thurl Ravenscroft; 7 Chim Chim Cher-ee (2:45) Julie Andrews, Dick Van Dyke; 8 Tall Paul (session) (:19); 9 Tall Paul (1:33) Annette Funicello; 10 Let's Get Together (1:28) Hayley Mills; 11 The Monkey's Uncle (2:32) Annette Funicello, The Beach Boys; 12 That Darn Cat (2:44); 13 Ten Feet Off The Ground (2:44) Buddy Ebsen, Lesley Ann Warren, Janet Blair, Kurt Russell, Bobby Riha, Jon Walmsley, Smitty Wordes, Heidi Rook, Debbie Smith, Pamelyn Ferdin; 14 The Aristocats (2:17) Maurice Chevalier; 15 Fortuosity (2:21) Tommy Steele; 16 The Age Of Not Believing (3:15) Angela Lansbury; 17 Are We Dancing? (3:24) John Davidson, Lesley Ann Warren; 18 Feed The Birds (Tuppence A Bag)(3:49) Julie Andrews; 19 On The Front Porch (3:22) Burl Ives; 20 The Beautiful Briny (2:38) David Tomlinson, Angela Lansbury; 21 Heffalumps And Woozles (2:03) Chorus; 22 The Ugly Bug Ball (3:01) Burl Ives; 23 Makin' Memories (3:25) Chorus; 24 Magic Journeys (3:32) Chorus; 25 There's A Great Big Beautiful Tomorrow (2:09); 26 Walt Disney And The Sherman Brothers Sing (:14).

Review: This attractive compilation brings together some of the best selections from the various scores the Sherman brothers, Richard M. And Robert B., wrote for the films of Walt Disney, including Mary Poppins, Winnie the Pooh, The Jungle Book, Bedknobs and Broomsticks, The Parent Trap, The One and Only Genuine Original Family Band, The Aristocats, The Happiest Millionaire, and Summer Magic. There's a lot to be enjoyed here, with many familiar tunes that have served as the soundtrack to our lives since the 1960s, with glorious performances by Julie Andrews, Angela Lansbury, Lesley Ann Warren, Tommy Steele, Burl Ives, Louis Prima, and (believe it or not!) The Beach Boys. All told, a great collection.

Alan Silvestri (1950-

Voyages: The Film Music Journeys

1995, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: Music: Alan Silvestri; Orchestras conducted by Alan Silvestri, Joel McNeely, John Scott; Album Producers: Robert Townson, Richard Kraft.

Selections: 1 Silver Pictures Logo (:19); 2 Forrest Gump (9:20); 3 Father Of The Bride (2:27); 4 Back To The Future, Part III (4:01); 5 Ricochet (2:12); 6 The Quick And The Dead (3:36); 7 Richie Rich (5:59); 8 Romancing The Stone (5:18); 9 Soapdish (3:52); 10 Who Framed Roger Rabbit (11:19); 11 The Abyss (3:12); 12 Clan Of The Cave Bear (2:57); 13 Death Becomes Her (5:46); 14 Predator 2 (8:46).

Review: This exhilarating set enables Alan Silvestri, a composer with a chameleon personality, to reveal some of his many facets in a compilation that covers several of his most famous creations, including the themes from Forrest Gump, Back to the Future, Romancing the Stone, The Abyss, and Who Framed Roger Rabbit. One of the brilliant exponents of the new generation in film music, Silvestri has a recognizably easy style that he has used to great effect in some of the most visible films of the past dozen years. The set, intelligently put together and well presented, is a wonderful excursion in some of his best works, with the two long suites from Forrest Gump, conducted by Joel McNeely, and Roger Rabbit, conducted by John Scott, particularly deserving of warm applause. Once you've put it on your player, you won't want to give up this glib and enjoyable set.

Review: Certainly the most important Broadway composer of the past 25 years, Stephen Sondheim has been sung, performed, interpreted and lionized by a vast number of performers, some of whom have chosen the route of a solo tribute to his creativity, others who have preferred to appear in special concert versions or studio performances with others who add their own renditions of his songs to the vast body of works that already exists.

The four compilations listed above are all significant for one reason or another, and can hardly be singled out for special merit as all four are meritorious in their own specific ways. While they all essentially cover the same territory, with minor variances, what is of primary interest here is the various performers involved. In the first 2-CD set, the result of a concert presentation that took place at the Shubert Theatre on Broadway on March 11, 1973, they include Len Cariou, Glynis Johns and Hermione Gingold, who appeared in A Little Night Music; Ethel Shutta, John McMartin, Dorothy Collins and Alexis Smith, who starred in Follies; Larry Kert, Victoria Mallory and Donna McKechnie, who were in Company; and Angela Lansbury, who starred in Anyone Can Whistle; along with many others, including Chita Rivera, Nancy Walker, Anthony Perkins, and Jack Cassidy.

Putting It Together starred Julie Andrews who, even though she never appeared in a Sondheim musical, was the name above the title in this limited engagement at the Manhattan Theatre Club which played from March 2 to May 23, 1993. Stephen Collins, Christopher Durang, Michael Rupert and Rachel York also starred, in this intimate production that focused on the songs as much as it did on the actual performances.

As its name indicates, Sondheim: A Celebration at Carnegie Hall was a special tribute recorded live at the famed hall on June 10, 1992. Here again, the bill is quite extraordinary, with Glenn Close, Madeline Kahn, Dorothy Loudon, Patti LuPone, Liza Minnelli, and Bernadette Peters among the luminaries who appeared on stage to sing a song of Sondheim.

Finally, A Collector's Sondheim is a collection of tunes, some from original Broadway and London cast album recordings, others from concert performances, that were put together by record producer Thomas Z. Shepard as a tribute to a composer whose most important shows (Company, Sweeney Todd, Pacific Overtures, Follies in Concert, A Little Night Music, Merrily We Roll Along, Sunday in the Park With George) he had personally recorded. This 3-CD set is essential for anyone interested in the works of Sondheim, as it covers a lot of ground not touched upon by the other compilations.

Ultimately, it may seem somewhat redundant to own everything that has ever been released by or about Sondheim. However, in view of the fact that no other composer has influenced the Broadway musical to such an extent in recent years, and also given the fact that Sondheim is constantly renewing himself and his approach to the genre, no collection could be complete without at least one and possibly all of the above recordings. In truth, Sondheim is an acquired taste, an individual talent who requires a lot from those who follow him wherever his creative fancy wants to take them, but who never ceases to amaze, interest, and fascinate because what he does is so unique and so incredibly distinctive. No words can appropriately describe what he does, and does so well. Listening to these various recordings, however, gives a glimpse into his creative process, and as a result they are all highly recommended.

Review: This way overdue set of recordings does justice to one of the great, unsung musical geniuses of the 20th century. For decades composer Carl Stalling slaved away in the cultural ghetto of cartoon music, a despised genre that nevertheless afforded Stalling the opportunity to write some of the most imaginative, kinetically and rhythmically unpredictable and hysterically funny music ever heard. Adapting everything from classical repertoire melodies and arrangements to popular songs of the period (with a special emphasis on the percolating compositions of American composer Raymond Scott), Stalling wrote an ongoing, bitingly witty musical commentary on what were already some pretty hilarious cartoons and in the process created music that has wormed its way into the psyches of millions of people from childhood on. Both of these albums feature generous suites of music from numerous Warner Brothers cartoons, ranging from the 1930s to the late 1950s, with generally excellent sound quality and occasional bursts of wild cartoon sound effects and vocal performances. It's a weirdly nostalgic, giggle-inducing and subversive musical journey that will not be to all tastes, but for lovers of Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck, or for fans of avant garde musical composition, these albums are invaluable treasures.

Ronald Stein (1930-1988)

Not of This Earth!: The Film Music of Ronald Stein

1995, Varese-Sarabande.

Album Notes: Music: Ronald Stein; Album Producer: Bruce Kimmel; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: Attack Of The 50 Ft. Woman: 1 Main Title (1:13); 2 50 Ft. Rock (& Roll)(1:58); 3 Nancy And The Donkey (1:14); 4 Juke Box Jive (2:15); 5 Giant Footprint (2:05); 6 The Satellite/The 50 Ft. (1:27); 24 Crab Meet (2:53); 25 Crab Clause (2:43); 26 Finale/Cracked Crab (:13); The Devil's Partner: 27 Main Title (1:44); 28 Scared Papers (2:50); 29 Nick's Redemption/Finale

> "Even now, the way I get around my lack of training and technique is by drawing on my having grown up in a world of movies. Very often, when I'm not sure how to approach something, I say, 'How would I approach this if I were 13 years old, sitting in a theater, and watching the movie?' In other words, what would make me come alive?"
>
> Danny Elfman
> (Fanfare, 1989)

(1:21); Spider Baby (a.k.a. Cannibal Orgy): 30 Main Title (1:29); 31 Spider Orgy (1:45); 32 Spider Stravinsky (:58); 33 Spider! Spider! (2:35); 34 Rehearsing With Ron And Lon (:50); 35 Song From Spider Baby (2:16) Lon Chaney Jr.

Review: Ronald Stein had the dubious honor of scoring some of the lousiest movies ever to be unleashed from the stable of producer Roger Corman, including Attack of the 50 Ft. Woman, Not of This Earth! and Attack of the Crab Monsters (and probably half a dozen other attacks that have long been forgotten). Stein always approached his task seriously despite the laughably bad antics onscreen, and in many cases he so drenched his subject matter in brooding anguish that the failings of the films in question just wound up becoming all that more apparent. Case in point: Attack of the 50 Ft. Woman, which sports a bittersweet brass fanfare that might have been written for Napoleon and Desiree instead of for some drunken lout and his problems with a giant pursuing rubber hand. Stein was at his best on period films like The Terror and Dementia 13, where there were no giant cardboard monsters in evidence and the composer could use his technical skills to create some genuine moments of eerieness. But he more often had to patch together pieces of sleazy juke box dance music or reach heights of insane camp, as in the touching "Song from Spider Baby" brayed by an obviously drunken Lon Chaney, Jr. Not of This Earth offers a great mix of surprisingly effective chills, big laughs and childhood nostalgia for those who grew up watching Corman's movies on the Saturday late show.

Max Steiner (1888-1971)

Band of Angels

1987, Label X Records.

Album Notes: Music: Max Steiner; Orchestrations: Murray Cutter, Ray Heindorf, Hugo Friedhofer; The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra and The RKO Studio Orchestra, conducted by Max Steiner; Featured Musician: Ray Turner (piano); Album Producer: John Lasher; Engineers: M.A. Merrick, Earl Mounce, Edwin Begley, Fred Mitchell.

Selections: Band Of Angels: 1 Prelude (4:14); 2 Starwood (2:51); 3 The Slave Market (8:13); 4 Amantha (2:47); 5 Pointe du Loup (1:57); 6 Burning Of The Cotton Crops (3:56); 7 Hamish Bond (6:25); 8 Reunion (6:12); Death Of A Scoundrel: 9 Opening and Closing Themes (4:08); 10 Mother, Mother (2:53); 11 Stephanie (1:52); 12 Waltz (1:21); 13 Kelly Blues (2:36); Charge Of The Light Brigade: 14 Forward The Light Brigade (3:22); Four Wives: 15 Symphonie Moderne (8:24); The Searchers: 16 Indian Idyll (3:26); A Stolen Life: 17 Petite Valse (2:03).

Review: There is something clearly endearing about this compilation bringing together selections from several scores written by Max Steiner, with the composer conducting the Warner Bros. Studio and the RKO Studio orchestras. Of particular interest here is the series of cues from Band of Angels, a 1957 period drama set during the Civil War, with Clark Gable as a proper Southern plantation owner, and Yvonne de Carlo as the object of his love, who happens to have black ancestry. Strongly suggestive and flavorful, the score is not found in other compilations, and stands out as the real gem in this set. For the same reasons, Death of a Scoundrel, a 1956 low-budget drama starring Yvonne de Carlo, is quite ingratiating. The other selections, though found elsewhere, are an excellent complement to this CD.

Max Steiner Conducts Gone with the Wind & Other Themes

Selections: Bird Of Paradise: 1 Out Of The Blue (3:23); A Bill Of Divorcement: 2 Unfinished Sonata (3:13); Little Women: 3 Josephine (2:38); The Charge Of The Light Brigade: 4 Forward The Light Brigade (3:23); A Star Is Born: 5 Theme (2:56); The Life Of Emile Zola: 6 Theme (2:57); Dark Victory: 7 Theme (3:08); Four Wives: 8 Symphonie Moderne (8:26); Gone With The Wind (suite): 9 Main Title, Tara, Invitation To The Dance, Melanie's Theme, Ashley, The Prayer, Bonnie Blue Flag, Scarlett O'Hara, Scarlett's Agony, War, Return To Tara, Bonnie's Death, Rhett Butler, Bonnie's Theme, Ashley And Melanie, The Oath (30:07).

Review: One of the most important of the film composers who gave Hollywood its first taste of music in the early 1930s, Max Steiner was born in Vienna in 1888. Already a celebrated composer in his native country, he came to America in 1914 at the invitation of Florenz Ziegfeld, and for the ensuing 15 years, worked on a variety of Broadway productions, before moving to Hollywood to orchestrate and conduct the 1929 screen version of Rio Rita, which was being produced by RKO.

Convinced that an appropriate musical background, not one borrowed from the classical repertoire as was often the case, could add significantly to the emotional impact of any scene, Steiner persuaded David O. Selznick, a producer at RKO, to let him write an original series of cues for a single reel of Symphony of Six Million. As he had suspected it, the effect on audiences was electrifying, and Selznick was further convinced after Steiner created the first original full-length score for Bird of Paradise, in 1932.

As a result of this early success, William LeBaron, head of production at the studio, put him in charge of the music department. In the six years he was there, Steiner scored a staggering 110 films, including King Kong, and The Informer, for which he won an Oscar in 1935.

In 1938, he left RKO and moved to Warner Bros., where he found in Jack L. Warner a producer who loved music in his pictures but, unlike Selznick, did not interfere with his composers' creativity. He stayed at Warner until 1953, and freelanced after that, writing his last score, for Rome Adventure, in 1962. He died on December 28, 1971.

During his long and illustrious career, Steiner wrote many scores that have endured to this day, including those for Now Voyager, The Charge of the Light Brigade, The Big Sleep, Since You Went Away, Dark Victory, and, of course, Gone with the Wind, his greatest claim to fame.

This CD, in which he conducts an unnamed Hollywood orchestra, was recorded between 1954 and 1956, and covers many themes he wrote for some of the movies listed above, including a long suite from Gone with the Wind. The album, in mono sound, may be sonically deficient by today's standards, but it has the enormous merit of presenting the composer himself conducting his own works, a rarity in those days.

Now, Voyager: The Classic Film Scores of Max Steiner

Gone With The Wind: The Classic Max Steiner

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Max Steiner; The Westminster Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Kenneth Alwyn; Album Producer: Graham Parlett; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: The Adventures Of Mark Twain: 1 Overture (7:42); A Distant Trumpet: 2 Prelude (1:29); Casablanca (suite): 3 Prelude/Rick's Bar/Paris/The Airport/The Beginning Of A Beautiful Friendship (7:04); A Summer Place: 4 Main Title (2:16); 5 Young Love (1:47); The Treasure Of The Sierra Madre (arr.: Steven R. Bernstein): 6 Overture (3:27); Helen Of Troy (suite): 7 Prelude (1:30); 8 The Voyage (3:58); 9 The Gates Of Troy (1:05); 10 The Siege And Aftermath (3:34); 11 Finale (1:13); The Caine Mutiny: 12 March (2:33); Gone With The Wind (suite): 13 Prelude/Invitation To Twelve Oaks/Tara/Mammy (6:43); 14 The Fall Of The South/Scarlett Walks Among The Wounded (2:18); 15 Rhett's Leaving/Melanie's Death/Finale (5:21).

Review: Both these titles cover some of the same selections, but the differences are significant enough that you might want to own both. Now Voyager, on RCA, is part of the Classic Film Scores series, an essential collection that chronicles some of the themes written in the early days of Hollywood by the golden circle of composers, in which Steiner was a particularly shining example. Missing from this title is any representation of Gone with the Wind, which Gerhardt and the National Philharmonic recorded in its entirety for another CD. The spectacular sonics, and the excellence of the performance add immeasurably to one's enjoyment.

The Silva Screen CD, with Kenneth Alwyn conducting the Westminster Philharmonic Orchestra in a bright, regenerative performance, offers some rare selections like the suites from Casablanca and Helen of Troy, and the "Overture" to The Adventures of Mark Twain. Like the RCA set, it is highly recommended.

Max Steiner: The Lost Patrol

1996, Marco Polo Records.

Album Notes: Music: Max Steiner; Orchestrations: John Morgan; The Moscow Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William T. Stromberg; Engineers: Edvard Shakhnazarian, Vitaly Ivanov.

Selections: The Lost Patrol: 1 Main Title (1:42); 2 Oasis (2:11); 3 On Guard/Night Wind (4:23); 4 Reminiscing (1:58); 5 Plans Are Made/Palm Tree (3:00); 6 Back Home (3:40); 7 Aeroplane/False Hope (4:23); 8 Fire! (1:44); 9 Saunders Gone Mad (2:58); 10 Alone, At The Graves (2:36); 11 Arabs/Rescue/ Finale (2:46); The Beast With Five Fingers: 12 Main Title/Tarantella (2:06); 13 Chaconne (piano)/Romance (3:23); 14 Storm (2:25); 15 Walking (:36); 16 Fear (3:11); 17 The Hand (2:29); 18 Finale (1:45); 19 End Cast (:28); Virginia City: 20 Main Title (2:01); 21 The Trench/Bradford's Folly (2:57); 22 The Coach/Murrel/Chase (3:39); 23 On A Love/Love Beginning (3:44); 24 Shoot-Out/ For Freedom/Chase (4:25); 25 Storm/Boy's Death/Secret Agent (6:34); 26 The Battle (2:33); 27 Abraham Lincoln/Finale (2:53); 28 End Cast (:31).

Review: This recent entry in the Steiner sweepstakes is another album that deserves to be in any comprehensive collection. Superbly recorded in bright, spacious digital sound, with William T. Stromberg eliciting spirited performances from the Moscow Symphony Orchestra players, it offers a broad overview of three widely different scores composed by Steiner, including two (The Lost Patrol and Virginia City) that are essential.

Written in 1934, The Lost Patrol chronicled the fate of a small group of British soldiers isolated in the Mesopotamian desert and subjected to repeated attacks from their Arab foes. The nervy, pungent score contributed immensely to the impact of this action-driven military saga.

Virginia City, made in 1940, is a western set during the Civil War, starring Errol Flynn, Randolph Scott and Humphrey Bogart. Steiner, who excelled at writing this type of music, delivered a potent, highly memorable score, which ranks among his best efforts.

The third title here, The Beast with Five Fingers, a 1946 horror film, starring Peter Lorre and Robert Alda, found the composer contributing a totally different type of music, in which he drew extensively on his classical training. Like the other two scores, it shows Steiner's incredible diversity and unique talent in writing music that contributed enormously to the overall aura of the films, in a contemporary performance that sounds quite authentic.

Review: The soundtracks to four films scored by Greek composer Mikis Theodorakis have been preserved together on this thick double-CD set. The fast-paced rhythmic Greek music from Z is centered around a Greek melody, which counterpoints the political oppression that is central to the film. In State of Siege, a unique cultural blend is achieved through Theodorakis' Grecian musical sensibilities. Given a South American instrumentation, the wind instruments lend a pleasing, light tonality and Theodorakis' buoyant melodies soar. Serpico contrasts the disillusionment of the title character with a pretty yet mildly sad theme with the urban jazz that is associated with the story's Big City environment. The use of contemporary Greek musical styles fit Jules Dassin's Phaedra perfectly, contrasts a variety of minor pop melodies with a passionate, fully symphonic concerto motif; its fast-pace and profound melodic lines capturing a dynamic sense of drama and pathos. This set is an excellent gallery of the composer's work for films.

The Western Film World of Dimitri Tiomkin

1988, Unicorn-Kanchana Records.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; The John McCarthy Singers, with Bob Saker, baritone, The London Studio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Laurie Johnson; Album Producers: Laurie Johnson, Christopher Palmer; Engineers: Geoffrey Barton, Peter Jensen.

Selections: Giant: 1 Prelude (2:15); Red River: 2 Prelude and Wagon Train (4:05); 3 Red River Crossing (2:33); 4 The Challenge and Finale (3:17); Duel In The Sun: 5 Prelude and Legend (3:08); 6 The Buggy Ride (2:36); 7 Trek To The Sun, Love-Death and Finale (5:02); High Noon: 8 Main Titles (2:56); 9 The Clock and Showdown (8:48); 10 End Titles (1:09); Night Passage: 11 Follow The River (2:56); Rio Bravo: 12 De Guello (3:36); 13 Love Theme (2:35); 14 Main Theme (End Titles)(2:02).

Review: Often "covered" but seldom equalled, Tiomkin is probably one of the few Hollywood composers whose scores can't stand to be recorded by others: the pulse of the tempi, the nuances in the playing, in fact everything in his music seems very difficult to duplicate. Case in point: these two recordings, both superbly recorded, yet both ultimately failing to make the grade because the orchestra playing often sounds too studied, too reverential. Where the western music should pulsate and be thrilling, it simply exists, with High Noon sounding by far the least exciting.

Lost Horizon: The Classic Film Scores of Dimitri Tiomkin

1989, RCA Victor Records.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: Lost Horizon: 1 Prelude/Foreward Card/Riot In Baskui/Mob Scene At Refueling Station/Morning After The Plane Crash (5:46); 2 Arrival Of The Caravan/The Journey Over The Mountains (2:56); 3 Entrance Into Shangri-La (2:26); 4 Nocturne (2:25); 5 Riding Sequence/The Waterfall/Chinese Children's Scherzo (2:38); 6 Bell Sequence/Funeral Cortege Of The High Lama/Escape From Shangri-La/Return To Shangri-La (7:02) The John Alldis Choir; The Guns Of Navarone: 7 Prelude (2:21); The Big Sky: 8 Prelude/Forest At Night (Nocturne)/ The Wide Missouri (Epilogue)(8:08); The Fourposter: 9 Overture (2:33); Friendly Persuasion: 10 Love Scene In The Barn (5:34); Search For Paradise: 11 Choral Finale (3:31) The John Alldis Choir.

Review: Somewhat more successful is this recording in the Classic Film Score Series, with Charles Gerhardt leading the National Philharmonic for producer George Korngold. Wisely, they chose to avoid the "standard" western music with which Tiomkin distinguished himself at the height of his career (with the exception of The Big Sky, which had no equivalent elsewhere), to concentrate on the more unusual "lost" score for Lost Horizon, which gave the album its title. The other selections in the set, however, sound more like fillers.

The Film Music of Dimitri Tiomkin

1988, Columbia Records.

Album Notes: Music: Dimitri Tiomkin; Orchestras conducted by Dimitri Tiomkin; Album Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Tim Geelan.

Selections: Blowing Wild: 1 The Ballad Of Black Gold (D. Tiomkin/P.F. Webster)(2:36) Frankie Laine; Giant: 2 Theme (3:11) The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, Ray Heindorf; Wild Is The Wind: 3 Angie (2:07); 4 Horse Chase (3:38); 5 Tell The Truth (3:00); Gunfight At The O.K. Corral: 6 Gunfight At The O.K. Corral (D. Tiomkin/N. Washington)(2:08) Frankie Laine; The Old Man And The Sea: 7 The Boy (1:15); 8 Fishermen's Cantina (2:41); 9 I Am Your Dream (2:43); 10 In The Tavern At Casa Blanca (2:18); The Alamo: 11 Overture (3:07); 12 Davy Crockett Arrives (2:34); 13 Love Scene (6:35); 14 Raid For Cattle (4:39); Rawhide: 15 Rawhide (D. Tiomkin/N. Washington) Frankie Laine; The Guns Of Navarone: 16 Legend Of Navarone (2:21); 17 Yassu (3:42); 18 Climbing The South Cliff (1:43); 55 Days At Peking: 19 Overture (2:55); 20 Natasha's Waltz (2:19); 21 Murder (2:12); 22 Children's Corner (1:38); 23. Montage (2:12); The Fall Of The Roman Empire: 24 Overture (2:41); 25 Tarantella (2:17); High Noon: 26 Do Not Forsake Me, Oh My Darling (2:41) Frankie Laine.

Review: A collection of soundtrack themes and vocals by Frankie Laine (whose success with "Do Not Forsake Me" in High Noon, led him to perform many other title songs for Tiomkin), which may be hard to get but which should be in any collection. Presented somewhat chronologically, the set includes selections from Wild Is the Wind, The Old Man and the Sea, The Alamo, The Guns of Navarone, 55 Days at Peking and The Fall of the Roman Empire, in soundtrack performances culled from the Columbia vaults. While sonics may sometimes leave a lot to be desired (frequently due to the age of the source material), performances, with the composer conducting various studio orchestras, has the ring of authenticity. The CD was deleted from the Sony catalogue, but may still be available at specialty shops.

Vangelis (1944-

Vangelis: Themes

1989, Polydor Records.

Album Notes: Music: Vangelis Papathanassiou; Orchestrations and Arrangements: Vangelis Papathanassiou; Producer: Vangelis Papathanassiou.

Selections: Blade Runner: 1 End Titles (4:57); Missing: 2 Main Theme (3:59); Opera sauvage: 3 L'enfant (5:00); 4 Hymn (2:45); China: 5 Chug Kuo (5:29); 6 The Tao Of Love (2:45); Antarctica: 7 Theme (3:55); Blade Runner: 8 Love Theme (4:55); The Bounty: 9 Opening Titles (4:16); 10 Closing Titles (4:58); 11 Memories Of Green (5:42); L'Apocalypse des animaux: 12 La petite fille de la mer (5:51); Chariots Of Fire: 13 Five Circles (5:18); 14 Chariots Of Fire (3:31).

Review: This anthology presents a series of Vangelis tracks which have been featured in films and television. "L'Enfant" is a pleasantly rhythmic piano piece from Frederic Rossif's TV series Opera Sauvage (but is probably better known for its use in The Year of Living Dangerously). The sultry saxophone and synths of "Love Theme From Blade Runner" perfectly evoke the futuristic film noir world of that film. Also heard in Blade Runner, "Memories of Green," which is originally from Vangelis 1979 album See You Later, is included on this album as well.

A number of tracks are also available here which were never released as soundtrack albums. The main title from The Bounty is a pulsing, sultry evocation of the Tahitian setting of the film. The theme from Missing is a delicate piano melody, which reflects the tenderness and tragedy of Costa-Gavras' political expose. One of Vangelis' most beautiful works also features the exotic and ethereal waltz, "La Petite Fille de la Mer" (from Rossif's film L'Apocalypse des Animaux). The album closes with two tracks from Vangelis' popular Chariots of Fire, the "Title Music" and "Five Circles." In all, Vangelis: Themes is a very rewarding compilation of work by one of the best and most unique voices in film music today.

Review: This four-volume anthology of the film works of Sir William Walton is a true bonanza for collectors. Not only does it focus on a composer whose output has been quite significant, but it does so with all the trappings usually associated with important classical releases – authoritative performances by a major orchestra, the Academy of St. Martin-in-the-Fields, conducted by Sir Neville Marriner, in superb digital sonics – that should make Chandos proud of its technical and artistic achievements.

One of England's great "classic" composers, Walton often wrote for the movies, particularly in a creative collaboration with Laurence Olivier which resulted in several sensational screen renditions of the epic plays of William Shakespeare – Hamlet, As You Like It, Henry V, Richard III, and Macbeth, all of them covered in volumes 1, 2 and 4 in this series, with guest apperances by Sir John Gielgud and Christopher Plummer.

Casting a different light on Walton's film output, volume 3 turns its attention to the war films, with stirring renditions of the scores for Escape Me Never and Battle of Britain, in addition to the composer's Wartime Sketchbook (a compilation of cues created for such films as Went the Day Well, Next of Kin and The Foreman Went to France, all of them related to the ongoing conflict), and his memorable Spitfire Prelude and Fugue. Like the other three volumes, it is a remarkable effort that takes film music to its utmost quality level, on a par with classical music.

William Walton: Film Music

1987, EMI Records.

Album Notes: Music: Sir William Walton; The London Philharmonic Orchestra and Choir, conducted by Carl Davis; Album Producer: David Groves; Engineer: Michael Sheady.

Selections: Henry V (suite): 1 Prelude: The Globe (6:07); 2 The Death Of Falstaff (passacaglia)(2:46); 3 Touch Her Soft Lips And Part (1:57); 4 Agincourt Song (2:25); The Battle Of Britain (suite): 5 Spitfire Music – Battle In The Air (6:19); 6 March and Siegfried Music (6:07); Troilus and Cressida: 7 Interlude (Act 2)(4:37); As You Like It (suite): 8 Title Music (3:04); 9 Fountain Scene – Wrestling Scene (4:37); 10 Sunrise (:35); 11 Procession (1:38); 12 Snake Scene (:57); 13 Waterfall Scene (2:34); 14 Hymn (:53); 15 March For A History Of The English Speaking Peoples (4:45).

Review: This superb album featuring the London Philharmonic Orchestra and Choir features some of the finest film music ever written, opening with a sublime suite from William Walton's score to Laurence Olivier's film of Henry V, a triumph from its beautiful pastoral opening to the moving "Death of Falstaff" and the aching lyricism of its courtship music, climaxing in the thrilling "Agincourt Song," a mammoth choral piece supported by an exultant, sinuous string line that's one of the most satisfying evocations of martial triumph ever written. Almost as good is Walton's buzzing, open-aired "Spitfire Music" which was written for an unused score for the 1960s war film The Battle of Britain. Also featured is a brief interlude from Troilus and Cressida, Walton's rousing, full-blooded pastoral music for As You Like It, and the giddy "March" for A History of the English Speaking Peoples. It's as bracing an accompaniment to scenes of the English countryside as anyone could hope to hear.

Ken Wannberg

The Film Music of Ken Wannberg: Volume 1

1995, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movies The Philadelphia Experiment, New World Pictures, 1984, and Mother Lode, Agamemnon Films, 1982.

Album Notes: Music: Ken Wannberg; Orchestrations: Albert Woodbury; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Ken Wannberg; Album Producer: Luc Van de Ven; Engineer: Eric Tomlinson.

Selections: The Philadelphia Experiment: 1 Main Theme (3:06); 2 The Experiment Begins/Time Slip (5:49); 3 The "Eldridge" Remains (2:04); 4 David Confronts His Past (2:04); 5 The Vortex Sucks/David's Escape (4:38); 6 A Tender Moment (1:29); 7 The Doctor Reflects (2:29); 8 The Chase (1:32); 9 Fugitives In Love (2:31); 10 Storming The Compound (2:00); 11 David's Father (2:18); 12 David's Decision/Fate Of The Vortex (6:53); 13 David's Choice/End Title (5:32); Mother Lode: 14 Magee's Theme (2:20); 15 The Plane Crash (2:10); 16 Underwater Search (4:00); 17 The Flight (5:06); 18 The Mine (3:05); 19 Magee's Cabin/The Trap (2:36); 20 The Lovers Argue (1:43); 21 Goodmanson's Gold (1:09); 22 The Price Of Greed (6:14); 23 Magee's Lament (:58); 24 Finale and End Title (3:16).

Review: To the average filmgoer, Ken Wannberg's name means very little. The cognoscenti, however, know him as one of John Williams' closest associates, a music editor with a deft sense of what the maestro wants and needs. But Wannberg is also a composer in his own right, and Prometheus Records, an independent Belgian label, has wisely chosen to correct the wrong by dedicating three volumes to his music. Both The Philadelphia Experiment and Mother Lode, covered in the first volume, allow Wannberg to show his mettle in scores that are interestingly varied and different from each other.

Mother Lode, written in 1982, is an adventure film starring Charlton Heston in a dual role as golddigger brothers in the wilds of British Columbia on the opposite sides of the law. The Philadelphia Experiment, composed two years later, is a time-warp science fiction film about a top secret U.S. Navy experiment to try and make ships invisible to enermy radar during World War II.

Both scores reveal in Wannberg a composer with a solid descriptive bend, whose themes overflow with catchy melodies and make for pleasant listening when the scores are taken at their face value, out of context.

The Film Music of Ken Wannberg: Volume 2

1995, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the television movies Draw!, and Red River, 1994.

Album Notes: Music: Ken Wannberg; Orchestrations: Albert Woodbury; The National Philharmonic Orchestra (Draw!) and The Little Mountain Studio Symphony Orchestra (Red River), conducted by Ken Wannberg; Featured Musician: Tommy Morgan (harmonica); Album Producer: Alan E. Smith; Engineer: Roger Monk.

Selections: Draw!: 1 Main Theme (2:45); 2 Runaway Wagon (2:47); 3 Holland Rides Into Bell City (1:06); 4 The Sheriff Confronts Holland (1:55); 5 Holland And Bess (2:54); 6 Wally Drags Starrett (:47); 7 Starrett Visits The Jail; 8 Wally Speaks Emotionally (1:34); 9 Draw!/Aftermath/Finale (10:36); Red River: 10 Prologue (4:17); 11 Main Title (3:02); 12 The Shooting Contest (:47); 13 First Signs Of Love (:54); 14 Jack And The Kid (2:45); 15 Stampede (2:51); 16 The Fastest Kiss In The West (1:00); 17 Matt Takes Charge (1:23); 18 Matt Tips His Hat (1:26); 19 Cherry Courts Kate (2:40); 20 The Showdown/Chief Ostanato (7:20); 21 Dunson And Kate Argue/On The Trail (3:18); 22 Matt And Kate (2:04); 23 All's Well/End Credits (2:00).

The Film Music of Ken Wannberg: Volume 3

1995, Prometheus Records/Belgium; from the movies The Amateur, 1982, Of Unknown Origin, 1983, and The Laye Show, 1977.

Album Notes: Music: Ken Wannberg; Orchestrations: Albert Woodbury, Ken Wannberg; The European Studio Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Ken Wannberg; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineers: Joe Giannola, James Nelson.

Selections: The Amateur: 1 Main Title (3:44); 2 Stolen Dreams (3:08); 3 Montage (1:16); 4 Crossing The Border (4:58); 5 Slavic Slut (2:09); 6 Depth Charge (1:09); 7 The Killing (3:27); 8 Heller In The Cellar (2:48); 9 Finale/End Titles (3:18); Of Unknown Origin: 10 Main Title (2:14); 11 Birthday Dream/Rat Droppings (4:41); 12 I Smell A Rat/The Weapon (3:37); 13 Ready For Battle/The Last Battle (6:48); 14 End Title (2:22); The Late Show: 15 Main Theme (1:37); 16 The End Of Harry (1:36); 17 Talking (4:07); 18 Prelude To A Chase/Chase And Escape (4:21); 19 Ulcer Time (2:15); 20 The Trap/All Is Revealed/End Game (6:23); 21 End Title (1:39).

Review: Volumes 2 and 3 complete Prometheus Records' trilogy of Ken Wannberg scores, the series that started with the release of The Philadelphia Experiment and Mother Lode (see above). The second volume is a collection of two western scores, starting off with the outstanding music to the Kirk Douglas/James Coburn comedy Draw! Douglas plays an aging gunfighter who simply wants to get out of town to retire, but his likewise aging adversary, lawman Coburn gets caught up in the town's lynch mob mentality. The score follows in the footsteps of earlier genre work with its big western sound, but Wannberg plays up the absurdity of two old men who can't escape their respective reputations. The second score is for a 1988 television remake of John Ford's classic Red River. This time, Gunsmoke's James Arness is in John Wayne's saddle, driving hard cattle and step-son Bruce Boxleitner, from Oklahoma to Missouri. Wannberg wisely doesn't attempt to compete with Dimitri Tiomkin's classic score for the 1948 original. His music serves the film quite well, though this tepid version certainly couldn't offer Wannberg the kind of inspiration Tiomkin found in the John Ford directed original.

The last CD in the Wannberg trilogy features three very different scores. The Amateur is a European-flavored cold war thriller. Of Unknown Origin is a horror score he composed for Rambo: First Blood II director George Pan Cosmatos, with RoboCop's Peter Weller battling an enormous rat. All are excellently written pieces, but the best is saved for last, a laid back film noir score for the Art Carney/Lily Tomlin comedic murder mystery, The Late Show. Vaguely John Barry-ish in tone, the score does well to capture eccentric nature of Tomlin's character and Carney's just-about-over-the-hill detective. The CD booklet for the third volume contains excerpts from my 1995 interview with the composer that was published in the March issue of Soundtrack! magazine.

Franz Waxman (1906-1967)

The Film Music of Franz Waxman

1990, RCA Records.

Album Notes: Music: Franz Waxman; Orchestras conducted by Franz Waxman; Album Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Paul Goodman.

Selections: The Spirit Of St. Louis: 1 Prelude (Main Title)(1:24); 2 Flight To St. Louis (1:11); 3 New York To Cape Cod (7:03); 4 Le Bourget/End Title (6:44); Sayonara: 5 Opening (2:38); 6 Eileen (5:42); 7 Katsumi Theme (3:29); 8 Street Fight (2:41); Peyton Place: 9 Main Title: Hilltop Scene (10:36); 10 Entering Peyton Place/Going To School (2:53); 11 The Rape (2:24); My Geisha: 12 Main Title (2:13); 13 The Real Yoko (2:07); 14 Preparations (2:20); 15 The Plot (1:44); 16 Goodbye, Lover (2:24); Hemingway's Adventures Of A Young Man: 17 Prologue (4:22); 18 D.T. Blues (2:29); 19 Rosanna (4:11); 20 The Major's Rescue (2:38).

Review: Another glorious name from the early days of Hollywood, Franz Waxman was born in Konigshutte, Germany, and came to film music at the age of 24, when he was asked to orchestrate Frederick Hollander's score for The Blue Angel. As the threat of the Nazi movement became more precise, Waxman left his native country in 1934 and moved to Hollywood, arguably to work on the Jerome Kern score for Music in the Air. The following year he created his first major contribution to the screen when he wrote the seminal music for Bride of Frankenstein, which led to his being named music director for Universal.

In a career that saw him at M-G-M and Warner Bros., Waxman wrote many important scores that rank among the best works ever to come out of Hollywood, including Rebecca (1940), Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde and Suspicion (both 1941), Objective, Burma! (1945), Sorry, Wrong Number (1948), Sunset Boulevard (1950), A Place in the Sun (1951), Prince Valiant (1954), The Spirit of St. Louis and Peyton Place (both 1957), and The Nun's Story (1959), among many others.

The above compilation, assembled from the soundtracks conducted by the composer, covers five late '50-early '60s films, The Spirit of St. Louis, Peyton Place, Sayonara (1957), My Geisha and Hemingway's Adventures of a Young Man (both 1962). Frequently rising above the pedestrian topics of the films (My Geisha, Hemingway's Adventures...), or taking the exulted stories to even greater heights (The Spirit of St. Louis), Waxman always provided the right musical element that singled out the films and his scores from the mass. Particularly evocative, the score for Peyton Place has become a classic in its own right.

Sunset Boulevard: The Classic Film Scores of Franz Waxman

1989, RCA Victor Records.

Album Notes: Music: Franz Waxman; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: Prince Valiant: 1 Prelude/King Aguar's Escape/The Fens/The First Chase/The Tournament/Sir Brack's Death and Finale (9:49); A Place In The Sun: 2 Prelude/Angela/Loon Lake/Farewell and Frenzy/The Farewell (8:29); The Bride Of Frankenstein: 3 The Creation Of The Female Monster (7:17); Sunset Boulevard: 4 Main Title/Norma Desmond/The Studio Stroll/The Comeback/Norma As Salome (7:44); Old Acquaintance: 5 Elegy For Strings And Harps (3:29); Rebecca: 6 Prelude/After The Ball/Mrs. Danvers/Confession Scene/Manderley In Flames (7:45); The Philadelphia Story: 7 M-G-M Fanfare/Main Title/The True Love (3:34); Taras Bulba: 8 The Ride To Dubno (4:53).

Review: This exquisite volume in RCA's Classic Film Scores series finds Charles Gerhardt and the National Philharmonic in exciting renditions of some of the scores created by Waxman. Both Prince Valiant and A Place in the Sun (a score that deserves a full CD treatment) are particular highlights in this set, with Sunset Boulevard and Rebecca the appropriate complements to this exhilarating collection. As is the norm in the entire series, the sonics and performances are exceptional.

Review: With these four CDs Varese Sarabande has provided a wealth of hitherto unrecorded music by one of the early masters of Hollywood film music in fine new recordings by the Queensland Symphony Orchestra. Waxman's gifts for melody and orchestration served him well for more than four decades of film scoring, from the quiet mysterioso of The Devil Doll to the grand, boisterous symphonics of Prince Valiant, Captain Courageous, and the swashbuckling adventure of Anne of the Indies, the inspired melodies of The Silver Chalice to the dark, relentless rhythms of Night and the City, and the inventive orchestrations of The Bride of Frankenstein to the hayseed Americana of Huckleberry Finn and the meticulous comedy of Mr. Roberts, you're in for a treat.

Cues are uniformly long (excepting for a 50-second fanfare from Task Force), mostly presented in suite form, allowing for sufficient development of the material. Thorough notes accompany each CD booklet, describing the films and the cues included. Coupled with the Charles Gerhardt/National Philharmonic recording on RCA, we now have a relatively complete musical quintet of Waxman's best—and most unforgettable—film music. The only real conspicuous omission from the set would be a suite from Waxman's excellent score for the Spencer Tracy Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde. Even so, this is another one of those desert-island CD sets. Don't be stranded without them.

Roy Webb

The Curse of the Cat People: The Film Music of Roy Webb

1995, Cloud Nine Records.

Album Notes: Music: Roy Webb; Album Concept: Christopher Palmer; Album Producer: David Wishart; Engineer: Steve Shin.

Selections: Out of the Past: 1 Overture (2:40); Bedlam: 2 Suite (7:32); 3 Baroque Dance Suite (2:02); Crossfire: 4 Prelude (1:18); Sinbad the Sailor: 5 Suite (5:29); Journey Into Fear: 6 Main Title (1:12); Dick Tracy: 7 Suite (3:56); Mighty Joe Young: 8 Prelude (1:34); Notorious: 9 Suite (5:03); 10 Dance Suite (4:29); The Ghost Ship: 11 Suite (3:19); They Won't Believe Me: 12 Main Title (1:37); The Locket: 13 Suite (10:05); Cornered: 14 Suite (4:06); The Curse of the Cat People: 15 Amy and Irena (9:43); 16 The Old House (8:20).

Review: Obscured by the fame of such Hollywood legends as Steiner, Korngold, Tiomkin, and Newman, RKO's main composer Roy Webb has been unfairly neglected by film music history. His compositions easily rivaled that of Steiner and company. In the first original soundtrack collection of his music, 73 minutes of music from 13 films have been restored from the composer's personal acetate archives The quality is surprisingly good considering the age and source of the music. As for the music, it's uniformly excellent. From the malevolent Boris Karloff chords from Bedlam to the thrilling, relentless violin prelude to film noir's Crossfire and the surging, brass chords that signify danger in Mighty Joe Young the splendidly swashbuckling Sinbad the Sailor, the euphonious romantic crescendos of Hitchcock's Notorious to nightmarish moods of Val Lewton's Death Ship and his gently mystical Curse of the Cat People, all were provided with excellent musical scores. Webb was a great lyricist, sharing much of Steiner's melody, rhythm and furious musical action. Webb's memorable music is well-saved on recording. Most cues tend to be short – minute-and-a-half preludes or title cues and three or four-minute suites from more than half of the films represented – though enough are sufficiently elongated. While I would have liked to have heard more long cues, samples of Webb's western and war scores, and more of Webb's Val Lewton film music, what we do have is a fine gallery of Webb's versatile and lovely film music. A 16-page booklet provides excellent analysis of each cue, and a perceptive look at Webb himself.

John Williams (1932-

Aisle Seat

1982, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Arrangers: Joseph Reisman, Alexander Courage, Bill Byers, Angela Morley, Conrad Salinger; Album Producer: John McClure.

Selections: E.T.: 1 The Flying Theme (J. Williams)(3:43); Chariots Of Fire: 2 Main Theme (Vangelis)(4:08); Raiders Of The Lost Ark: 3 Raiders' March (J. Williams)(5:28); 4 Yes, Giorgio: 4 If We Were In Love (J. Williams)(4:57); 5 New York, New York: 5 Main Theme (J. Kander/F. Ebb)(3:21); Gone With The Wind: 6 Tara's Theme (M. Steiner)(4:40); The Wizard Of Oz: 7 Over The Rainbow (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg)(3:10); Singing In The Rain: 8 Main Theme (N.H. Brown/A. Freed)(3:39); Friendly Persuasion: 9 Main Theme (D. Tiomkin)(3:52); Meet Me In St. Louis: 10 The Trolley Song (R. Blane/H. Martin)(3:29).

Review: John Williams' name has been linked to so many great films that it is always a joy to find him conducting an orchestra (in this case the excellent Boston Pops) in a selection of his own themes. But the pleasure is also multiplied when he chooses, as is the case here, to "cover" scores written by others. His treatment of Vangelis' theme for Chariots of Fire or Dimitri Tiomkin's seldom-heard-these-days Friendly Persuasion are prime examples, though one could also include such unlikely choices (at least in an instrumental album) as Singing in the Rain, The Wizard of Oz, or Meet Me in St. Louis. Another interesting selection here is the theme from Yes, Giorgio, a rather uninspired film starring Luciano Pavarotti. The only reservation about the set itself is that since it was an early effort by Williams and the Pops, there are subsequently recorded albums that are much better overall. Consider this one as a mere filler if you already own the others.

The Hollywood Sound

1997, Sony Classical.

Album Notes: The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Guest Musician: Grover Washington, Jr.; Album Producer: Shawn Murphy; Engineers: Shawn Murphy, Simon Rhodes.

Selections: Lawrence Of Arabia: 1 Overture (M. Jarre) (3:42); E.T.: The Extra-Terrestrial: 2 Flying Theme (J. Williams) (3:40); Out Of Africa: 3 Main Title (J. Barry) (3:47); The Wizard Of Oz: 4 Fantasy For Orchestra (H. Stothart/H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg) (5:50); Jaws: 5 Theme (J. Williams) (2:51); The Adventures Of Robin Hood: 6 Robin Hood And His Merry Men (E.W. Korngold) (4:27); Pocahontas: 7 Colors Of The Wind (A. Menken/S. Schwartz) (4:56); The Last Emperor: 8 Theme (R. Sakamoto) (4:55); A Place In The Sun: 9 Suite (F. Waxman) (7:58) Grover Washington Jr.; Spellbound: 10 Dream Sequence/Mountain Lodge (M. Rozsa) (5:08); The Godfather, Pt. II: 11 Main Title/The Immigrant (N. Rota) (3:47); Dances With Wolves: 12 John Dunbar Theme (J. Barry) (2:20); The Devil And Daniel Webster: 13 Mr. Scratch (B. Herrmann) (4:02); Beauty And The Beast: 14 Theme (H. Ashman/A. Menken) (3:09); The Best Years Of Our Lives: 15 Theme (H. Friedhofer) (2:39); Star Wars: 16 Main Title (J. Williams) (5:48).

Review: This collection of familiar themes from the movies (the set is subtitled "John Williams Conducts the Academy Awards' Best Scores," which pretty much sums it up) is interesting for several reasons. The first, of course, is because Williams himself is wielding the baton in yet another compilation that includes some of his own compositions (E.T., Jaws, Star Wars), something that always adds a touch of authority to any recording; another is because he is also paying tribute to some of the best known themes ever composed for the screen, including Lawrence of Arabia, The Adventures of Robin Hood, Out of Africa, Dances with Wolves, Spellbound and The Best Years of Our Lives. Yet another reason to like this CD can be found in the polished performance by the London Symphony Orchestra, probably one of the best group of players for this type of music. But the real joy here is to hear Grover Washington, Jr. in such august company tackling the suite from A Place in the Sun, in a performance that exudes sensuality and vibrancy. Next to this kind of music, with all due respect, the themes from Pocahontas and Beauty and the Beast, while quite enjoyable in their own right, seem a mite tame and the only weak spots in the entire CD.

John Williams By Request...

1987, Philips Records.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Album Producers: John McClure, George Korngold.

Selections: 1 Olympic Fanfare and Theme (4:18); The Cowboys: 2 Overture (8:51); Close Encounters Of The Third Kind: 3 Excerpts (10:03); Midway: 4 March (4:08); E.T.: 5 Flying Theme (3:40); Return Of The Jedi: 6 Luke And Leia (4:22); Superman: 7 March (4:23); 8 Liberty Fanfare (4:12); Raiders Of The Lost Ark: 9 March (5:23); The Empire Strikes Back: 10 Yoda's Theme (3:19); 1941: 11 March (4:23); Jaws: 12 Theme (2:51); The Empire Strikes Back: 13 Imperial March (3:03); 14 NBC News: Mission Theme (3:20); Star Wars: 15 Main Theme (5:35).

Review: This is a collector's dream! The set, with the Boston Pops smartly conducted by the composer, features nothing but solid gold hits from the fertile pen of John Williams, up to the time when he switched labels and began recording for Sony Classical (which explains the absence of some of his most recent contributions to the screen. While one can hardly dispute the choice of material here (only familiar titles could apply!), the plum of the collection is the Cowboys overture, until recently the only recording of this rousing number available anywhere. Anyone interested in the music of Williams, and in having the maestro's best-known compositions on one CD and conducted by the man himself needs look no further.

John Williams: The Spielberg/Williams Collaboration

1990, Sony Classical.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Album Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Engineer: Bud Graham.

Selections: Raiders Of The Lost Ark: 1 The Raiders' March (5:11); Always: 2 Theme (5:31); E.T.: 3 Adventures On Earth (9:47); Sugarland Express: 4 Theme (3:36) Toots Thielemans; Jaws: 5 Theme (2:57); 6 Out To Sea/The Shark Cage Fugue (4:23); Empire Of The Sun: 7 Exsultate Justi (4:57) The American Boy Choir, The Tanglewood Festival Chorus; Indiana Jones and The Temple Of Doom: 8 Parade Of The Slave Children (4:52); E.T.: 9 Over The Moon; 1941: 10 March (4:12); Empire Of The Sun: 11 Cadillac Of The Skies (4:59) The American Boy Choir, The Tanglewood Festival Chorus; Indiana Jones and The Last Crusade: 12 Scherzo For Motorcycle And Orchestra (2:48); Close Encounters Of The Third Kind: 13 Excerpts (9:47).

Review: As the story goes, when Steven Spielberg, then an obscure scriptwriter with great ambitions struggling to make a living in the Hollywood studios, heard the score for Mark Rydell's The Reivers, he decided that John Williams would be his composer of choice. Thus began the Spielberg/Williams collaboration celebrated in this set 1990 release, already incomplete since it doesn't include selections from Jurassic Park or Schindler's List, composed after this album was recorded (that should be for a possible volume 2).

Spielberg's first effort as a director was The Sugarland Express, made in 1974, a throbbing suspenser with a devastating sense of humor, represented here by its "Main Theme." He subsequently illustrated himself with some major blockbusters—the Indiana Jones trilogy, Jaws, Close Encounters, Empire of the Sun, and E.T., all of them included here through some of their most recognizable themes.

John Williams: Music for Stage and Screen

1994, Sony Classical.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams, Aaron Copland; The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Featured Soloists: Tim Morrison (trumpet), Laurence Thorstenberg (English horn); Album Producer: Thomas Z. Shepard; Engineer: Bud Graham.

Selections: The Red Pony (A. Copland): 1 Morning On The Ranch (4:41); 2 The Gift (4:58); 3 Dream March 2:30); 4 Circus March (1:55); 5 Walk To The Bunkhouse (2:49); 6 Grandfather's Tale (4:47); 7 Happy Ending (3:18); Born On The Fourth Of July (suite)(J. Williams): 8 Theme (6:21); 9 Cua Viet River, Vietnam 1968 (3:37); 10 Massapequa... The Early Days (4:06); 11 Quiet City for Strings, Trumpet and English Horn (A. Copland)(10:35); 12 The Reivers (J. Williams)(18:42) Burgess Meredith.

> "I always try to find a new way of writing music with each film because each is a multi-layered work of art, with many different meanings and expressions. The music has to express the theme of the film and becomes the leitmotif, and I try to integrate the music into the film. If you separate the music from the film neither would seem complete."
>
> Zhao Jiping
> (Film Score Monthly, October 1996)

Review: As the score for Mark Rydell's The Reivers established it early, John Williams was strongly influenced by Aaron Copland, and while the stylistic comparison between the two stopped soon after, when Williams found his own voice, it is interesting to hear in this set conducted by Williams some of the film music composed by Copland (particularly the several selections from The Red Pony which one never tires of hearing) juxtaposed to Williams' own suite from The Reivers, narrated as in the film by Burgess Meredith. The other selections (from Born on the Fourth of July and Quiet City) further enhance the similarities and differences between Copland and Williams, and present the ideal programming for a peaceful Sunday morning, if one feels so inclined.

Out of This World

1983, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Featured Soloist: Chester Schmitz (tuba); Arrangers: Jerry Goldsmith, Alexander Courage, Stu Philips; Album Producer: John McClure.

Selections: 2001: A Space Odyssey: 1 Also Sprach Zarathustra (introduction) (R. Strauss) (1:46); E.T.: 2 Adventures On Earth (J. Williams) (9:40); Alien: 3 Closing Title (J. Goldsmith) (2:45); Star Trek: 4 Main Theme (A. Courage) (3:36); Battlestar Galactica: 5 Main Title (S. Philips/G. Larson) (3:26); Star Trek The Motion Picture: 6 Main Title (J. Goldsmith) (4:03); The Twilight Zone: 7 Theme And Variations (M. Constant) (3:34); Return Of The Jedi (J. Williams): 8 Parade Of The Ewoks (3:30); 9 Luke And Leia (4:22); 10 Jabba The Hutt (3:30); 11 The Forest Battle (4:01).

Review: The "outer space" concept behind this album enabled John Williams and the Boston Pops to fly high and deliver some rousing music written for a variety of out-of-this-world film epics, including Williams' own E.T. and Return of the Jedi, Jerry Goldsmith's Alien and Star Trek The Motion Picture, and (oh, surprise!) Stu Philips' "Main Theme" from the unjustly-neglected Battlestar Galactica, and Marius Constant's theme from The Twilight Zone. Opening the set, of course, is Richard Strauss' introduction to Also Sprach Zarathustra, which got its screen credentials when it was used to great effect in the granddaddy of all contemporary outer-space adventures, 2001: A Space Odyssey.

Pops in Space

1980, Philips Records.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams.

Selections: Superman: 1 March (4:27); 2 Love Theme (4:49); The Empire Strikes Back: 3 The Asteroid Field (4:15); 4 Yoda's Theme (3:21); 5 The Imperial March (3:07); Star Wars: 6 Main Theme (5:38); 7 Princess Leia (4:06); Close Encounters Of The Third Kind: 8 Suite (10:09).

Review: More space-related music, courtesy of John Williams and the Boston Pops, though the selections this time come strictly from the composer's own scores for Superman, The Empire Strikes Back, Star Wars and Close Encounters of the Third Kind. The "Suite" from that last film is the set's icing-on-the-cake, as it includes music heard in the so-called "Special Edition" (namely the last scene in which contactee Richard Dreyfuss finds himself in the spaceship) and available nowhere else. Indeed a real bonus for fans and collectors alike.

Salute to Hollywood

1988, Philips Records.

Album Notes: The Boston Pops Orchestra, conducted by John Williams; Arrangers: John Williams, Morton Stevens, Glenn Osser, Joseph Reisman, Richard Hayman, Herbert Spencer, Sid Ramin; Album Producer: John McClure; Engineer: John Newton.

Selections: 1 Hooray For Hollywood (R. Whiting)(3:25); 2 Pops Salutes The Oscars: (a) When You Wish Upon A Star (L. Harline), (b) Swingin' On A Star (J. Van Heusen), (c) Moon River (H. Mancini), (d) Raindrops Keep Fallin' On My Head (B. Bacharach), (e) Theme From The Way We Were (M. Hamlisch), (f) The Shadow Of Your Smile (J. Mandel)(10:46); 3 Somewhere Out There (B. Mann/J. Horner/C. Weil)(3:39); 4 A Tribute To Judy Garland: (a) Over The Rainbow (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg), (b) We're Off To See The Wizard (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg), (c) You Made Me Love You (J. Monaco/J. McCarthy), (d) Be A Clown (C. Porter), (e) Get Happy (H. Arlen/T. Koehler), (f) The Man That Got Away (H. Arlen/I. Gershwin) (10:55); The Witches Of Eastwick (J. Williams): 5 Balloon Sequence (4:53); 6 Devil's Dance (4:53); Out Of Africa: 7 Love Theme (J. Barry)(2:54); 8 La Bamba (W. Clauson)(4:41); 9 The Bad And The Beautiful (D. Raksin)(5:35); Dancing With Astaire: 10 (a) Top Hat, White Tie And Tails (I. Berlin), (b) I Won't Dance (J. Kern/D. Fields/O. Hammerstein/J. McHugh/O. Harbach), (c) Dancing In The Dark (A. Schwartz/H. Dietz), (d) The Continental (C. Conrad/H. Magidson), (e) Change Partners (I. Berlin), (f) The Carioca (V. Youmans/G. Kahn/E. Eliscu)(9:36).

Review: This winning entry in the John Williams/Boston Pops catalog is particularly notable in that it is a tribute to Hollywood film music as seen by one of its most proficient exponents. The sole Williams entry, interestingly, consists of two selections from his Oscar-winning score for The Witches of Eastwick, a pleasant diversion which yielded the sardonic "Devil's Dance" and "Balloon Sequence." Three long suites offer tributes to Oscar-winning themes, Judy Garland and Fred Astaire, in a program that may seem evident at first but that has its many enjoyable moments. The odd choice in this collection, if favoritism may be shown, is the mercifully short "Somewhere Out There," from James Horner's score for An American Tail. With so many other great themes available, from so many other great composers, this seems like a bit of a waste. Don't let it deter you from enjoying the rest of the set, though.

Schindler's List: The Classic Film Music of John Williams

1995, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; Orchestrations: Paul Bateman, Brian Rogers, Peter Smith, Kevin Townend; The City of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Paul Bateman; Featured Soloists: Paul Bateman (piano), Petr Nedobilsky (violin), Jaroslava Eliasova (piano, harpsichord), Miroslav Kejmar (cornet), Antonin Novak (violin); Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineers: Eric Tomlinson, John Timperley, Mike Ross-Trevor, Mark Ayres.

Selections: Schindler's List: 1 Theme (orchestral version) (3:59); Indiana Jones and The Last Crusade: 2 End Credits (10:48); Presumed Innocent: 3 End Titles (4:19); Far And Away: 4 End Credits (6:54); Jaws: 5 Main Title (2:16); The Cowboys: 6 Overture (9:41); Indiana Jones and The Temple Of Doom: 7 Nocturnal Activities (2:02); Star Wars: 8 Main Title (5:22); The Empire Strikes Back: 9 Han Solo And The Princess (4:09); Return Of The Jedi: 10 Forest Battle (3:53); Family Plot: 11 Finale (3:52); 1941: 12 March (4:20); Born On The Fourth Of July: 13 End Credits (5:42); Jurassic Park: 14 Suite (5:57); 15 Schindler's List: Theme (piano version)(2:38).

Review: With so many other recordings of John Williams' music available, and with the composer himself covering most of his own grounds, one might truthfully question the necessity for yet another compilation, particularly one conducted by someone else. Don't blame the folks at Silva Screen for trying to cash in on a good thing. Actually the set is really not that bad, and if it includes many themes that are to be found on numerous other compilations, it has the merit of proposing some that are harder to come by—like the "End Titles" from Presumed Innocent, the "March" from 1941, and the "Finale" from Family Plot. The rest may be routine fare, but it is played with great gusto by the Prague Philharmonic, and all things considered it all adds up to a perfectly enjoyable recording, with particularly great dynamics to make it sound ever better.

Star Wars/Close Encounters: The Classic Film Scores of John Williams

1989, RCA Victor Records.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Charles Gerhardt; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: K.E. Wilkinson.

Selections: Star Wars: 1 Main Title (5:40); 2 The Little People Work (4:50); 3 Here They Come! (2:04); 4 Princess Leia (5:03); 5 The Final Battle (7:15); 6 The Throne Room and End Title (7:57); Close Encounters Of The Third Kind: 7 Barnstorming/Arrival Of The Mother Ship/The Pilots' Return/The Visitors/Final Scene (21:00).

Review: After having covered the music of pioneers like Erich-Wolfgang Korngold, Alfred Newman, Dimitri Tiomkin, Miklos Rozsa and Max Steiner, it probably made sense that Charles Gerhardt and producer George Korngold should have turned their attention to the classic film scores of John Williams, who was clearly inspired by his predecessors in the field. The only problem, of course, is while many of the works covered in the earlier sets in the series were not readily available anywhere else, Williams recorded his own scores, sometimes with greater drive and excitement than can be found in this routine album. Not to take anything away from the care and attention that evidently went into the production of this CD, the long suite from Close Encounters is particularly well put together, and the National Philharmonic generally gives a suitably polished performance. But it seems a bit redundant to get this recording when the original soundtracks are available, particularly now that they have been remastered and often feature additional music.

Victor Young (1900-1956)

Shane: A Tribute to Victor Young

1996, Koch International Classics.

Album Notes: Music: Victor Young; Arrangements: Patrick Russ, Mark McGurty, Richard Kaufman, Henry Mancini, Steven R. Bernstein; The New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Richard Kaufman; Album Producer: Michael Fine; Engineer: Keith Warren.

Selections: Shane: 1 Prelude (2:52); 2 The Tree Stump (2:59); 3 Rodeo Music (:44); 4 Wyoming Sketches (3:12); 5 Cemetery Hill (4:12); For Whom The Bell Tolls: 6 Suite (8:29); Samson And Delilah: 7 Prelude (2:25); 8 Miriam (1:27); 9 Dance To Dagon (1:53); 10 Hebrew Lament (:56); 11 Feather Dance (1:50); 12 The Fall Of Samson (1:28); 13 Exit Music (1:44); The Quiet Man: 14 St. Patrick's Day (2:17); 15 Kathleen (3:35); 16 Innesfree (2:38); Tribute To Victor Young: 17 Suite (8:51); Around The World In Eighty Days: 18 Epilogue (6:47).

Review: One of the great unsung heroes of Hollywood film music, Victor Young is slowly getting the recognition that has eluded him for so long. This superb tribute, which regroups several of the themes he created for the movies, is one of the first steps in the right direction. While most filmgoers remember the celebrated "Call of the Faraway Hills," from Shane, that score has long been overdue for a complete overhaul, along the lines of Jerome Moross' The Big Country or Elmer Bernstein's The Magnificent Seven. Its appearance here, in abbreviated form, is one of the great joys in this set, even if one misses the atmospheric ambience Young himself created in his own reading of the main theme, with its plaintive saxophone evoking the nostalgic feel of the far away hills.

And while For Whom the Bell Tolls, The Quiet Man, Around the World and Samson and Delilah are all available on compact disc, Kaufman and the New Zealand Symphony Orchestra find new reasons to listen to these scores again and enjoy them for the sheer magic they spin. The Tribute to Victor Young, arranged and orchestrated by Henry Mancini, regroups the themes from several other scores, including Golden Earrings, When I Fall in Love, Sweet Sue, Stella by Starlight, and My Foolish Heart.

Hans Zimmer (1957-

Hans Zimmer: New Music in Films

1989, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Music: Hans Zimmer; Featured Soloists: Alan Murphy (guitar), Guy Barker (trumpet), Emily Burridge (cello), Gavyn Wright (violin), Fiachra Tranch (keyboards), Charlie Morgan (drums), Hans Zimmer (synthesizers); Album Producer: Hans Zimmer; Engineers: Al Clay, Chris Dibble.

Selections: Burning Secret: 1 Suite (23:59); The Fruit Machine: 2 Suite (20:08); Diamond Skulls: 3 Theme (4:22).

Review: Give credit to Hans Zimmer for trying to be innovative, and also for giving other, promising new talent, an opportunity to work with him. One might dispute his creative approach, however, and find it lacking is some respects, but his music, well suited for the films which he scores, often displays an attractive bend that translates very well as pure audio experience, even if it sounds too much like New Age music.

Nothing could be farther apart in tone than the three films represented here, Burning Secret, a 1988 romantic melodrama set in turn-of-the-century Vienna; The Fruit Machine, also from 1988, directed by Philip Saville; and Diamond Skulls, composed in 1989 for a film directed by Nicholas Broomfield, a hip study of sex and violence among the British upperclass. Yet, Zimmer found in them the basic elements to create scores that embody each story and its framework, with his reliance on synthesizer textures to enhance acoustic instruments most becoming. The presentation of the first two as long suites, as opposed to shorter individual cues, adds enormously to one's appreciation of the music.

Louis Armstrong

Now You Has Jazz: Louis Armstrong at M-G-M

1997, Rhino Records.

Album Notes: Album Producers: George Feltenstein, Bradley Flanagan; Engineer: Doug Schwartz.

Selections: The Strip: 1 Ain't Misbehavin' (T. Waller/H. Brooks/A. Razaf) (3:12); 2 One O'Clock Jump (W. Basie) (2:52); 3 Ole Miss (W.C. Handy) (2:25); 4 Basin Street Blues (S. Williams) (2:08) Louis Armstrong, Jack Teagarden; 5 I'm Coming, Virginia (D. Heywood) (1:45); 6 A Kiss To Build A Dream On (B. Kalmar/H. Ruby/O. Hammerstein II) (2:54); 7 Medley: Shadracks/When The Saints Go Marchin' In (R. MacGimsey) (4:33); 8 That's A Plenty (L.

Pollack) (2:15); Cabin In The Sky: 9 Ain't It The Truth (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg) (5:23); The Strip: 10 Hines' Retreat (E. Hines) (1:51); 11 Fatha's Time (E. Hines) (2:18); 12 J.T. Jive (L. Armstrong) (2:16); Glory Alley: 13 That's What The Man Said (W. Robinson) (3:25) Louis Armstrong, Jack Teagarden; 14 Glory Alley (J. Livingston/M. David) (3:13); 15 Oh Didn't He Ramble (W.C. Handy) (1:15); 16 South Rampart Street Parade (R. Bauduc/B. Haggart) (1:20); 17 Flee As A Bird (W.C. Handy) (2:14); 18 It's A Most Unusual Day (J. McHugh/H. Adamson) (1:48); High Society: 19 High Society Calypso (C. Porter) (2:08); 20 Little One (C. Porter) (2:28) Bing Crosby, Louis Armstrong; 21 I Love You Samantha (C. Porter) (:43); 22 I Love You Samantha (C. Porter) (3:07) Bing Crosby, Louis Armstrong; 23 Now You Has Jazz (C. Porter) (4:12) Bing Crosby, Louis Armstrong; When The Boys Meet The Girls: 24 Throw It Out Of Your Mind (B. Kyle/L. Armstrong) (2:11); 25 I Got Rhythm (G. & I. Gershwin) (1:22).

Review: Before he hit a pinnacle with his appearance in High Society, in 1956, Louis Armstrong appeared in quite a few films which put his congenial personality and his chops to good use. His relationship with M-G-M began when he was signed to appear in Cabin In The Sky, in 1943, though his big scene was eventually cut out of the picture. In 1951, he was cast again in a film noir starring Mickey Rooney, The Strip, in which he and his band performed various numbers in their standard repertoire. The following year, Glory Alley, set in New Orleans, gave him another opportunity to appear with his band on the screen. But it wasn't until High Society that he finally hit his stride, performing in the opening scene and in one spectacular number with Bing Crosby that gave its title to this anthology. As is always the case with CDs released by Rhino, this one comes with a full complement of pictures, annotations and remarks, all of which enliven the set tremendously. One might quibble with the producers for having inserted the only track from Cabin In The Sky in the middle of the selections from The Strip, rather than try to organize the set chronologically. But this is piddling, and doesn't in any way detract from enjoying the music.

Review: Not often thought of as a singer, Fred Astaire nonetheless created many hit songs. Most were specifically written for him by the best Tin Pan Alley and Hollywood composers during a prolific screen career that extended over more than 30 years. The 2-CD set, Starring Fred Astaire, is a compilation of tunes he performed in his early movies (in which Ginger Rogers was his co-star). Many of them were rerecorded with Johnny Green and his orchestra. Most of these songs have become standards that provided Astaire with the hits that marked one of the most successful periods in his career.

The other two compilations, The Best of Fred Astaire at M-G-M and Steppin' Out, focus most specifically on the latter part of his career. They cover the period after he left RKO, where he enjoyed his early film successes, and moved to M-G-M, where he emerged as one of the most brilliant stars in that studio's roster. Essentially, both albums cover the same material, though Steppin' Out does so in a way that's more thorough, even if it is less than complete. While awaiting a new compilation from Rhino (which should be available by the time you read these lines), these two sets are essential.

The Beatles

A Hard Day's Night

1987, EMI Records; from the movie A Hard Day's Night, United Artists, 1964.

Album Notes: Music: John Lennon, Paul McCartney; Lyrics: John Lennon, Paul McCartney; Album Producer: George Martin.

Selections: 1 A Hard Day's Night (2:32); 2 I Should Have Known Better (2:45); 3 If I Fell (2:22); 4 I'm Happy Just To Dance With You (1:58); 5 And I Love Her (2:31); 6 Tell Me Why (2:10); 7 Can't Buy Me Love (2:15); 8 Any Time At All (2:14); 9 I'll Cry Instead (1:48); 10 Things We Said Today (2:39); 11 When I Get Home (2:19); 12 You Can't Do That (2:37); 13 I'll Be Back (2:21).

Review: From the first chord of the title song, chiming out like Big Ben, the soundtrack recording of the Beatles' first film preserves all the freshness and energy of what still stands as one of the best "rock movies". Not preserved—fortunately or not—are producer George Martin's "Swinging London" style big band orchestrations, a prominent part of the original soundtrack LP in the US. They were dropped from the CD reissue as part of a realignment of the Beatles' early catalogue to conform to the UK releases. The CD features seven songs from the film, plus six others first issued in the US on other Beatles LPs.

Help!

1987, EMI Records; from the movie Help!, 1965.

Album Notes: Music: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison; Lyrics: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison; Album Producer: George Martin.

Selections: 1 Help! (2:21); 2 The Night Before (2:37); 3 You've Got To Hide Your Love Away (2:11); 4 I Need You (2:32); 5 Another Girl (2:08); 6 You're Going To Lose That Girl (2:20); 7 Ticket To Ride (3:13); 8 Act Naturally (2:33); 9 It's Only Love (1:59); 10 You Like Me Too Much (2:38); 11 Tell Me What You See (2:40); 12 I've Just Seen A Face (2:07); 13 Yesterday (2:08); 14 Dizzy Miss Lizzie (Williams)(2:54).

Review: As with A Hard Day's Night, the soundtrack CD from the Beatles' second film does away with orchestrations included on the U.S. LP—a shame in this case, because Ken Thorne's witty James Bondish work captured the flavor of the movie in a way that the seven Beatles originals (wonderful though they are) do not. Filling out the CD reissue, once again, are seven other Beatles songs from the original UK LP. For both films, it should be added, the audio tracks on the video laserdisc releases outshine the same music on CD.

Let It Be

1987, EMI Records; from the documentary Let It Be, 1970.

Album Notes: Music: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison; Lyrics: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison; Album Producer: Phil Spector.

Selections: 1 Two Of Us (3:37); 2 Dig A Pony (3:54); 3 Across The Universe (3:49); 4 I Me Mine (2:26); 5 Dig It (:50); 6 Let It Be (4:03); 7 Maggie Mae (:41); 8 I've Got A Feeling (3:38); 9 One After 909 (2:55); 10 The Long And Winding Road (3:38); 11 For You Blue (2:33); 12 Get Back (3:07).

Review: Meant as a documentary of a band in the recording studio, the Beatles' last film instead captured them losing their way and coming apart, which may explain why it remains unavailable on video after many years. The soundtrack makes a much more cheerful document, even if the CD represents only a small portion of the songs recorded in those marathon sessions. (The remainder are largely available – or not, depending on the whim of the FBI – on what may be the biggest batch of bootlegs ever associated with a single album.) Perhaps intentionally, the music sounds like the Beatles' story in miniature, from skiffle ("Maggie Mae") to early rock & roll ("One After 909") to spirituality ("Across the Universe"). Get back, indeed.

Magical Mystery Tour

1987, EMI Records; from the television special Magical Mystery Tour, 1967.

Album Notes: Music: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, Ringo Starr; Lyrics: John Lennon, Paul McCartney, George Harrison, Ringo Starr.

Selections: 1 Magical Mystery Tour (2:52); 2 The Fool On The Hill (3:00); 3 Flying (2:17); 4 Blue Jay Way (3:57); 5 Your Mother Should Know (2:29); 6 I Am The Walrus (4:37); 7 Hello Goodbye (3:32); 8 Strawberry Fields Forever (4:10); 9 Penny Lane (3:04); 10 Baby You're A Rich Man (3:03); 11 All You Need Is Love (3:49).

Review: The Beatles' lone bomb, this made-for-TV musical baffled British audiences and never had a proper US release. With three decades of MTV-induced hindsight, we can see it for what it really was: the first music video collection, barely glued together as episodes in a guided bus trip. Minus the visuals (which include, memorably, John Lennon shoveling spaghetti), the music carries forward the group's "Sgt. Pepper" psychedelic dabbling to its soaring culmination in the Joycean "I Am the Walrus". Rounding out the CD (as on the original LP) are five more Beatles singles of the period.

The Yellow Submarine

1987, EMI Records; from the animated feature The Yellow Submarine, 1969.

Album Notes: Music: George Martin; Songs: John Lennon & Paul McCartney; Album Producer: George Martin.

Selections: 1 Yellow Submarine (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (2:43) The Beatles; 2 Only A Northern Song (G. Harrison) (3:28) The Beatles; 3 All Together Now (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (2:13) The Beatles; 4 Hey Bulldog (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (3:14) The Beatles; 5 It's All Too Much (G. Harrison) (6:29) The Beatles; 6 All You Need Is Love (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (3:53) The Beatles; 7 Pepperland (2:24); 8 Sea Of Time (3:00); 9 Sea Of Holes (2:21); 10 Sea Of Monsters (3:40); 11 March Of The Meanies (2:23); 12 Pepperland Laid Waste (2:15); 13 Yellow Submarine In Pepperland (J. Lennon/P. McCartney) (2:11).

Review: The passing years have turned the title song into a children's classic, but the Beatles' only animated film was meant for adults, or at least grownup kids. The story is a flower-power fable of creativity struggling against repression, the songs a "Sgt. Pepper"-period mix of simplicity and psychedelia. Alone among the CD reissues of the Beatles' film soundtracks, this one preserves the George Martin-composed and arranged orchestrations from the original LP. It still makes a skimpy meal, though, especially since two of the six Beatles tunes are available on other CDs. Business historians take note: George Harrison's "Only A Northern Song" may stand as the only protest song ever written about a music publisher.

Review: It seems somewhat redundant (not to say inaccurate) to name this set after Busby Berkeley. To be sure, the art deco director/choreographer may have been responsible for some of the best film musicals of the late 1930s and early '40s, but what we are offered here are not the visuals for which he became celebrated, but the songs around which he built his extravagant musical numbers, most of them written by Harry Warren and Al Dubin. Be that as it may, this set is an uncompromising joy, a feast for the ear, only occasionally marred by the sonics inherent to the primitive recording techniques at the time.

The numbers are presented here in their entirety, as they were done on the screen, with Dick Powell, Ruby Keeler, Joan Blondell, Ginger Rogers and James Cagney among the vocalists heard in them. As is always the case with Rhino, the set comes with a booklet replete with pictures, excellent liner notes, and complete information about the songs and the recordings.

David) (3:11) Louis Armstrong; 14 Thunderball (radio spot)(:51); 15 Live And Let Die (radio spot)(1:00).

Review: The Best of James Bond: 30th Anniversary is the single best all-in-one James Bond compilation, covering 30 years of original soundtracks, from the initial film in the series, Dr. No, through License to Kill. (This is pre-Pierce Brosnan, so there's no GoldenEye—fortunately. This is also "official" United Artists Bond only, so there's no Casino Royale or Never Say Never Again.) Disc one features the first 16 title songs: the James Bond Theme, "From Russia with Love," "Goldfinger," "Thunderball," "You Only Live Twice," "On Her Majesty's Secret Service," "Live and Let Die," "The Man With The Golden Gun," "Nobody Does It Better" (from The Spy Who Loved Me), "Moonraker," "For Your Eyes Only," "All Time High" (from Octopussy), "A View To A Kill," "The Living Daylights" and "License to Kill." The true Bond themes are the '60s/Connery-era songs, written by John Barry and performed by the likes of Shirley Bassey, Tom Jones and Nancy Sinatra, with over-the-top lyrics and brassy nightclub backings. The '70s and '80s songs are a mixed bag of pop hits (Paul McCartney's "Live and Let Die," Carly Simon on "Nobody Does It Better" and Duran Duran's "A View to a Kill") and slower Barry-penned offerings ("Moonraker," "All Time High").

Disc two is a must-have for James Bond score buffs, including four cuts from the U.K. album to Goldfinger and a 20-minute suite of unreleased Thunderball music. John Barry arranged/ghostwrote/did-something-mysterious to the classic guitar theme and wrote underscores for 11 of the 16 films. He created an unmistakable orchestral/jazz sound world for the secret spy: cool, suave, memorable and suspenseful—tongue-in-cheek by virtue of its complete straight face. Alternate takes of "Goldfinger" and "You Only Live Twice," as well as some radio promo spots, are icing on the cake.

Review: No one can blame the folks at Silva Screen for trying to cash in on a surefire idea, but with all the James Bond soundtracks available in one form or another, and various other compilations also making the round, this CD sounds like a bit of a redundancy. If at least the playing were a little more energetic it may have been justifiable, but the performance by the City Of Prague Philharmonic is somewhat lackluster this time around. Better stick to the originals!

Review: In the 1950s, when it seems every movie had to have a title song (a trend begun when Frankie Laine rerecorded the song from High Noon and turned it into a million-seller), Nat "King" Cole often provided his creamy vocals to tunes that were heard behind the credits. Additionally, he also recorded various songs that were written for the films, but performed by others. This collection combines together both the original and the cover versions, in one great package. From the first category, come such tunes as "St. Louis Blues," "Blue Gardenia," "The Adventures of Hajji Baba," and "Cat Ballou," in which he also appeared; in the second category are songs like "Song Of Delilah," "Autumn Leaves," "Tangerine," and other classics. Above all, what is most seductive here is Cole's easygoing charm and caressing way with a lyric, which make this set a total delight.

Sean Connery

A Tribute to Sean Connery 🦴🦴

1994, edel America Records.

Album Notes: Arrangers: Steven Scott Smalley, John Cacavas, Morton Stevens, Jerry Goldsmith, Henry Mancini, Ennio Morricone, John Williams; The Orchestra Seattle, conducted by George Shangrow; Featured Soloists: Drew Fletcher, Matt Dalton (trumpet); Carlos A Flores (violin), M. Shannon Hill (English horn), Dan Williams (oboe), Gary Oules (alto sax), Kate Alverson (flute); Album Producers: Daniel Petersen, Ford A. Thaxton; Engineer: Michael Wolfe.

Selections: 1 The James Bond Theme (M. Norman) (2:04); 2 Main Theme (from From Russia With Love) (L. Bart) (3:12); 3 Main Theme (from Goldfinger) (J. Barry) (2:57); 4 Theme (from The Russia House) (J. Goldsmith) (4:53); 5 Main Theme (from You Only Live Twice) (J. Barry) (3:26); 6 Main Theme (from Thunderball) (J. Barry) (3:06); 7 John Bursts In/The End (from Robin And Marian) (J. Barry) (4:45); 8 Suite (from The Great Train Robbery) (J. Goldsmith) (5:12); 9 Main Theme (from Diamonds Are Forever) (J. Barry) (4:28); 10 End Credits (from The Man Who Would Be King) (M. Jarre) (3:01); 11 Theme (from The Molly Maguires) (H. Mancini) (2:54); 12 Main Title (from The Wind And The Lion) (J. Goldsmith) (1:58); 13 The Death Theme (from The Untouchables) (E. Morricone) (2:53); 14 End Credits (from Indiana Jones and The Last Crusade) (J. Williams) (11:46).

Review: When I was asked to write liner notes about Sean Connery and his film career for this project early on, I warned producer Ford A. Thaxton that I thought the John Cacavas arrangements for the James Bond themes, in particular Diamonds are Forever, had their problems in pacing and presentation. Apparently, the budget wasn't there to re-orchestrate these pieces and the resultant tracks are, at best, only a fair collection. Another problem is that many pieces do not have any punch. Despite guitarist Todd Smallwood's masterful solo performance, the presentation of "The James Bond Theme" (arranged by Steven Scott Smalley) is too lethargically paced, though it is an ideal John Barry chase cue. While it works for The Russia House and Robin and Marian, the orchestra fails miserably on a weak presentation of The Great Train Robbery and, even worse, on an inept attempt at The Wind and the Lion. Diamonds, one of Barry's most simplistic themes, has the worst, most painful, horn performances imaginable. Did anyone really care?

Review: These four CDs chronicle some of the songs Bing Crosby performed in the movies, usually in studio recordings that had different arrangements and orchestral backing. Crosby's screen persona was that of an affable, easy-going seducer, who crooned his way to the heart of his female co-stars, and charmed them (and his audience) with his good-natured stylings. These characteristics are evidenced in these recordings, in which he performs many tunes that have since become standards in their own right. Some are also interesting for the fact that they present duets with Crosby's screen partners, like Fred Astaire, heard in "A Couple Of Song And Dance Men," from Blue Skies, and "I'll Capture Your Heart," from Holiday Inn; Danny Kaye, who shared billing in White Christmas; and Bob Hope, whose duet with Crosby on "Road To Morocco" is a classic.

On his own, Crosby does wonders with "Blue Skies," "Lazy," "Moonlight Becomes You," "Going My Way," "Swinging On A Star," "Too-ra-loo-ra-loo-ral (An Irish Lullaby)," and of course "White Christmas," which became as much a signature song for him as any he had created.

MCA also released a 4-CD boxed set in tribute to the singer, which contain these and many other songs he created in the movies, but these four titles are an economical and pleasant way to start off a collection of his recordings.

Cahn)(3:07); The Man Who Knew Too Much: 16 Whatever Will Be, Will Be (Que Sera, Sera)(J. Livingston/R. Evans)(2:03).

Review: The #1 film and recording star in the late '50s-early '60s, Doris Day has fallen into unjust neglect in recent years. Even though she recorded hundreds of tunes during a career that took her from the days of the Big Band era to the dawn of rock'n'roll, only a handful of her albums are available today, and more often than not her name only evokes the pristine image of a giddy, virginal woman she cultivated in the latter-day romantic comedies that ensured her success on the screen. This collection regroups together several of the songs she made famous in her many film musicals, including "It's Magic," "Secret Love" and "Que Sera, Sera," in which the freshness and spontaneity that endeared her to legions of fans are still exerting their charm.

Clint Eastwood

Music from the Films of Clint Eastwood

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Arrangers: Ron Goodwin, Karl-Heinz Loges, Brian Gascoigne, Derek Wadsworth, Mark Ayres, Christopher Palmer, Ian Hughes, John Bell, Lennie Niehaus; The City Of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Derek Wadsworth; Featured Soloists: Jiri Hnyk (violin), Jaroslava Eliasova (piano), Peter Binder (guitar), Miroslav Korinck (bass guitar), Josef Matejka (trumpet), Petr Dreser (accordion), Zdenek Zdenek (synthesizer); Album Producers: Derek Wadsworth, Mike Ross-Trevor; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Main Title (from Where Eagles Dare)(R. Goodwin)(3:20); 2 The War Is Over (from The Outlaw Josey Wales)(J. Fielding)(4:24); The Dollars Suite (E. Morricone): 3 The Good, The Bad And The Ugly (2:54); 4 A Fistful Of Dollars (3:36); 5 For A Few Dollars More (3:33); 6 The Ecstasy Of Gold (3:00) Anna Thomas; 7 Misty (from Play Misty For Me)(E. Garner)(3:12); 8 Hang 'Em High (D. Frontiere)(3:38); 9 In The Line Of Fire (E. Morricone)(4:03); 10 Rawhide (D. Tiomkin)(1:40); The Dirty Harry Films Suite (L. Schifrin): 11 Dirty Harry (4:50); 12 Sudden Impact (3:48); 13 Magnum Force (2:17); 14 Two Mules For Sister Sara (E. Morricone)(5:18); 15 Unforgiven (L. Niehaus)(6:15).

Review: The performances by The City of Prague Philharmonic, under the direction of Space: 1999 composer Derek Wadsworth, are not the problem on this collection. Their work is more than adequate to the task. The difficulty lies in the overabundance of music from the Italian-made "Spaghetti" westerns that defined his career. Not only does this make for a lack of variety, but it leaves music from films like Play Misty for Me and the Dirty Harry suites as odd, out-of-place, companions. Mark Ayers presentation of Ennio Morricone's In the Line of Fire really loses something in his synthesized realization.

Newton Howard)(4:06); 4 Allie's Theme (from The Mosquito Coast)(M. Jarre)(3:34); 5 End Titles (from Blade Runner)(Vangelis) (4:48); 6 Electronic Battlefield (from Patriot Games)(J. Williams): 7 Main Title (from Star Wars)(5:24); 8 Han Solo And The Princess (from The Empire Strikes Back)(4:08); 9 Forest Battle (from Return Of The Jedi)(3:52); 10 Suite (from Hanover Street)(J. Barry) (4:50); 11 March (from Force Ten From Navarone)(R. Goodwin) (3:30); 12 End Titles (from Presumed Innocent)(J. Williams)(4:14); 13 Walking Talking Man (from Regarding Henry)(H. Zimmer)(3:34); 14 Building The Barn (from Witness) (M. Jarre)(original electronic version)(4:58); 15 Nocturnal Activities (from Indiana Jones And The Temple Of Doom)(J. Williams)(2:03); 16 March (from Raiders Of The Lost Ark)(J. Williams)(5:16).

Review: A little less of the endless recycling of Star Wars and Indiana Jones music may have made this album less commercial, but it would have also have made it less tedious. There are too many of the other old standbys, too, like the Blade Runner end title and "Building the Barn" from Witness (two versions no less, was any other music ever composed for that picture?). There are some recent cues from The Fugitive (James Newton Howard) and Patriot Games (James Horner), as well as an early Ford effort Force Ten from Navarone (Ron Goodwin). The album is a mix of orchestral (The City of Prague Philharmonic) and electronic work (Mark Ayers). I'll give Ayers some points for creative audacity in his attempt to reproduce vocalist Bobby McFerrin on the Has Zimmer composed "Walking Talking Man" from Regarding Henry.

Review: One seldom thinks of Connie Francis as a movie star, even though she appeared in several film musicals in the 1960s. This may be due to the fact that the films, vague concoctions with pseudo rock'n'roll scores, attracted a limited audience, and are regarded today as campy rather than serious moviemaking. Better yet, when compared to the great film musicals made by M-G-M in the 1940s and '50s, these films look dowright ridiculous and are a serious letdown in overall creativity.

Yet, there was something positively endearing about Connie Francis that comes through in this compilation which brings together selections from Where the Boys Are (1960), Looking for Love (1964), and When the Boys Meet the Girls (1965). The first film, which marked the singer's screen debut, is by far the best of the lot and proves that Francis could actually hold her own in this amusing story of teenage girls longing for (and finding) a mate during an Easter vacation in Fort Lauderdale; already a notch down, Looking For Love features an inept backstage romance that is the lame excuse for various musical numbers and guest star appearances; as for When the Boys Meet the Girls, it is a tame remake of the Gershwin musical Girl Crazy, overloaded with numbers that have little to do with the plot but provide a reason for the all-star line-up that included Louis Armstrong, Liberace, and Herman's Hermits...

As a goof, this CD is way up there, a definite showcase for the talented Miss Francis, who confidently rides over all the pitfalls in the three films to perform her songs with style and polish. Whether it was worth the effort is another question altogether...

Berlin)(2:38) Judy Garland, Howard Keel; 21 There's No Business Like Show Business (reprise)(I. Berlin)(1:02).

Review: This superb collection of tracks from the M-G-M films chronicles the career of Judy Garland at the studio where she enjoyed her greatest moments in the limelight. The pleasures are immense, and while the collection is not complete by any stretch of the imagination (it doesn't include, for instance, Garland's last number for the studio, the giddy "Get Happy"), it's as good as they get. Particularly welcome in this context are the songs she recorded for Annie Get Your Gun, before she was replaced by Betty Hutton, which make their first appearance ever in this compilation. As is always the case with Rhino, the set comes with an informative booklet which contains loads of information, photos, comprehensive liner notes, everything that makes the release more valuable to fans and collectors.

Judy Garland: The Complete Decca Original Cast Recordings

1996, MCA Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Ron O'Brien; Engineers: Steven Lasker, Paul Elmore.

Selections: Girl Crazy (G. & I. Gershwin): 1 Embraceable You (3:14) Judy Garland; 2 Could You Use Me? (3:03) Judy Garland, Mickey Rooney; 3 But Not For Me (3:09); 4 Treat Me Rough (3:04) Mickey Rooney; 5 Bidin' My Time (3:07) Judy Garland; 6 I Got Rhythm (2:53); Meet Me In St. Louis (H. Martin/R. Blane): 7 Meet Me In St. Louis (K. Mills/A. Sterling)(2:15); 8 The Boy Next Door (3:07); 9 Skip To My Lou (3:00); 10 Boys And Girls Like You And Me (R. Rodgers/O. Hammerstein II)(3:11); 11 The Trolley Song (2:54); 12 Have Yourself A Merry Little Christmas (2:46); The Harvey Girls (H. Warren/J. Mercer): 13 In The Valley Where The Evenin' Sun Goes Down (2:53); 14 On The Atcheson, Topeka And The Santa Fe (5:54) Judy Garland, The Kay Thompson Chorus; 15 Wait And See (3:13); 16 It's A Great Big World (3:45) Judy Garland, Virginia O'Brien, Betty Russell; 17 Swing Your Partner Round And Round (2:59) Judy Garland, The Kay Thompson Chorus; 18 The Wild, Wild West (3:08) Virginia O'Brien; 19 March Of The Doagies (2:55) Judy Garland, Kenny Baker, The Kay Thompson Chorus.

Review: This effective compilation regroups some of the songs Garland recorded for the Decca label, notably from the films Girl Crazy (1943), Meet Me in St. Louis (1944), and The Harvey

Girls (1946). Interestingly, this set complements but doesn't duplicate the Rhino releases (with the exception of Girl Crazy), so that collectors don't have to feel cheated. Sonic quality here is not a prime consideration (many of these recordings were done at a time when techniques were not perfect), but the overall balance is quite positive. And the tunes ("Embraceable You," But Not for Me," "I Got Rhythm," "The Trolley Song," "Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas," "On the Acheson Topeka and the Santa Fe") rank among the most memorable in Garland's career. A definite must for everyone interested in the singer, the films of her career, and the songs of that era.

Review: A boon for Judy and Mickey fans, the complete soundtracks from their four musicals with bonus tracks, outtakes, and all the incrementa usually found in the lavish Rhino packages. Together, Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney are dynamite, starring in films that have scant plots, along the lines of why-don't-we-put-a-show-together, and are mere excuses to give them plenty of songs and musical numbers which they imbue with their youthful talent and energy. That's what subsists in these four CDs, in which the tunes, for the most part quite familiar, marked an entire era.

Adding its own weight to the songs is Rhino's presentation, gorgeously enhanced by a booklet that has plenty of pictures (some in four colors), interesting facts and anecdotes about each film, and enough documentation about the musical numbers to satisfy even the most demanding historian.

Audrey Hepburn

Music from the Films of Audrey Hepburn

1993, Giant Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Tim Sexton; Engineer: Larry Walsh.

Selections: Breakfast At Tiffany's: 1 Moon River (H. Mancini/J. Mercer) (2:40) Henry Mancini His Orchestra and Chorus; Charade: 2 Main Title (H. Mancini)(2:07) Henry Mancini and His Orchestra; My Fair Lady: 3 Overture (F. Loewe)(3:23) The Warner Bros. Studio Orchestra, Andre Previn; Funny Face: 4 He Loves And She Loves (G. & I. Gershwin)(4:59) Fred Astaire; The Nun's Story: 5 Main Title (F. Waxman)(2:37) The Warner Bros.

Studio Orchestra, Franz Waxman; Wait Until Dark: 6 Theme For Three (H. Mancini)(2:43) Henry Mancini and His Orchestra; How To Steal A Million: 7 Main Title (J. Williams)(1:47); Robin And Marian: 8 John Bursts In/The End (J. Barry)(2:41); Two For The Road: 9 Main Title (H. Mancini)(2:41) Henry Mancini and His Orchestra; Breakfast At Tiffany's: 11 Moon River (H. Mancini/J. Mercer)(2:01) Audrey Hepburn.

Review: It would have been nice to recommend this tribute album to Audrey Hepburn. But besides the fact that its total playing time is short (less than 33 minutes), it's really nothing more than a shoddy compilation which was hastily put together when the actress died, and which misses its best opportunities to recognize her enormous contributions to the big screen. Even though she did appear in several films for which Henry Mancini provided the music, those selections can also be found in other compilations. The selection from Funny Face, by Fred Astaire is fine, but "How Long Has This Been Going On?" sung by Audrey in the same film would have been a wiser choice. In fact, the only two tracks that are of some interest here are the "Main Title" from How to Steal a Million, and the selection from Robin and Marian. Not much to justify the set, however.

Lane)(4:57); Strangers On A Train: 7 Main Title/Approaching The Train/The Tennis Game and The Cigarette Lighter/Bruno's Death and Finale (D. Tiomkin)(7:45); Rear Window: 8 Lisa (Intermezzo)(F. Waxman)(3:47); The Trouble With Harry: 9 A Portrait Of Hitch (B. Herrmann)(8:46); Vertigo: 10 Prelude/The Nightmare (B. Herrmann)(5:02); North By Northwest: 11 Conversation Piece (B. Herrmann) (4:40); Torn Curtain: 12 Main Title (J. Addison)(2:21); Family Plot: 13 Finale (J. Williams)(3:53).

Review: Together, these two volumes give an overview of some of the musical tracks from the films of Alfred Hitchcock, many of which are heard here for the first time. Even though he may have at times expressed disdain for it, Hitchcock was fully aware of the importance of music in his films, and he always made sure to surround himself with some of the best composers available. The list here reads like a who's who of film scoring, from Bernard Herrmann, whose memorable contributions included Vertigo, North By Northwest, Marnie and, of course, Psycho; to Franz Waxman, represented by Rebecca, Suspicion, and Rear Window; to Miklos Rozsa, whose music gave such flair to Spellbound; to Dimitri Tiomkin, who added his own personal touch to Dial M For Murder and Strangers On A Train, both included here. Along the way, there are also other less likely and more surprising candidates, like Richard Addinsell, whose Under Capricorn is a highlight in this collection; Maurice Jarre, represented by Topaz; Ron Goodwin, with Frenzy; and John Williams, whose sly derivations gave such flavor to the amusing Family Plot. Both that last score and Bernard Herrmann's The Trouble With Harry also emphasize the humorous side of Hitchcock, an aspect of his career that is often ignored in view of his more dramatic achievements.

Overall, the playing by The City Of Prague Philharmonic sounds authentic enough, and both sets are highly recommended.

Hitchcock Master of Mayhem

1990, Pro-Arte Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann, Franz Waxman, Lalo Schifrin; The San Diego Symphony, conducted by Lalo Schifrin; Album Producer: Steve Vining; Engineer: Steve Vining; Assistant Engineer: Gary Rice.

Selections: North By Northwest: 1 Overture (B. Herrmann)(3:35); 2 Alfred Hitchcock Theme: Funeral March Of The Marionette (C. Gounod)(3:42); Vertigo: 3 Suite (B. Herrmann)(5:52); Marnie: 4 Suite (B. Herrmann)(5:33); Psycho: 5 Suite (B. Herrmann): (a) Prelude (2:18), (b) The Murder (1:03), (c) The City/ Finale (1:19); Rebecca: 6 Suite (F. Waxman)(3:58); Rear Window: 7 Suite (F. Waxman): (a) Prelude (2:29), (b) Rhumba (1:48), (c) Ballet (1:52), (d) Finale (2:26); The Schifrin Suite: 8 Rollercoaster: Amusement Park Theme (3:40); 9 Bullitt (3:23); 10 Mannix: Main Theme (2:55); 11 Dirty Harry: Suite (4:40); Mission: Impossible: 12 The Plot (2:41); 13 Main Theme (2:42).

Review: Schifrin does Hitchcock, and the results are never less than satisfactory, even if the selections are part of what one might call the "standard" Hitchcock repertoire. For good measure, Lalo also includes some of his own compositions for Rollercoaster, Mannix, Dirty Harry and Mission: Impossible, in what is loosely billed as "other music for murder." More music from lesser known scores for the Hitchcock films would have done just as nicely.

Music from Alfred Hitchcock Films

1985, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Music: John Williams, Dimitri Tiomkin, Franz Waxman, Roy Webb; The Utah Symphony Orchestra and The University of Utah A Cappella Choir, conducted by Charles Ketcham; Album Producer: George Korngold; Engineer: Bruce Leek.

Selections: Family Plot (J. Williams): 1 End Credits (3:54); Strangers On A Train (D. Tiomkin): 2 Main Title and Approaching The Train/Ann And Guy/The Warning and Bruno's Threat/The Tennis Game/The Cigarette Lighter/Bruno's Death and Finale (16:13); Suspicion (F. Waxman): 3 Main Title/Sunday Morning/The Chairs Are Back/Melbeck's Office/Looking For Johnny/Too Fast/Finale (12:04); Notorious (R. Webb, arr.: C. Palmer): 4 Main Title/Unica/Troubled Mind/Alicia Collapses/Finale and End Cast (5:46).

Review: Three important scores for three important films in the Hitchcock canon receive their proper due in this unfortunately much too short album. Both Strangers on a Train and Suspicion elicited wonderful musical comments from Dimitri Tiomkin and Franz Waxman, respectively. And the longer suites included here whet one's appetite for more of the music composed by both men for the Hitchcock thrillers. Notorious presents another great composer, Roy Webb, whose enormous contributions to film music has fallen into sad neglect, to the extent that his name means very little today and is seldom seen in compilations. The witty "End Credits" from John Williams' Family Plot also suggests that a longer suite from that score should be recorded. Unfortunately, the total playing time for the whole CD falls short of what one might expect in these days of 75-plus minutes of music on many albums.

Lena Horne

Ain't It The Truth: Lena Horne at M-G-M

1996, Rhino Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Marilee Bradford; Engineer: Doug Schwartz.

MacDonald)(3:11); 11 Tete A Tete At Tea Time/Solid Potato Salad (D. Raye/G. De Paul)(3:17) Lena Horne, Eddie ''Rochester'' Anderson; Two

Girls And A Sailor: 12 Paper Doll (J. Black)(3:17); 13 Paper Doll (J. Black)(alternate lyric)(3:13); 14 Trembling Of A Leaf (J. Green/J. Lawrence) (3:00); Ziegfeld Follies: 15 Love (H. Martin/ R. Blane)(3:28); Till The Clouds Roll By: 16 Can't Help Lovin' Dat Man (J. Kern/O. Hammerstein II)(3:02); 17 Why Was I Born? (J. Kern/O. Hammerstein II)(2:06); 18 Bill (J. Kern/O. Hammerstein II)(outtake)(1:23); Words And Music: 19 Where Or When (R. Rodgers/ L. Hart)(2:59); 20 The Lady Is A Tramp (R. Rodgers/L. Hart)(2:56); Duchess Of Idaho: 21 Baby, Come Out Of The Clouds (L. Pearl/H. Nemo)(3:07); Meet Me In Las Vegas: 22 If You Can Dream (N. Brodzsky/S. Cahn)(1:43); 23 You Got Looks (N. Brodzsky/S. Cahn)(2:24).

Review: For many years, in some parts of the country, Lena Horne was Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's best kept secret: her scenes, judiciously filmed in such way that they didn't intercut with what preceded or followed them, but purely and simply excised when the films were shown in the South. Thus, many potential fans were denied the pleasure of enjoying one of the most gorgeous female performers in Hollywood, whose sophisticated cool looks and sultry delivery made her an icon in the screen musicals. This wonderful collection brings together many of the songs she created in those films, some of which, like "Lady and the Tramp," became signature themes.

Ron Howard

Williams)(4:59); 10 The Newsroom 7:00 P.M. (From The Paper)(R. Newman)(2:51); 11 The Dark Side Of The Moon (from Apollo 13)(J. Horner)(5:10); 12 The Kidnapping (from The Ransom)(J. Horner) (4:34).

Review: Listening to the selections in this tribute to director Ron Howard, one is suddenly confronted with a daunting fact: for all his quiet ways and apparent lack of public visibility, Howard has been involved in quite a few films over the past 20 years, many of which, like Cocoon, Willow, Far And Away, and Apollo 13, are important box-office hits. Beyond this realization, it is also a pleasure to hear, combined on one CD, the themes from these and other, less remarkable but nonetheless equally entertaining films, such as Night Shift, Splash, Gung Ho, Backdraft or The Paper. As compilations of this type go, this one is intelligently organized and smartly presented, and it includes selections that are not found elsewhere, another boon for collectors.

Al Jolson

Meyer/A. Gottler/S. Mitchell)(1:34); Go Into Your Dance: 22 About A Quarter To Nine (H. Warren/A. Dubin)(6:28); The Singing Kid: 23 I Love To Sing-A (H. Arlen/E.Y. Harburg)(3:04).

Review: Today, Al Jolson's black-face performances are politically incorrect and an embarrassment to anyone watching his films. In his heyday, however, this was a trademark expected from him and even demanded by his fans. This set aside, the self-appointed "Greatest Entertainer in the World" appears more dated than most in this collection, which covers a ten-year tenure at Warner Bros., in which his exaggerated, grandiloquent delivery contrasts with the more natural style that has prevailed since.

Yet, if for no other reason, Jolson should be remembered as the performer who created a sensation when he appeared in The Jazz Singer, technically the first talking picture when the movies were still silent. The set includes the songs from that film, as well as several others that became million-sellers at the time, including "April Showers," "Rock-A-Bye Your Baby With a Dixie Melody," "Toot-Toot-Tootsie Goodbye," "I'm Sitting on Top of the World," and "There's a Rainbow 'Round My Shoulder."

Danny Kaye

Hans Christian Andersen/ The Court Jester

1994, Varese-Sarabande Records; from the movies Hans-Christian Andersen, Samuel Goldwyn, 1952, and The Court Jester, Paramount Pictures, 1956.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Bruce Kimmel; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: Hans-Christian Andersen (F. Loesser): 1 I'm Hans-Christian Andersen (2:37); 2 Anywhere I Wander (3:15); 3 The Ugly Duckling (3:06); 4 Inchworm (3:14); 5 Thumbelina (1:47); 6 No Two People (2:24); 7 The King's New Clothes (3:34); 8 Wonderful Copenhagen (2:10); The Court Jester (S. Fine/S. Cahn): 9 Overture (5:26); 10 Life Could Not Better Be (3:00); 11 Outfox The Fox (2:50); 12 I'll Take You Dreaming (3:03); 13 My Heart Knows A Lovely Song (2:23); 14 I Live To Love (3:11); 15 Willow, Willow, Waley/Pass The Basket (4:59); 16 The Maladjusted Jester (3:47); 17 Where Walks My True Love (3:15); 18 Life Could Not Better Be (2:05).

Review: One of the great comic geniuses of his generation, Danny Kaye was equally at ease fooling around or settling down to deliver a sweet ballad when the occasion presented itself. Though his screen persona accented the zany side of his talent, he demonstrated in the remarkable Hans-Christian Andersen, a fairy tale account of the great Danish storyteller, that he could also delve into more romantic fares and still charm his public. On this occasion, he was also handsomely serviced by the Award-Winning score composed by Frank Loesser, in which "Wonderful Copenhagen" still stands out as a highlight. Conversely, The Court Jester, probably one of Kaye's funniest movies, is a splendid take off on the swashbuckler genre, in which he impersonated a would-be knight bent on righting the wrong and saving a beautiful damsel in distress. Spread throughout the action are various musical numbers, including the tongue-twister "Maladjusted Jester," and the lovely lullaby "I'll Take You Dreaming."

Review: Like Fred Astaire, Gene Kelly was the ultimate song-and-dance man, a performer whose athletic choreography and charming warbling graced some of the best film musicals ever made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. These collections focus on many of the songs he performed in his movies, and reveal an aspect of his talent that sometimes took second place to his dancing on the screen.

The Rhino set, by far the best, includes some of the most memorable numbers from Kelly's movies, often in versions that are more complete and, in several instances, available for the first time in stereo.

The MCA compilation is only of marginal interest, and might best serve as a cut-rate introduction.

The Sony set adds a couple of selections not available elsewhere, such as "I Love To Go Swimmin' With Wimmen," sung by Gene and his brother Fred, and as such remains of interest for completists and collectors... until, of course, Rhino, the current administrator of the M-G-M catalogue, comes up with a follow-up to its own set, or with the complete soundtracks to some of the musicals not yet reissued.

Ethel Merman

Ethel Merman/Lyda Roberti/Mae West

1991, Sony Music Special Products.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Miles Kreuger; Engineer: George Engfer.

Selections: ETHEL MERMAN: Take A Chance: 1 Eadie Was A Lady (B.G. DeSylva/ N.H. Brown/R. Whiting) (5:59); Kid Millions: 2 An Earful Of Music (G. Kahn/W. Donaldson) (2:51); Life Begins At Eight Forty: 3 You're A Builder Upper (H. Arlen/I. Gershwin/E.Y. Harburg) (2:33); Anything Goes: 4 I Get A Kick Out Of You (C. Porter) (3:04); 5 You're The Top (C. Porter) (2:49); In Caliente: 6 The Lady In Red (M. Dixon/A. Wrubel) (2:46); The Big Broadcast: 7 It's The Animal In Me (H. Revel/M. Gordon) (3:12);

LYDA ROBERTI: College Rhythm: 8 College Rhythm (M. Gordon/ H. Revel)(2:49); 9 Take A Number From One To Ten (H. Revel/ M. Gordon)(2:55);

MAE WEST: She Done Him Wrong: 10 A Guy What Takes His Time (R. Rainger)(2:39); 11 (I Wonder Where My) Easy Rider's Gone

(S. Brooks) (2:21); I'm No Angel: 12 I'm No Angel (G. DuBois/B. Ellison/H. Brooks)(3:28); 13 I Found A New Way To Go To Town (G. DuBois/B. Ellison/H. Brooks)(2:38); 14 I Want You, I Need You (B. Ellison/H. Brooks)(2:33); 15 They Call Me Sister Honky Tonk (G. DuBois/B. Ellison/H. Brooks)(2:54).

Review: This interesting compilation was put together in the 1970s by film historian Miles Kreuger, who mined the vaults of Columbia Records in search of studio recordings by three of the most prominent screen performers of the 1930s. Merman, of course, was active both on Broadway and in Hollywood, and these selections from some of the films in which she appeared, enabled her to perform some of the songs she had created on stage ("Eadie Was a Lady," "I Get a Kick Out of You," "You're the Top." For her part, Mae West, also a graduate from the New York stage, became the quintessential 1930s vamp, better known for her wisecracks and sly sexual innuendos. As a singer, she was at best competent, but there was no mistaking the manner in which she oooh'd and aaah'd her way through a lyric. Her finely timed delivery in such songs as "A Guy What Takes His Time," "I'm No Angel" or "They Call Me Sister Honky Tonk," merely confirms what everyone knew about her: she was one hell of a saucy dame! As for Lyda Roberti, she may be the only one of the three whose memory has not been perpetuated in the same manner. Listening to her in the two selections from College Rhythm included here, only make one wish there'd be more of her in this compilation. Sonically, the set is definitely not up to the exacting standards of the digital era, something that mars one's enjoyment.

American Legends: Ethel Merman 🦴🦴🦴

1996, Laserlight Records.

Album Notes: Orchestras conducted by Billy May, Alfred Newman, Louis Silvers, Al Goodman, Lud Gluskin, Fairchild & Carrol, Victor Young, Harry Sosnik; Album Producer: Rod McKuen; Engineer: Michael McDonald.

Selections: Anything Goes: 1 I Get A Kick Out Of You (C. Porter)(2:47); As Thousands Cheer: 2 Heat Wave (I. Berlin)(2:49); Panama Hattie: 3 Make It Another Old-Fashioned, Please (C. Porter)(2:58); Anything Goes: 4 Blow, Gabriel, Blow (C. Porter)(2:16); Girl Crazy: 5 But Not For Me (G. & I. Gershwin)(1:57); Anything Goes: 6 You're The Top (C. Porter)(3:11) Ethel Merman, Bing Crosby; Happy Landing: 7 Hot And Happy (L. Pockriss/J. Yellen) (2:26); Red, Hot And Blue: 8 Down In The Depths Of The Ninetieth Floor (C. Porter)(2:54); 9 It's De-Lovely (C. Porter)(2:48); Stars In Your Eyes: 10 I'll Pay The Check (A. Schwartz/D. Fields)(3:20); Anything Goes: 11 You're The Top (reprise)(C. Porter)(2:09); Alexander's Ragtime Band: 12 Marching Along With Time (I. Berlin)(2:18); Du Barry Was A Lady: 13 Friendship (C. Porter)(2:50) Ethel Merman, Bert Lahr.

Review: Another set containing early sides recorded by Ethel Merman, from her 1930s stage shows, assembled here without much concern for continuity or chronology. While it's always a pleasure discovering songs the great belter created and solidly established her reputation as one of Broadway's top performers, the sound quality here is a negative factor and must be taken into consideration.

Marilyn Monroe

Never Before, Never Again

Review: There are so many recordings by Marilyn Monroe, all of them using exactly the same basic tracks, that it almost becomes redundant to try and recommend one over another. For the sake of arguing, the DRG set contains a trio of tracks not on the Laserlight release ("When Love Goes Wrong," from Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, "Running Wild," from Some Like It Hot, and "My Heart Belongs To Daddy," from Let's Make Love), while Laserlight includes two selections from The Seven Year Itch and The French Doll (oblivious of the fact that Monroe didn't appear in the latter). Both sets also present some of the selections they have in common in their abbreviated form, like "Lazy" or "A Little Girl From Little Rock," which take much more screen time than heard here. Sonic quality in both is also about the same, with crunched highs and boosted lows, to mask some of the most obvious flaws in the recordings. Frankly, Marilyn deserves much better, and one would hope her vocal contributions will one day receive the kind of regal treatment she would command.

Dick Powell

Dick Powell in Hollywood (1933-1935)

1995, Legacy Records.

Album Notes: Songs: Al Dubin, Harry Warren; Album Producer: Didier C. Deutsch; Engineer: Tom Ruff.

Selections: Gold Diggers Of 1933: 1 The Gold Diggers' Song (We're In The Money)(3:11); 2 Pettin' In The Park (2:59); 3 Shadow Waltz (3:02); 4 I've Got To Sing A Torch Song (3:08); Footlight Parade: 5 By A Waterfall (I. Kahal/S. Fain)(3:14); 6 Honeymoon Hotel (2:40); The Road Is Open Again: 7 The Road Is Open Again (I. Kahal/S. Fain)(2:57); College Coach: 8 Lonely Lane (I. Kahal/S. Wrubel)(2:41); 13 Beauty Must Be Loved (I. Kahal/S. Fain)(3:13); Flirtation Walk: 14 Mr. And Mrs. Is The Name (M. Dixon/A. Wrubel)(2:50); 15 Flirtation Walk (M. Dixon/A. Wrubel)(3:06); Sweet Music: 16 I See Two Lovers (M. Dixon/A. Wrubel)(3:02); Gold Diggers Of 1935: 17 Lullaby Of Broadway (3:14); 18 The Words Are In My Heart (3:01); Broadway Gondolier: 19 Lulu's Back In Town (2:55); 20 The Rose In Her Hair (3:10).

Review: This collection presents songs Powell made famous in the Busby Berkeley screen extravaganzas, not as they were heard on the screen but as he rerecorded them in the studio later on, with different arrangements and much abbreviated playing times. One of the 1930s' heartthrobs, Powell has fallen into unjust neglect in recent years. This is regrettable, given the fact that he was a smooth, charming performer with a wry sense of humor, whose popularity was fueled by his starring roles in films like Gold Diggers of 1933, Footlight Parade, Gold Diggers of 1935 and Broadway Gondolier, among his most felicitous contributions. Today, his style of singing might seem a bit dated and unnatural, but his importance as a crooner cannot be denied, and the collection might reveal to the listener a performer who certainly deserves to be heard.

Wild in the Country

1995, RCA Records; from the movie Wild in the Country, 20th Century-Fox, 1961.

See: Flaming Star

Review: Often dismissed by critics and non-fans as a minor form of entertainment not worthy of much consideration, the films of Elvis Presley were essentially mindless vehicles tailor-made for the King, in which he almost invariably played the role of a good-hearted rebel, who, at the mere suggestion of a cue, would pick up a guitar and start singing.

Deep down, however, the films were finely crafted, usually entertaining stories, in which the songs were the obvious focus but helped move the plot ahead, and gave the star the opportunity to show his mettle, charm his audiences, and win his girl at the end. Surprisingly, while most of the songs he created in his films did not achieve the chart popularity his studio recordings did, some (like "Love Me Tender" or "Blue Hawaii") have become indelibly attached to his career.

For many years, RCA (Elvis' label from the start, after he left Sun Records, the scene of his early efforts) released the soundtrack albums, often as a contractual necessity or just as an afterthought, but without giving them the push Elvis' studio albums usually received. And while these albums (with a few exceptions) stayed active in the catalogue all along, they were seldom afforded the care and attention they truly deserved.

Even with the advent of compact discs, while his catalogue was being reconfigurated, boxed, and, in some instances, remixed and remastered, the soundtracks were hardly touched. This has changed dramatically in the past couple of years, with the label seemingly intent on correcting its past errors: the titles are being reissued in albums that have been properly mixed and mastered, and often include previously unreleased alternates and songs that were dropped before they were used. Credit for this must go to producers Ernst Mikael Jorgensen and Roger Semon who have systematically approached this mine lode with the care and respect it truly demanded.

There would be little point in trying to review and rate each individual reissue title, as this would probably take much more editorial space than is available in this volume. However, it should be noted that the care and attention now lavished on the CDs listed above, at long last single them out as the ultimate series, and one truly worthy of the King.

While some films have yet to be covered in more than a scant manner (Frankie And Johnny is one that comes readily to mind), there is indeed a light at the end of the proverbial tunnel. It is doubtful that the cornucopia of Elvis film titles will convince his detractors that these were, after all, supreme works of art, or even albums worthy of their time and consideration. More prosaically, however, they provide a new opportunity to reassess Elvis' importance as a screen actor and as an entertainer whose films may have had as much influence on our lives as his more "serious" studio and live contributions. Any way we look at it, the conclusion one must reach is that his film soundtracks (and the songs he performed in them) were a positive aspect of his overall appeal and success.

Arnold Schwarzenegger

Arnold: Great Music from the Films of Arnold Schwarzenegger

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Musical compositions: Brad Fiedel (Terminator 2: Judgment Day), Basil Poledouris (Conan the Barbarian/ Conan the Destroyer), Randy Edelman (Kindergarten Cop), Jerry Goldsmith (Total Recall), Harold Faltermeyer (Running Man), Ennio Morricone (Red Sonja), Cinemascore (Raw Deal); Album Producer: Robert Townson; Engineer: Joe Gastwirt.

Selections: Terminator 2: Judgment Day: 1 Main Title (1:54); 2 Escape From The Hospital (4:29); 3 It's Over (Goodbye)(4:36); Conan The Barbarian: 4 Anvil Of Crom (2:34); 5 Riddle Of Steel/ Riders Of Doom (5:37); Kindergarten Cop: 6 Astoria School Theme (4:27); 7 Rain Ride (1:55); Total Recall: 8 The Dream (3:30); 9 The Mutant (3:16); Running Man: 10 Intro/Bakersfield (2:00); 11 Main Title/Fight Escape (3:44); 12 Revolution/End Credits (1:58); Red Sonja: 13 Theme (4:21); Raw Deal: 14 Brains And Trains (1:40); 15 Kaminski Stomps (3:31); 16 Harry Shot/ Harry Walks (2:05); Conan The Destroyer: 17 Main Title/Riders Of Taramis (3:33); 18 Crystal Palace (6:11).

Review: Since all the recordings compiled in this CD are available elsewhere, it may seem redundant to focus on this particular release. Particularly, since the selections move from big, epic orchestral expressions (Conan the Barbarian/Conan the Destroyer), to comedies (Kindergarten Cop), to electronic scores (Raw Deal), without much care given to musical cohesion or mood continuity. By all means, if you must have everything about the big man, indulge yourself. But if you already have the individual soundtrack albums, don't waste your time or money.

The Greatest Themes from the Films of Arnold Schwarzenegger

1995, Silva America Records.

Album Notes: Orchestrations: Nic Raine, Greig McRitchie, Kevin Townend, Philip Lane, Morton Stevens; The City Of Prague Philharmonic and Singers of the Crouch End Festival Chorus, conducted by Nic Raine; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: John L. Timperley.

Selections: Predator: 1 Main Title (A. Silvestri)(4:08); Total Recall: 2 Total Recall (J. Goldsmith)(2:30); Commando: 3 Main Title (J. Horner)(3:46); Red Heat: 4 Main Title/Russian Streets/ Tailing Cat (J. Horner)(3:36); Kindergarten Cop: 5 Astoria School Theme/Children's Montage (R. Edelman) (4:39); Twins: 6 Main Title Theme (G. Delerue)(2:55); 7 Going To Santa Fe (R. Edelman)(2:09); Junior: 8 Main Title (J. Newton Howard)(2:59); Raw Deal: 9 Kaminski Stamps (C. Gaudette/T. Bahier/C. Boardman/A. Galuten)(3:29); The Running Man: 10 Theme (H. Faltermeyer)(4:02); Terminator: 11 Theme (B. Fiedel) (4:37); 12 Desert (B. Fiedel)(3:25); 13 Trust Me (B. Fiedel)(1:37); 14 It's Over (B. Fiedel)(2:32); True Lies: 15 Main Title/Harry Makes His Entrance/ Escape From The Chateau (B. Fiedel)(5:19); Conan (Symphonic Suite)(B. Poledouris): 16 Prologue (1:57); 17 Anvil Of Crom (2:36); 18 Riddle Of Steel/ Riders Of Doom (6:02); 19 Chambers Of Mirror/Crystal Palace (7:15); 20 Anvil Of Crom/ Finale (1:06).

Review: Another ambitious but uneven collection of music from the Silva label that features the imposing and heavily percussive, brassy music generally associated with Schwarzenegger's action films, including Alan Silvestri's pulsating Predator theme, James Horner's Commando and Red Heat, lengthy suites from Brad Fiedel's monotonous Terminator scores and his scattershot synth-and-orchestral True Lies, as well as Basil Poledouris's impressive blend of choir and orchestra for Conan The Barbarian. There's also a headache-inducing offering of pounding techno-synth cues from Raw Deal and Harold Faltermeyer's The Running Man, and adding the Terminator music and the entirely electronic interpretation of True Lies, listeners should be reaching for the aspirin before they're halfway through this album. Unfortunately, much of the orchestral takes aren't much better, with Jerry Goldsmith's theme to Total Recall (the least interesting facet of a great score) coming off particularly badly. Ironically, the most listenable music on the album comes from the kinder, gentler comedy scores such as Randy Edelman's Kindergarten Cop, Georges Delerue's Twins and James Newton Howard's Junior, which are a welcome respite from the brutality of the violence-oriented material.

Review: With none of the 19 Frank Sinatra recordings on this compilation actually deriving from the original film soundtracks, this is an interesting compilation that showcases some of Sinatra's finest studio recordings with arranger Nelson Riddle, from his greatest period: the 1950s Capitol era.

While all of the songs are closely associated with Sinatra, not all are from his own films. For example, Sinatra was heard singing "Three Coins in the Fountain" during the opening of the picture, but was not a performer in the film. Some songs, like "From Here to Eternity" and "Monique" were musical themes from Sinatra films, but since he didn't sing in those films, these studio recordings are the only vocal renditions available. As well, four of the nine Cahn and Van Heusen tunes included here were not the product of a film at all, but a 1955 television presentation of Thornton Wilder's Our Town, starring Sinatra and Paul Newman.

The incomparable combination of Sinatra and Riddle just can't be beat, and while one wishes that this was a collection of Sinatra's rare film versions of these songs, the tunes are outstanding, and the sonics superb.

Sylvester Stallone

Music from the Films of Sylvester Stallone

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Arrangers: Mark Ayres, Mike Townend, Kevin Townend, John Bell, Brain Gascoigne; The London Screen Orchestra, conducted by Mike Townend; The City Of Prague Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Nic Raine; Featured Soloists: Clem Clempson (electric guitar), Maurice Murphy (trumpet), Mike Thompson, Paul Pritchard (horns); Album Producer: Mike Townend; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: 1 Fanfare/Gonna Fly Now/Going The Distance/The Final Bell (from Rocky)(B. Conti)(9:19); 2 Main Theme (from F.I.S.T.)(B. Conti)(4:07); 3 Victor's Big March (from Paradise Alley)(B. Conti)(3:02); 4 Redemption (from Rocky II) (B. Conti) (3:44); 5 Main Theme (from Nighthawks) (K. Emerson)(3:34); 6 Eye Of The Tiger (from Rocky III)(F. Sullivan III/J. Peterik)(4:01); 7 It's A Long Road (from First Blood)(J. Goldsmith)(3:26); 8 Main Theme/Day By Day/ Pilot Over (from Rambo: First Blood, Part 2)(J. Goldsmith)(7:02); 9 Main Theme/Chase (from Cobra)(S. Levay)(6:47); 10 In This Country/The Fight/Meet Me Half Way (from Over The Top)(G. Moroder)(11:12); 11 Questions (from Rambo III)(J. Goldsmith)(3:01); 12 Main Theme/Breaking Point/Release (from Lock Up)(B. Conti)(12:13); 13 Main Theme/Rabbit Hole/End Title (from Cliffhanger) (T. Jones)(5:52).

Review: Much of this album is a dated compilation of the "hip" scores that littered Sylvester Stallone movies in the 1980s, like Sylvester Levay's Cobra and Georgio Moroder's Over the Top. The London Screen Orchestra, The City of Prague Philharmonic and synthesist Mark Ayers all attempt to wrestle with the material. Only the nine minute suite from Rocky comes out on top with a powerful flourish of brass and strings on "Gonna Fly Now." Many pieces, like Bill Conti's F.I.S.T. and Lock Up are as compelling as the box office duds they were written for. The selected themes from Jerry Goldsmith's Rambo scores are amazingly sluggish.

Tiomkin)(2:01); The Searchers: 7 Opening/Ethan Comes Home/Martin/Texas Rangers/War Party/Indian Idyll (M. Steiner)(7:24); The Alamo: 8 Overture (D. Tiomkin)(3:26); How The West Was Won: 9 Prelude (A. Newman)(3:25); The Longest Day: 10 March (P. Anka)(4:44); In Harm's Way (J. Goldsmith): 11 Prelude: The Rock (1:43); 12 Intermezzo: The Rock And His Lady/ Love Theme (4:48); 13 Finale: First Victory (3:03); True Grit: 14 Rooster And Le Boeuf/Runaway/Warm Wrap-Up (E. Bernstein)(4:39); The Cowboys: 15 Overture (J. Williams)(9:44).

Review: John Wayne made enough movies, and there was enough memorable music in most of them, to justify more than one volume paying tribute to the Duke and to the composers who musically immortalized him. For a start, this collection will do nicely, but it is hoped that further compilations, as interesting and possibly more daring, will ensue. If the City of Prague Philharmonic sounds at times awkward playing western music, the results are still largely acceptable, with the minor flaws amply compensated by some of the other selections (The Quiet Man, The High and the Mighty, In Harm's Way) in which the performance seems more natural.

Review: Since its inception in the 1930s, the Film Academy has sought to reward those songs that had been specifically written for the movies, thereby casting its lights on many tunes that have since become standards and part of the great American songbook. In turn, many of these songs have provided performers with themes which, in many instances, have become hits for them and sometimes lifelong signatures. The 16 selections in this compilation feature many well-known songs, often performed by the artists who made them famous, if not in the movies at least on the charts.

Review: Nothin' but solid gold hits in them thar CDs! The concept itself is one that's bound to appeal to any collector of top pop hits and themes from the movies: songs that were specifically written for the screen, more often than not performed by the stars who created them (though an occasional selection offers a dubious "cover" version, albeit a charted one), in a cross-label series of compilations that classifies these hits by decades (or half-decade for the 1950s, probably the richest of its kind). Adding credibility to the series is the endorsement by the trade publication Billboard and the fact that it was compiled by Joel Whitburn, who has made it his life's dedication to sort out every single hit by every artist in the vast pop field since the beginning of the recording industry.

This however does not exclude the fact that at today's price for laser delights, this series comes short of fulfilling one's expectations, with each CD clocking in at 30 minutes of total playing time.

Review: Both series point out the strengths and weaknesses in the respective catalogues. For many years the incontestable leaders in the field of cast album recordings, Columbia and RCA have accumulated an enviable roster of titles that represent the Broadway musical at its most brilliant, from the 1950s to today. But whereas they complement each other in many ways, collections culling material from each can only rely on the recordings in their individual vaults. As a result, and to compensate, some arbitrary decisions must be made in order to avoid having huge gaps. Thus, Sony Broadway, which mined the Columbia catalogue, didn't have access to such blockbusters as Fiddler on the Roof (though the London cast recording, with Topol as Tevye, proved an acceptable substitute), Hello, Dolly!, How to Succeed in Business or La Cage Aux Folles; similarly, while RCA could rely on those titles, other acknowledged hits like Mame, Sweet Charity, My Fair Lady and A Chorus Line are sorely lacking in the Celebrate Broadway collections. Further besetting that series are some arbitrary decisions made to flesh up the repertoire, with Kids!, for instance, seemingly missing the basic concept suggested by its title with the inclusion of selections that have no point in being there.

These details set aside, both series offer an overview of the best of Broadway, with star turns and selections that are, for the most part, the creme de la creme. Anyone interested in discovering the glories of Broadway without having to purchase the individual cast album recordings will thoroughly enjoy these compilations.

Cannes Film Festival: 50th Anniversary Album

1997, Milan Records.

Album Notes: Album Executive Producers: Valerie Bernard, Alain Garel; Engineer: Francois Brillet.

Selections: 1 Main Title/Police Car (from The 400 Blows)(J. Constantin)(3:14); 2 La dolce vita (from La dolce vita)(N. Rota)(5:37); 3 A Man And A Woman (from A Man And A Woman)(F. Lai)(2:29); 4 Main Title (from Blow Up)(H. Hancock)(1:32); 5 Taxi Driver (from Taxi Driver)(B. Herrmann) (8:41); 6 The Island (Main Title)(from Yol)(S. Argol)(3:18); 7 Odlazak Mase (from When Father Was Away On Business)(Z. Simjanovic)(2:22); 8 Die Kathedrale der Buecher (from Wings Of Desire)(4:47); 9 Vuelvo al sur (from Sur)(A. Piazzolla/R. Goyeneche)(4:00); 10 End Title (from A World Apart)(H. Zimmer) (4:49); 11 Chaucer Street (from Mystery Train)(J. Lurie)(3:44); 12 Typing Montage (from Barton Fink)(C. Burwell)(2:07); 13 Estampe 1 (from The Scent Of Green Papaya)(Ton-That Tiet)(1:58); 14 Crash (from Crash)(H. Shore)(3:37).

Review: A compilation of this kind is fraught with problems, so one perhaps should be grateful that the folks at Milan Records thought about putting it together, while recognizing the fact that they had their limits. Celebrating Cannes and the films that were discovered there over the years was a noble idea to begin with: indeed, the Film Festival has often recognized the validity of many films, coming from the four corners of the world, long before Hollywood took notice, and helped establish the reputation of many celebrated filmmakers and directors. But trying to survey 50 years of cinema through the themes heard in some of these films is really inviting serious scrutiny. First, because you are limited: unless you are going to include at least 50 themes, one for each year, you are going to necessarily omit some that are very important. This is further compounded by the fact that the CD producers decided to draw primarily from the resources in the Milan catalogue, which, good as it may be, is not very extensive.

As a result, we do have 14 tracks which include some interesting tracks (The 400 Blows, Blow Up, Taxi Driver), some questionable choices (When Father Was Away On Business, Mystery Train, Crash), some serious omissions (where is, for instance, the theme from Cinema Paradiso?), and at least one track, La dolce vita, which is not even a soundtrack recording but a rerecording by Katyna Ranieri which happens, quite conveniently, to be in the Milan catalogue. It was a good idea. It simply was badly executed.

Classic British Film Music

1990, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Vaughan Williams, Brian Easdale, Gerard Schurmann, Arthur Bliss; The Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Kenneth Alwyn; Album Producers: David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: Coastal Command (R.V. Williams): 1 Prelude (1:23); 2 Hebrides (1:31); 3 U-Boat Alert (2:46); 4 Taking Off At Night (1:37); 5 Hudsons Take Off From Iceland (2:13); 6 Dawn Patrol (4:15); 7 The Battle Of The Beauforts (3:28); 8 Finale (3:56); The Red Shoes (B. Easdale): 9 The Red Shoes Ballet (15:00); Attack On The Iron Coast/The Two-Headed Spy (G. Schurmann): 10 Attack and Celebration (7:20); Conquest Of The Air (A. Bliss): 11 The Wind (1:25); 12 The Vision Of Leonardo da Vinci (2:47); 13 Stunting (1:50); 14 Over The Arctic (2:58); 15 Gliding (1:13); 16 March: Conquest Of The Air (2:08).

Review: British film music is an acquired taste, and even though it requires a great deal of attention to make its impact, the rewards it offers are plentiful. In its heyday, the British film industry relied on classically-trained composers to provide the scores; as a result, people like Ralph Vaughan William, Brian Easdale or Arthur Bliss contributed music that has all the earmarks of great classical scores, yet conforms with the demands imposed by the cinematographic medium. To be sure, the scores often reflect the type of music English composers were used to writing-pompous, dithyrambic, full of its own importance-but they also seemed to match perfectly the moods projected in the films themselves. The scores represented here all deal with World War II, and elicit from their respective composers the kind of patriotic fire that seems totally appropriate for this type of film. Conducted with the right dose of vibrancy and understanding by Kenneth Alwyn, this superb collection is one of the best representations available today.

Review: There are so many things right about this 4-CD compilation that one might be willing to overlook its most flagrant flaws. Alone in the industry, at least in this country, Silva America has chosen to celebrate the 100th anniversary of the movies. By digging into its many recordings, the label has been able to put together a somewhat comprehensive survey of film music from the early 1930s to today (with Schindler's List, the last title included here, dating from 1996, and City Lights, the first, from 1931, the survey represents in fact only 65 years, but who's to quibble?).

In the process, Silva offers an overview of many of the most successful themes written for the movies. Unfortunately, the compilation barely touches upon the many contributions made to film music in the 1930s and '40s. Noticeably missing are representations of the early works of Miklos Rozsa, Alfred Newman, Max Steiner, Erich-Wolfgang Korngold, and the other great composers of the first generation; and important films like The Asphalt Jungle, Treasure of the Sierra Madre, Now Voyager, Madame Bovary, Captain from Castile, and many others.

Where the compilation thrives is in its accumulation of great themes from the '50s through the '90s, though, once again, there seems to be some glaring omissions, and odd inclusions like 633 Squadron, Diva and The Terminator. But overall, this is an exciting collection, which pays tribute to an art form that had been neglected for far too long. With some great orchestras, and some great conductors along for the more than 3½ hour musical voyage, this is a collection no one should miss.

Cinema Choral Classics

1997, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: The Crouch End Festival Chorus, conducted by David Temple; The City Of Prague Philaharmonic, conducted by Nic Raine, Paul Bateman, Kenneth Alwyn; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineers: John L. Timperley, Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: Excalibur: 1 O Fortuna (from Carmina Burana)(C. Orff)(2:47); Jesus Of Nazareth (M. Jarre): 2 Prelude/Birth Of Christ (4:09); The Scarlet Letter: 3 Agnus Dei (based on Adagio for Strings)(S. Barber)(6:14); First Knight (J. Goldsmith): 4

Never Surrender (5:28); The Abyss (A. Silvestri): 5 The Abyss (5:11); King Of Kings (M. Rozsa): 6 The Lord's Prayer (2:45); Conan The Barbarian (B. Poledouris): 7 Riders Of Doom (6:05); The Mission (E. Morricone): 8 Ave Maria Guarini (2:34); 9 On Earth As It Is In Heaven (3:31); The Lion In Winter (J. Barry): 10 Suite (8:15); 1492: Conquest Of Paradise (Vangelis): 11 1492: Conquest Of Paradise (5:06); The Vikings (M. Nascimbene): 12 Funeral and Finale (3:34); The Omen (J. Goldsmith): 13 Suite (11:53); Henry V (P. Doyle): 14 Non nobis Domine (3:50).

Review: An interesting concept which demonstrates that some great choral music is being composed for the movies. Wisely, the album does not rely on the tried-and-true, and if a couple of selections (Rozsa's King of Kings or John Barry's The Lion in Winter) were to be expected, the program focuses for the most part on themes that are less obvious. While one might dispute the CD's subtitle, which could lead one to believe that Carmina Burana and Samuel Barber's "Adagio For Strings" were written for the movies, nothing else detracts from this handsome package which boasts a sensational sound, broad and spacious, some exquisite performances (both the choir and the orchestra are excellent), and an overall classy presentation.

Review: The Cinema Gala series, released on CD in 1988 by London Records, returned to the catalogue some of the recordings made in the early 1960s by Stanley Black, Frank Chacksfield and other British band leaders for the Phase 4 Stereo albums. At the time, these albums were known for the high quality of their stereo definition, and their transfer to the digital medium only heightens the many qualities they already boasted.

Musically, some of the recordings, particularly The Epic and The Guns of Navarone, are spectacularly thrilling, even if they tend to be at times overly exaggerated, with what may be best described as CinemaScope performances: big, broad, sometimes with unintentionally hilarious sound effects. But they have a cinematic quality that emphasizes the initial purpose of the music itself as dramatic underscoring.

Along similar lines, Great Love Stories tends to overmilk the pathos in the themes developed, with broad effects that affect the overall impact.

There is little to recommend in James Bond 007, which offers themes available elsewhere, usually in much better performances, though, once again, Roland Shaw's wall-to-wall colorful renditions seem particularly suited for this type of material.

The only point of interest in The Third Man is Anton Karas' performance of the "Harry Lime Theme," which, surprisingly, is not available anywhere else, but the other selections in this compilation are just routine and without much appeal other than as innocuous background music.

Conversely, the recordings for the Great Shakespearean Films and Warsaw Concerto are quite effective, and make both releases the most enjoyable in the entire series. Both are particularly distinguished by the fact that Bernard Herrmann adds his personal touch to some of the selections, noticeably injecting fire and passion in Miklos Rozsa's Julius Caesar in the first CD, and in Arthur Bliss' Things To Come in the second.

Review: One of the first labels to enter the all-digital fray, Telarc successfully made its mark by recording the Cincinnati Pops, conducted by Erich Kunzel, in a series of spectacular CDs, many using sound effects and centered around the music created for the movies.

If those recordings are truly outstanding in terms of sonic achievements, Kunzel's often pedestrian conducting leaves a lot to be desired on a purely artistic level. Particularly not known for subtlety, his recordings often take a vibrant, if hokey, approach to the most popular themes available, on the jingoistic impression that bigger might mean better.

In some ways, this thinking pays off big scale, notably in the "space"-themed recordings (Time Warp and Star Tracks, the initial titles in the series, Symphonic Star Trek, and Fantastic Journey), where the weird sound effects add an extra dimension to the selections (both classical and from the movies) being performed. This is also the case in the two Hollywood's Greatest Hits albums, in which the accent is squarely on the more spectacular themes ("Parade of the Charioteers," "Tara's Theme," "Zorba the Greek," "Mutiny on the Bounty," to name a few), in a program evidently designed to appeal to even the most uneducated listener.

The approach is again quite effective in the Victory at Sea album where the martial nature of the selections can accomodate a grander-than-life recording.

The two western-themed albums (Round-Up and Happy Trails) are somewhat less successful, strangely enough because the addition of the guest artists (including a tired-sounding Frankie Laine reprising some of his old hits in the former), and the misguided use of the sound effects (a stampede, corral sounds, campfire and coyotes) detract from the overall effectiveness of the program.

The other albums (Movie Love Themes, A Disney Spectacular and chiefly Puttin' on the Ritz, with many legit stars making an appearance that is dwarfed by the orchestral playing) miss the mark and end up being glossed-over renditions that would have gained by being more restrained.

Overall, the dramatic sonic results cannot hide Kunzel's less-than-inspired direction, particularly when so many of the same selections can be found elsewhere and in much better performances.

(As an extra, the Symphonic Star Trek album comes with a free CD-ROM that includes, if you can access them, various space-related games.)

Newman)(3:08); Doctor Zhivago: 23 Then It's A Gift (End Title)(M. Jarre) (2:38).

Review: This compilation presents some 40 years of movie music condensed on one album, as seen through some of the most remarkable films made in Hollywood, from King Kong to Doctor Zhivago. The moods vary from track to track, and explore almost every cinematographic genre, from swashbucklers to romantic dramas, from war films to thrillers, from epics to westerns. But even though the scope is broad and varied, the ultimate factor that presides over the compilation is the overall quality that pervades it, with Max Steiner, Erich-Wolfgang Korngold, Miklos Rozsa, Alfred Newman, and Bernard Herrmann, among some of the talented film composers represented. In the process, some selections are found here for the first time on compact disc, including The Philadelphia Story, Northwest Passage, The Treasure of the Sierra Madre, and Madame Bovary, all of them in their original soundtrack recordings. Nothing but the best...

Country Goes to the Movies

1994, Risky Business/Sony Music Special Products.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Nick Shaffran; Engineer: Tom Ruff.

Selections: High Noon: 1 Do Not Forsake Me (D. Tiomkin/N. Washington)(2:27) Tex Ritter; Thunder Road: 2 Ballad Of Thunder Road (R. Mitchum/D. Raye) (2:54) Robert Mitchum; North To Alaska: 3 North To Alaska (M. Phillips) (2:47) Johnny Horton; Five Minutes To Live: 4 Five Minutes To Live (J. Cash) (2:02) Johnny Cash; Your Cheatin' Heart: 5 Your Cheatin' Heart (H. Williams) (2:08) Hank Williams Jr.; Water Hole #3: 6 The Ballad Of Water Hole #3 (Code Of The West)(B. Wells/D. Grusin)(2:18) Roger Miller; I Walk The Line: 7 I Walk The Line (J. Cash)(2:55) Johnny Cash; Cisco Pike: 8 Michoacan (A. Allen/ K. Fowley)(3:00) Kris Kristofferson; Every Which Way But Loose: 9 Every Which Way But Loose (S. Dorff/M. Brown/T. Garrett)(2:50) Eddie Rabbitt; Honeysuckle Rose: 10 On The Road Again (W. Nelson)(2:32) Willie Nelson; Urban Cowboy: 11 Stand By Me (B.E. King/J. Leiber/M. Stoller)(3:35) Mickey Gilley; Honkytonk Man: 12 Honkytonk Man (D. Blackwell)(2:47) Marty Robbins.

Review: This is a fun album, even if you don't particularly care for country music. But producer Nick Shaffran, who had the good idea of compiling together country songs that were created for the movies, hit the mark with this one. Kicking it off with Tex Ritter's version of "Do Not Forsake Me," from High Noon, a logical choice since the song started a trend. The set moves on to a variety of film tunes, performed by the singers and/or songwriters who created them, including Johnny Cash, Johnny Horton, Roger Miller, Hank Williams, Jr., and Kris Kristofferson, among others. The surprise here is Robert Mitchum singing the "Ballad Of Thunder Road" in a fairly convincing and ingratiating way. Don't deny yourself a little guilty pleasure, try to find the set: you won't regret it.

Digital Space

1985, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Morton Gould; Album Producer: Brian B. Culverhouse; Engineer: Bruce Rothar.

Selections: Windjammer (M. Gould): 1 Main Title (3:00); The Big Country (J. Moross): 2 Main Title (3:11); Airport (A. Newman): 3 Main Title (3:34); The Red Pony (A. Copland): 4 Morning On The Ranch (4:27); Things To Come (A. Bliss): 5 Epilogue (3:02); That Hamilton Woman (M. Rozsa): 6 Love Theme (4:48); Star Wars (J. Williams): 7 Main Title (5:52); 8 Princess Leia Theme (5:33); Tribute To A Badman (M. Rozsa): 9 Suite (4:51); Passionate Friends (R. Addinsell): 10 Main Title (4:19); 49th Parallel (R. Vaughan Williams): 11 Prelude (2:26); Spitfire (W. Walton): 12 Prelude And Fugue (8:09).

Review: This spectacular digital recording is a magnificent showcase for the orchestra, its conductor, and, more generally, film music of the higher kind. While it offers some obvious choices (Star Wars, for instance), it also has the infinite merit of providing rarer selections, such as Arthur Bliss' Things to Come, Rozsa's Tribute to a Badman and That Hamilton

Woman, or Gould's own Windjammer. Adding to the pleasure, is the impeccable performance by the London Symphony Orchestra, truly one of the greatest film music orchestras in the world.

Epic Films

Great Epic Film Scores

1993, Cloud Nine Records.

Album Notes: Music: Miklos Rozsa, Dimitri Tiomkin; Orchestras conducted by Miklos Rozsa, Dimitri Tiomkin; Album Supervisor: David Wishart; Engineer: Gus Shaw.

Selections: El Cid (M. Rozsa): 1 Overture (3:26); 2 Main Title (2:43); 3 Thirteen Knights (2:33); 4 Pride And Sorrow (2:14); 5 Scene d'amour (4:18); 6 El Cid March (3:20); 7 Exit Music: "The Falcon And The Dove" (2:03); 55 Days At Peking (D. Tiomkin): 8 Overture (2:54); 9 Prelude (3:02); 10 Murder Of The German Ambassador (2:13); 11 The Orphan And The Major (Moonfire)(5:50); 12 Attack On The French Legation (2:50); 13 Intermezzo: So Little Time (2:15); The Fall Of The Roman Empire (D. Tiomkin): 14 Fanfares And Flourishes (:51); 15 Prelude (2:42); 16 Livius' Arrival (1:03); 17 Old Acquaintances (4:32); 18 Decoy Patrol/Battle In The Forest/Reinforcements (4:46); 19 Intermezzo: Livius And Lucilla (2:17); 20 The New God (2:23); The Magnificent Showman (D. Tiomkin): 21 John Wayne March (2:15); 22 Main Title: "Circus World" (2:21); 23 Buffalo Gal (1:50); 24 Toni And Giovanna (1:47); 25 In Old Vienna (6:15); 26 Exit Music: "Circus World" (reprise)(2:21).

Review: In the 1960s, when Hollywood had turned away from super-productions as being too costly and with little box office appeal, showman Samuel Bronson produced several large-scale films made in Europe that captured the imagination of filmgoers everywhere and almost single-handedly kept the epic genre alive. Four of these "gargantuan wedges of living history" are represented here by the scores written for them by two of Hollywood's most respected composers, Miklos Rozsa and Dimitri Tiomkin.

No one can dispute the popular success of El Cid, The Fall of the Roman Empire, or 55 Days At Peking, respectively set in medieval Spain, Roman Italy, and turn-of-the century China. These massive cinematographic reconstructions not only ignited the screen, they elicited from their respective composers scores that have endured as hallmarks of the genre. Perhaps less well known is The Magnificent Showman, known here as Circus World, which equals and at times surpassed in scope and drama the most famous circus film of all, Cecil B. De Mille's The Greatest Show On Earth. These excerpts from Tiomkin's score, presented here on CD for the first time, make this album all the more valuable.

Warriors of the Silver Screen

1997, Silva America Records.

Album Notes: Orchestrations: Leonid Raab, Charles Gerhardt, John Scott, Philip Lane, Arthur Morton, Sonny Kompanek, Mike Townend, Miklos Rozsa, Lawrence Ashmore, Edward B. Powell, Maurice de Packt, Nic Raine, James Horner, Greig McRitchie, Bernard Herrmann; The City Of Prague Philharmonic, conducted by Paul Bateman, Nic Raine, Kenneth Alwyn; The Crouch End Festival Chorus, conducted by David Temple; Album Producer: James Fitzpatrick; Engineer: John L. Timperley.

Selections: CD 1: Taras Bulba (F. Waxman): 1 Overture/Sleigh Ride (2:46); 2 Torchlight Parade (2:05); 3 The Birth Of Andrei (Pastorale)(2:08); 4 The Ride To Dubno (4:53); Anthony And Cleopatra (J. Scott): 5 Suite (6:40); The 300 Spartans (M. Hadjidakis): 6 March (3:58); First Knight (J. Goldsmith): 7 Arthur's Fanfare (:44); 8 No Surrender (5:25); 9 Arthur's Farewell (5:00); Rob Roy (C. Burwell): 10 Rob And Mary (3:32); The War Lord (J. Moross): 11 Prelude and Main Title (4:19); El Cid (M. Rozsa): 12 Overture (3:32); 13 Love Theme (4:13); Henry V (P. Doyle): 14 Prelude/O For A Muse Of Fire (4:29); 15 St. Crispin's Day (5:14); 16 Non Nobis Domine (3:44).

CD 2: Prince Valiant (F. Waxman): 1 Suite: Prelude/King Aguar's Escape/The Fens/The First Chase/The Tournament/Sir Brack's Death and Finale (10:00); Spartacus (A. North): 2 Main Title (3:38); 3 Love Theme (2:47); The Last Valley (J. Barry): 4 The Last Valley (3:36); Braveheart (J. Horner): 5 End Title (7:03); The Thief Of Bagdad (M. Rozsa): 6 Overture (2:19); 7 The Love Of The Princess (4:50); 8 Flying Horse Galop (1:36); 9 The Market At Basra (3:00); Conan The Barbarian (B. Poledouris): 10 Prologue/Anvil Of Crom (4:33); Ben-Hur (M. Rozsa): 11 Prelude (3:40); 12 Love Theme (2:57); 13 Parade Of The Charioteers (3:36); Jason And The Argonauts (B. Herrmann): 14 Prelude (1:57); The Vikings (M. Nascimbene): 15 Rape and Pillage (1:33); 16 Ragnar Returns (2:33); 17 Dancing On The Oars (The Viking Drinking Song)(1:31); 18 Love Scene (2:30); 19 Voyage and Landing In Britain (2:40); 20 Attack On The Castle (3:31); 21 Funeral and Finale (3:32).

Review: In another spectacular display of the vast resources offered by The City of Prague Philharmonic, Silva Screen has recorded this great set programmed around the themes written for the screen warriors, a concept that has been stretched a bit to include selections from John Scott's Anthony and Cleoptara and Miklos Rozsa's The Thief of Bagdad, poetic license permitting such asides.

The least that can be said about this 2-CD set is that it is truly sensational: the sound is rich and brassy, the performance excitingly vibrant, and the selections chosen with care. The high points of these two CDs are Franz Waxman's seldom heard suite from Taras Bulba; Manos Hadjidakis' "March" from The 300 Spartans, also a true discovery; John Barry's theme from The Last Valley, a score that deserves to be reissued on CD; and Mario Nascimbene's suite from The Vikings, which is far superior to the original soundtrack, at least where sonics are concerned.

Paul Bateman, Nic Raine and Kenneth Alwyn take the orchestra through the various pacings in each score with great flair and a thorough understanding of the importance of the music.

Fantasy, Horror, Science Fiction

The Best of Stephen King: volume 1

1993, edel America Records.

Album Notes: Music: Wendy Carlos, Rachel Elking, Mark Shaiman, John S. Harrison Jr., John Beal, Jonathan Elias, John Carpenter, Alan Howarth, Harold Faltermeyer; Album Producer: Arch Stanton.

Selections: The Shining (W. Carlos/R. Elking): 1 Main Title Theme (3:28) Chuck Cirino; 2 Music For Strings, Percussion And Celesta (B. Bartok)(7:48); Misery (M. Shaiman): 3 Suite: Number One Fan/Buster's Last Stand/Misery's Return (16:51); Creepshow (J. Harrison, Jr.): 4 Main Theme (3:32) Chuck Cirino; Graveyard Shift (J. Beal): 5 Trailer Music (1:25); Children Of The Corn (J. Elias): 6 Suite: Main Title/Barn Run/Murder/The Arrival/Chase Theme/ The Invasion/Burning The Cornfield/ Resolution (16:45); Christine (J. Carpenter/A. Howarth): 7 Car Obsession/Christine Attacks/Plymouth Fury (4:23); 8 The Rape (1:01); 9 Junkins And Regenration (4:23); 10 Arnie's Love Theme (1:17); The Running Man (H. Faltermeyer): 11 Mick's Broadcast/Attack (3:10).

Review: These cover versions of films inspired by the writings of Stephen King may be of interest to fans of the genre, but the average collector will probably be turned off by the lack of invention in the music and in the performances. The choice cuts here would appear to be Bela Bartok's "Music For Strings, Percussion and Celesta," which can be heard in much better recordings on a variety of classical labels, and Marc Shaiman's long suite from Misery, which is no match for the actual soundtrack recording. The rest is strictly routine, and not very good.

Herrmann)(4:02); The Blues Brothers: 14 Theme From Peter Gunn (H. Mancini) (2:48).

Review: There are many delights here for one to enjoy, proof positive that the folks at Silva Screen are doing something right. The concept of the Cult Files, obviously inspired by the success of television's The X-Files, is one that has validity, and that yields in this case many fun selections. The accent here is squarely on the tried-and-true, though here and there some themes creep up that are not run-of-the-mill, with the two CDs organized by genres, with the first focusing on television, and the second on movies. The only odd-man out in this set is the "Theme from Peter Gunn," credited to The Blues Brothers (?). Other than that, the selections are quite fun to listen to and effectively compete with the original versions.

50 Years Of Classic Horror Film Music

1987, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Jerry Goldsmith, James Bernard, Christopher Komeda, Franz Waxman, Max Steiner, Harry Robinson, John McCabe, Ennio Morricone, Christopher Young, David Whitaker; The National Philharmonic Orchestra and Chorus, conducted by Stanley Black; The Hammer City Orchestra, conducted by Philip Martell; The National Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Fred Steiner; Orchestra conducted by Paul Francis Witt; Album Producers: David Stoner, James Fitzpatrick.

Selections: The Omen (J. Goldsmith): 1 Suite (10:38); She (J. Bernard): 2 Suite (5:30); Rosemary's Baby (C. Komeda): 3 Lullaby (2:39); Dr. Jekyll & Mr. Hyde (F. Waxman): 4 Suite (10:20); King Kong (M. Steiner): 5 The Entrance Of Kong (4:19); The Vampire Lovers (H. Robinson): 6 Suite (3:28); Fear In The Night (J. McCabe): 7 Suite (4:24); Exorcist II: The Heretic (E. Morricone): 8 Regan's Theme (4:12); Hellraiser (C. Young): 9 Resurrection (2:32); Doctor Jekyll & Sister Hyde (D. Whitaker): 10 Suite (7:34).

Review: Yet another compilation from Silva Screen, which proves that the label has many fancy ideas up its corporate sleeve, and manages to come up with the right combinations and the right numbers. The concept here is horror classics, represented by long suites from The Omen and Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde, and themes from Rosemary's Baby, The Vampire Lovers, Exorcist II, and the tongue-in-cheek Doctor Jekyll and Sister Hyde, among others. One might question the presence of King Kong in this compilation, when so many other scores probably would have fit the purpose more adequately, but who is to quibble when the pleasure is almost unending.

Horror!

1996, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Arrangements: Gerard Schurmann, Philip Lane, Buxton Orr, Humphrey Searle, Carlo Martelli, James Bernard, Benjamin Frankel; The Westminster Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Kenneth Alwyn; Album Producer: David Wishart; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: Horrors Of The Black Museum (G. Schurmann): 1 Overture (3:30); The Haunting (H. Searle): 2 The History Of Hill House (4:31); Corridors Of Blood (B. Orr): 3 Prelude (1:30); Night Of The Demon (C. Parker): 4 Overture (3:14); The Abominable Snowman (H. Searle): 5 Main Title (1:30); Witchfinder General (P. Ferris): 6 Prelude/Romanza (6:20); The Curse Of The Mummy's Tomb (C. Martelli): 7 The Tomb/The Desert (5:08); Konga (G. Schurmann): 8 Overture (2:32); Fiend Without A Face (B. Orr): 9 Main Title/Love Theme (4:24); The Devil Rides Out (J. Bernard): 10 The Power Of Evil (1:29); Curse Of The Werewolf (B. Frankel): 11 Prelude (1:28); 12 Pastorale (2:10); 13 The Werewolf At Bay and Apotheosis (6:20).

Review: Although Silva's genre-oriented compilations vary wildly in quality, their British horror film collections have always been superb, and this is the cream of the crop: a highly enjoyable collection of works by British composers who bring their classical and concert training to bear on some silly but evocative supernatural thrillers. Although the expected hyperventilating horror sound of the 50s and 60s is present in titles like Buxton Orr's Fiend Without A Face and Gerard Schurmann's Horrors of the Black Museum, there's a surprising level of sophistication and tonal beauty to be found in suites like Paul Ferris' Witchfinder General with its beautiful "Greensleaves" love theme, Humphrey Searle's The Abominable Snowman with its glittering orientalisms, and Carlo Martelli's Curse of the Mummy's Tomb, while the climactic suite from Benjamin Frankel's Curse of the Werewolf is a standout with its furious, driving serial attack music. This is music that stands up on its own beautifully and this collection almost never lags in interest. A terrific recording, robustly conducted by Kenneth Alwyn with the Westminster Philharmonic Orchestra.

The Horror Films Collection

1995, DRG Records.

Album Notes: Album Producer: Claudio Fuiano.

Selections: 1 Dario's Theme (M. Werba)(4:04); Il trono di fuoco (The Throne Of Fire)(B. Nicolai): 2 Occhi fiammanti (Main Title)(2:05); 3 Sangue e amore (1:59); 4 La vendetta (2:30); 5 Il giudice sanguinario (2:25); 6 Giustizia sia fatta! (3:17); 7 Il trono di fuoco (1:30); 8 Il trono di fuoco (2:45); La notte dei diavoli (Night Of The Devils)(G. Gaslini): 9 Suite (9:00); 7 Note

In Nero (Seven Notes In Black)(F. Bixio/F. Frizzi/V. Tempera): 10 Sette note (3:21); 11 Tracce sul muro (3:12); La cripta e l'Incubo (The Nightmare Crypt) (C. Savina): 12 La maledizione di Karnstein (Main Title)(1:44); 13 Il ritratto di Sheena (1:00); 14 Cena al castello (:43); 15 L'incubo nella cripta (1:35); 16 Laura posseduta (1:14); 17 Il presagio (1:14); 18 Finale (1:14); Profondo rosso (Deep Red)(G. Gaslini): 19 20th Anniversary Special Suite (7:26); L'isola misteriosa e il Capitano Nemo (The Mysterious Island Of Captain Nemo)(G. Ferrio): 20 L'isola misteriosa (3:23); Il monaco (The Monk)(P. Piccioni): 21 Suite (6:36); Terrore nello spazio (Planet Of The Vampires)(G. Marinuzzi Jr.): 22 Suite (11:00); Passi di morte perduti nel buio (Deadly Steps Lost In The Dark)(R. Ortolani): 23 Main Title (2:40).

Review: This collection has the great merit to bring together several themes from Italian films that are not available elsewhere, all of them dealing with horror films, a genre that has many exponents over there. What is of particular interest here is the caliber of the composers involved, including Bruno Nicolai, Piero Piccioni, Riz Ortolani, and Carlo Savina, among others. (The only member of this elite not included here is Ennio Morricone, whose contract stipulates that his music cannot be coupled with that of others.) And while the quality of the music is at times uneven, The Throne of Fire, Night Of The Devils and particularly The Mysterious Island of Captain Nemo are quite enjoyable.

Sci-Fi At The Movies

1995, Label X Records.

Album Notes: Music: Bernard Herrmann, James Horner, John Charles, Miklos Rozsa, John Scott, Stu Phillips; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Tony Bremner; The London Symphony Orchestra, conducted by James Horner; The New Zealand Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William Southgate; The Royal Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Miklos Rozsa; The Unione musicisti di Roma, conducted by John Scott; The London Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Franco Collura; Album Producer: John Steven Lasher; Engineers: Bob Auger, Keith Grant, John Richards, Gary Clark, Robert Hagen, Paolo Enditti.

Selections: The Day The Earth Stood Still (B. Herrmann): 1 Lincoln Memorial (1:21); 2 Arlington Cemetary (1:44); Krull (J. Horner): 3 Main Title and Colwyn's Arrival (7:35); 4 Love Theme (2:36); 5 The Widow's Lullaby (5:03); 6 Epilogue and End Credits (4:51); The Quiet Earth (J. Charles): 7 Sunrise (3:25); 8 Zak Takes Over (2:14); 9 Moving Up In The World (:51); 10 Last Love Scene (1:14); 11 Finale (4:16); Time After Time (M. Rozsa): 12 Warner Bros. Fanfare (M. Steiner) and Prelude (2:09); 13 Vaporizing Equalizer (2:12); 14 Time Machine Waltz (4:00); 15 Redwoods (2:33); 16 Finale (4:01); Yor, The Hunter From The Future (J. Scott): 17 Death Rules This Land (4:08); 18 Pursued By Pygmies (2:31); 19 Queen Roa (1:50); 20 Into The Storm (1:39); Battlestar Galactica (S. Phillips): 21 Main Title (1:26).

Review: John Lasher, producer at Label X, didn't have to look very far to put this compilation together: many of these scores are already available on his label, and all he had to do was to cull a couple of selections from each one of them to put this CD together. There are advantages and disadvantages to the method. One, of course, is the fact that the composers represented here rank among the best: no one is going to argue with selections written by Bernard Herrmann, James Horner, Miklos Rozsa, or John Scott, particularly for films like The Day the Earth Stood Still, Krull, Time After Time, or Yor, The Hunter from the Future. But since many of these are also available on the complete soundtrack recordings, it may seem redundant to own them and this CD. As a short cut to a genre that has a great deal of popular appeal, however, the CD is also a welcome addition to any library. So, if you don't already have the individual albums, you might want to give it a shot. Otherwise, unless you are a completist, you might want to skip it.

Themes from Classic Science Fiction, Fantasy and Horror Films

1993, Varese-Sarabande Records.

Album Notes: Orchestra conducted by Dick Jacobs; Album Producers: Robert Townson, Dub Taylor.

Selections: The Mole People (H.J. Salter): 1 Treacherous Trek (3:17); The Creature From The Black Lagoon (H.J. Salter): 2 The Monster Attacks (2:05); This Island Earth (H. Stein): 3 Main Title/Shooting Stars (4:01); The Incredible Shrinking Man (F. Carling/E. Lawrence): 4 Main Theme (2:58); It Came From Outer Space (H. Stein): 5 Visitors From Sapce (1:47); The Creature Walks Among Us (H. Mancini): 6 Stalking The Creature (2:00); The House Of Frankenstein (H.J. Salter/P. Dessau): 7 Main Title (2:53); The Horror Of Dracula (J. Bernard): 8 Main Title/Dracula's Feast Of Blood (3:07); Tarantula (H. Mancini): 9 Main Title (1:57); The Son Of Dracula (H.J. Salter): 10 Main Title (1:12); The Revenge Of The Creature (H. Stein): 11 Main Title (1:36); The Deadly Mantis (W. Lava): 12 Winged Death (2:59).

Review: This album, initially released by Coral in the early 1960s, is actually a lot of fun: not only does it regroup many themes from horror films that you can't find anywhere else, but the whole thing is played strictly for the heck of it, with over-the-top performances well designed to try and scare the devil out of any listener. The themes here stem from some of the films made during the 1950s at Universal, a studio which in its heyday defined horror, but not the type of horror associated today with the more ghoulish and gory films that have become a regular staple in the genre. The monsters then were implausibly human-looking, expressionless, and scary only to the inevitable female star whose job opportunity it was to scream on cue. It is this world that Dick Jacobs recreated with his orchestra, in this collection which evokes The Creature, the many Frankenstein and Dracula films, the Shrinking Man, and the aptly-named It. A ton of fun that awaits your pleasure...

The Monster Music of Hans J. Salter & Frank Skinner

1995, Marco Polo Records.

Album Notes: The Moscow Symphony Orchestra, conducted by William T. Stromberg; Orchestrations: John Morgan; Album Producer: Betta International; Engineers: Edvard Shakhnazarian, Vitaly Ivanov.

Selections: Son Of Frankenstein (F. Skinner): 1 Universal Signature (:17); 2 Main Title (2:58); 3 The Message (2:08); 4 The General (1:06); 5 Discovery/Blute Solo (4:19); 6 The Examination/Looking For A Monster (8:29); 7 Death Of Ygor (2:20); 8 Monster's Rampage (4:06); 9 Finale/The Cast (:39); The Invisible Man Returns (F. Skinner/H.J. Salter): 10 Universal Signature (:15); 11 Main Title (2:13); 12 Two Hours To Live (2:57); 13 Together (4:13); 14 Resting (3:27); 15 The Ghost (2:09); 16 The Return (3:36); 17 End Title (3:04); The Wolf Man (F. Skinner/H.J. Salter): 18 Universal Signature (:14); 19 Main Title (2:00); 20 The Telescope (1:23); 21 Wolf-Bane (4:12); 22 The Kill (1:04); 23 Bela's Funeral (6:56); 24 Desperation (2:58); 25 Sir John's Discovery (8:31).

Review: Featuring the work of Universal's mainstay horror composers, Hans Salter and Frank Skinner, this CD features lengthy suites (25 minute average) from three terrific horror scores of the 1940s. Skinner's solo Son of Frankenstein erupts into a cacophony of plodding brass in a footstep pattern over swirling strings, snare drums, and cymbals. The Invisible Man Returns captures a lilting love theme for violin which is contrasted with a solemn motif for the villain's unsightly affliction. The Wolf-Man contrasts poignant and stately melodies with snarling werewolf attack music, punctuated by furious, animalistic footfalls from low strings and winds. A full-blooded score in every sense of the word. While these patriarchal horror movies sustain a charm more for their nostalgic style and absorbing ability to entertain than their fright capacity, their music remains ferociously potent. Ignored for years, it is with extreme gratitude that I find scores like these singled out for restoration and preservation. Now these venerable classics can be heard in the kind of digital glory they've never had before. Thorough liner notes provide comprehensive documentation of the music and these recordings thereof. Have a listen, and recapture an era of horror moviemaking long since past, yet fondly recalled by many.

Review: Fans of classic monster movies, the kind of Saturday matinee material that featured big-eyed mutated insects and otherworldly aliens, should enjoy this two-volume release, both for its nostalgic value and, on occasion, superior musical material. Monstrous Movie Music contains suites from four '50s sci-fi movies – brief cues from The Mole People, music by Herman Stein and Heinz Roemheld; a suite from Bronislau Kaper's music from the bona-fide classic Them!; selections from the entertaining It Came From Outer Space, music by Herman Stein, Irving Gertz and Henry Mancini; concluding with nine minutes of Misca Bakleinikoff's It Came From Beneath the Sea, a routine monster opus best known for Ray Harryhausen's visual effects. All of the music is basically composed in the same form of most genre scores from this period – mainly bombastic, at times shrill, and somewhat redundant. In More Monstrous Movie Music, the scores represented include Stein and Mancini's Tarantula; a suite from David Buttolph's The Beast From 20,000 Fathoms; the main title from Gertz's The Monolith Monsters; and nearly 20 minutes from Angelo Lavagnino's Gorgo, which was among the last – and easily one of the best – entries into the "giant monster" film cycle. This score has always been a listener favorite, with many lyrical moments interspersed amongst all of the bombastic "monster music" cliches many of the other scores contain. Excellent liner notes help make this an attractive package, despite the fact that the Radio Symphony of Cracow, here conducted by Masatoshi Mitsumoto, seems to have trouble hitting the high notes at times (particularly on "Gorgo"). Otherwise, the performance is competent and the albums themselves – while not containing the kind of music that lends itself easily to repeated listenings – are a pleasing release for genre buffs.

Vampire Circus: The Essential Vampire Theme Collection

1993, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: Gerald Fried, David Whitaker, Brad Fiedel, Chuck Cirino, Jonathan Elias, Daniel Licht, Brian May, Lee Holdridge, Fred Mollin, Cliff Eidelman, Mark McKenzie, Bob Cobert, Richard Stone; Album Producer: Ford A. Thaxton; Engineers: John Goodmanson, Ben Goldfarb.

Selections: The Return Of Dracula (G. Fried): 1 Overture (2:07); Vampire Circus (D. Whitaker): 2 Prologue (9:13); Fright Night (B. Fiedel): 3 Come To Me (3:53); Transylvania Twist (C. Cirino): 4 Painting The Way/The Letter/The Flight/Getting Cornered/Main Title (7:23); Vamp (J. Elias): 5 The Vampire Coven's Prayer (2:56); Children Of The Night (D. Licht): 6 The Blood Sucker's Ball (3:36); Thirst (B. May): 7 Vampire Ceremony and Initiation Ritual (4:47); Transylvania 6-5000 (L. Holdridge): 8 Night Flight To Transylvania/Happy Arrival/Madame Moravia/Draculette/Transylvania 6-5000 (7:37); Forever Knight (F. Mollin): 9 Main Title Theme (1:28); To Die For (C. Eidelman): 10 Main Title/Night Flight Over Los Angeles/The Loneliness Of Eternity/Vlad's Farewell (9:30); To Die For II: Son Of Darkness (M. McKenzie): 11 Finale (3:17); The Hunger: 12 The Flower Duet (from Lakme)(L. Delibes)(3:46) Lesley Garrett & Lesley Christian; Dracula (B. Cobert): 13 The Legend Of Vlad The Impaler/Main Title/Dracula's Love Theme/The Dark Kiss/Harker Strikes/The Final Confrontation and Dracula's Death (11:29); Sundown: The Vampire In Retreat (R. Stone): 14 Redemption Of The Damned (Finale)(5:43).

Review: This compilation puts together tracks from various recent horror films, with the scores composed by Brad Fiedel, Brian May, Lee Holdridge, Cliff Eidelman, Daniel Licht, and (would you believe it!) Leo Delibes. Programming is interesting, if somewhat hackneyed, and the selections evoke some of the best films in the genre from the past 20-odd years. Actually, the title says it all: this is the essential vampire theme collection... even though it misses some themes composed by other composers for other labels, and therefore not readily available for this compilation, like John Williams' Dracula, for starters.

Film Studios

This Is Cinerama at the Movies

1995, Label X Records.

Album Notes: Music: Max Steiner, Paul Sawtell, Roy Webb; The Cinerama Philharmonic Orchestra, conducted by Louis Forbes; Album Producer: John Steven Lasher; Engineer: Richard J. Pietschmann, Jr., David Macquarie.

Selections: 1 Ladies And Gentlemen, This Is Cinerama (M. Steiner)(1:39) Lowell Thomas; 2 Stereophonic Sound Demonstration (M. Steiner)(3:00); 3 Messiah: Hallelujah Chorus (G.F. Handel)(2:33) The Long Island Choral Society; 4 Venice Sequence (P. Sawtell)(4:26); 5 On The Beautiful Blue Danube (J. Strauss)(3:00) The Vienna Boys Choir; 6 Spanish Dancers (trad.)(1:19); 7 Aida: Dance Of The Nubian Slaves (G. Verdi)(2:05) Teatro alla Scala Orchestra and Chorus, Victor de Sabata; 8 Florida Cypress Gardens Sequence (M. Steiner) (2:47); 9 Water Show (R. Webb)(2:56); 10 Water Ballet Montage (R. Webb)(5:38); 11 Flight Across America (S. Cutner/H. Jackson/L. Shuken/M. Steiner/R. Webb)(10:40); 12 America, The Beautiful (K.L. Bates/S.A. Ward)(1:02) The Salt Lake City Tabernacle Choir, J. Spencer Cornwall; 13 End Credits (M. Steiner)(1:22); 14 Exit Music (R. Webb)(1:59).

Review: Before it entered the commercial fray and turned its attention to features, the Cinerama Company produced several travelogues that were essentially interesting as visual novelty, presenting as they did films shot by three cameras to give a vast panoramic vision. The first, and most memorable of these films is This Is Cinerama, truly a spectacular display that takes full advantage of the system's resources and combines them into a magical ride throughout the world, enhanced by the multi-screen presentation. The music heard behind the screen is also the work of highly competent individuals, like Max Steiner, Paul Sawtell, and Roy Webb. This CD reproduces the soundtrack album from that first film, in a sound that leaves a lot to be desired (stereo was not a selling point at the time, though multi-tracking was), and minus the visuals. The selections also represent a rather uneven hodgepodge, from choral excerpts to grand opera scenes, from sweeping orchestral pieces to patriotic displays. The CD reflects all these ingredients and more, with the highlights here, at least where fans of film music are concerned, being the selections by Max Steiner and Roy Webb.

Music from the Hammer Films

1989, Silva Screen Records.

Album Notes: Music: James Bernard, Christopher Gunning, David Whitaker; The Philharmonia Orchestra, conducted by Neil Richardson; Album Producer: Eric Tomlinson; Engineer: Mike Ross-Trevor.

Selections: The Dracula Suite (J. Bernard): 1 Main Theme (2:15); 2 Inside Castle Dracula/The Lure Of The Vampire Woman/Dracula's Rage (3:05); 3 The Kiss Of Living Death (2:08); 4 Funeral In Carpathia (2:25); 5 Finale: Confrontation and Climax/The Fall Of Dracula (2:31); Hands Of The Ripper (C. Gunning): 6 Main Titles/Trace/Mrs. Golding's Murder/Anna's Theme (10:33); Dracula Has Risen From The Grave (J. Bernard): 7 Finale: Dracula And The Crucifix (5:24); Vampire Circus (D. Whitaker): 8 Prologue (9:15); Taste The Blood Of Dracula (J. Bernard): 9 The Blood Of Dracula (2:11); 10 Romance: The Young Lovers/ Shadow Of The Tomb (3:21); 11 Ride To The Ruined Church (2:56); 12 Romance: At Dusk (2:30); 13 Dracula Triumphant/Pursuit/The Death Of Lucy (3:39); 14 The Victory Of Love (2:20).

Review: This companion volume to the Vampire Circus CD focuses on the enormous contributions made to the horror genre by the Hammer films. From James Bernard's endless scores for the Dracula films to David Whitaker's own ruminations for Vampire Circus, to Christopher Gunning's first essays with Hands Of The Ripper, this is a set that celebrates horror in all its nefarious aspects, with broad romantic themes that underline each story without revealing too much about it. The horror is frequently subliminal here, but the fun is not.

The Best of Hemdale

Review: A major independent, Hemdale specialized in quality films no one else wanted to pick up for distribution. And so, this compilation includes several themes from such important releases as Hoosiers, Criminal Law, Salvador, and Platoon, with scores contributed by Jerry Goldsmith and Georges Delerue. Of course, the company also included the mix films that were less attention-commanding, and it should not come as a real surprise to find here the trite themes written by Brad Fiedel for The Terminator, or excerpts from The River's Edge and Best Seller, both films that only left a faint passing mark. It may also seem odd to find a "cover" version of Samuel Barber's "Adagio For Strings," which was used so effectively in Platoon, but on the other hand the inclusion of excerpts from Ryuichi Sakamoto's The Last Emperor are always welcome. As you can see, it's a bit of everything...

Review: One of the classiest among the independent labels, Merchant Ivory has established its solid reputation on films that are exquisitely made, dealing with subjects that have universal appeal, and boasting fashionable scores, usually written by the dependable Richard Robbins.

This 25th anniversary compilation is a festive celebration, an eclectic choice of various themes and cues that have been used behind some of the most attractive films ever presented on the screen. However, it does call for some reservations.

The first CD deals with what might be conveniently called the "European" films, many of them, like Jane Austen in Manhattan, Quartet, The Europeans, The Bostonians, A Room With a View, and Maurice were scored by Robbins in the style that seems appropriate for the films themselves. This is by far the most exciting of the two CDs in this collection.

The second CD focuses on the "oriental" films, those with a theme or background that justify using a more ethnic score. While there is nothing wrong with these scores, composed by Ustad Ali Abkar Khan, Ustad Vilayat Khan, and Ghazal, they may seem at times a little too exotic for the western ears. Which is not to say they shouldn't be heard, but a little would probably suffice. As it is, the abundance of Indian ragas, even when adapted to suit the continental sensitivity, is not as enjoyable as, say, the selections by Richard Robbins.

Review: The title says it all: at the peak of its creative output, M-G-M was the studio against which all others had to measure up, a fact duly noted in this wonderful collection that focuses on the songs and themes that won the coveted Academy Award (or Oscar). The range is broad, covering as it does The Wizard of Oz, Anchors Aweigh, An American in Paris, Seven Brides for Seven Brothers, and Gigi, among the musicals; and Ben-Hur and Doctor Zhivago, among the dramatic films. Yet, the CD is a bit of a deception as M-G-M earned its laurels in both the musical and the dramatic fields. There is too much of the former here, and not enough of the latter, to establish a thorough balance, which leads one to think that perhaps there should have been two CDs, instead of one. Ah, well...

Review: What an irresistible idea, and what a great package! When musicals reigned supreme, during the 1940s, many big bands appeared in the M-G-M films, from Artie Shaw to Jimmy Dorsey, from Harry James to Bob Crosby, from Guy Lombardo to Kay Kyser. The tracks culled here from more than a dozen films are terrific, and a bonanza for anyone who loves the big band era. One could argue, of course, that there were quite a few others who appeared in the movies, notably Louis Armstrong and Xavier Cugat (both represented in their own compilations), but for a start this is really the creme de la creme, and a fancy concept.
